Taxpayers and all interested in economy of operation will vote this a good showing, particularly since there has been no ground for criticism of the way in which the work has been done.

ENGLISH BOY CHORISTERS IN DELIGHTFUL CONCERT

The famous English Boy Choristers, now on a good will tour of the United States, at their concert in the Church of the Epiphany Tuesday evening, under the direction of Carlton Borroni, A. R. C. O., sang the following program: Nicholson, two part anthem—"Be Strong in the Lord"; Arcadelt, three part anthem—"Ave Maria"; Mendelssohn, duet and chorus—"I Waited for the Lord"; Traditional—"Hush Thou Babe"; Field, trio—"God Shall Wipe Away All Tears"; Atkins, three part anthem—"Abide With Me"; Old Chant—"Benedictus"; "Seven Fold Amen."

The church was taxed to its utmost capacity, extra chairs and benches being placed at the rear of the nave and in the aisles. The large audience listened attentively to the singers, their attitude giving evidence of the greatest pleasure.

The boys sang with a beauty of tone that always escaped the harsh shrillness and unpleasant chest quality so often apparent in youthful singers. Their diction, especially in unaccompanied numbers, was notably excellent, another feature not often encountered in boys and one that bespoke careful training. In their part singing the inner voices were generally well marked, though at times there was a tendency for too much organ to spoil the voice effect.

Outstanding was the performance of Mendelssohn's familiar "I Waited for the Lord," though the three part anthem, "Ave Maria," done in Latin and unaccompanied, was also beautifully sung, and Atkin's arrangement of the beloved "Abide With Me" had great appeal. Undoubtedly the omission of the familiar Christmas carols from the program was regretted by many. Most effective was the performance of the "Choral Amen," sung kneeling.

The most pleasing of the solo voices was that of the alto which was unusually round and well placed. In appearance the boys were very much an average group of good looking youngsters, the chief difference in appearance from the American choir boy being the high frilly collars they wore with their cassocks and surplices.

An addition to the boys' regular accompanist, two visiting organists assisted at the service, Mr. and Frances Snow, organist and choirmaster at Trinity Church in Boston, playing accompaniments for some of the selections while the prelude and postlude to the service were played by a French woman, Mille Nizan, who gave a brilliant performance. The rector of the church, Rev. Dwight W. Hadley, presided at the service.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH DANCE WELL ATTENDED

A very delightful Christmas dance was held at the parish house of the Church of the Epiphany last Saturday evening under the auspices of the Vestry and Ushers Club. Mr. Ellsworth Snow was chairman, assisted by Mr. Herbert Kelley, Mr. John Hussey, Mr. Donald Heath and members of the Ushers' Club. The hall was attractively decorated with Christmas greens and red lighting; Mel Von's orchestra provided entirely satisfactory dance music.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Kelley entertained at dinner before the dance; their guests including Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Hadley, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Heath, Mr. and Mrs. John Hussey and Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Snow. Among those enjoying the dancing party during the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sawyer, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hills, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Mancib, Miss Eleanor Boyd, Mr. Edwin P. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Weily, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Richmond, Mr. and Mrs. Bowen Tufts, Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge Wyman, Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Moffette, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Booth, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Avery, Mr. and Mrs. William McGill, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Brimer, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nevins and Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell McCreery.

Among the younger set were the Misses Frances Kelley, Barbara Kelley and her house guest, Miss Mary Brewer of East Aurora, N. Y., Evelyn McGill, Rebecca Dennison, Ruth Aseltine, Nancy Jackson, Gene MacDonald, Rhonda Skeene, Cynthia Hull, Annette Randlett of Cambridge, Betty Whorf, Muriel Little and Dorothy Waters; also Messrs. This was done by both departments in connection with the co-operative movement which is being tried out as an economy measure, tending to reduce the number of permanent men carried by the Highway Department.

WINCHESTER BOY WITH BYRD EXPLORERS

Stevenson Corey, supply officer of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition and son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Corey of Governor's avenue, was a member of the four man expedition under Paul A. Siple of Erie, Pa., the members of which were reported Sunday to have arrived safely via sledge at Admiral Byrd's base in Antarctica, Little America, after 77 days of excited chatter crowded with thrilling adventure.

In addition to Siple and Corey, O'in Stancliff of Erie, Pa., and F. Alton Wade were in the exploring party, bringing back reports of possible rich mineral resources in the newest American geographical claim, Marie Byrd Land.

Wade, towering, blond geologist, expressed the belief the coastal mountains they traverse are potentially rich sources of nonferrous metals. In a three-inch quartz vein cutting down the sheer face of one mountain in the Edsel Ford range, he found a deposit of galina which he considered likely to be associated with lead, zinc and copper. Quartz veins, appearing above the snow line among granites and schists, he said indicated presence of various ores.

With Stancliff, Wade had a lucky escape when their sled fell into a bottomless crevasse. Passing the foot of Mount Siple, mariners in a gray fog, they roped themselves together.

Suddenly, Stancliff said, the sled gave a lurch and in the split second between that feeling and the booming collapse of the snow bridge of the crevasse, Wade and he leaped off the sledge, sprawling in opposite directions.

When they regained their feet, they saw only the gee pole protruding over a gaping blue hole, and the dogs belly down in the snow to keep from being dragged after it.

Peering down, they saw that the sledge hung over a narrow snow ledge 50 feet below, below that ledge the blue walls of the crevasse spread out.

Wade hovered Stancliff into the crevasse on the gang line and succeeded in recovering all but 20 blocks of dogs pemmican before climbing back to the surface.

All four members of the sledging expedition broadcast Wednesday evening from the Byrd base, and it seems that Corey, too, had a narrow escape from death while exploring country on which no human foot had previously trod. He also slipped into a crevasse, and was seen and rescued by his comrades just as he was disappearing. At one point, the party camped on blue ice, so hard they were unable to drive their tent stakes into it.

Corey's parents received a direct radio from their explorer son yesterday which was as follows:

"Arrived back Dec. 29. Eight hundred fifty seven miles—seventy-seven days—Feeling fine—Lost my lead dog—Love—Steve."

WEYMOUTH—SHEPPARD

Only members of the immediate families and a few intimate friends attended the marriage in Gloversville, N. Ford, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, performed the simple ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Dickinson Sheppard, 6 South Park drive.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and was attended only by her sister, Miss Marion Sheppard. Mr. Weymouth had for his best man, Donald E. Woodward of this town.

The Lride is a graduate of Dean Academy and of the Leslie School. Mr. Weymouth, who is the son of Mr and Mrs. Edwin G. Weymouth of 30 Sargent road, graduated from Medford High School and from the University of Maine in the class of 1931, later attending Boston University. He and his bride will make their home in Cambridge.

WOBURN CUBS WON OVERTIME GAME FROM WINCHESTER C. C. TEAM

The fast Woburn Cubs hockey team, who for the past two years have been successfully competing in the independent ranks, were forced to an overtime period to defeat the Winchester Country Club team, 4-3, on the Country Club rink in the cold of last Sunday afternoon.

The clubs were well matched and put on an exciting contest. Woburn was first to score when Murray beat Goalie Neill, assisted by Roche and Bartlett. Blackman gave the visitors a two goal lead in the closing minutes of the first period, taking a pass from Kelliher.

Winchester had the edge in the third period, Adams taking a pass from Wadleigh to tie the count not long after the face-off. The tie was broken by Woburn when Kelliher counted on a pass from DeBenedetto.

The Country Club swarmed to the offensive and from a close-knit scrimmage in front of the Woburn sticks, "Vin" Farnsworth, former Yale player, slapped one past Wheaton to tie the score.

Going into the overtime period, the clubs battled on even terms until Woburn rushed the puck up to the Winchester uprights where a spirited scrimmage ensued. From this scrimmage, Bartlett, Woburn center, shot in the deciding goal.

Report of Work in Winchester in 1934

The agricultural work has been of a general nature with a few farm visits, meeting all requests, and giving information to many local people interested in home gardening.

Homemakers have continued their interest in the Extension Service with a great many women attending the programs as they are organized year after year. Mrs. Edwin S. Winn and Mrs. Rorty Snyder served as local leaders and Mrs. Albert Rogers is now serving as president of the group. Their program has included foods and nutrition, home management and the improvement of home grounds. A clothing program has been organized for the winter of 1935 that should be of interest to all those who are attempting to reduce their clothing expenses.

Boys and girls 4-H club work has been very active during the year with food, gardening, and canning clubs being organized. Mrs. Fred Baker, Mrs. William Baker, Mrs. Albert Thompson, Mrs. John Benson, Kenneth Benson, Richard Elliott and Richard Glendon have served as local leaders. One interested food club was organized under the name of Highland and Community Club. These young ladies met and made studies of food values and the economical preparation of meals. At each meeting a supper was prepared and served, different members acting as hostesses. At the last meeting a community meal was served to nearly 100 guests.

The canning club met at the Wadleigh School. Here the members brought their fruits and vegetables, fresh from the home garden, and carried them back in glass jars, ready for winter use. The 22 members preserved nearly 4000 jars of products.

The garden and canning clubs held a combined exhibit in the window of the Duncan Hardware Store and it created a great deal of attention. Local club members also exhibited their products at Massachusetts Horticultural Hall in Boston and at the Acton Fair. They also attended a judging contest at Worcester and a field day at the Waltham Market Garden station.

There are still some people in Winchester who do not realize that the service rendered by the Middlesex County Extension Service is free to all citizens and the programs in homemaking and agriculture for adults and boys and girls are available to all who make a request for them.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

This week brings another shrinkrise in the prices of practically all meats, butter and eggs. The high price of eggs is probably temporary due to the heavy holiday demand. The effects of the Florida freeze will carry over for several weeks until new crops of vegetables can mature. The mid-season orange crop was badly injured so that juice oranges will not be so cheap as they were for a few weeks. Navel oranges are more plentiful. Potatoes and winter cabbage are two of the most economical vegetables available, though bulk carrots, turnips, parsnips and onions are comparatively cheap.

A variety of inexpensive salad greens is obtainable to supplement these root vegetables.

Low Cost Dinner
Veal Pot Pie with Pastry Crust
Potatoes Carrots
Bread and Butter
Chocolate Pudding
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner
Baked Corned Beef
Mashed Potatoes Creamed Turnips
Bread and Butter Fruit Cup
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner
Vegetable Soup
Chicken Fricassee with Mushrooms
Glazed Sweet Potatoes
Creamed Carrots
Green Salad French Dressing
Hot Biscuits and Butter
Spanish Cream
Coffee Milk

NEW FORDS HERE

Dearborn, Mich., Dec. 27—Henry Ford today showed to newspapermen here the new Ford V-8 for 1935.

Most striking feature of the new car is body lines which are distinctively modern and a definite departure from any previous Ford design.

The new car also embodies a combination of major engineering developments aimed at increased riding comfort—which has been called the "center-poise" ride.

Numerous improvements in chassis design to provide increased ease of control are included.

Two important improvements have been made in the Ford V-8 engine, of which more than 1,300,000 are now on the road.

In addition Ford has developed a new type of body, the touring sedan, with unusually sleek lines and embodying a fitted rear trunk compartment integral with the body.

Safety glass is standard equipment not only in windshields, but also in all doors and windows in all body types.

The new car marks the present culmination of developments begun by Ford three years ago at the time of the announcement of the V-8 engine. In the three years intervening, Ford has been engaged in the development of a combination of engineering improvements aimed at providing a degree of riding comfort and ease of control comparable with the performance of the engine itself. The new body designs are a further evidence of the progress of Ford engineering.

EXTENSION SERVICE MEETING

The Winchester Highlands Unit of the Middlesex County Extension Service will meet Tuesday, Jan. 8, promptly at 2:15 p. m. at the Second Congregational Church. The topic to be considered is "Planting," the final lesson on the "Outdoor Living Room" project. It is hoped there will be a large attendance as plans for the rest of the year will be considered and it is important to have every one's opinion.

INTERESTING TAX INFORMATION

According to a statement made public this week by Tax Collector Nathaniel M. Nichols, all of the 1933 real estate taxes of the town have been cleaned up, and of the 1934 real estate taxes, there remain uncollected only 31 per cent. This represents in round figures about $80000 more collected at this time than at the same date a year ago.

ELKS' NOTES

Past District Deputy Fred H. Scholl, P.E.R. in charge of local arrangements for the home visitation of Winchester's District Deputy, Edward W. Sheehan of Concord, requests all members of Winchester Lodge who wish to attend to give their names to the lodge secretary, Dr. James H. O'Connor, before Sunday, Jan. 6, so that adequate transportation can be arranged.

The visitation is to be held in Memorial Hall, Concord, Tuesday evening, Jan. 8 at 8 o'clock and it is necessary to know how many are to go to Concord so that provision for their entertainment can be made.

BADLY CUT WITH AXE

Parker Smith, 21, of Ridge street, severely cut his left hand with an axe while chopping wood at his home Monday forenoon. The axe made a deep oblique cut across the top of the hand from the first to the fifth finger.

Smith was rushed to the office of Dr. Philip J. McManus, and from there to the Winchester Hospital where it was found that the axe had split a bone and severed a tendon as well as inflicted a deep cut. Dr. McManus was obliged to take more than 20 stitches to close the wound, beside setting the broken bone.

The young man was reported as getting along nicely yesterday, but was still confined to the hospital. It was reported that he would be able to go home within a few days.

ENTERTAINED AT TEA

Mrs. Malcolm Cook was the hostess of a tea given recently at her home on Kenwin road in honor of her daughter, Miss Eleanor Cook, who is a freshman at Simmons College. Many classmates of Miss Cook's attended and Miss Helen Homer of Reading poured.

DON'T HASTEN AGE

by this unnecessary Drudgery!

All the dishes—chinaware, glassware, silverware, pots, pans and even the hard to clean utensils such as mixers—are placed in the new General Electric Dishwasher at one time. The magic control is turned and in five minutes the job is done. No chipping, no breaking. The G-E cleans and dries itself—human hands do not touch dishwater.

See this newest electric home servant demonstrated at our showrooms. No obligation. There is a G-E Dishwasher for every kitchen. Both portable and cabinet-sink models.

HOW long will she retain her charm and bouyant spirits against the monotonous daily drudgery of dishwashing—the never ending dip, dip, dip of her hands in greasy dishwater three times a day? Dishes—dishes—dishes! In the average home a woman must wash and dry more than ten tons of dishes every year—a stack over twice as tall as the Empire State Building! And this tiring, wearisome task always comes at the end of the day—just when she wants and needs recreation and relaxation.

In days gone by women accepted the long hours of household work unquestioningly—and grew old at 30! Today, this most hated task of dishwashing is unnecessary. The new G-E Dishwasher abolishes the unsanitary dishcloth—eliminates "dishpan hands"—turns an hour of drudgery into a golden hour of freedom. Modernize your kitchen.

THE NEW FORD V-8 FOR 1935

NOW ON DISPLAY

A New Ford V-8 That Brings New Beauty, New Safety, and a New Kind of Riding Comfort Within Reach of Millions of People

The New Ford V-8 for 1935 is the biggest and roomiest Ford car ever built. It is a strikingly handsome car, with modern lines and new, luxurious appointments.

But most important of all it is especially designed to give you smooth, easy riding over all kinds of roads—"a front-seat ride for back-seat riders."

This ease of riding is achieved by the use of three basic principles never before combined in a low-price car.

1. Correct distribution of car weight by moving engine and body forward eight and a half inches.

2. New location of seats by which the rear seat is moved forward, toward the center of the car—away from the rear axle and away from the bumps.

3. New spring suspension which permits the use of longer, more flexible springs and increases the springbase to 123 inches.

The result is Center-Poise—which not only gives you a new riding comfort but adds to the stability of the car and its ease of handling. You can take curves with greater safety.

There are many new features in the Ford V-8 for 1935 which make the car still easier to drive. New brakes give more power for stopping quickly with far less foot pressure on the pedal.

A new type of easy-pressure clutch employs centrifugal force to increase efficiency at higher speeds. New steering mechanism makes the car still easier to handle. New, wider, roomier seats.

The New Ford V-8 for 1935 retains the V-8 engine which has demonstrated its dependability and economy in the service of more than a million owners. There are refinements, but no change in basic design. You buy premium performance when you buy this Ford V-8—full 85 horsepower and capable of 80 miles an hour. All Ford V-8 cars for 1935 come equipped with Safety Glass throughout at no additional cost.

We invite you to see this New Ford V-8 for 1935 at the showrooms of Ford dealers. You will want to ride in it—to drive it yourself. You will find it a new experience in motoring.

CONGREGATIONAL MEN'S CLUB

A Joyous Voyage

With Wintertime again at hand
(The night was cold and dry)
The Men's Club voyaged forth to have Another minstrel try,
And I emphatically must state
That in this year's attempt
'Twas filled with credit for the crew,
With not a one exempt.

The show last Friday and Saturday
Was filled with fun galore—
I watched intently from my seat
For full two hours or more,
And when we cast credit from the dock,
With the Admiral and his crew,
To take a trip on this joyous ship
Called the "Jolly Tars' Review."

The Ensigns with military step
Which showed they were no slobs,
Were quickly followed out on deck
By the very funny Gobs;
And could those sailors take it!
I mean, so much abuse,
But I'd suggest to the fatties
That they all try to reduce.

Then on the deck stepped Admiral Rex,
His epaulets all a-glisten,
And when he cried, "Pipe down there Lads,"
We all sat up to listen;
Although the night was cold outside,
We didn't have to anchor,
For Admiral Rex he pulled us through
Though he really is a banker.

Prediction was "fine today, but tomorrow cooler' weather;
What matter tho' if blizzards blow
When 'Club Men Get Together.'
But R. H. B. must leave the gang
To visit his southern 'mam.'
He left on 'the mid-night chu-chu'
For his home in Alabam."

With dainty grace and nimble steps,
Miss Norton then appeared,
And for her clever dancing
We all must fully showed.

Then Miss Taft came tripping forth,
And I have heard it said
That "she walked on the tin of her toes,
With her hat on the side of her head."

It seemed to me these misses came
From the castles of the gods,
To my surprise I later learned
Were pupils of Rosa Todd's;
Miss Rosa, too, came forward then,
Looking so trim and neat,
And gave a wonderful exhibition
With her educated feet.

No minstrel show would be complete
With Nate and Oscar out
And when they came upon the deck
There was a joyful shout.
Carl Wood "In Eleven More Months
And Ten More Days"
Be Out of the Calaboose,
But if Woody's safety pin had broke,
His pants would have turned him loose.

Commander Rush then came on deck
With a girl from Alaham';
Which reminded us of the story
Of Mary and her lamb.
And the comedy in this act alone
Brought applause that shook the rafter
For where ever the Commander went
The dummy followed after.

Art Cameron's "Mammy's Coal Black Rose"
Was met with big applause,
And Tommy Hoag and his Marimbaphone
Sure helped along the cause;
He played from Sullivan's Opera
And the "Flight of the Bumble Bee,"
And his four hammer solo, "Sylvia,"
Was a pleasing sight to see.

Abbott and Anderson, that Rubeish pair,
Were out upon a hike,
The old man could walk all right,
But the young one wanted a bike,
Although the answer always was
"No, a thousand times no."

The children hailed the peanuts
Flung by the man who crashed the show.

A dark cloud rose on our starboard side
Which filled us full of fears—
We soon found Oscar Crowers and his "Dusky Cavaliers;"
Then William Hodge was introduced,
And how that man could sing,
Although he came from a sick bed
To make the "Bells in the Lighthouse Ring."

Another cloud was on t'other side—
We thought we'd have to dodge her,
But Doctor Blanchard in his song
Said we're only "Twenty four hours from Georgia."
The final song was just the thing
And brought us to our toes
As we saw Ola Crandall there
As good old "Yankee Rose."

The jokes as sprung throughout the show
Were very un-to-date,
And many of us shivered there,
Not knowing of our fate;
They touched upon our local fads,
Our hobbies and all that,
And I am very glad to say
That none of them were flat.

If I dont stop, I soon will find
Friend Wilson in a rage,
For when he tries to set this up,
He'll need another page.
Although he owns the Winchester Star,
The Men's Club have a few,
And with just a friendly hint,
I'm bound to say "Adieu."

So to the Men's Club we'll agree
Great praise and thanks must go,
For their success in putting on
So popular a show.
Now let me close with this advice—
Be sure to be on hand
When the Men's Club gives its next
And the show as grand.

CALUMET NOTES

Dancing commenced at 9 o clock in the club hall which was gaily decorated with lights in Christmas colors and balloons. Music was furnished by Walt Cunningham's Orchestra, a well known band, much in demand at club and college functions.

Shortly before midnight, noisemakers and colorful hats were distributed by C. Harold Smith and Arthur S. Kelley. 1935 was given a royal and noisy welcome, after which the revelers repaired to the billiard room, transformed into a banquet hall where at attractively decorated tables Steward Fred H. Scholl served a tempting dinner of creamed chicken in patty shells, potato chips, hot rolls, ice cream, cake and coffee.

After the dinner, dancing was resumed and continued until 2:30 New Year's morning. Professional entertainers were furnished by the band. Among those from out-of-town were guests from Lexington, Brookline, Stoneham and Wakefield.

The committee in charge of arrangements included Robert A. Reynolds, C. Harold Smith, Earle B. Goldsmith and W. F. Flanders.

HATCH—BATES

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Bates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Albert Bates of Spring street, Stoneham, to Harold Charles Hatch, of Highland Park, Michigan, son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Hatch of Forest street, took place on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 30 in Goddard Memorial Chapel at Tufts College. The ceremony was performed at 4 o'clock in a setting of white chrysanthemums and evergreen by Rev. John D. Mowrer of the Stoneham Episcopal Church assisted by Rev. Allston B. Gifford of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Saugus, formerly pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church in this town. The conventional wedding music from Lohengrin was played for the entrance of the bridal party by Miss Hyacinth Shaw, organist of this town, who also played the selection, "I Love You Truly," during the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and had for her honor attendant, Mrs. Ruth Rayner Van Tuyl of Melrose. Bridesmaids were Miss Virginia Bates of Stoneham, niece of the bride, and the bridegroom's sister, Miss Marion F. Hatch of this town. Miss Roberta Irene Lee of Stoneham was flower girl.

Ronald K. Hatch of Highland Park, Mich., was his brother's best man and another brother, Ralph W. Hatch of this town, was an usher, with William D. Bates, of Brooklyn, N. Y., brother of the bride; Herbert A. Glynn of Stoneham and Charles O. Hesterman of Dorchester.

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin with long sleeves, pleated at neck and wrists, and a veil of tulle arranged with a pleated cap. Her shower bouquet was of white roses and lilies of the valley. Her honor attendant wore a gown of deep rose crepe with silver turban and slippers and carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums. The remaining attendants wore peacock blue crepe gowns with matching turbans and silver slippers, and also carried chrysanthemums.

The bride is a graduate of Stoneham High School and of the Massachusetts School of Art in the Class of 1930. Mr. Hatch was graduated from Winchester High and from Tufts College with the Class of 1932. In high school, he was known as one of the best schoolboy pitchers in the Mystic Valley and while at Tufts was a member of the varsity pitching staff. He is a member of the Alpha Kappa Pi fraternity and is associated as a mechanical engineer with the Gar Wood Industries. With his bride, he will make his home at 225 Highland avenue, Highland Park, Michigan.

In a recent advocation of movies here in Winchester, a nearby paper has this to say: "The residents of the Town want to bear one fact in mind, and that is, that the proposed theatre can be built without any vote of the Town, and all that remains is for the owner of the property to comply with the building laws."

The Star is familiar with the slogan of the last two "movie votes" to the effect that "Winchester is going to have movies" and the fact that the Town voted against them does not mean that they are a dead issue. This is, undoubtedly, a New Deal period in about everything entering into civic and municipal affairs, not to our regulations heretofore considered lacking wholly within the individual realm of activity, so it does seem as if the positive statement may have ample backing. We seem to be told just about what we can and what we can't do in nearly every walk of life. According to such reasoning, and the bald statement that the Town has no vote in the matter, it might appear that the promotor has ample reason for his definite assertion that Winchester will have movies.

FROM THE JUVENILES

Winchester, Mass.,
Dec. 28, 1934

To the Editor of the Star:

Lately the viewpoints of many of the adult citizens of Winchester regarding a theatre in this town, have been in the Winchester Star. Perhaps the readers would like to read the opinions of a few of the younger people of Winchester.

The buses going to the out-side theatres are always laden with children as well as adults from our town. The children of Winchester love the movies anyway, so we ask you, "Why not have a theatre in our own town?" Then every time we go to the movies we will not be spending twenty cents extra. This twenty cents might save our parents a little as often the parents are the ones that pay for the movie.

Why should the children of Arlington, Stoneham, Malden, Medford, Woburn, etc., come up to our town to see a picture when they all have a picture house of their own. Therefore the crowds would be largely from Winchester. Are you ashamed of them?

Will a theatre in Winchester pay? What about the town of Stoneham, a town of a few thousand less population than our own. The theatre there is certainly a fine success as far as we know. Then there is always the possibility that many of the people that now count on a radio for an evening's entertainment will go to the movies.

The question of the quality of the pictures comes up. Under the new drive for better shows, many new pictures are being produced that will be educational as well as entertaining.

We would hate to admit that the people of Winchester are too old fashioned to construct a moving picture house in our town.

Very truly yours,
Walter Gleason
Arthur S. Harris, Jr.

DR. CHIDLEY'S OBJECTION

Jan. 3, 1935

Mr. Teele's letter last week raises the question as to why the opposition to movies in Winchester. The chief objection is that Winchester cannot control the type of movies she would have to submit to if she granted a license to an operator. This will be true as long as the producers in Hollywood have a stranglehold on the business through block-booking. Block-booking means that the man who signs up with these large producers to show their pictures can reject only a very small percentage of the pictures which they sell him and must order pictures in some cases before they are even produced. What chance has he to show decent movies, even if he wished to? He is at the mercy of the producers, and so is the town where he operates his motion picture theatre.

Block-booking is the nub of the fight that is going on by Catholics, Protestants and Jews against indecent films, and until it is eliminated from the business, it is futile for anyone to talk about giving this town clean movies.

Yours very truly,
Howard J. Chidley

TO THE WATER AND SEWER BOARD

To the Editor of the Star:

It is indeed true that we do go astray often in accepting as facts things told to us by some people.

But we can, as a rule, believe things which we see with our own eyes and of which we have some knowledge from our own experience in the subject involved.

I should like to know why the trees were planted, why they are being trimmed in the manner in which they are, and whether or not all members of the board were present at the meeting last fall when it was voted to trim out the trees?

ROTARY CLUB

The New Year started off with a bang in local Rotary circles. The Rotary Club of Woburn entertained the Clubs from Wakefield and Winchester at a gathering which has been called the "23 W's" meeting. In a previous letter we mentioned the special significance of this occasion because of the fact that the Rotary Club of Wakefield sponsored the Rotary Club of Woburn and in turn the Rotary club of Woburn sponsored the Rotary club of Winchester. And the attendance and enthusiasm displayed at this time gave unmistakable proof that the family tree is in a flourishing condition.

The Woburn Club presented as guest speaker, Rev. Dr. Samuel M. Lindsay, pastor of the Brookline Baptist Church, who addressed the assembly taking as his topic, "The Art of Living Together." Needless to say Dr. Lindsay fully lived up to his reputation of being one of the most effective speakers in Greater Boston.

As he gave emphasis to the fundamental principle that people are greater than nations and religion is greater than denominations, we were forcefully reminded that Rotary and other service clubs are effectively supplementing the work of the church in promoting peace and brotherhood among men.

District Governor Daniel Aldrich advises us that important engagements make it necessary for him to postpone his visit to Winchester until March 21. Naturally we are disappointed that our meeting with Governor Dan must be so long deferred, but we shall try to make our welcome all the warmer when he does appear.

The mid-year assembly of this district will be held on Jan. 9 from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. at Hovey Hall, Waltham. While these District Assemblies are primarily for the instruction of club officers, it should be borne in mind that all club members will be welcomed. All who can attend should advise the secretary immediately.

The next meeting of the Winchester Club will be held at home quarters on Jan. 10 as per regular schedule. This will be the first home-meeting of 1935 and we hope to greet every member as we break bread together.

Average attendance for December 57.11 per cent.

TAX COMMISSIONER SENDS OUT NEW TAX FORMS

Henry F. Long, Commissioner of Corporations and Taxation, is today placing in the hands of all individuals, partnerships, fiduciaries, partnerships having transferable shares who are under agreement to file returns, clubs and all others who have filed returns for the past years, such income tax forms for use in filing 1935 returns of 1934 income.

Commissioner Long says that each form bears the name and file number of the taxpayer for whom it is intended and enclosed with the form is a duplicate stenciled receipt form for recording the payment of the tax. The stenciled receipt, in use for the first time this year, with the stenciled form is expected, if the taxpayer will make certain to use them, to be of material aid in a speedy and accurate handling of the income tax returns and payments.

The Massachusetts Income Tax law requires payment of one half of the tax on the filing date, but payment in full can be made when the tax return is mailed or filed in person at the district income tax offices located at Salem, Brockton, Fall River, Cambridge, Lowell, Worcester, Fitchburg, Springfield and Pittsfield or at the main office, 10 Court street, Boston.

Commissioner Long points out that the handling of thousands of returns to be made is a gigantic task and becomes a costly one to the taxpayers if many postpone the filing until the last week in February and thus adds to the administrative cost, which is avoided if the taxpayers file in January, at which time greater opportunity for prompt personal attention to all who desire information and assistance is permitted.

Commissioner Long says that employers, banks and corporations are required by the Income Tax law to furnish him with information as to salaries, interest and dividends and annuities paid to persons in Massachusetts during the year 1934.

He also says that duplicate copies of various forms used in income tax work may be obtained in any of the district offices or at the main office, and at many of the banks throughout the Commonwealth and that all connected with the Tax Department will be happy to assist anyone if they make it a point to immediately prepare the 1935 return for filing.

Commissioner Long advises that the revenue in 1934 to be distributed in its entirety to the cities and towns of the Commonwealth to be used by them in reduction of the real estate tax, will probably not exceed $17,000,000 and that in view of the dividends passed or reduced by the corporations in 1934, that shrinkage is likely to occur in the 1935 income tax collection based upon 1934 income, and will to the extent that it is reduced because of the decrease in dividends declared, cause the burden to fall on real estate in making up the loss occasioned by the shrinkage and what is offset in the 1935 income tax.

NEW YEAR'S PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Grant entertained at a New Year's party in their home on Church street Monday evening. Among their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cole, Mr. and Mrs. Derrill Nevins, Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Pray, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur MacFarland of Bar Harbor and Mr. and Mrs. Jan Friis of Topsfield.

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Republican Club was held on Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 2, in Waterfield Hall with the president, Mrs. C. Harold Smith in the chair. After the salute to the flag the president extended to club members her greetings for the New Year and spoke especially of the fresh aspirations, hopes and objections that a new year always brings. Mrs. Smith stressed the fact that now is the time to begin to lay the foundations for the next campaign and that everyone should study carefully the problems now confronting us.

A delightful musical program was presented by Mrs. Sofia Gardner, soloist and Mrs. Mary Ranton Witham, accompanist. Both talented artists are great favorites with Winchester audiences. Mrs. Gardner's first three numbers "To the Sun," "The Virgin's Lullaby" and "The Pine Tree," were so varied as to give scope to the range and tone of the artists lovely voice and to exploit her skillful and sympathetic interpretation of the themes. The group of three fairy songs which followed, captivated the audience not only because of the gay and lilting airs but because of Mrs. Gardner's whimsical and enchanting presentation. So enthusiastic was the applause that Mrs. Gardner gave as an encore, "Songs My Mother Taught Me" to the great delight of all present. Mrs. Witham always the perfect accompanist, displayed her usual skilled technique and exquisite interpretation of the music.

Mrs. Smith then introduced, as guest speaker for the afternoon, Mrs. Andrew J. George, well known lecturer on Current Events, who had for her subject "Affairs at Home and Abroad." Mrs. George humorously remarked that it is a great thing to be a Republican in these days for adversity tests the character of the man and went on to say that any democracy to continue as a democracy must have two parties; the party in control and the opposition. Mrs. George spoke of the National Congress with its overwhelming majority of Democrats and pointed out that when you get so large a majority of one party it is difficult to carry on because of the cliques and blocks, which will form in that party. The time of non-criticism of Presidential policies has passed, said Mrs. George and we are now getting constructive criticism with the result that President Roosevelt is now working for recovery and not reform, since recovery is absolutely essential to the President not only for economic but political reasons. The President's tendency is now toward conservatism but being an altroit politician he does nothing openly to antagonize the left wing of his party and other radicals. His adroitness is well shown by his handling of the bonus situation.

Mrs. George spoke of Vice President John Garner of whom almost nothing is heard and yet who is known to have great influence in Washington. Mr. Garner, a man rich by his own efforts and one who does not intend to lose his hard earned fortune, wants no manipulation of U. S. money. He is an astute politician, who wields great influence, though not in the limelight, is personally popular and is bending every effort to restore the confidence of business men.

The outlook seems to be in favor of economic recovery, said Mrs. George and pointed out that the outstanding examples in world economic recovery were those countries, such as Great Britain, Scandinavian countries and Canada, all with true democratic governments.

Turning to world affairs, Mrs. George spoke of the spendid work the League of Nations is doing for the peace of Europe. The deaths of King Albert of Belgium, Von Hindenburg, Chancellor Dollfuss of Austria, the King of Jugo-Slavia might have precipitated war, except for the work of the League. Germany is the heart of the solution for the peace of Europe. When the menace of war is removed, world trade will rapidly improve and economic recovery follow. Mrs. George showed how the death of Chancellor Dolfuss had accomplished what he could not through striving mightily accomplish in life—namely peace. For the concerted action of Italy, Great Britain and France at the time of his assassination prevented Hitler from bringing Austria under the control of Germany. The League of Nations' Council has worked out a plan for the peaceful settlement of the Saar Valley affair and is constantly settling with skilled tact disputes among European nations. The point to watch now said Mrs. George is whether after, the Saar returns to Germany, which it will undoubtedly vote to do, Germany can be brought back into the Disarmament Conference and the League, or whether Hitler will seek further means of extending the power of Germany.

A question period followed and it was interesting to note that the questions dealt principally with the problems confronting us here in the United States.

ICY STREETS

To the Editor of the Star:

Now begins the season of freeze and thaw making the dangerous, icy conditions of the street a menace to people and cars.

May I then offer this suggestion to the Highway Department: That when the snowfall is light, it be permitted to remain and tramped upon, giving good footing and speedier walking to the business people making trains. If the plough be used, the result is almost always an icy glare which later has to be sanded.

Our street is promptly taken care of, yet during the icy conditions of the past few days, there have been several cars which needed the combined strength of many good fellows of the road to get them going again. Ice has landed me twice in the hospital and there are others who prefer to tackle a snow drift than creep over ice as only the children enjoy a somersault.

For the next two months, it will require nice discrimination when to use the plough.

PIONEER IN SCIENCE OF PAINT IS DEAD

Funeral services for Edward C. Holton, 69, chief chemist of the Sherwin-Williams Co. since 1899, were held Monday morning, Dec. 3 at 10:30 from his home, Columbia and Bagley roads, Olmsted Falls, Ohio. Mr. Holton died Dec. 1 at his home after a brief illness.

Born at Winchester, Mass., Mr. Holton was graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and taught chemistry there for four years. In 1892 he was engaged as the only chemist for the Sherwin-Williams Co., by H. A. Sherwin.

Numerous patents on insecticides, fungicides, pigments, paint oils and varnish resins were granted to Mr. Holton and assigned to the company. In 1916 the president's prize of the Sherwin-Williams Co. was awarded Mr. Holton for "outstanding research work and devolpments on insecticides."

He served in the Council of Olmsted Falls, where he had lived for 30 years, on the Board of Education and the board of appeals of the village planning commission, as a noted Boy Scout leader and on the board of the Congregational Church.

As a member of Troop A of the Ohio National Guard, Mr. Holton was present at the first inauguration of President William A. McKinley. Through the Spanish-American War he was a Sergeant in Troop C, First Ohio Volunteer Cavalry. In the World War, he was an adviser to the War Industries Board.

"In my opinion nobody has contributed as much to the science of paint making, both directly and indirectly, as Mr. Holton," G. A. Martin, president of Sherwin-Williams, said.

During Mr. Holton's life in Winchester, he was widely known. He resided with his parents in the old Holton homestead on Washington street rear what is now Lebanon street. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lydia Bultman Holton; two sons, William of Washington, D. C., Arthur of Olmsted Falls, and three daughters, Miss Helen Holton of Lexington, Ky., Mrs. Elizabeth Foster and Miss Adelaide Holton of Olmsted Falls. One sister, Mrs. Amanda H. Lundberg of Land O'Lakes, Wis., also survives him.

For the kingdom is the Lord's: and he is the governor among the nations" (Psalms 22:27, 28).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "One infinite God, one infinite man, and infinite compassion for the brotherhood of man; ends what? Error, the Scripture, 'Love the neighbor as thyself,' annihilates paganism and Christian idolatry, whatever is wrong in social, civil, criminal, political, and religious codes; annihilate the one, annihilate the error in man, and leaves nothing that can sin, suffer, be punished or destroyed" (p. 340).

Sydney G. Barnstead of 320 Forest street Arlington, was painfully and possibly seriously injured last evening when while coasting on Dunster lane in this town, he ran into an automobile, owned by Arthur G. Doucett of 67 Marlboro street, Waltham and parked at the corner of Wright street, according to the police, without lights. Young Barnstead was taken to the Symmes Hospital in Arlington, where he was treated for a deep cut on the head over the right ear. The possibility of a fractured skull caused him to be held at the hospital for observation.

Any young men of the town who care to enlist in the CCC to spend the next six months in one of the Government camps should get in touch with Mrs. Ellen Wilson, secretary of the Board of Public Welfare at once. Eight young men, who must be at least 18 years old, are to be chosen in this town.

The Selectmen have voted to allow coasting on Hillcrest Parkway, Everell road and Nelson street from Westley street.

THINK FIRST of Your Own Community

This is your community. You live here. Probably you own a home or have business interests here. In some manner, what you have or what you earn comes from this community.

Therefore, you have a personal interest in the prosperity of your community. Also, you have a plain duty as a citizen to do what you can to promote local welfare.

You help when you buy from your neighborhood merchants. You help when you deposit money in the local bank, because the bank is the chief agency by which home money is kept circulating for home good.

One of the best ways to work for your own interests is to boost community interests.

COLLEGE CLUB STUDY GROUPS

The morning study groups of the College Club will meet at 10 a. m. on Thursday, Jan. 10, in the auditorium of the Winchester Public Library.

We are privileged to have as speaker for the morning, Dr. Cesarea Sedjuco, a young woman of unusual charm, head of the women's division of a large prison in the Philippines, she has been granted a fellowship to study along lines of mental hygiene at the Psychopathic Hospital in Boston. She is also studying the methods of cure given delinquent criminals in the United States and has just returned from a conference with Dr. Miriam Van Waters, a leader of nation-wide renown in that field. Her interest here and abroad is along lines of social service and with her wide awake and encouraging outlook upon life, she should bring to us significant and pertinent information.

Any one interested in the morning Study Group is invited to join and may obtain further information about the course from Mrs. Frank Gunby, 12 Manchester road (telephone Winchester 1223).

An evening group for husbands and wives is being organized to study modern social and economic conditions in the Scandinavian countries. Many commentators, from Justice Brandes to Will Rogers, agree that Denmark, Finland, Norway and Sweden have come near to the solution of some vexing national problems. The group will study such subjects as public health, the co-operative movement, unemployment and labor relations.

Another evening group will review recent books which the members will choose themselves, each according to his own particular line of interest. It is expected that many of the subjects will inspire discussion. This group may be divided into sections' meeting separately, if too many enroll for one group.

These groups are open also to couples outside the College Club membership and all those intending to enroll, who have not already done so, are asked to send their names at once to Mrs. Wm. E. Spaulding, 3470 Main street. The first meetings of both evening groups will be held during the third week in January. Notices will be sent to those enrolled.

"EDUCATION WALK" AT THE UNIVERSITY

Bringing with it the enchantment of Hawaiian nights, the spirit of the United States Army, the thrill of West Point and the romance of glorious youth, "Initiation Walk," the first military musical ever screened, starts Sunday for four days at the Universty. Dick Powell and Ruby Keeler, the nation's most popular lovers and Pat O'Brien head an all star cast which includes, in addition to a score of Hollywood best actors, the entire cadet corps of the United States Military Academy at West Point, a portion of the Pacific fleet, and a detachment of the regular army at Honolulu.

"Gentlemen Are Born," the companion picture, is a feature of romance and thrills, treating of the battle of four college boys for success. The cast includes Ann Dvorak, Franchot Tone, Jean Muir, Margaret Lindsay and Ross Foran.

Boasting a cast of "Grand Hotel" proportions, one of the finest directors, who ever handled a megaphone and one of the grandest stories ever written in novel form, "The Captain Hates the Sea," comes Thursday. The cast includes Victor McLaglen, John Gilbert, Wynne Gibson, Alison Skipworth, Helen Vinson, Walter Connolly, Leon Errol, Walter Catlett, Luis Alberni, John Wray, Claude Gillingwater and Howard, Fine and Howard (the Three Stooges). The plot concerns related incidents which occur aboard ship. It deals largely with the attempts of Schultz, a detective, played by McLaglen, to outwit a very clever crook who has in his possession stolen bonds worth over a quarter of a million dollars. The situations are for the greater part hilariously amusing.

MALDEN STRAND THEATRE

"Anne of Green Gables," one of the year's finest pictures, will open a seven day run at the Strand Theatre in Malden on Saturday. It is portrayed by an ideal cast including Anne Shirley, Tom Brown, O. P. Heggie, Helen Westley, Sara Paden and others. Powerful in its very simplicity and so human that it strikes a responsive chord in every breast, it is certain to find universal favor.

"The Captain Hates the Sea," will be the second attraction on the bill starting Saturday. "The Captain Hates the Sea," is a comedy melodrama with all of the action laid on ship. Jack Gilbert is a writer making a trip with Tala Birell, Helen Vinson and Fred Keating are fleeing from justice, with Victor McLaglen, a detective, watching them on the sly. Walter Connolly is the Captain, and Leon Errol the first mate, who is always into jams. More comedy is added by Alison Skipworth in her efforts to reconcile Wynne Gibson and John Wray. The film builds to a stirring climax, but finally ends with a very funny sequence involving most of the cast.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

"White Parade," a film which stands high on the list of the better pictures, with Loretta Young and John Boles as the stars, will headline the double opening at the big Granada Theatre in Malden on Saturday. "White Parade," beside its strong entertainment value, its heart throbs, pathos and laughter, glorifies the profession of nursing, and stands as a graphic tribute to the country's young ladies in white, numbering more than 200,000. The picture is laid in a modern training school for nurses and is the first picture to be devoted in this phase of the profession. Loretta Young is cast as a young student nurse. John Boles is cast as the rich suitor who cannot understand why the girl thinks more of her profession than of his love. Others who have outstanding roles in "White Parade," are Muriel Kirkland, Dorothy Wilson, Astrid Allen, Frank Conroy, and Polly Ann Young, the latter a sister of Loretta, the star.

"It's A Gift," with the unbeatable combination of W. C. Fields and Baby LeRoy will be the second attraction on the bill starting Saturday. Field is cast as a small time grocer who has had many breaks and many of them good until a relative dies and leaves him an orange grove in California. He packs his family in the old car and starts for the Coast. When he arrives, he discovers the orange grove is a bleak and desolate patch of sand. But through a series of hilarious events he eventually does become the possessor of a fine ranch.

MALDEN MYSTIC THEATRE

Starting Saturday, Jan. 5, the Mystic Theatre will present two really big pictures on the same program. The first will be "Peck's Bad Boy," acclaimed by critics everywhere as a vital human document for every man and woman; the second will be "Student Tour," a film sparkling with mirth and bubbling with melody. In "Peck's Bad Boy," that brilliant and appealing young player, Jackie Cooper, is the star. To judge from advance reports, no story of boyhood has brought to the screen a profounder understanding or a more touching situation. Every mother will see in young "Bill" Peck her own son. Every father will see himself. In the cast in addition to Jackie Cooper is Thomas Meighan.

"Student Tour" deals with the adventures, mostly hilarious and romantic, of a group of college boys and girls who embark on a world cruise chaperoned by Charles Butterworth, an absent-minded professor, and Durante, an athletic trainer. They manage to get into funny difficulties nearly everywhere. The romantic story is in the capable hands of two brilliant newcomers, Maxine Doyle and Phil Regan. The picture also serves to introduce the "Carlo," a sensational new dance rhythm. Other song hits include "A New Moon Is Over My Shoulder" and "From Now On."

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE

"Peck's Bad Boy," the greatest picture of its kind produced in many years, and which is guaranteed to bring together fathers and sons in heart-rending manner will be the feature of the program at the Bowdoin Square Theatre on Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. "Anne of Green Gables" is the companion picture.

Jackie Cooper is the star of "Peck's Bad Boy" and does the best work of his entire career. As "Bill" Peck, the youngster who is blamed for everything which is really the work of Horace Clay (played by Jackie Searl) young Cooper proves that he is a real actor in every sense of the word.

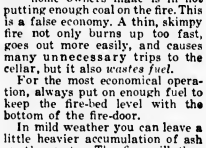

There will be six vaudeville acts in addition to the stupendous film attraction. "Anne of Green Gables" is a stirring picture based on historic incidents and has been considered the finest type of entertainment. Earl Nelson's radio audition contest will be held on Wednesday as usual, when unknown persons of talent are given an opportunity to display their prowess under the best of circumstances. There will be a change of program on Wednesday. The new program will contain two feature films in addition to the vaudeville. The pictures are: "The Captain Hates the Sea" and "Girl in Danger."

HEATING HINTS

ONE mistake that a great many home owners make is in not putting enough coal on the fire. This is a false economy. A thin, skimpy fire not only burns up too fast, goes out more easily, and causes many unnecessary trips to the cellar, but it also wastes fuel.

For the most economical operation, always put on enough fuel to keep the fire-bed level with the bottom of the fire-door.

In mild weather you can leave a little heavier accumulation of ash on the grate. The fire will then burn very slowly, yet there will be sufficient fuel in the process of burning to provide ample heat in case of a sudden drop in the outside temperature. And remember, whenever you put on fresh coal, always leave an exposed spot of live coal directly in front of the fire-door to act as a pilot light to ignite the gases arising from the fresh coal.

Deep fire, level with bottom of fire door — Shallow fire, Wasteful and annoying

NEWTON WON FROM WINCHESTER

Winchester High opened its current interscholastic basketball season Wednesday afternoon in the high school gymnasium, dropping a 32—17 verdict to a good looking Newton High quintet.

The visitors proved too strong for the locals, showing a very effective defense which held all but Capt. Frank Provinzano well in check. On the other hand, the Winchester defense, with the exception of the work done by "Steamer" Harkin, was none too potent, Newton caging 14 floor baskets to seven for Winchester. Neither team showed much at the foul line, Newton tossing four and Winchester three total baskets.

FIREMEN PREPARING FOR CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION

Firemen at the Central Fire Station are busy these days preparing for a civil service examination which it is reported will be given in the near future for the purpose of selecting two lieutenants to add to the officers now in the local fire fighting force. Since mathematics and hydraulics enter largely into the work of the modern fireman the necessity of building a second fire station in the west side hill district, is unanimously conceded to be one of the most important. Considerable figuring in connection with the location of hose and ladder companies will be necessary before such a station and men work out examination papers will be given in March.

GALAPAGOS, ISLANDS OF MYSTERY

Discovery of two bodies on waterless Marchina (also called Bindloe) Island, in the Galapagos, focused world-wide attention on these lonely bits of land, which lie about 600 miles west of Ecuador in the Pacific.

The tragedy adds another kind of mystery to a region noted for many puzzling forms of plant and animal life. A century ago Charles Darwin, then a youthful scientist, pointed out that half the flowers and half the birds of the islands are to be found nowhere else in the world. Scores of scientists and explorers, among them Dr. William Beebe, have since stumbled through thorny undergrowth, scaled lava rocks, and found the Galapagos to be an incomparable natural history museum.

More than 2000 volcanic cones besprinkle the archipelago, and the islands' volcanic origin accounts for the peculiar interest they hold for science, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Darwin deduced that the group has never been nearer the mainland, nor have the 12 principal islands been closer together, than they are today.

Chance to Study Evolution

Hence, the many species of flowers and birds, and, in some cases, sea life, that have drifted to the islands have slowly developed along lines very different from those in their original homes. In few places has Nature provided such a splendid chance to study the processes of evolution.

The Galapagos have also lured treasure seekers and a few colonists from Ecuador, the country to which they now belong. Tales of hidden treasure have come down through the centuries. Pirates who looted the rich ports and churches of the west coast of South America are supposed to have buried much of their loot in these islands. These stories seem to be borne out by the unearthing of two caches of silver ingots and pieces of eight a number of years ago.

The islands lie astride the Equator, but the cold Antarctic currents which bathe the coast of Peru, strike seaward at Cape Blanco and surge across the Galapagos group. Strong gales temper the climate, and often the air is quite chilly. Up to 800 feet, most of the islands are barren, but above that level they are usually swathed in clouds whose moisture aids heavy growths of tropical plants and trees. Although they appear to be only a few dots on a map of the broad Pacific, the islands have a combined area equal to that of Delaware, and the largest island, Albemarle (also called Isabela), is about the size of Long Island, N. Y.

Officially Known as "Colon"

Before the Panama Canal was dug the Galapagos were even more remote from shipping lanes than they are today. The islands were discovered, in fact, by a Spanish bishop, whose ship was blown off its course in Panama to Peru. For 400 years they served as a pirate hideout, a "post office for American whalers, and an Ecuadorian convict station. Most of the 2000 inhabitants of the group today are Spanish-speaking Ecuadorians like those seen in any port in Ecuador. Officially the islands are known as the Territory of Colon, of Ecuador.

The few "villages" consist of thatched huts and small iron-roofed buildings clustered near small sugar, coffee and tobacco plantations in the areas not covered with lava rock. Only two of the islands are inhabited. Each island has at least two names; one an official Spanish name, and the other a name given by early explorers and generally used by explorers and scientists describing the islands.

Galapagos wild life is tamer than the dogs, cats, goats, pigs, donkeys, and cattle which were "planted" on the islands by early explorers and have increased in numbers until they have become a nuisance to the inhabitants. By destroying eggs and newly-born tortoises, reptiles, and wild birds, these "visitors" threaten both extinction many rare forms of life which scientists still wish to study.

Sea lions poke their heads above the waves and startle strangers with their uncanny barks, and there are few animals meaner than the water iguana, a giant lizard which cavorts about the islands' quiet bays. But ashore, one may approach with in a few feet of these reptiles. The water iguana is the only seagoing lizard known to science.

Birds add colored dash dart through the clear green water of Galapagos coves; below them the white sand is aflame with iridescent shells. The layman also can appreciate the animal life of the Galapagos Islands, because no zoo, services, souvenirs and animal displays are quite as artistic in color and markings. There are birds with red bills, birds with red eyes, birds with green feet and legs, and birds with small wings which cannot fly (flightless cormorants).

A ride on a giant tortoise's back is as much a feature of a visit to Galapagos as a sleigh ride down a dry, cobblestone hill at Funchal is a feature of a visit to the Madeiras. The archipelago got its name from the giant tortoise; the Spanish word for tortoise being "galapago." Some of these huge creatures are estimated to be from 300 to 400 years old, and are probably the world's oldest living animals.

ASPHALT: FROM MUMMIES TO THE MISSISSIPPI

One more product which the United States formerly imported from abroad is now almost entirely manufactured at home. Recent statistics of the United States Bureau of Mines show that more than nine-tenths of the asphalt used in this country is made at petroleum refineries, and only one per cent is derived from native deposits occurring in various parts of the world, such as the famous pitch lake on the Island of Trinidad, British West Indies.

Asphalt, whether natural or artificial, is a black, sticky substance famed for countless centuries as a binder, preservative, and waterproofing material, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Native asphalt, or pitch, was employed by the ancient Egyptian for impressing mummy wrappings, while Assyrian boatmen daubed it on the sides of their circular gufas.

Streets, Highways, Airports and Levees

Nebuchadnezzar used asphalt to smooth the streets of Babylon for the wheels of his gold-plated chariots, but many centuries were to pass before the world rediscovered asphalt's weather-proof qualities and the ease with which it can be combined with other paving materials. Today asphalt is the binder employed for an estimated three-quarters of American city streets having pavements of a higher grade than untreated macadam.

In that part of the U. S. Public Works $800,000,000 Highway program now completed, or under construction, nearly three-quarters of all highway types above the class of untreated gravel or stone roads are of asphalt, or use asphalt as a binding medium. An equal percentage of all airport surfacing better than plain earth, gravel or cinders consists of the same material.

Property and life itself are being made safer along the turbulent Mississippi where, only this year, U. S. Army Engineers believe they have solved the age-old problem of preventing the banks to keep the stream in its channel. Great, tough waterproof mats, impregnated with asphalt, have been laid from low water line out to the channel, thus literally paving the river bed.

Asserts Noises in Radio Studios

While a child of modernity, asphalt also serves as an antidote for modernity's chief nuisance, noise. Twentieth-century nerves are soothed by noiseless asphalt floors and sidewalks, and the sound-absorbing qualities of asphalt-treated roofs and walls. Radio studios use the material widely.

The sports world is served by resilient asphalt surfaces for tennis and handball courts, and playgrounds. The arena of the Madison Square Garden Bowl, in New York, is of asphalt construction throughout. The first place of its kind ever built.

Versatility for industrial purposes is demonstrated by the use of asphalt for battery box walls, in the heat-resistant enamel of automobile bodies, and for moisture-proof shipping containers. Asphalt yields a protective paper for wrapping and is an essential in tree surgery.

From the work-a-day field of industry to the realm of art is an easy jump for this resilient substance. Asphalt is employed in modeling compounds for picture frames and other plastic forms.

Chemical Composition a Mystery

Although the exact chemical composition of asphalt is not known, chemists have found that it consists of a very complex mixture of hydrocarbons and their nonmetallic derivatives. Certain of these compounds are heavy, oily bodies, which hold the harder, solid constituents in solution. The oily bodies give plasticity, and the harder bodies provide waterproofing and cementation.

Asphalt is recovered from the crude black oils of Mexico, South America, California, and some of the mid-continent fields by a simple distillation process. Solvents such as gasoline, kerosene and gas oils are boiled off in the still, leaving the black, sticky, non-volatile asphalt behind. As the oily constituents of asphalt can also be boiled off, it is a simple matter to produce a finished asphalt cement of any degree of hardness.

Native asphalts, such as those of Trinidad and Venezuela, have been produced over long periods of time in Nature's laboratory or refinery. The original petroleum in which they occurred was subjected to a slow process of evaporation which eventually removed the lighter solvent oils. Asphalt also occurs in certain sandstones and limestones, and in a very brittle form known as Gilsonite, in Colorado.

COLCHESTER, WHERE THE OYSTER IS KING FOR A DAY

In this country there isn't much excuse any about opening the oyster season. If there is an "R" in the month, we order oysters stewed, fried, or on the half shell, and, without further ado, gulp them down.

In England however, gourmets and epicures are never really assured that oyster time has come until they read that the Prince of Wales, or some other notable, has attended the annual October oyster feast at Colchester, and found the season's offerings succulent, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Famous Oyster Beds Known to Romans

Colchester, where the oyster is king for a day, is one of England's oldest and quaintest towns. The famous oyster beds of the River Colne were known to the Romans, who prized oysters highly. It may be possible that these same oyster beds were responsible for the selection of Colchester as the site of the first Roman colony in Britain, A. D. 50, although the town earlier enjoyed prominence as the capital of the Trinobantes, under Cymbeline (Shake-speare's Cymbeline).

Today Colchester is a thriving city of 43,000, pleasantly situated some ten miles up the River Colne from the North Sea. By rail it is 50 miles northeast of London, on the important London, Tilbury & Southend line. Inland capital with Harwich, where steamers connect with Dutch railways.

As the largest city in Essex outside the London area, Colchester is an important farming and business center, as well as the "Baltimore of England". Like Baltimore, in Maryland, Colchester is nearly as noted for its roses as for its oyster. Thousands of beautiful blossoms are raised annually in Colchester nurseries and shipped to London markets.

Old King Cole's Capital

To visitors in general, and students of English history, in particular, Colchester is a treasure trove of antiquity. Sometime it is difficult to untangle fascinating legend (Old Cheste is quoted to be "Old King Cole's" country) from cold historical facts. Here, rather conclusive, is a host of tangible relics ranging from Saxon doorways and Roman Town Walls, to a Norman castle and early Gothic churches. There is also a Public Library stocked with rare antiquarian books.

Lake Chester, in western England, the heart of the city is surrounded by ancient walls, although Colchester's are entirely of Roman origin, whereas Chester's are probably Norman on the line of earlier Roman walls. Colchester's walls form a rectangle about two miles in circuit, broken here and there by gates and penkled watch towers.

The most interesting section of the City Walls is the west front, which includes the ruins of Balkerne Gate. Here, according to local guides, stood the castle where "the valiant and proud soul" called for his pipe and his bowl and his fiddlers three, and conducted his jolly court. To antiquarians it is more important as one of the two remaining Roman gates in England (the other being Newport Arch in Lincoln).

Architects assert that the city's most important possession is Colchester Castle, whose massive Norman keep is the largest in England. Measuring more than 164 feet long and 123 feet wide with walls from 11 to 12 feet thick, this impressive fortress rivals in size the keep of the better-known White Tower of London.

First Horse of Austin Canons

Those interested in religion, find the ruined St. Botolph's Priory of paramount interest. Between 1093 and 1115 A. D. the noble structure became the first home of the Austin (Augustinian) or Black canons in England. Its simple round doorway, with deeply recessed arches, suggests the austere life led by these early churchmen who found the seeds of knowledge and piety nowhere more plentiful than in adversity.

Near-by, to the south of the Balkerne Gate, the only relic of a sixth-century Benedictine abbey dating from the early 15th century.

Colchester today is also an important military center. Here is the headquarters of the Eastern military district of England. Its cavalry and cattle markets are busier than its few small industries. Weaving of woolens was an important occupation for many years after the influx of Flemish and Dutch refugees in 1570.

The city itself owns the famous oyster beds of the River Colne, and enjoys the privilege of harvesting the bivalves. The oyster-boats ply between the city's harbor in the suburb of Hythe. The oyster beds extend down the winding tidal reaches of the River Colne to Brightlingsea (locally pronounced "Brittlesea" or even "Biddlesea"), a distance of some 10 miles.

So well known is the harvesting of these ancient beds in England that, in the waters often miss at the beginning of a meal "Some Colchesters, sir"—the word "oyster" being as unnecessary as it is in "Long Island Sound Oysters" or "Blue Points," "Lynnhaven," or "Chincoteague."

THREE PERSONS STRUCK BY CARS OVER PAST WEEK-END

Three persons were struck by automobiles in Winchester over the past week-end, though only one of those hit sustained injuries reported as serious.

At 3 o'clock last Saturday afternoon, Joshua Rushworth, 62, of 24 Garfield avenue was struck by a Willys-Knight sedan, owned and driven by Oscar F. Johnson of 518 Washington street. The accident occurred at the corner of Forest street and Brookside road. Mr. Johnson told the police that Mr. Rushworth walked into the side of his car and that he claimed no injuries.

Twenty minutes after this accident, Michael Callahan, 63, of 52 Clark street, was painfully injured when he was struck by a Pontiac coach, being driven south on upper Main street by Harold Wheaton of 18 Cleveland avenue, Woburn. Mr. Wheaton told the police that Mr. Callahan stepped from the sidewalk on the west side of Main street at Clark street into the path of his car. He landed on the bumper and fell under the wheel, sustaining a scalp wound, two fractured ribs and abrasions on the face. Mr. Callahan was taken to the Winchester Hospital and treated by Dr. Philip J. McManus. He was held at the hospital for observation.

George W. Gordon of 37 Sheridan circle south reported to the police that while he was driving a Whippet coupe south on Main street near Hill street at 7:55 last Sunday evening, 12-year old Mary E. Kelley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kelley of 273 Swanton street, ran from the sidewalk on the west side of the street into the path of his car. The girl was knocked down, but was apparently not badly hurt. She was picked up by Edwin Thompson of 15 Kendall street, who was riding with Mr. Gordon, and was assisted to her home by two girls whose names were not learned.

WINCHESTER BOY GOVERNOR'S BODYGUARD

O'Leary Promoted to Sergeant in State Police

Trooper Arthur T. O'Leary of the State Constabulary, a Winchester boy and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. O'Leary of Church street was on last Friday appointed body guard to Governor James M. Curley and on Saturday, promoted to the rank of Sergeant.

Sergeant O'Leary first became interested in police work while acting as Winchester correspondent for the Boston Post. Later when a member of the Globe repertorial staff he maintained his interest and made contacts that caused him to give up a promising newspaper career to join the State Constabulary about two years ago.

Previous to his appointment as the Governor's bodyguard, he had been stationed at the West Bridgewater barracks of the State Patrol, and had recently been at his home on Church street recovering from injuries sustained in an automobile accident while on duty.

Sergeant O'Leary has many friends in Winchester and around Boston, all of whom are extending congratulations and best wishes upon his promotion.

PECKER—DUNBAR

There is Winchester interest in the marriage in Chicago on Dec. 29, when Miss Elaine Whipple Dunbar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Whipple Dunbar of that city, became the bride of G. Sidney Pecker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Pecker of Newtonville, formerly of Copley street, in this town. The ceremony was performed in St. Peter's Episcopal Church.

The bride attended the Chicago Girls' Latin School and Northeastern University. Mr. Pecker prepared for college at Lawrence Academy in Groton and was graduated from Williams College in the class of 1929. He has been associated for the past five years with the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company and is now head of the financial department of the Chicago office.

After a two weeks' wedding journey through New England, Mr. and Mrs. Pecker will make their home at 648 Roscoe street, Chicago, Ill.

New regulations now in force at the Central Fire Station forbid the man on desk duty from spending his time reading books, magazines, papers, etc. He is to attend strictly to his desk patrol, keeping complete records of all incoming and outgoing telephone calls, their nature, and the names of those who make them. The desk man is now required to be in full uniform while on duty, another innovation.

WAS FORMER WINCHESTER RESIDENT

William O. Dupee, retired Boston police officer and a former resident of Winchester, died Tuesday, Jan. 8 at his home, 134 Walter street, Roslindale.

Mr. Dupee came of a well known Winchester family and was born in this town Jan. 21, 1860, son of Charles H. and Louisa (Hutchins) Dupee. His father was active in town affairs and the family home was on Washington street beside St. Mary's Church.

Mr. Dupee was educated in the Winchester schools and spent his early life in this town. Later, for nearly 30 years, he was a police officer in Boston, retiring on a pension 18 years ago. He was last attached to the station in Roxbury.

Mr. Dupee was the brother of the late George A. Dupee, for many years in the grocery and provision business in Winchester and of the late Mrs. Alexander Macdonald, wife of the former Superintendent of the Winchester Park Department.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Rena McLean Dupee; a daughter, Mrs. Ruth E. Barton of Roslindale; and two sons, Allen E. Dupee and George N. Dupee, both of Roslindale.

Funeral services were held on this Friday afternoon at the Church of Our Saviour in Roslindale. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

POSTMASTER STRUCK BY CAR IN STONEHAM

Postmaster George H. Lochman of Kenwin road was painfully injured at 6 o'clock last Saturday evening when he was struck and knocked down by an automobile while he was crossing the street in Stoneham Square.

Mr. Lochman had accompanied his wife to the Methodist Church in Stoneham where Mrs. Lochman is organist and where she had arranged the music for the Sunday service. They had then gone to the square for supper, Mr. Lochman crossing the street to secure an evening paper. It was on his way back that he was struck by an automobile, driven by a Stoneham man who was headed south.

How the accident occurred is not known. Mr. Lochman did not see the car, and the operator stated that he did not see the local Postmaster until just as his car struck him.

Mr. Lochman was knocked down, but his heavy overcoat and the slow rate of speed at which the car was traveling, prevented possible serious injury. He and Mrs. Lochman returned home in a taxi and Mr. Lochman was treated by Dr. Roger M. Burgoyne for a bad abrasion on the forehead and injuries to his left knee and right wrist. He also sustained a bad shaking up.

At his home Monday, his injuries were reported as not serious, and he was said to be getting along nicely.

WINCHESTER BOYS AT NEW HAMPTON

It is reported that Fred Noble and Andrew Lentine have entered New Hampton Prep at New Hampton, N. H., where they will be candidates for the various athletic teams, coached by that former great all around Winchester athlete, "Hennie" Knowlton. Lentine entered New Hampshire State last fall and captained the freshman eleven there, he found, however, that he needed additional preparation for the pre-medical course he wished to take and as a consequence, wisely withdrew from college. Both he and Noble are fine all around athletes and should be a great help to Coach Knowlton. How he would like to have had Lentine last fall!

MRS. EMILY A. HOWE

Mrs. Emily A. Howe, widow of Herbert P. Howe and for the past two years a resident of Winchester, living at 11 Governor's avenue, died Friday morning, Jan. 4 after a long illness, in her 81st year.

Mrs. Howe was the daughter of William D. and Sarah (Kimball) Miller and was born in Charlestown. She was graduated from the high school in Somerville and for 66 years made her home in that city, being one of the first members to join the Women's Heptorean Club there, and, at the time of her death, one of the two oldest members of the Somerville Grace Baptist Church.

Mrs. Howe leaves only her sister, Miss Eliza A. Miller of this town, with whom she had made her home for many years.

The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at the late residence, the Rev. William H. Dyas of Grace Church, Somerville, officiating. John Metcalf, baritone, of Boston, sang "In the Garden," "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "Abide With Me." Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

MRS. RUSHTON WILL SPEAK

The young people of the First Baptist Church are looking forward with anticipation to the service on Sunday evening, which will be the first to be held at the new hour, 7 o'clock. Mrs. R. Mitchell Rushton will be the speaker, and those who have heard her know of the treat which is in store for all who attend. All young people of high school age and over are invited. A social hour will follow. The informal discussions which often extend far into the social hour are proving the popularity of these gatherings.

NOTICE TO DOG OWNERS

Dog Officer Michael J. Foley asked the Star to warn local dog owners of an epidemic of rabies which is very prevalent in neighboring communities, especially in Medford, Belmont and Lexington. He advises having Winchester dogs innoculated as a preventive measure.

MRS. ANNIE BEATRICE THOMPSON

Mrs. Annie Beatrice Thompson, wife of William L. Thompson of 201 Ridge street, died suddenly of an acute heart attack Saturday morning, Jan. 5, while visiting her nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Sharon at their home in Wrentham. Her death came as a severe shock to her family and many friends both in Winchester and in surrounding cities and towns.

Mrs. Thompson had led an especially active life and was prominently identified with many civic and patriotic organizations in Winchester and Medford, her former home. She was president of the New England Chapter of the World War Mothers, and only recently organized a chapter of this patriotic society in Winchester.

She was a member of the Women's Fortnightly Club, Ladies' Friendly Society of the Unitarian Church, Winchester Circle of the Florence Crittenton League, Winchester Women's Republican Club and Winchester Historical Society. She was also a member and past president of both the Medford Women's Relief Corps and the Auxiliary to American Legion Post 45, in Medford, a member and active in the work of the Medford Grange, a director of the Deaconness Hospital, a member of the American Historical Society and of the American Poetry Association, her widely divergent interests brought her in contact with many people of all walks in life while her cheerfulness, willingness to serve and ability, won her the friendship and esteem of all who knew her.

Mrs. Thompson was born Aug. 28, 1872, in Yorkshire, England, daughter of Stephen and Ruth Middleton (Street) Robinson. She received a good education and for a time taught school in England before coming to this country 36 years ago.

She first lived in Fall River and later for some years in Medford, coming to Winchester in 1917.

Her interest in the town was genuine and she was identified with many of its civic and social enterprises. She was especially interested in the early history of the town and at the time of the Tercentenary Celebration, contributed many interesting articles of an historic nature which were published in the Star.

Mrs. Thompson was twice married. Her first husband died in England, and at the time she came to Winchester she married Mr. Thompson, who survives her, with a daughter, Mrs. Vera L. Wheeler of Wakefield; and a son, Henry E. Lowther of Burlington. There are four grandchildren.

Simple funeral services were held on Monday afternoon, in the Kelley & Hawes Funeral Chapel with Rev. George Hale Reed, minister of the Unitarian Church, officiating. Delegations from many of the organizations of which the deceased had been a member were present. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

A Tribute

A. Beatrice Thompson, has passed into the Great Beyond, but her spirit will ever live in the hearts of her friends.

Faithfully, efficiently and unselfishly, she served the Clubs and organizations in which she held many important offices.

Always cheerful and ever thoughtful of others, she will be missed by a host of friends, who can show their appreciation of her sterling qualities in no better way, than by taking up her work where she was obliged to lay it down and finishing it, as she would have done, with enthusiasm and devotion.

CHORAL SOCIETY TO PRESENT INTERESTING PROGRAM

Walter Kidder, Soloist at Concert Jan. 22

Music for the first concert of the Winchester Choral Society's sixth season to be held Tuesday evening, Jan. 22 at 8 o'clock in the Town Hall, is rapidly nearing perfection and the program is one which promises to be of surpassing interest and excellence. Sufficiently varied to have a universal appeal, the selections which will be sung by the chorus of 100 trained voices under the direction of J. Albert Wilson are fully in keeping with the Society's aim to place the best of choral music within the reach of every one in the Mystic Valley.

Outstanding among the numbers to be sung is "Walther's Prize Song" and the "Finale" to Act 3 of Wagner's popular opera, "Die Meistersinger," a superb composition which frequent performance on radio programs has served to popularize. The Society's rendition of this stirring and tuneful work is one which no music lover should miss.

Rivaling this selection on the program is the brilliant "Waltz" that occurs in the Kermess Scene of Gounod's perennially popular "Faust," while lovers of folk music will delight in an especially lovely little Czecho-Slovakian shepherd tune and Holst's arrangement of the old English folk song, "Swansea Town." For those who enjoy negro spirituals, the Society is singing the plaintive "Go Down, Moses" and Barleigh's beautiful arrangement of the dramatic, "Were You There?" a repeat number which has proved one of the most popular in the Society's entire repertoire. A fine Bach Chorale will appeal to the many lovers of this master of choral style.

The singing of the Society's splendidly balanced male choir is always among the most pleasing features of its concerts and for this first program of the current year, the men contribute four pleasingly varied numbers, one of which is that great bravura song, Frederick Field Bullard's, "Sword of Ferrara," repeated and insistent requests for an encore having prompted Mr. Wilson to this third performance.

It is with the greatest pleasure the Society announces that its guest artist on Jan. 22 will be Walter Kidder, radio and concert baritone, who is outstanding among New England's vocalists. Mr. Kidder was the Society's soloist at its first concert five years ago and his return this season is mutually pleasing. He needs no introduction to Winchester music lovers, having often appeared locally.

In addition to a group of songs, Mr. Kidder will appear as soloist in the "Meistersinger" and "Faust" selections, and there is added interest in this fact because in the Wagner number, he will have as co-soloist, J. Raymond Graham, tenor, with whom he sang when the latter first appeared as a soloist in Winchester at a performance of Steiner's Crucifixion under Mr. Wilson's direction several years ago. Other members of the Society who have solo parts in the "Faust" selection are Idabelle H. Winship, favorite Winchester soprano, and Josephine E. Taylor, contralto, who has previously given much pleasure in a similar capacity. Mary Ranton Witham is the accompanist and will be assisted in the four-hand arrangement by Lucy L. Wilcox.

FITZGERALD—McCAULEY

Carrying gardenias with her gown of ivory velvet and wearing a veil of tulle caught with orange blossoms, Miss Helen Louise McCauley, daughter of Mrs. Thomas J. McCauley of Ellm street, was married on Saturday morning, Jan. 5, in St. Mary's Church, to Nicholas Howard Fitzgerald, son of Mr. James J. Fitzgerald of Oak street. The pastor of the church, Rev. Fr. Alexisius F. Malone, performed the marriage ceremony at 9 o'clock and also celebrated the nuptial mass which followed. The altar was attractively decorated with calla lilies, white carnations and palms. Music for the mass was sung by the church choir with Miss Florence Fisher, organist.

Miss McCauley was given in marriage by her brother, Joseph T. McCauley of Winchester, and attended by her sister, Mrs. Esther M. Harrigan of Belmont. Mrs. Harrigan wore a period style gown of charmeuse green with a brown hat and accessories, and carried a colonial bouquet. James J. Fitzgerald, Jr., was his brother's best man and Francis T. McCauley of Arlington, brother of the bride, ushered with Walter Drohan of this town.

After the ceremony a reception and wedding breakfast was held at the Hotel Commander in Cambridge which was decorated with cut flowers and palms. The bride's mother and the father of the bridegroom assisted in receiving.

Upon their return from a southern wedding journey, Mr. Fitzgerald and his bride will make their home in Winchester. The bride is a graduate of Winchester High School and is a member of the Junior Guild of the Infant Saviour. Mr. Fitzgerald was graduated from Winchester High School and from the Engineering School at Tufts College. He is now associated with his father and brother in the James J. Fitzgerald Contracting Company and the Fitzgerald Fuel Company of this town. He is a member of the Winchester Rotary Club.

FLOOD CONDITIONS IN WINCHESTER

Winchester experienced flood conditions yesterday similar to those of the spring freshet season. The heavy rain of late Wednesday afternoon and night and Thursday forenoon following several days of fog and thaw caused the water to rise all over town, in many instances the surface drainage system being inadequate to care for the unusual volumn of water.

On Cross street the new park at the railroad station was several feet under water together with the beach at Leonard Field and the park at Lake street. The new bridge on the Shore road was only a foot or so above the high water mark and until the flood commenced to subside during the early afternoon, some concern was felt for the unusual volumn of water. freshet proportions tore down Horn Pond Brook.

Near the Cross street park, the Metropolitan sewer spouted up several feet in a small geyser that emptied into Brooksides avenue. An Edison Light manhole overflowed onto Cambridge street north of the Winchester Conservatories and a manhole on Cambridge street near the Country Club was reported as overflowing about mid-morning.

The cellars of the several buildings in the center were reported as flooded, and the water caused a slight cave-in in the alley between the Brown Building and the Randall building.

Considerable damage was done to the property of Mr. Herbert Wadsworth on Highland avenue by the overflow of the brook that runs from Long Pond through his land.

GOVERNMENT RELIEF STATISTICS

Those who have wondered just how much the Government has done in Winchester in providing unemployment relief will be interested in the following brief summary:

Under the CWA from Jan. 1, 1934, until the CWA ended on April 19, of last year, the Government spent for labor approximately $42,268.83, employing from 135 to 196 men and from 44 to 46 women.

Under the ERA from May 1 to Dec. 31, the Government spent for labor approximately $63,048.56. The high point of employment during this time was 196 men and 25 women.

These statistics do not represent the town's complete program of unemployment relief and should not be so understood. They do not include any payments made by the Commonwealth or Town, either for labor direct, or for material and equipment to further the CWA and ERA projects.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

The members and their friends enjoyed a most pleasant evening at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth McLaughlin last evening. Bridge and whist were followed by a most delightful luncheon. Proceeds from the party will be used by the Charitable Committee in their work for the Old Folks Home in Somerville.

LEGION FATHER AND SON NIGHT

On Thursday evening, Jan. 10, the Winchester Post, 97, American Legion, held a "Father and Son" night at the Legion House, 84 Washington street.

After a brief business meeting, Commander McCarthy introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Commodore E. S. Clark, Jr., who spoke on the history of Sea Scouting and the program that it offered to the older boy. After these introductory remarks, he gave a very interesting account of a fleet cruise to Manchester, Gloucester, through the Annisquam Canal to Butcher's Island and thence back to Boston.

The visit of Commodore Clark was particularly fortunate at this time as the Legion Post is hoping to sponsor in addition to their Boy Scout Troop, a Sea Scout Ship which will offer to the older boy, 15 years and over, of Winchester, a program similar in content to that offered the younger boy by the present Boy Scout activity here.

WINCHESTER PING PONG CLUB

Ping Pong activities under the Winchester Ping Pong Club have started in earnest here in town the past month. Two leagues composed of eight teams each have already started playing while a third is being formed. Each team is composed of five players and meets an opposing team at least once a week. Each player meets each of the players of the other team in a three out of five singles match and each team plays the opposing team in a three out of five doubles match, making five matches in total, and 25 for the first lap of the season. When this is completed, the personnel of the leagues may be changed a bit and the competition will start all over again.

A League standing follows:

	Won	Lost	P C
R Leghorn and Hayward	20	10	.500
Priest and Blackler	22	16	.714
Peterson and Dissell	11	14	.440
Hughes and Sibley	11	14	.440
Eaton and Hilton	10	15	.400
Riley and Burgess	9	12	.400
C Ross and B Ross	3	12	.200
Gardner and Robinson	2	8	.200

B league has just recently gotten under way, some of the teams have yet to play their first match. The following teams comprise the league: Twombly and Bolter, K. Leghorn and Peterson, Stone and Walker, Dotten and Pettingell, Baker and Sexton, Hill and Snow, Butters and O. Leghorn, Blanchard and Porter.

Four teams are needed to fill C league. Any of those wishing to enter should get in touch with Mr. Paul Eaton, tel. Win. 2275. Dues are 50c a player.

Over this week-end, the Somerville Ping Pong Club in conjunction with the American Ping Pong Association is sponsoring a tournament for Greater Boston players in the gym of the Western Junior High School in Somerville. There will be men's and ladies' singles, men's doubles and mixed doubles. The preliminaries will take place tonight and Saturday afternoon. The finals will be held Saturday evening. Spectators will be admitted free. Among those entering from Winchester are: Richard Leghorn, Paul Eaton, Carroll Hilton, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Priest, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Blackler, Theodore Dissell, Robert Sibley and others.

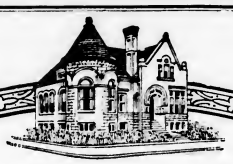

FIRST SHOWING OF TOZIER PICTURES TO BE IN WINCHESTER

The Winchester Art Association is sponsoring a most unusual and interesting showing of color photographs taken by Dr. Charles Tozier of this town for John D. Rockefeller, Jr. of the restoration of the old Colonial Capitol at Williamsburg, Va., undertaken by Mr. Rockefeller at a cost of $10,000,000.

Dr. Tozier was selected as the official photographer of the enterprise and has a superb collection of views of the old city, showing houses and public buildings exactly as they were 200 years ago.

The pictures are to have their first showing anywhere in Winchester, and will be shown Sunday afternoon, Jan. 20, at 4 o'clock in the auditorium of the high school. William G. Perry, supervising architect of the restoration will be present to explain the pictures. The public is invited, and there will be no admission charge.

Miss Kay Henry of 112 Highland avenue motored to New York last week-end to attend the annual dance given by the Annawanda Club at the Hotel Astor.

WINN WATCH HAND FACTORY UNUSUAL PLANT

Employees Wish Management Happy New Year!

Winchester has within its limits a business which is very unusual in a number of respects. Reference is made to the J. H. Winn's Sons Co. of Winchester Highlands, conducted for the past 21 years by the three brothers, Frank, Harry and Arthur, and founded in 1868 by the father and uncle of these brothers.

This company has specialized in the manufacture of dial bands, starting with those used on watches manufactured and carried in our country. During the World War, a large number of open or skeleton hands were made, to be filled with luminous substance, and placed on watches used by the soldiers, and those wishing to read the time without the use of a light. When the electric clock came into favor, the demand for new styles for these clocks brought the Winn Brothers' added business, raising their volume above the general average. During the past year, the new style radios and automobile dials, with special hands for airplane instrument dials have benefited the business.

The Winn "Watchhand Fictory," so called, has always been conducted on the highest possible level with regards working conditions, and since the first of the year, a State Inspector, after a thorough examination, pronounced the plant one of the best in the Commonwealth and especially free from industrial hazard.

The Winn Brothers have always prided themselves on this fact, and have also found a considerable sense of satisfaction in the fine spirit of co-operation which has existed between the employees and management during the entire life of the company.

This spirit of co-operation and especially the employees' reaction to the treatment they receive and the conditions under which they work was strikingly manifest at the arrival of the New Year when, entirely without the knowledge of the Winns, the workers sent the following paper to the office, bearing the signatures of each of the 59 employees of the plant:

"We, the employees of J. H. Winn's Sons, wish to convey to you our appreciation of the many kindly acts shown to us during the year 1934. We wish you a very prosperous and happy year, both in family and business relations."

Naturally the Winn Brothers are pleased to receive this unsolicited expression of good will on the part of their helpers, and the entire town benefits by having here a plant in which a feeling of mutual esteem exists between employees and management.

JUNIOR CIRCLE OF THE FLORENCE CRITTENTON LEAGUE NOTES

On Tuesday evening, Jan. 8, the Winchester Junior Circle of the Florence Crittenton League held the second regular meeting of the year at the home of Mrs. Elwell Butterworth, 107 Cambridge street. Twenty-five members were present. The president, Miss Gretchen Stone, called the meeting to order. Committee chairmen reported the work of their respective committees during the past two months. The membership committee announced the names of two new members, Miss Flora Haley and Miss Velma Kelley. The ways and means committee reported that the second group of "Open House Bridges" would be held on Tuesday, Jan. 29.

Mrs. Nathaniel M. Nichols, president of the Winchester Senior Circle, a guest at this meeting, spoke briefly of Circle work and of the needed support from our Junior members.

Mrs. Randolf, Superintendent of Welcome House, was the speaker of the evening. Her subject, which centered about her work and the cases which are brought to her attention, proved most interesting and enlightening to her listeners.

HEART TO HEART TALKS

By Eugene Bertram Willard

B. W. Blanchard has given us these lines:

Did you give him a lift? He's a brother of Mars,
And bearing about all the burden he can.
Did you give him a smile? He was downcast an' blue,
And the smile would have helped him to battle it through.
Did you give him your hand? He was slipping down hill,
And the world, so I fancied, was using him ill.
Did you give him a word? Did you show him the road,
Or did you just let him go on with his load?

Here is some mighty good advice. Wouldn't this be a fine world if we had more of the milk of human kindness in our hearts and extended the helping hand to those who need our help? The churches are full of people who never give an unfortunate brother or sister as much as a smile and too often when some person is in trouble these same people go out of their way to avoid the distressed one. It is hard to have to talk like this but "man's inhumanity to man" is so well known and so universally practiced that the subject makes good sermon material anytime.

If Jesus came to Winchester, what would He say about the way many such treat their fellows? It would say plenty. There is an old legend to the effect that a great Eastern city was beseiged by fierce enemies, and was about to send forth its warriors to sweep away, as with a whirlwind rush, the hosts of the invader. But a magician, waving his wand, stalked forth from the enemies' camp and the occult power of the sorcerer's art transformed citizens and knights alike, into stone. Everything with life was stricken with death. Mailed knights, about to mount their steeds, all clad for battle, stood motionless, with hands upon the pommel of their saddle. The men in the ranks, and the women and the children stood as they were groups carved in stone, all motionless, powerless, the prey of the enemy. The invaders seemed to have everything their own way. Suddenly there appeared on the street and in the midst of the listless people a knight clad in white and of radiant countenance. In his hand he carried a golden trumpet. In the midst of the powerless people he lifted his trumpet to his lips and one long ringing blast sounded out upon the air. Mightier than the arts of the sorcerer was the effect of the peal from the trumpet of gold. The knight sprang to his saddle, and gave the order, "Forward, march!" In response, life leaped once more in the cold veins of death. The knights on prancing steeds and the long lines of infantry advanced, drove the invader from the city and caused his utter overthrow.

The legend, though very imperfectly, yet forcefully, illustrates prevalent conditions among church people today. Materialism and worldliness and selfishness have cast a spell over the work of our Lord and have caused a partial paralysis in our relations with our fellows. Help him? "What is there in it for me?" Many ask themselves this question. There are enough knights, the forces are sufficiently trained, there is something more potent than the art of the sorcerer to help us to give those in trouble a lift. It don't cost anything to smile and in the case of the burdened even a smile has helped many a person to take up the battle and see it through to a finish. We have in Winchester a golden trumpet, the golden trumpet of the great Commander of the host of God, calling everybody to service, to the service of showing our fellowmen the road and removing from his heavily burdened shoulders the load.

Prayer: Oh God, help us to do the square thing by our fellowmen. Just because we go to church isn't going to get us to heaven as we well know. Many of us are weak, we mean to do the square thing by those worse off than ourselves, but we are thoughtless at times. Help us to speak kindly to those in distress, help us to extend the helping hand where we are able to do so. We appreciate that the humblest individual has within him and her, powerful potentialities for service and with Thy help, may we be drawn into the Brotherhood of Man which refuses to let a single person go on with his load. Amen.

LOCAL BUILDING FIGURES LESS THAN YEAR AGO

While Building Commissioner Maurice Dinneen considers the local figures for new building, alterations and additions, during the past year creditable by comparison with those of other cities and towns, they are less than the total here in 1933.

This year's total, including alterations, is $228,587.50, new construction amounting to $190,165. A year ago new construction, exclusive of $2650 for the construction by the town of covers over playground sand boxes and a sanitary building at Leonard Field, amounted to $317,743 of which $25,875 was for alterations. WILL SEND PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT BIRTHDAY CARD

Ernest Dudley Chase Repeats Gift This Year

Mr. Ernest Dudley Chase of Lakeview terrace is again preparing a huge birthday card for President Roosevelt to be sent him on Jan. 30. Mr. Chase sent the President a similar card last year which created a national sensation.

The card proposed for this year will measure 22 inches by 150 feet. It will contain the names of prominent men and women connected with the Administration as well as those of Governors and well known people from every state in the union.

The card will be in the form of a folder, the principal pages including a birthday message headed "Happy Birthday," and another a map of the United States made of postage stamps. This map will consist of states in the form of "tukkins," each state being covered with postage stamps of one denomination and color, or another in order that the map may be colorful and each state stand out by itself. It is hoped that the Governor of each state will sign his individual "tukkin" slip, and thus complete a map which will please the President, who is a great stamp enthusiast. A border of stamps will carry the message, "The Governors greet you on your birthday, Mr. President."

The birthday message pages will have its various letters making up the message done up postage stamps which will be affixed to "tukkin" slips. These "tukkins," when pulled out, reveal the signatures. This particular part of the card will contain the names of prominent men and women connected with the Administration. The words "Happy Birthday," will contain the signatures of prominent men and women connected with the Administration together with the signatures of the Vice-President and members of the Cabinet.

The thousands of stamps going to make up the pages of the folder will all be signed by well-wishers of the President. Each stamp will bear the signature, town and state of some person, and Mr. Chase invites all who desire to be included in the list to write this greeting on a one or two-cent stamp and send it to him. The stamps should be sent loose and he will place them on the folder.

Mr. Chase is desirous of including a Winchester page in his folder, if those in this town who desire to greet the President will send their name written on a stamp. He asks all those so interested to send their stamps at once.

WINCHESTER SET BACK WAKEFIELD

Opened Middlesex League Season with 26—15 Victory

Winchester High School's basketball team opened its Middlesex League season last Friday evening at Wakefield, defeating Wakefield High School 26—15, in a well played game. Both clubs were out to win since they were tied for top honors on the circuit a year ago.

The locals led all the way, but the going was close enough to keep the crowd on edge until the final minutes of play. At the half, the score was 8—4 in Winchester's favor, and the locals had a 19—11 lead at the three-quarter whistle.

Wakefield was guilty of considerable fouling toward the end of play and Winchester's success in converting free tries counted heavily in its favor. At that the locals lost more than they made from the foul line, though they greatly outclassed Wakefield in free throws, the home team converting only three of 13 attempts.

Winchester's defense during the first half was well nigh perfect, only a single floor basket being caged for Wakefield by McCarthy, center. Meanwhile Coss, Josephson and Grossman were counting for Winchester, the remaining two points being made on free tries by Captain Provinzano.

"Steamer" Hanlon found the hoop for three floor goals and three fouls after half time, additional floor goals being shot by Provinzano, Coss and Josephson. Coss and long Frank Eshbach added foul baskets to swell the total.

Between the halves of the first team game, the Winchester seconds won from the Wakefield seconds, also by a 26—15 score, Grey with 13 points being Winchester's high scorer.

OBSERVATIONS

By the Observer

How many of the first resolves of good Winchesterites were to be true to their lust?

It is almost as hard to find a thimble in some of Winchester's modern and well-equipped homes as it is to locate the well-known needle in a haystack.

One Winchester fellow tells us that his personal taste in women runs to the sort that pays less attention to the last word in coiffures than to the interior furnishings of the head.

We know a fellow right here in fair Winchester who is always wanting people to tell him how good looking he is, but a woman will stand before a mirror and see for herself.

A good motto to hang in every Winchester home: Be sure you're right before attempting to put your neighbors right.

The old-fashioned Winchesterite who used to have a hard job rustling up a meal when the wife was sick for a few days now has a daughter who knows even less about the culinary art.

According to one man here in Winchester, he found the five cent cigars a good excuse for swearing off smoking.

Hand-holding doesn't appeal to the average woman in and out of Winchester unless it is the whip-hand.

A Winchester fellow employed as a bookkeper says that he never finds bookkeeping a tiresome employment as he gets plenty of exercise running up the columns.

Fine feathers make fine dust brushes.

United the people of fair Winchester stand, divided the people are misunderstood.

Every time some men here in Winchester look into a mirror they imagine they see a hero.

Miss Rosamond Robb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon H. Robb of Lorena road, and Miss Martha Jane Roop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. L. Roop of 12 Dartmouth street, have returned to Centenary Junior College in Hackettstown, N. J., after spending the holidays with their parents. Both girls are freshmen in the college.

READING HIGH WON FROM WINCHESTER

The fine all around play of Capt. Frank Provinzano wasn't quite enough to offset the general lack of scoring punch among the remaining members of the local team and Winchester dropped its Middlesex League game to Reading High Wednesday afternoon on the latter's court, 31—25. The defeat was a blow to Winchester's hopes for another championship season.

Aside from Provinzano only "Slicker" Coss and "Steamer" Hanlon were able to score for Winchester, the former adding seven points to the local total. Provinzano with 16 points on six field goals and four foul baskets was easily the game's high scorer.

While having no one to match Winchester's captain, Reading played a much better team scoring game, White and Depatie, forwards, scoring 20 points between them, while every member of the club had at least one point to his credit.

Between the halves of the first team game, the Winchester seconds outclassed the Reading seconds, 21—5, with Richardson leading both teams with 10 points.

METCALF UNION NOTES

The Metcalf Union started the new year off with a bang last Sunday night when a record crowd welcomed Mr. Dana Cotton, the new director, and listened to Mr. Robert Keeney's question box.

Mr. Cotton said that he was indeed glad to be with the Unitarian young people and that the coming year should bring "bigger and better" things.

An enormous box of questions did not floor Mr. Keeney, who endeavored to answer each one in his own inimitable way. Among the questions asked were: "Should there be movies in Winchester?" "What do you think of capital punishment?" "Is the wife's place in the home?" and "Do you really get a lift with a camel?"

Following this, Richard Elliott, the president of the Union, led a service in Meyer Chapel and then refreshments were served by a committee consisting of Nancy Robinson, Alcyone Rogers, Betsy Higgins, Francis Hayden and Helen Pentz.

DRUNKENNESS ARRESTS IN 1934 TOTALED 153

Of the 302 arrests made by the local police during the past year, 153 were for drunkenness. Residents of the town arrested totaled 173 with 129 non residents being taken into custody. Arrests for drunken driving totaled 28; for motor vehicle violations, 28 operators were prosecuted with one violator of traffic regulations. Six women were arrested during the year.

The total value of property stolen in Winchester during the year past is $7,996.83, and of this, property to the amount of $6,624.50 was recovered. All of the eight automobiles stolen in Winchester were recovered and eight cars stolen elsewhere were recovered in this town. Six of 16 stolen bicycles were recovered.

A total of 240 accidents were investigated and reported, a total of 1241 cases of all kinds were investigated and 1406 broadcasts were made to patrol cars during the year.

Buildings found unlocked and secured totaled 658 and 514 houses were given special attention during the absence of the owners. Some 899 blue tags of the Governor's Highway Safety Committee were distributed to motor vehicle offenders in the past six months.

The above figures do not begin to sum up the activity of the police department. Assistance rendered, messages delivered, multifarious calls concerning trouble with or over dogs, residents admitted to houses, warrants delivered, etc., all enter into the activities of the officers and men, together with policing schools, games, weddings and other public gatherings. The above takes no account of the thousand and one odd jobs done by Desk Officer John Hogan at Headquarters nor the clerical work done by Patrolman John Dolan.

BANKS WILL PAY THREE PER CENT

Three per cent is likely to be the minimum rate paid by the mutual savings banks of the state, at least in the immediate future, according to a statement made today by Carl M. Spencer, president of the Savings Banks Association of Massachusetts.

Mr. Spencer explained that the recent order from Washington limiting interest to two and a half per cent applied only to Federal Reserve members and members of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, whereas the savings banks of this state had their own state system of deposit insurance.

"Our banks are mutual institutions," said Mr. Spencer. "We have no stockholders, and we decide net income with our depositors after paying running expenses, taxes, and setting aside a suitable reserve. Consequently, we have for years past paid a little higher rate of dividend to savings depositors than commercial banks, and it looks now as though that normal relationship would continue at least in the immediate future.

Mr. Spencer stated that at the end of December, 101 of the 193 mutual savings banks of the state were paying dividends at a rate of 3 per cent, and 92 were paying at 3½ per cent.

OBSERVED GOLDEN WEDDING

Veteran Florist and Wife Showered with Congratulations

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Arnold, widely known residents of Winchester and actively identified with its civic, social and religious life, observed the 50th anniversary of their marriage last Sunday afternoon and evening when they held open house at their home on Dix terrace.

Two hundred and thirty-five relatives and friends, many from points distant from Winchester, signed the guest book, extended their congratulations and best wishes while experiencing the Arnolds' hospitality. It is of interest that the guest book was the gift of the Arnolds' son, Ralph, now in Glendale, Calif., and arrived in Winchester as his gift, bearing the signatures of his entire family.

The house was beautifully decorated with cut flowers in golden baskets and there was also a large golden bell suspended in the dining room. A delicious buffet supper was served from a most attractively dressed table. Mrs. H. T. Mitchell served as hostess in the dining room and assisting her were Mrs. Elmer Ripley, Mrs. Frank Gilchrist, Mrs. Lester Pratt, Mrs. Benjamin F. Jakeman, Mrs. Ernest W. Butterworth, Mrs. Arthur A. Belville, Mrs. Robert E. Fay, Mrs. T. Parker Clarke, Mrs. Clarence H. Zarses, Miss Grace Hatch, Miss Florence Jewett and Miss Ethel Jewett.

Numerous telegrams, cards and letters of congratulation were received during the day and there were many gifts, from family, friends and organizations with which Mr. and Mrs. Arnold are affiliated. Gifts from California and New Mexico traveled far to add to the happiness of the occasion.

A fine golden wedding cake, attractively iced and suitably inscribed, the gift of Winchester Lodge of Elks, was presented by the Lodge Secretary, Dr. James H. O'Connor. A floor lamp was presented by the Eastern Star and "bouquets" of money by the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs' Lodges. A congratulatory telegram was received from the Masons.

The entire affair was delightfully informal and progressed from first to last in a quiet friendly way that made the guests loth to leave the hospitable Arnold home. Mr. and Mrs. Arnold proved delightful hosts and were kept very busy greeting their many friends and acknowledging their congratulations and good wishes for the future.

The Arnolds were married Jan. 6, 1885, in Framingham by Rev. W. R. Eastman, pastor of the First Congregational Church. Mrs. Arnold was before her marriage Miss Josephine E. Parker of Westboro. They came to Winchester in 1900, Mr. Arnold, after 14 years' experience as a gardener in the employ of the State, having accepted a position with John Newman & Sons whose greenhouses were then located here on Cottage avenue.

In 1901 he opened his own florist shop on Common street and for 30 years he continued at this location, numbering his patrons in many of the cities and towns of the Mystic Valley.

Five years ago he became associated with the Winchester Conservatories, and since that time has acted as manager of their shop in the center, first in the old postoffice site on Common street and more lately in Lyceum Building.

Mr. Arnold for seven years served as president of the Winchester Chamber of Commerce and was previously active in the old Board of Trade. He is a member of William Parkman Lodge of Masons, of the Royal Arch Chapters in Winchester and Medford, Hugh de Paynes Commandery, K. T.; Aleppo Temple of the Mystic Shrine, Eastern Star, Waterfield Lodge of Odd Fellows, Victoria Rebekah Lodge, Winchester Lodge of Elks and the Royal Arcanum. Mrs. Arnold is a member of the Eastern Star, Victoria Rebekah Lodge and the Women's Fortnightly Club. Both are members of the Parish of the Epiphany.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold are the parents of two children, a daughter, Mrs. Anna Holbrook, wife of Town Engineer Parker Holbrook of Winchester; and Ralph Arnold of Glendale, Calif. There are five grandchildren: Arnold, Marjory and Shirley Holbrook of Winchester; and Richard and Janice Arnold of Glendale, Calif.

FORMER OWNER OF DUNCAN STORE DIED SUDDENLY

Henry Duncan, veteran hardware dealer and operator of a chain of hardware stores that until recently included a store in this town, died suddenly of a cerebral hemorrhage last Friday evening at his home in Everett.

Mr. Duncan was 53 years of age and a native of Canada. He entered the hardware business in 1908 and at the time of his death was operating a chain of six stores, the store which he had maintained in Winchester for several years having been taken over by H. C. Winton.

The deceased was prominent in the hardware trade and was president of the New England Hardware Dealers' Association. He was a Mason, a member of the Shrine and of the Everett Rotary. He leaves his wife, a son, Walter, living in Cincinnati; and two daughters, the Misses Margaret and Elizabeth Duncan of Everett.

The First Congregational Church in Everett was taxed to capacity at the funeral services Monday afternoon, delegations being present from the Hardware Dealers' Association, Rotary and other organizations with which Mr. Duncan had been associated. Several former associates and friends in Winchester attended the funeral and James Chisholm of the Winton store, former local Duncan manager, was one of the bearers. Interment was in Canton.

MOUNT VESUVIUS: POTENTIAL SERVANT OF MAN

Why does Vesuvious erupt? Where is stored her fiery fury during quiet periods. Has she caverns leading off from the main tube, full of restless energy which man may tap, releasing pent-up danger, just as a safety valve lets off steam from a locomotive's boiler? Can that energy be harnessed to grind men's grain, heat their homes, and light their streets?

These are questions which daring scientists, entering the hissing mouth of the monster, recently have sought to answer, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. To the people of Naples, whose close-grouped houses and fruitful vineyards lie within hiking distance of the "nervous" volcano, the investigation holds profound interest.

At the beginning of the Christian era, Vesuvius, having lain dormant for centuries, was overgrown with shrubbery inside and outside its crater. Threatening earthquakes were felt in A. D. 63, however; and in 79, a terrific explosion blew off a large section of the crater's rim. Vesuvius belched out millions of tons of ash and dust, burying Pompeii, Herculaneum, and Stabiae to a depth in some places of 60 feet. Before the inhabitants had opportunity to flee, suffocating fumes rushed down the slopes and brought death to thousands. Condensing steam fell like torrents of rain on hot volcanic dust, forming a boiling mud which ran down the mountainsides in heavy masses. Strangely, there is no evidence of lava streams during this eruption. Yet, so completely was the region covered that for centuries the locations of the buried cities were unknown.

The crater behaved treacherously for 1000 years, then seemed to die. After lying quiet 500 years, it sprang to life in 1631. Again it blew off its "head," reducing the cone's height by 525 feet—a height equal to a modern 35-story building! During this eruption, rivers of fiery lava streamed down the mountain's sides. Nearly 18,000 people were killed.

Scientists Studying Source of Volcanic Force

The latest severe eruption, in 1906, was carefully watched by scientists. Three distinct phases of activity were noted: Progressive rising of heaving lava, which was ultimately ejected, together with volumes of smoke and ash; a rushing out of great quantities of gas, made possible after the volcano had cleared its throat of liquid lava; and finally, emission of choking dust and ash which formed heavy black clouds, the strongly electrified particles of which were held close to earth as by a magnet.

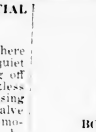

If the central tube of Vesuvius extends straight into the earth, there is probably little that scientists can do to prevent future eruptions. But, say the investigators, it is possible that the tube goes onward aslant, or that a curvature in its long neck causes lava to clog the throat until terrific pressure is gathered, resulting in upheavals such as those of 79, 1631 and 1906. In either case, attempts may be made to tap the tube, releasing pressure before an explosion occurs. Then, if volcanic action can be controlled, more tunnels may be drilled into the crater's sides, to take out natural steam, either for generating electrical energy or for heating purposes.

At Larderello, near Florence, volcanic formations have been tapped successfully for their natural vapor since 1916. Steam from some "wells" has a temperature of 356 degrees Fahrenheit, and rushes out under tremendous pressure. Dynamos, driven by the volcanic steam energy, generate electricity which is used for miles around.

Near Sonoma, Calif., geysers are harnessed in a manner somewhat similar to that used on their volcanic cousins at Larderello. They supply electric power and light for the neighboring region.

At Barrow-Heath, England, has been erected a stone monument, each corner of which is situated in a different county.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

Public Court of Honor

On Friday, Jan. 4, the Winchester District of the Fellsland Council, Inc., B. S. A., held a public court of honor in the Winchester High School gymnasium. There was a very good turn out of Scout parents and friends.

Troop 2, Scoutmaster Richard Gray, received highest award in advancement for the past three months, Troop 1, Scoutmaster John Kenerson, received second place. Troop 3, Scoutmaster J. Andrew Millican, received third prize. Advancement has been encouraged by the district members in Winchester and the boys co-operated very well.

In the competitive events, Troop 2 earned first place, Troop 3, second place and Troop 1, third place.

There was a very impressive candlelight ceremony during the presentation of merit badges awarded to Scouts who earned them. Dr. Richard J. Clark, presented the boys with their certificates of award.

One of the highlights of the court of honor was the exciting fire lighting event, which was won by Peter Sibley of Troop 2. Young Sibley used the bow and drill method of firelighting and accomplished the event in less than 12 seconds. This was the fastest time ever witnessed by any of the Scouts or Scouters in the Fellsland Council during one of the fire-lighting contests. Peter Sibley is to be congratulated upon his accomplishments in this event.

Council Annual Meeting

Each year it has been our custom to hold our annual meeting with a banquet, followed by the regular meeting. Plans have not yet been completed, but it is hoped that we may hold the meeting in the Calumet Club, with Gunar Berg, National Council Executive, as the chief speaker of the evening. Mr. Berg will first attend our meeting and then journey on to the Quannapowitt Council in Malden, where he will attend their annual meeting.

Announcements will be sent to all Scouters in the council as soon as definite plans are made. The date of the meeting has been set for Thursday, Jan. 24. We are expecting an encouraging turn-out in this new year of Scouting.

25th Anniversary

Feb. 10, 1935, marks the 25th anniversary of Scouting in America. We are looking forward to a better year than ever before in advancement and activities in Scouting throughout the Council. Make 1935 your Scout year. There will be more on this later. As last year, all Scouts throughout the nation will mobilize in February to hear President Roosevelt speak. Watch this column for an announcement.

Troop 1 News

The meeting of Jan. 7 was held in the Junior High School gymnasium. We spent our time mostly on games. We did quite well at the court and many awards. The inter-patrol contest is still speeding along with the Beaver Patrol leading with 377 points, Silver Fox is second with 330 points; Panther Patrol, third, with 211 points and Stag Patrol, fourth, with 211 points.

While chatting with a town official one day this week, we learned that he had been engaged on town business during the two nights previous until well into the early morning hours. Many citizens of Winchester have no conception of the amount of time many town officers are required to give to the community's service in the course of a year, usually without remuneration and at considerable personal sacrifice. The present enviable position of the town is due to the caliber of the men who have consented to serve in the past as Selectmen and departmental heads. The future of Winchester depends upon the type of public servants elected to administer town affairs in current years. There has been no time since the town's earliest days when the need for strong, capable and fearless public servants was greater than now. The town fathers of the past have "builded well." It remains for us to "carry on" in their best tradition.

Samson had the right idea about advertising. He took two columns and brought down the house.

MR. CRAUGHWELL'S OPINION

To the Editor of the Star:

I was amazed when I learned through the columns of the Star that some folks suggested that we, the town meeting members, support a moving picture enterprise in the Town of Winchester! I believe the town meeting members and other voters have decided on more than one occasion that a moving picture theatre is not desirable in the Athens of America.

I am informed that moving pictures educate our children. If that assertion is a fact, why not convert our Junior High School and our beautiful abandoned Wadleigh Grammar School into moving picture theatres? Some folks will most likely recall that we have converted our portable school houses into bathhouses or sanitary stations. They are located on the Palmer Street playground. Perhaps you will inquire if they are expensive bathhouses. I respectfully refer you to our Finance Committee for an answer.

It appears to me that it would have been a wise procedure to remove one of the portable schools from the Palmer street playground to Leonard field instead of expending a huge sum of money to erect a new bathhouse or sanitary station on Leonard Field.

But we must consider that everything has gone up since the New Deal, including airplanes, balloons and hot air.

As I never attend moving picture theatres, hence I am compelled to rely on what I hear and not what I see. Last week an innocent girl, seven years of age, said to me, "big boy come up and see me some time" and yet we are informed that moving pictures are educational!

The most marvelous moving pictures to my mind do not cost a cent to scrutinize. They are as follows; namely, the planets, twinkling stars, Aurora Borealis, lakes, rivers and forests. They are the moving pictures that Socrates, Plato and Aristotle scrutinized in the market places and porches in Athens, Greece.

In conclusion, I believe some folks will concur with me when I assert that the business center of Winchester is not suited for a theatre. Why? —because we have the dangerous grade crossing that retards our fire apparatus responding to a conflagration on the West Side of the town and has a tendency to congest traffic.

Why have innocent children mingle in the congestion.

Very truly yours,
Patrick H. Craughwell

HOCKEY CLUB ELECTS GAFFNEY

Gerard Gaffney, big high school football star and co-captain of Winchester's championship eleven last fall, was elected president of the Winchester Hockey Club at an organization meeting held Wednesday evening at the home of Arthur Farrar on Myrtle street. Kenneth Smith was elected secretary and Ralph Ambrose, treasurer. It was voted to hold a second dancing party on this Saturday evening in Lyceum Hall, and the committee in charge of arrangements have secured Truman Carew and his orchestra to furnish the music.

The club has asked the Star to publish the following "open letter" to the Park Department:

Winchester, Mass.,
Jan. 10, 1935

Park Department,
Winchester, Mass.

Gentlemen:

The Winchester Hockey Club wishes publicly to thank you for your interest and co-operation in providing the skating and hockey rink at Winter Pond. The club is trying to give the town good hockey and provide a means for those who enjoy the sport to play the game. It appreciates your assistance.

Gerard Gaffney, President
Winchester Hockey Club

ROTARY CLUB

Five members were absent from the meeting of Jan. 10.

We take pleasure in making the somewhat belated announcement that the club resources have been increased by the acquisition of one Rotary Ann. "Nick" Fitzgerald is the member responsible for our good fortune and for "Nick" and his bride, we bespeak all the good things which a long and happy life can bring to them.

Irving Symmes is journeying again and again he goes to Florida, where, we are told, the wind is tempered to the shorn lamb. We shall expect from Irving a detailed explanation of the above phrase, when he returns to us in the spring.

The mid-year district assembly at Waltham was the objective of President Harry and Vice-President "Billy" last Wednesday. Today in a short address, "Billy" covered the high spots of the assembly, which attracted nearly 300 Rotarians. That Rotary functions satisfactorily in this district is not exactly news to us who are Rotarians, but this assembly like other similar gatherings has served to impress upon our minds that the only efficient way to maintain this satisfactory condition lies in continual endeavors to improve it. And in-so-far as each club member performs his bit of service, to this extent will his club be a vital unit in the Rotary organization. Assemblies, conclaves, conventions, etc., are important, for one reason, because they stimulate a spirit of emulation in those who attend. And once this spirit is at work the conviction surely follows that he who serves Rotary ideals, serves himself as well. So grows the good Rotarian and his name is legion.

This club had another of those "just ever" meetings today. We refer to those meetings featured by an address given by a club member in which he describes his classification activities and their bearing on community life. Laurence Winchester at this time considered for our benefit his classification, "Report and Statistical Bureaus." Laurence as president of the Winchester Institute of Finance has built an organization, covering practically the whole country; a company of statistical experts of which this community may well be proud. A description of the service which a company of this sort offers to its patrons was bound to create keen interest in those who could listen. At the close of his remarks, the speaker competently answered many pertinent questions from the floor. It will interest many readers to learn that Laurence is the senior member of the family for which this town was named.

Attention—Members must get busy now if this club is to present a good attendance record for January. Absentees take note!

4-H CLUB RALLY

A 4-H Club town rally was held at the Lincoln School on Jan. 8. An interesting and varied program was presented to the club members, consisting of 4-H Club songs, games, lantern slides and motion pictures. It was announced that the Winchester Canning Club had canned the largest quantity of any club in the county, putting up 2935 jars. All club members who completed their activities were awarded 4-H Club pins. Katherine Saraceo was awarded a two day trip to Massachusetts State College, which will take place in July. In the garden club, Richard Glendon receives a medal from the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and was awarded ribbons for being second in the neat record book contest. His garden was considered the third best in the eastern section for which he also received a ribbon.

WARREN CHARGES RECOUNT FRAUDS

Ex-Senator Charles C. Warren of Arlington, Republican, defeated for re-election by Senator Charles T. Daly of Medford, Democrat, filed Wednesday with the clerk of the Senate a petition that the Senate remove Daly and that he be given the seat.

Warren charged fraud, declaring that during the recount of votes there were fraudulent acts in Medford by a person or persons unknown. He specified the alleged frauds as follows:

"Ballot boxes were opened after they had been sealed by precinct officers.

"At the so-called recount in Medford a large number of identified ballots and other ballots all appearing to be in the same handwriting were counted for the opposing candidate (Daly).

"After such illegal custody had existed, the count of the ballots in said boxes varied from 75 to 100 from the original count of supposedly the same ballots.

"In Ward 2, Precinct 2, the election officers found and reported 28 blanks. At the so-called recount the registrars found 81 blanks which had never been voted for any person.

"Your petitioner lost 56 votes which had been found by the election officers and credited to your petitioner."

He claims he lost upwards of 300 votes by fraudulent practices over and above the number shown on the election certificate. He says it is uncertain how many valid votes Senator Daly has received.

Madame Chairman, members of the Board and of the Winchester Chapter of the Red Cross:

During the past year the Executive Board of the Chapter has held five meetings in addition to the annual meeting, all of which were at the home of Mrs. Bowen Tufts, chairman.

The Home Service Department, under the capable direction of Mr. William Hevey and Mrs. Otis Wilson, investigator, have investigated numerous cases. Food, clothing, fuel and money have been given to these families. Twelve baskets of food, including turkeys were distributed at Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Arthur Smith, chairman of production, reports that 50 Christmas bags were filled with 11 articles such as pen knives, diaries, playing cards, comb and life sets, etc., were sent to Headquarters to be forwarded to sailors and soldiers on foreign duty for Christmas. In addition, this department has distributed 12 pounds of wool which will be made into sweaters for sailors and soldiers in the hospitals. This department wishes to thank the En Ka Society, and townspeople who are assisting the Red Cross in knitting the sweaters.

Mrs. Harry Goodwin, chairman of Life Saving, reports that Mr. George Carnie conducted classes in swimming and life saving instruction from June 25 to Sept. 1, at Wedge Pond and Leonard Beaches. Much enthusiasm was shown by the residents of Winchester who availed themselves of the opportunity to receive free instruction through the generosity of the Red Cross Chapter. The number of children given a correct and far reaching start as good swimmers is one of the most important parts of this credible work. The number of certificates awarded this season were as follows:

Senior Life Savers enrolled 18, passed 14.
Junior Life Savers enrolled 58, passed 35.
Swimmers enrolled 51, passed 41

Mrs. Francis Smith, chairman of Braille, reports that she has transcribed into Braille, 300 sheets of Italian, 300 sheets of German, 150 sheets of French, 100 sheets of Latin, besides two books of German and the ninth book of Virgil. These transcriptions were to assist blind students at college.

Mrs. George Dutting, chairman of the Grey Ladies, reports that her committee consisting of Mrs. R. K. Miller and Mrs. F. Young, have visited the Bedford Hospital each Friday. The services at the hospital have consisted of one day a month for sewing and surgical dressings; making wreaths at Christmas and writing cards for the patients; one evening of bridge for the patients with a prize for each table, cake, coffee and home candy being served. Home made candy, playing cards and 19,000 cigarettes have been distributed in the wards.

The Annual Red Cross Membership Campaign of which Dr. Mary Maynard was chairman, has been very successfully completed with a total of $1800. We feel grateful in these times to have subscribed our quota of 1800.

The Junior Red Cross, one of our most active and growing departments, has had a very successful year.

The department at the high school, Miss Helen Bronson, supervisor, reports the following activities:—125 units of clothing collected for the Welfare Department; fruit, vegetables and canned goods collected for the Thanksgiving baskets; the sum of $25 was collected by the students and sent to the Senior Chapter for milk for undernourished children; toys were collected which were sent to the firemen to be repaired, and then distributed as Christmas gifts to boys and girls who otherwise may have had no Christmas; 600 magazines were collected for the Boston Seamen's Friend Society; a box of 75 valentines was sent to the Children's Hospital in Boston; and 102 packs of cards collected for the Bedford Hospital.

At the Junior High School, with Miss Davis as supervisor, the main project has been to supply 50 favors at every holiday season for the U. S. Naval Hospital at Chelsea; the sum of $10 was sent to the National Children's Fund; at the Christmas season the school takes part in bringing in Christmas cards to be sent to the Naval Hospital so that the men may mail them to their families or friends; in the spring, flowers were collected and sent to the bed ridden hospital; magazines were collected for the children's wards; the Home for Aged and the local hospital were remembered at the holiday season with appropriate favors.

The elementary schools, with Miss Blanche Pratt, as supervisor, reports the following activities: 84 Christmas boxes were sent to children of other lands; in November, fruit, vegetables and canned goods were collected for the Welfare Board for the Thanksgiving baskets; favors, jokes, scrapbooks, etc. have been made and sent to the Winchester Hospital, Home for the Aged, Bedford Hospital, Children's Hospital, Hospital and Home for Little Wanderers; clothing has been collected for the Winchester Welfare Board, and the Near East Relief; International correspondence has been stressed with the following portfolios sent:

Mystic School Historic Scene around Boston, Poland.
Norman School Our School Work Philippine Islands.
Washington School Our Country France.
Wyman School Our Holidays Yugoslavia.
Wyman School Life in New England—Czechoslovakia.

A sum of $25 was contributed to the National Children's Fund and presented by the Junior Red Cross delegate at the National Convention in Washington.

These are only a few of the many services rendered by the Junior Red Cross.

It is indeed a pleasure to report such satisfactory results this past year. The Winchester Chapter of the American Red Cross wishes to thank the townspeople for their generous and loyal support at Roll Call, for without their co-operation the credible work of the directors could not have been brought to a successful conclusion.

Respectfully submitted,
Ruth E. Hilton,
Secretary

Red Cross Chapter Chairman Urges Caution for Skaters

Safety ought to be guaranteed to skaters and those who enjoy all kinds of ice games just as it is given in aquatic sports, in the opinion of Mrs. Bowen Tufts, chairman of the Winchester Red Cross Chapter, in a statement made today.

"A place to skate, and information as to the difference between solid ice and ice that is treacherous, ought to be given to young people by every community. The Red Cross life saving service, recognizing the need for midwinter outdoor activity, recognizes also the responsibility in the winter as in the summer, to make wholesome outdoor sports safe for our young people.

Suggestions that have been made by Harold F. Enlows, director of life saving for the American Red Cross, will help to cut down the number of accidents on the ice, and this chapter is glad to hand them on to the young people here.

"Stay off thin ice, ice over flowing water, or ice over salt water," Mr. Enlows says, and he explains that the Red Cross uses as a standard for good ice that is safe for crowds that of the Engineers' Field Manual of the United States Army, which calls three inches of ice safe for the passage of infantry, four inches for the passage of cavalry, and six inches or more for the passage of artillery.

"In many lake districts the ice becomes a winter thoroughfare as soon as the lake gets six inches of ice or more and many miles of travel are saved thereby. Logs which have been cut are hauled to mill, on bobsleds, and all sorts of farm products are drawn to market over the smooth level surface which nature has built for the farmers to use. The danger time may be in the early winter or toward spring, when rains or thaws have weakened the ice, and pitted it with holes, underneath.

"Many teams of horses have broken through and taken human beings with them and nowadays many auto loads of people have been submerged when the icy road broke under them. It is a bit hazardous to motor over ice with all doors shut tight, for the car carries its occupants down like rats in a wire trap. A few more miles of travel may mean a few more years of life. In taking short cuts, think what warm days may have done to the icy highway.

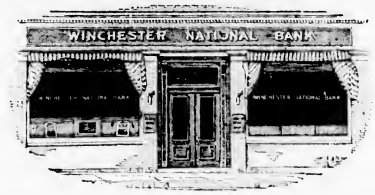

"For ice rescue work, hang up the life buoys and lines from the summer swimming place, if water is deep.

"For ice cutting a few coils of rope at strategic points may prove handy in case workers or horses get into the water.

For self rescue, keep your hands and forearms on the rim, and do not get your feet under the ice in front of you. Kick them up to the surface and try to roll out. Letting mittens freeze to the ice has held up many an ice accident victim until help arrived.

"The fire department, with its motorized trucks and handy ladders of various types is frequently successful in rescuing victims of ice accidents, even after they have gone to the bottom. Fire trucks carry first aid kits, blankets and hot pads or hot water bottles and the firemen usually understand resuscitation and care of the victims of submersion.

"In conclusion the Red Cross First Aid and Life Saving Service says: Don't have ice accidents. Take your precaution in advance. But if there is an accident, send for the fire department at once. Through Red Cross training they are becoming the emergency rescue reliance of most American communities."

THE FORGOTTEN MAN

By Ernest B. Becker, M. D.

A special tribute we want to pay
To this Town's police who night and day
So faithfully and unselfishly take
Their lives in their hands for our sake.

We're apt to consider them only when they
Are involved in some trouble that's passing our way;
And then as a rule not the way that we should
Except in so far as they're doing us good.

Before he finds you and invites you to stop;
And whenever possible make him your friend,
For you'll find it will profit you well in the end.

After all they are human, no different than you,
Most grateful indeed when a "Thank you" is said too;
So give them a brisk with a smile now and then,

THE HUSBAND'S NEW DEAL

By E. B. Becker, M. D.

You have in your husband a man most rare,
The kind that you cannot afford to spare,
So here's a bit of advice I feel
Compelled to give as regards his meal.

His stomach refuses to work on air,
But rather a meal considered square,
And given at least three times a day
In your attractive and tasty way.

For breakfast the things most apt to suit
Are toast with coffee and possibly fruit,
An egg or two that's partly done
With a kiss or two thrown in for fun.

Then somewhere around the middle of day
He ought to relax, and then put away
A dinner consisting largely of meat,
Vegetables plenty and something sweet.

And seal it secure with the usual say,
"Now I hope that you're filled for the rest of the day"
However, at six be prepared to hear
A plea like this, can I eat now dear?

Of course you're to take this kindly remark
As serious, and politely invite him to park
Again for a lunch of milk and of toast
Prepared by his wife and lovable host.

I'm sure you'll forgive my own attitude
Regarding the meals to which I allude:
But since He's the one that's paying the bill

"Sacrament" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Jan. 13.

The Golden Text is: "A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. By this shall all men known that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another" (John 13:34, 35).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "My little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth. And this is his commandment, That we should believe on the name of his Son Jesus Christ, and love one another, as he gave us commandment" (1 John 3:18, 23).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Our heavenly Father, divine Love, demands that all men should follow the example of our Master and his apostles and not merely worship his personality. . . . Who is ready to follow his teaching and example? All must sooner or later plant themselves in Christ, the true vine of God. That he might liberally pour his heart-bought treasures into empty or ill-filled human storehouses, was the inspiration of Jesus' intense human sacrifice" (pp. 10, 54).

THE CLYDE, A TINY RIVER THAT NURTURES SEA GIANTS

When the Queen of Great Britain named the world's most powerful, and perhaps largest, liner "Queen Mary" recently, and the huge ship slid gracefully down the ways into the River Clyde at Clydebank 17 miles downstream from Glasgow, one of the world's smallest rivers again sponsored a giant of the sea.

Although the massive 50,000-ton hull was "aimed" at the recently-deepened mouth of the River Cart, where it joins the Clyde, the expanse of water was still so narrow that 18 drag chains of 1000 tons each and seven tugs were used to slow up the vessel. Thus was accomplished the trick of launching a ship over 1000 feet long into a river only 870 feet wide.

Rises in Pastoral Tweeddale

The Clyde is never included in any list of the longest rivers of the earth or those of greatest volume; but it would have to be placed near the head of the most important to mankind, along with the Hudson, the Thames, the Elbe, and Shanghai's Whangpoo, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Rising among the verdant hills of Tweeddale, the Clyde is a broad and shallow stream, broken here and there by rocky waterfalls, for the first 80 miles of its course; that is, until it reaches the center of Glasgow. The next 14 miles, to Dumbarton, the shorter but commercially important part of the river, has been made navigable by dredging at the cost of millions of pounds. Finally the Clyde widens out into a beautiful estuary, the Firth of Clyde, which curves for many miles through rocky islands and towering hills to North Channel, between the open Atlantic and the Irish Sea.

The Clyde, of tourist parlance is this lower section, where many long fingers of water reach deep into the Argyllshire highlands. Wooded shores of narrow sea-lochs are dotted with mansions and estates of the wealthy, and cottages of residents of Glasgow, who journey down the Clyde by steamer to spend weekends in this picturesque vacationland so near to Scotland's largest city. A busy network of fast and frequent steamers connects the islands of Bute, the Cumbraes, and Arran, and mainland towns with the center of Glasgow.

Clamorous and Sombre Stream

But to the rest of the world it is the 14-mile reach between Glasgow and Dumbarton that is important. Conrad referred to this section of the Clyde as that "clamorous and sombre stream," and he who, by steamer, glides between its throbbing shipyards crowded industrial towns, long docks, and sugar refineries, and among its raucous shipping, will agree that the great writer of sea stories captured its flavor in a phrase.

Glasgow was not always a seaport. As late as the middle of the 17th century it was a quiet inland town on a forlable stream. How Glasgow made the sea come to it—as alarmingly and more successfully than Mohammed with his mountain—is one of the most fascinating romances of engineering.

For a long time freight for the city was brought in ships to a point 40 miles down on the Clyde estuary and carried the rest of the way on packhorses and in carts. Later a port was established 19 miles away; but, as the city grew, the need for docks at its door became more apparent. The situation seemed hopeless, but in 1773 engineers hit upon the scheme of narrowing the channel and making it dig its bottom deeper.

Where Children Waded "The Queen Mary" Floats

The plan worked. The pitifully meager two-foot depth of those days had become eight feet by 1836, 22 feet by 1900, and is now 26 feet sufficient to accommodate huge modern ocean liners. It has been dredged once more to enable the "Queen Mary" to reach the sea. Picks wielded by wading men started the loosening of the river bottom in the old days; then came horse-drawn harrows.

In late years explosives and the most modern of steam dredges have helped keep the channel to its depth. Though Glasgow's waterway is where the River Clyde has flowed for ages, it has been truly said that it is "as artificial as the Suez Canal."

Except where there are commercial quays, docks and factories, nearly every foot of the Clyde waterfront from Glasgow to the estuary is now taken up with some of the world's greatest and busiest shipyards. Here in a stream, which for depth at least, was once outranked by almost any second-rate American creek, were launched in recent years, in addition to the "Queen Mary," the giant "Aquitania," the huge British battleship "Hood," and other famous craft among the largest ever built. Clydes bank is already making plans, perhaps a bit prematurely, for the construction of a sister ship to the "Queen Mary."

East Coast of Nicaragua

Due to the lack of rail communications, the east coast of Nicaragua is closer to New Orleans commercially and in point of time than it is to Nicaragua's west coast.

LADIES' FRIENDLY SOCIETY

At 1 o'clock, Tuesday, Jan. 8, the Ladies' Friendly Society of the Unitarian Church served a most delicious luncheon under the joint chairmanship of Mrs. H. Y. Nutter and Mrs. Hollis Nickerson. Directly after, at 2 o'clock, a splendid talk was given by Mrs. Stephen Perkins Cabot, the New England chairman of the Motion Picture Research Council. Mr. Cabot's address was arranged by the Social Service Committee, of which Mrs. Arthur G. Rowse is chairman.

After Mr. Cabot's address, the regular monthly business meeting of the Society was held. Committee chairmen made their reports and Mrs. Kenneth Hall gave a report on the recent appointment of Mr. Dana M. Cotton as director of the young people's Metcalf Union. Mr. Cotton has had four years' experience in similar work with young people. He is a teacher of history and economics at the high school and was enthusiastically introduced to his new role at the evening meeting of the Metcalf Union last Sunday.

The address by Mr. Cabot although lasting but one half hour, gave one much definite information concerning the crusade for beter motion pictures in this country.

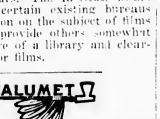

When he said that figures showed that an average of 75,000,000 people attend movie theaters in this country weekly, and that many children go twice weekly, with even more frequent attendance in certain congested sections, one realizes the scope of the work he represents.

He touched briefly on the travesty of the Hayes censorship laws, all of which were most blatantly disobeyed by the motion picture producers up to June of this year, when the Catholic League of Decency was formed and started a nation-wide crusade for cleaner pictures. One million people have since that time signed the pledge this League puts forth to boycott all pictures pronounced below the standards of decency set by them; and no one can deny the very great increase of fine, wholesome pictures since July of this year. It was the findings, however, of the National Motion Picture Research Council, edited in seven large volumes, that provided, in Mr. Cabot's words, "the ammunition" for this bold attack on the industry.

When a group of 35 national organizations interested in the question of better movies, met last June in New York for a conference, it was the unanimous vote that the most important step to be made was to rid the industry of block booking and blind buying.

With this, then, as their goal, appointed five extremely able lawyers to draft a simple, concise and workable bill to be put before the legislature in Washington for the abolishment of those two pernicious practices. When this bill is completed, in the near future, it will be sent before the national legislature and then will be the time, Mr. Cabot pointed out for public opinion concerning it to reach our Congressmen by individual letters and petitions.

The Motion Picture Research Council have also the hope of establishing a National Film Institute somewhat after the pattern of the one which has functioned successfully in England for some years. This Institute would consolidate certain existing bureaus of information on the subject of films and would provide others somewhat in the nature of a library and clearing house for films.

On Monday, Jan. 7, there was an attempt to picture Johnson's England as part of the study of such good talk as has been shaped into good literature. Mrs. Paul had an appreciative audience as she talked about what A. Edward Newton calls, "the last century in which people really lived" and in spite of her limited time and notwithstanding the fact that some of the group were convinced that Plato and Cicero and Lucian had recorded the most valuable conversation, she tempted many to a new acquaintance with Dr. Johnson and his circle.

There was time for only short references to table talk of the preceding century or to Charles Lamb and his friends who made the era following Samuel Johnson's life. Many libraries and museums have just been showing their treasures to honor the 100th anniversary of the death of Charles Lamb and the 150th since the death of Johnson. Another notable day is the birthday of Benjamin Franklin on Jan. 17. His years were almost the same as Dr. Johnson's, and although they never met, Mr. Newton has written a delightful play about a dinner which both might have attended. We like to think of Charles Lamb as introducing into his essays that whim-sicality which since that time has been a priceless feature of written and spoken talk.

Miss Kimball read those chapters from "The Housebut on the Styx" which show Dr. Johnson conversing with his fellow shades of all mortal time at their club. This clever piece of nonsense led to a discussion of the pet project of the year, the imaginary conversation contest which closes on March 4. Some sort of agreement about what makes a conversation and what constitutes literary value will make it easy to choose characters, a setting and a topic to suit each individual talent and ambition. The results will be interesting and may prove valuable.

Mrs. Hayden suggested reading and study topics for the February meeting which promises a discussion of "Todays Good Talk," meaning for our purpose such good talk as gets itself printed. After an imaginary cup of the Indian Weed to which Johnson was addicted and an exchange of books, the meeting was very informally adjourned.

WYCKOFF WON MAIN BOUT IN OPENING WRESTLING SHOW

Wild Wyckoff of Woburn won from Whitey Johnson of Lowell in the main attraction of the opening wrestling show held Tuesday evening in White's Hall which was taxed to its very limited capacity.

Wyckoff and Johnson each won a fall, but Johnson was unable to continue and the decision was awarded to Wyckoff.

WHERE FISHES SWIM DOWN CHIMNEYS

A drought near Tai Lake in northeastern China recently caused discovery of an ancient Chinese city. As the lake waters shrank, fishermen poling their boats through shallows, sighted a submerged wall, streets and houses. Chinese legend identifies them as the remains of Sanyang, a commercial center which was inundated by the flood which formed Tai Lake.

Discovery of Sanyang adds still another member to the league of drowned cities, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Such realities bolster up the traditions of an Atlantis or lost Lyonnesse.

Cities Under Lakes and Seas

Tai is not the first lake fabled to contain a sunken metropolis. Celtic tradition places a great populous city at the bottom of Lake Killarney. The town supposedly beneath Lake Neagh, also in Ireland, has been celebrated in verse by Tom Moore.

When the Aswan Dam was built in 1902, in southern Egypt, it converted part of the upper Nile into a vast lake, submerging several islands completely or partially. Though the islet of Philae was flooded, tops of most of its buildings, pillars of the Temple of Isis, and palm trees towered above the water like masts of wrecked ships. When the dam was built 26 feet higher, these were engulfed completely, and now emerge, encrusted with aquatic growths, only during summer months, when opened sluices cause the lake waters to subside.

About 1282, a great tempest drove the North Sea over the northwest shores of the Netherlands, flooding lowlands, and tradition adds, many villages. Combining with Lake Fleve, the waters formed a large inland sea, the Zuider Zee. An immense reclamation project, including a 20 mile dyke, reclaimed in 1932 about 550,000 fertile acres. All that was left of the Zuider Zee was a mere inland lake, the Ijsselmeer. Under its green waters, skimmed by red-sailed fishing boats, the drowned cities are said to still sleep. Tradition has it that fishes swim down the chimneys of their steep-roofed mediaeval houses, and that from belfries of churches, faint ringing of chimes floats up through the water.

Earth's Crust Acts as Elevator

Recent actual towns under water include Indian villages wiped out by the building of dams in the United States. If the St. Lawrence Waterway should be constructed, many Canadian hamlets would be inundated.

Cities are submerged not only by floods, but by subsidence of the earth's crust, often caused by volcanic action. An upward movement of the crust raised part of the coast of Alaska near Mount St. Elias, 47 feet in September, 1899. A downward movement ducked Greenland Eskimo houses into the sea. At Puzzoli, on the Bay of Naples, stands the ruin of an ancient temple, its columns peculiarly honeycombed. The ground on which the columns were erected, sank with them beneath the bay, where they were scarred by sea growths, and later raised to their present position.

Germany tells legends of a city of Vineta lying off its coast under the Baltic Sea. The Bay of Douarnenez on the coast of northwestern France is said to cover the site of a once wealthy city named Ys. Breton peasants on Sein Island, point out at low tide, submerged blocks which they declare are the drowned city's foundations. Most famous of all submarine cities, Ys has been celebrated in verse and prose. Debussy set its legend to music in his composition entitled, "The Submerged Cathedral."

Undependable Islands

Near the site of ancient Carthage, on the Gulf of Tunis in nothern Africa, photographs taken from airplanes show that there are long walls under 30 feet of water, 100 yards from shore. These walls probably helped form the roadstead which harbored Punic galleys when Carthage was "mistress of the Mediterranean."

From Land's End, Cornwall, the southwest tip of England, mariners on a clear day can hear across 25 miles of rolling waters to the wild, sea-girt Scilly Isles. Tradition, and some scientists assert that these islands are all that remain of Cornwall, till recently a peninsula jutting many miles into the Atlantic. Lyonnesse, Avalon and Tristram [illegible] Arthurian legend.

Many [illegible] the legendary Atlantis, reputed [illegible] Azores. Or an area [illegible] Straits of Gibraltar. In ancient times [illegible] as late as the 17th and 18th centuries, and it was not until after the Renaissance that people tried to verify it. It has been variously identified with America, Scandinavia and the Canary Islands.

GRANTCHESTER, ENGLAND: RURAL ESCAPE FOR TOWN AND GOWN OF CAMBRIDGE

Grantchester, the tiny English village loved by poets from the 14th to the present century, has been saved by an American trust fund.

A proposed express highway across the meadows separating the village from the famous University city of Cambridge threatened to destroy the rural charm of the hamlet. The trust fund purchases construction rights on the meadows. These rights will not be used, thus preserving the meadows in their pas-toral state.

Popular Among Cambridge Students

Grantchester, with less than 500 inhabitants, is situated two and a half miles southwest of Cambridge, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. It is a favorite objective of residents and students of the university city on afternoon excursions.

The footpath leading to Grantchester from the western side of Cambridge offers a pleasing escape from the strain of urban life and academic pursuits, and, despite the popularity of the automobile, is more often traveled than it was 40 years ago.

Since the 14th century, poets have sung Grantchester's rural attractions, but it was Rupert Brooke, the young English poet of Kings College, Cambridge, who immortalized the village by writing a poem about it when he was homesick in Germany. Brooke had made his home at the Old Vicarage in Grantchester for three years after finishing at Cambridge, and in the verses he reflects whimsically on the charms of the diminutive hamlet.

Strategic Spot in Roman Times

Grantchester's geographical location made it a place of importance in very early times. Travelers who wished to go into Norfolk or Suffolk found it necessary to pass through or near the village to avoid the fens which then formed an impassable morass from the sea to the vicinity of Cambridge. In times of enemy invasions it was a strategic pass to guard. Remains of a Roman camp reveal that it was a one-time station of Roman soldiers.

Queen Elizabeth made a Royal Progress through the village on her way to Cambridge for a visit in 1564. It was a gala day in Grantchester when the Queen on horseback, accompanied by her nobles and men at arms, rode through.

Quaint Customs Observed

Chaucer mentioned the river and old mill of the section—the mill was destroyed by fire in 1928—and Brooke in alluding to this says:

"Dan Chaucer hears his river still Chatter beneath a shattered mill."

Byron's Pool, near Grantchester was named for Lord Byron, who was an undergraduate of Trinity College, Cambridge. Byron often sought the quiet of Grantchester.

Quaint old customs observed on village holidays have gradually died out with the years. On Christmas eve the boys used to go "mumping." The villagers spoke of the youths as the mumps, and their performance consisted in blackening their faces and noisily tapping sticks on the ground outside cottage doors crying at the same time, "Mump, Mump, if you can't give me a ha'penny, I'll give you thump."

The "Horkey" Harvest Supper once was a regular Grantchester institution. These Horkeys were occasions of great feasting and merriment. An abundance of beef and plum pudding was served and ale flowed freely. The merry-makers sang a drinking song which they repeated as many times as there were persons in the party. A cup of ale was handed to each singer in turn, and he had to empty it during the singing of the chorus.

LITTORIA, ITALY'S 93RD PROVINCE

Italy has a new province (a political subdivision within the country somewhat similar to England's "county" or "shire.") Premier Benito Mussolini, on Dec. 18, dedicated the 93rd Italian province, Littoria, a fertile farm area recently reclaimed from the once desolate and malarial Pontine Marshes southeast of Rome. On the following day Il Duce laid the first stone for the new city of Pontinia.

The drab swampland of a short time ago has become a pleasant region of golden wheat fields, vegetable gardens, sparkling canals, and budding orchards. In modern farmhouses and in several landscaped new cities dwell more than 60,000 former service men and their families.

A bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society describes the remarkable transformation of this area which was been Rome's "backdoor" problem since the days of the Caesars.

Where Wild Boars Roamed in Broom Thickets

A little over two years ago Premier Benito Mussolini gave orders that the stagnant waters of the Pontine Marshes should be drained off to the sea, malaria should be ended, 4000 farmhouses built and populateed with as many peasant families drawn from the crowded farming provinces of the north, and that three cities—Littoria, Sabaudia and Pontinia—should rise in the deserted land, the bulletin continues.

The waste and flooded plain at the very doors of Rome was to become a garden and to supply part of the food needs of the Italian capital. The order is being carried out as scheduled and the project today is in first-class shape.

Where two and a half years ago, wild boars, roamed in the broom thickets, you can see the neat little city of Littoria. All the surrounding land is dotted by hundreds of bright, healthful farmhouses, replacing the squalid wooden huts where pigs and chickens once shared the misery of a few marsh dwellers.

Two Other New Cities

Twenty miles to the south, facing the Tyrrhenian Sea (a part of the Mediterranean), is the city of Sabaudia, named in honor of the House of Savoy. This neat little community is growing like a mushroom near a vast forest that will be its natural park. At the foot of the mountains, Pontinia will rise in 1935, recalling the Etruscan population that, 2500 years ago, first settled and farmed the fertile land.

This great project would not be possible had there not been much silent preparatory engineering work. Since 1926, a special commission, with Senator Natale Prampolini, at the head, has been working steadily. More than 160 miles of highway have been laid, 300 miles of canals dug, and five villages built in the marshy desert. A huge canal, 85 feet wide, gathers flood waters at the foot of the hills, and, skirting the lowland, leads them to the sea, 24 miles away.

America has had a hand in this modern miracle. Through the assistance of the Rockefeller Foundation, an organization was set up to fight malaria, because, unless this ancient enemy had been destroyed, it would not have been possible to conquer the land. When the work was started, statistics showed that 95 per cent of the population was infected with the disease, and that virtually no infant reached its first year without an attack of fever. Yellow little faces and sunken eyes stared at you in the medieval streets. Now new cases are nearly unknown, and pink and white cherubs greet you everywhere.

OBSERVATIONS

By the Observer

That fellow here in Winchester who never boasts of what he is going to do has fewer excuses to make.

How many old timers remember when mother covered our school books with calico to preserve them for other incoming members of the family?

Bowing to circumstances is apt to be forced politeness.

Fast driving in Winchester is prohibited unless it is a drive for funds or something.

Somebody hundreds of years ago opined that love is blind. It is just as true as gospel in the Winchester of 1935.

The other day we heard a fellow in Winchester square say to another, "hold your horses." Seems to us that expression should be changed to something more modern.

A young woman here in Winchester heard of a certain business man capitulating and asked if he had been seriously injured.

Winchester fellow tells us that he once bought at a Boston market a sausage link that was full of hazards. Moral: "Do your buying in Winchester."

A fellow went into one of our eating emporiums recently and asked for a plate of "mystery." He got hash.

We know a fellow here in Winchester who when he picked a wife picked a fuss and the fuss has been going on ever since.

Winchester's earliest welfare board was the maternally applied shingle.

Gout causes some men here in Winchester a lot of trouble considering it is so near the foot in the classification of diseases.

We know human lives that need a transformer.

And very often it is because they did not have a switch control in youth.

How many Winchesterites can remember when they had to wait an hour or more for the wife to dress? Now he waits while she makes up her face.

Star reader wants to know "if a man speaks easy in a speak-easy." We don't know—there are no speak-easies in Winchester.

A physician says we should take the common cold seriously. Did anybody ever take one gaily?

GAY UNIFORMS DISCARDED BY WORLD'S ARMIES

War sheds its last domino. French officials have recently decided that members of the French artillery were proud figures, but easy targets in sky-blue uniforms. In the future, they will march in khaki. A few blue uniforms, already made, will be utilized, but all new ones will be dust-colored.

The French Army is one of the last military powers to abandon its colorful uniform and join the world's drab-clad ranks, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Although a few countries, notably Spain and Japan, still retain elaborate full dress uniforms, most of the world's armies are now clothed inconspicuously to avoid detection from snipers and airplanes.

Uniforms Conceal Yet Differentiate Soldiers

British, Belgian, Polish, and Japanese soldiers wear khaki uniforms which blend with the earth. American soldiers wear olvie drab. Germany's uniforms are field gray; Spain's gray; those of Switzerland, Italy and the Netherlands, gray-green to blend with fields and woods. Endless weary processions of these cheerless-looking battalions, grotesque in gas masks, and with steel helmets to ward off shrapnel, are visible proofs that war's grim business no longer masquerades as adventure.

Uniforms are worn for many reasons beside that of avoiding detection. One of their chief uses is the apparently contradictory one of being a means of identification. In early warfare, save for a few exceptions, such as the Roman legions, and Hannibal's Spanish troops, clad in red and white, armies were clothed helter skelter and were assembled and identified by flags and decorations.

In the Revolution, before the New England troops acquired uniforms, there was much confusion because officers couldn't be distinguished from privates. Orders from headquarters made differentiation possible by making field officers wear red or pink cockades in their hats. In 1779, Moylan's Continental Light Dragoons, wearing 240 blue and red coats captured from the British, were in danger of being mistaken and shot for British dragoons. Washington avoided this catastrophe by ordering the American dragoons to wear linen hunting shirts as distinguishing marks.

That uniforms provide one of the easiest means of picking certain people out of masses is demonstrated by the uhiquitous use of them for waitresses, shop clerks, ushers, messenger boys, and many other workers.

Constitute Badge of Authority

Uniforms, as everyone knows, have a strong psychological effect on beholders. Football coaches have demoralized the opposing team's morale by merely sending on the field a hundred reserves in uniform, suggesting unlimited strength, or a player in a light track suit, suggesting speed and fearlessness.

Shakos, busbys and other formidable tall caps were probably invented to add height to soldiers and make them more impressive.

Prior to the Revolution, frontiersmen gained quite a reputation for marksmanship. In the war, Washington advocated that all Continental troops wear hunting costumes with fringed tunic, leggings, and large powderhorn, so that the British would judge members of each encountered detachment frontiersmen, and consequently good shots.

The uniforms of surgeons, nurses, mariners, chauffeurs, and policemen inspire the public to place added confidence in their skill or authority. Policemen have been distinguished by uniforms and identifying clubs. One of the first uniformed groups of policemen in England were known as "Robin Redbreasts," from their red waistcoats.

England is a great country for uniforms. She provides them for everyone from the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod to His Majesty's Swan Keeper; from judges in wigs and black velvet suits to her famous Horse Guards at Whitehall, in their dazzling metal cuirasses and helmets with flowing horsehair crests. England has 36 specified days known as Collar Days, beside several unspecified days, on which Collars of Orders of the Garter are supposed to be worn by their possessors.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

Prices on butter, eggs and meat have continued to rise with no prospect of lowering with the probable exception of eggs, which should be plentiful within two to three weeks.

Many vegetables are cheap or moderately priced, particularly white potatoes and other underground vegetables. Several varieties of cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli, iceberg, Boston and romaine lettuce, celery and various greens help to cover up the scarcity and high prices of string beans and spinach.

Grapefruit are plentiful and cheap having largely escaped cold damage. Large size eating apples predominate at present. Banana prices change little from month to month and they together with the citrous fruits and apples are the chief winter standbys.

Low Cost Dinner

Braised Breast of Lamb
Potatoes Sweet-sour Beets
Bread and Butter
Baked Cereal Custard
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

Chicken Pot Pie with Biscuit Crust
Browned Sweet Potatoes
Creamed Onions
Bread and Butter
Prune Whip
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner

Stuffed Celery
Brown Chicken Fricassee
Potatoes
Buttered Cauliflower or Broccoli
Apple and Raisin Salad
Hot Biscuits and Butter
Chocolate Cream Pie
Coffee Milk

Knights Templars of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, have arranged a series of conferences and dinners to be held on the second Thursday of each month from January to May inclusive. The series will be inaugurated Thursday evening, Jan. 10, in the main dining room of the Hotel Touraine at 6:30 when Daniel L. Marsh, D.D., L.L.D., president of Boston University, will speak. Mae Murray, contralto, will sing.

MARSEILLE: FRANCE'S GATEWAY TO THE ORIENT

Marseille, venerable Mediterranean port, and ordinarily one of the gayest cities in France, is in mourning. The assassinations of King Alexander of Yugoslavia and Louis Barthou, French Foreign Minister, add a touch of tragedy to the city which has long basked in the spotlight as France's colorful gateway to the Orient.

Marseille is a port city whose population is made of people from every continent. Like nearly all the great ports of the world, it is varied and picturesque. Its shops and stores teem with commodities of many lands. Its activities range from sea trade and manufacturing to catering to tourists and from cafe politics to art and literature, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Built Around Old City

The city is built around the old town, which, with its narrow streets and quaint old buildings, hugs the shore of the Vieux-Port, a broad basin that until the middle of the last century was the harbor of the city. One steps out of this part of the city into the more modern district, where wide, busy avenues are flanked with modern French shops, trees and sumptuous cafes. Beyond rise residential sections, where Marseille workers quietly live after days amid a bustle of business, shipping and industry.

Marseille is not only the greatest port in France, but through its phenomenal growth during the last century, has earned the right to be called one of the most important port cities on the Mediterranean. Commercial traffic in 1870 amounted to about four and one-half million tons. During a recent year it passed the 20-million-ton mark.

One of the principal reasons for the increase was the digging of the Suez Canal, which made Marseille the logical port for speeding cargoes to and from India and the Orient. Meanwhile the city maintained its prestige as the French continental port from which to nurture French seaborne commerce with the Levant and French colonies in Africa.

Surrounding Hills Were Commercial Barriers

While a deep harbor was Marseille's great asset, the hills back of the city nearly cut it off from the rest of the continent, causing traffic to be shunted to other sea outlets. Marseille, with the aid of the French government, tackled the problem of drawing more trade to its docks by boring tunnels and building highways. Railroads and canals now approach the city through long subways. The new Rove Canal flowing through a four-mile tunnel, accommodates barges of 1000 tons capacity, and links the River Rhone with the city. Now, important industrial and agricultural centers of Europe are Marseille's port facilities.

As canals, railroads and highways were thrust toward the city, and new ship lines made it a port of call, Marseille's citizens saw need for a larger harbor. A decade ago the port could accommodate more than 2000 vessels and thousands of square feet of floor space had been added to its warehouse equipment. But even then the harbor was not big enough, so the port authorities planned $33,000,000 worth of improvements, including three miles of breakwaters, and 13 miles of quays.

In its early days, Marseille had few industries. Today, while it still has one eye turned seaward in search of additional foreign trade, the other eye is on industrial plants of the city and the hinterland. A walk through the doorways of some of Marseille's industrial buildings reveals huge oil seed crushers, and soap and candle-making machinery. Thousands of tons of olive oil, pressed elsewhere, are sent here for refining and export.

Sufficient metal engineering work is carried on in the city to employ about one-tenth of its industrial population. These industries produce locomotives, boilers, motor cars, hydraulic machinery and ship fittings. Sugar refineries, rice mills, textile and shoe factories, macaroni and chemical plants are also important factors, and employ many of Marseille's nearly 600,000 people.

Among the rocky, fortified islands in the bay is the Chateau d'If, immortalized through Alexander Dumas' novel "The Count of Monte Cristo." A narrow stairway, cut in the rock, leads down to a stone landing, by way of which tourists may visit the fortress built in 1529 and long used as a state prison. The dungeons occupied by Mirabeau, the famous orator of the French Revolution, and Duc Louis Philippe of Orleans never fail to send shivers down the spines of callers.

The city has given its name to the national anthem of France, "The Marseillaise," which was first sung by a band of revolutionaries from Marseille en route to Paris in 1792.

Marseille also is the creator of bouillebaisse, the famous French chowder-like soup consisting of many different kinds of fishes, herbs and garlic.

CITY OF MINARETS MENACED BY FLOODS

Citizens of Cairo, Egypt, were recently in the strange predicament of the Ancient Mariner who, with water everywhere, found not a drop to drink. While new pumping engines were being rushed to the city to replace broken ones, thirsty Cairenes waded through streets flooded with polluted water to homes in which the water supply was largely cut off.

Although caused by an unusually high Nile flood, this disaster was hardly unexpected, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Cairo, the largest city in Africa, is growing more rapidly than any other Mohammedan city, and in so doing has outgrown its obsolete drainage system.

Has Modern Avenues and Ancient Alleys

Cairo is one of the most cosmopolitan cities in the world. Its newsboys in black skullcaps sell 38 newspapers, including 12 Arabic dailies, eight printed in French, seven in Greek, three in Italian, two in English, and others.

Modern Cairo has electric lights, taxicabs, and several colleges, including an American University which gives foreign students an opportunity to study oriental subjects. In the European quarter, laid out with wide streets like French cities, Europeans lead gay social lives in modern residences and luxurious hotels.

In the Arab section of Cairo, visitors still see houses four or five stories high crowded together along narrow streets that are hardly more than alleys. From projecting latticed windows women can look unseen upon the people, camels and donkeys passing and repassing in the street below. Mingled with tourists in sun helmets and Cairenes in European dress, are men in red caps and flowing robes, an occasional veiled woman with a baby astride her shoulder, and characters that look as if they might have stepped from the Arabian Nights: snake charmers with baskets of cobras, lemonade sellers carrying glittering brass urns, boys whose donkeys sometimes wear red saddles and silver necklaces.

Legends Cling to Cairo Mosques

Cairo has been called the city of a thousand minarets. There are over 400 mosques in Cairo, more than enough for a devout Moslem to worship in a different mosque every day in the year. From the citadel, fairy-like spires of yellowish-white, flat-roofed houses appear peppered with the mastlike minarets and bulbous domes of mosques.

Many of the mosques have interesting legends. Sultan Hasan Mosque is said to be the finest in Cairo. Legend says that to prevent its architect's designing a rival to it, his hand was amputated at his king's orders. One mosque was founded by Sultan Bibars, who would rank as a Channel swimmer, being reputed to have swum across the Nile in heavy armor.

The Mosque of El Hakim was built by a sort of Nero who made impossible rules and then wandered around Cairo at night to see if people were keeping them. In order to make certain the complete segregation of women, he forbade cobblers, under threat of death, to make shoes for them. The Mosque of Ahmed Ibn Tulun, one of the world's oldest and finest Moslem buildings, has a spiral staircase built around the outside of its minaret, up which it is said the Sultan Ibn Tulun used to ride his favorite horse.

Napoleon's Soldiers Damaged Sphinx

Cairo is linked with many names famous in history. Saladin, the medieval Arab ruler, built its citadel. The Cairo Museum, which houses the finest known collection of Egyptian antiquities, exhibits furniture and ornaments from the tomb of Tutankhamen. Near Cairo, Napoleon won the Battle of the Pyramids over the Mameluke horde. The nose of the Sphinx is said to have been shot away by his soldiers' cannon fire.

From Cairo, trolleys now carry tourists the five miles to the Pyramids of Giza. Beside the rails, on a splendid road, lined with lofty trees, throng travelers in motor cars and on donkeys and camels. The highway was constructed hastily at the opening of the Suez Canal so that Empress Eugenie might drive easily to the Pyramids.

Cairo holds especial fascination for the Bible student. A 290- foot well sunk in limestone within the citadel is said to have been the well in which Joseph was confined by his brothers. Cairo contains a crypt reputed to have sheltered the Holy Family in their flight into Egypt. Opposite Old Cairo lies the island of Roda, where Cairenes say Pharaoh's daughter discovered the infant Moses.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR

The popularity and success of the morning lectures sponsored by the Winchester Chapter of the Guild of the Infant Saviour last season encouraged the members in offering a new series this winter. Mrs. Virgil Ghirardini, chairman of programs, has been untiring in her efforts to secure musicians and lecturers of the highest standards with subjects of current interest. As before, these programs will be held in the homes of various members, with morning coffee served a half hour preceding the lectures.

Mrs. Ghiradini will open her home on Foxcroft road on Friday, Jan. 18, at 10 a. m. for the initial lecture, when the Rev. Terrence Conley, S. J. will speak on, "The Abbey Theatre and Contemporary Irish Drama." Father Conley will start his lecture promptly at 10:30. Mrs. Thos. T. Caulfied and Mrs. Coren H. Hintlian will be the pourers. Mrs. Allen L. Beausang and Mrs. William F. Hickey will be the ushers. Assisting with the serving will be Mrs. Francis R. Mullin and Mrs. Owen J. Logue.

On Feb. 15, at the home of Mrs. Earl M. Wood, 121 Church street, the Rev. Fr. Russel Sullivan will speak on the "League of Decency." This lecture will be held at 2:30 p. m. instead of in the morning and tea will be served at the close.

Miss Ellen Reiley of Brockton will present a musicale talk, "Song Lure of Many Nations." at the home of Mrs. Thomas Hennessy at 12 Salisbury street, March 15.

Mrs. Claire Dawes of Ravenscroft road will be the speaker on April 26 at the home of Mrs. Thos. Riley in Woburn. Her subject will be, "Mexico."

The fifth and last lecture will be held on May 17 at the home of Mrs. M. J. Meagher, Woburn. The speaker and subject to be announced later.

On Tuesday, the regular meeting of the Guild was held at Lyceum Hall. About 50 women spent the afternoon sewing. The hostesses, Mrs. Peter Caulfield, Mrs. Walter A. Cott, Mrs. W. J. Croughwell, Mrs. Herbert Creeg and Mrs. James F. Day, served tea at 5 o'clock and a social hour was spent before the meeting adjourned.

By Eugene Bertram Willard

With the advent of another year many people will frame a set of resolutions which will be kept for a few weeks and then forgotten. If anybody has any idea of giving up some personal vice the thing to do is to give it up and not wait for the first of a year to come as so many do. Every day starts a New Year and it is not a matter of the calendar at all.

"Stern lawgiver! yet thou dost wear
The Godhead's most benignant grace;
Nor know we anything so fair
As is the smile upon thy face:
Flowers laugh before thee on their beds
And fragrance in thy footing treads;
Thou dost preserve the stars from wrong;
And the most ancient heavens, through thee
are fresh and strong."

Tennyson's great "Ode on the Death of the Duke of Wellington" is almost wholly an apostrophe to duty, the path of which, the poet says is "the way to glory." Then follows this:

"He that ever following her commands,
On with toil of heart and knees and hands
Thro' the long years to do her light has won
His path upward and prevailed.
Shall find the toppling crags of Duty scaled
Are close upon the shining tableland
To which our God Himself is moon and sun."

It is an old cry—the cry of the heart of man for truth and right and justice and light. Whenever it has been hushed and stifled catastrophe has followed. It is a very important question whether that age-long cry is today stifled and hushed in the hearts of our people. To choose between God and the world is to choose between duty and treason. If we are to do our duty we must engage in some serious self-conquest. We don't have to wait until the beginning of a new calendar year to forsake certain practices or pleasures, but can start any time by understanding what human life is and what our duty toward our fellows is. Human nature has both its Godward and manward side, and impresses on human consciousness the paramount duty of making the Godward side prevail—of insuring its triumph. It cannot prevail if we make gods of wealth, power, material ease and comfort while our brethren are in need. It is by righteousness alone that the people of Winchester are exalted. And righteousness, let us ever bear in mind, is almost invariably the child of sacrifice—of Sacrifice as a Duty. And we do not have to wait until the start of a new calendar year to start this business of sacrifice either!

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

"Flirtation Walk," the first military musical ever filmed, with Dick Powell, Ruby Keeler and Pat O'Brien as the stars, will head the double bill opening at the big Granada Theatre in Malden on Saturday. Dick Powell has the role of a private stationed in Hawaii who is assigned to drive the car of a visiting general's daughter, played by Ruby Keeler. Falling in love with the islands the girl leads her handsome chauffeur through a series of adventures which culminate at the love festival where the magic of the scenery and the spell of the native songs and dances draw the young couple into each others arms. But for a private to aspire to a general's daughter is something else again. So Dick Powell goes to West Point to be on equal footing with the girl he loves. It is not until he is about to graduate that he meets her again and then discovers he has an officer for a rival. After a series of stirring adventures in which it appears the girl is going to marry the officer, the story winds up in a stirring climax.

"Behold My Wife," with Sylvia Sidney and Gene Raymond as the stars, is the second attraction on the bill starting Saturday. Gene Raymond is cast as the son of an aristocratic family who falls in love with a girl whom his parents think is below their social stratum. The parents manage to break up the affair but the girl commits suicide. Raymond calls his family murderers and leaves home. He goes to New Mexico where he is shot in a saloon brawl. He is nursed back to health by an Indian girl, played by Sylvia Sidney. She falls in love with Raymond and he conceives the idea of marrying her to revenge himself on his family. But this plan does not work out as he expects, instead his wife captivates the family and society.

"Imitation of Life," with a four star rating from Liberty and equally enthusiastic reviews from all film critics will head the double bill opening at the Strand Theatre in Malden on Saturday. The cast includes Warren William, Claudette Colbert, Rochelle Hudson, Ned Sparks, Henry Armetta and Alan Hale. Claudette Colbert is cast as a young widow with a child on her hands to bring up. She hires a colored maid and unselfishly permits the woman to bring her own child to the house. The women open up a sidewalk concession offering home-made pan cakes. Ned Sparks tries them and gets Miss Colbert to put them on the market. The idea is a great success and the widow is soon wealthy. Meanwhile the two children have been growing up together and when the white girl goes away to college, the other girl feels strongly the racial barriers which separate them. Rochelle Hudson plays the part of Miss Colbert's daughter, who returns home after graduation. While the girl has been at school the mother has fallen in love with Warren William and they plan to marry. With the daughter due to arrive the mother is forced to take a business trip and she asks her intended husband to do all he can to make things pleasant for the daughter until she returns. When the mother does return, she finds her own daughter hopelessly in love with the man she herself intends to marry. Warren William has only a fatherly interest in the daughter and how the situation is handled brings the film to a dramatic climax that stirs the emotions.

Warner Baxter in "Hell in the Heavens" will be the second attraction on the bill starting Saturday. This is said to be a spectacular and thrilling story of desperate war in the air with Baxter cast as an American in the Lafayette Escadrille. Mr. Baxter's support includes Conchita Montenegro, Russell Hardie, Ralph Morgan, J. Carroll Naish, Johnnie Arthur and the two comedy stars, Herbert Mundin and Andy Devine.

MYSTIC THEATRE, MALDEN

The genius and color of five great personalities have been blended together to make the picture which will be the feature attraction at the Mystic Theatre, Malden, starting Saturday, Jan. 12. The illustrious quintet is made up of Leo Tolstoy, Samuel Goldwyn, Anna Sten, Fredric March and Rouben Mamoulian. Keen judgment was shown in choosing this powerful and beautiful story of Czarist Russia as the second vehicle for that glamorous star, Anna Sten, who was first introduced to the screen in "Nana." She plays the role of Katusha, the little peasant girl who loved and was betrayed by a Prince. Frederic March, her co-star, is also ideally cast and gives the performance of his distinguished career as the handsome Prince Dmitri, whom army life turns from the idealistic young revolutionary who sincerely loves the little peasant to the dashing voluptuary who betrays her.

"Among the Missing, is the title of the second attraction at the Mystic this coming week and features Richard Cromwell and Henrietta Crosman in the leading roles. Miss Crosman, as "Aunt Martha," drops into the scene quite accidently to give the picture comedy and pathos. Arthur Hohl and Cromwell fill the production with action, suspense and excitement. Hohl is a gentleman crook who is using the guileless Cromwell as his accomplice. "Aunt Martha" sets out to loosen the criminal bonds that keep the young boy a virtual prisoner of the older outlaw.

Starting Wednesday evening, the Mystic Theatre will present something new and different in screen entertainment in "Tango," a game played like beano. Every patron on Wednesday nights plays tango free and many valuable prizes will be given to the winners.

"IMITATION OF LIFE" AT THE UNIVERSITY

"Imitation of Life," the Fannie Hurst best seller, starts Sunday for four days at the University, with Claudette Colbert and Warren William in the leading roles. Claudette Colbert as "Bea" Pullman steps into this emotional role and makes of it the outstanding characterization of her career. Fannie Hurst's intensely modern heroine lives and breathes through Miss Colbert's magic, and you see in her the embodiment of all young womanhood struggling with the problems of love and life to provide a livelihood for herself and baby daughter. Warren William, Ned Sparks, Rochelle Hudson, Alan Hale, Henry Armetta and a score of other well known players complete the cast.

"I Sell Anything," the companion feature, is a comedy drama concerning the business of manufacturing fake antiques and the method of auctioning them off to a credulous public. Pat O'Brien and Ann Dvorak head the cast.

"College Rhythm," a college comedy with a background of beautiful girls and choruses, and brand new hit tunes, starts Thursday. Introducing Joe Penner, nationally famous radio comedian in his first picture role, "College Rhythm," features Lanny Ross, Jack Oakie, Helen Mack, Lyda Roberti and Mary Brian. The cast also includes 150 members of the All American Co-Ed chorus. The story deals with the college rivalry of a piccolo player and an All-American halfback who love the same girl. When they graduate, they carry their feud and their collegiate ideas over into the department store business.

Carole Lombard and May Robson are together for the first time in "Lady By Choice," the companion picture. Miss Robson's role is somewhat similar to the one in which she made her first big hit on the screen in "Lady For a Day."

Have you sentenced your Daughter to
YEARS OF HARD LABOR?

All through life—from childhood to old age—the drudgery of the dishpan has overshadowed the lives of millions of women. Joyous, carefree hours of childhood, happy bouyant hours of girlhood are daily drowned in the murky depths of greasy dishwater.

Dishes—dishes—dishes! It's a daily routine of deadly monotony that ages the child and the wife all too soon. Don't start your daughter off on a lifetime task of drudgery that is now so unnecessary. Teach her to preserve her charm and youth—to enjoy the golden hours of freedom this age of electrical living makes so easy.

For years scientists and engineers have worked to abolish the time-consuming unsanitary method of "doing the dishes". The first mechanical dishwashers—crude and undependable as they were—proved a big advance over the old-fashioned hand methods. Now, General Electric has perfected this new electric service. All the dishes—chinaware, glassware, silverware, pots and pans too—are placed in soft rubber trays as quickly and easily as in a sink. The magic control is turned and in less than 5 minutes the dishes are hygienically clean. No chipping, no breaking. The General Electric Dishwasher even cleans and dries itself—human hands never even touch dishwater!

There is a size and model G-E Dishwasher for every home.

See this newest electric home servant demonstrated at our display rooms—and learn how easy it is to finance the modernization of your kitchen under the new National Housing Act.

HEATING HINTS
.. by John Barclay

HERE'S a suggestion for getting up heat quickly on cold mornings: First, shake the grates gently until the first red glow appears in the ashpit. Then open the Ashpit Damper and close the Check Damper and let the fire burn briskly. Ordinarily it will not be necessary to put on fresh fuel as there should be enough left from the night before. If some fuel is needed just put on a thin layer at first. Then when the fire is burning briskly and the house is warm add a full charge of coal and set the dampers for normal operation.

If at any time the fire gets very low so that it is nearly out, do not smother it with a full charge of fuel. Open the Ashpit Damper, close the Check Damper and add small quantities of fuel at a time. Then when the fire is again burning brightly, gently shake the grates and add a full charge of fuel. (c)

There has been considerable complaint about town from radio owners over a continuous hum they with their reception. The trouble is so bad that the Edison Company has been appealed to in endeavoring to trace its source. In this connection it is interesting to note that when the Edison experts were recently called here on a similar errand they found that an aquarium of tropical fish was responsible for wrecking the reception of a nearby radio, a thermostat used to maintain the water temperature at a proper height being responsible for the interference.

GEOGRAPHY WRITTEN BY POSTAGE STAMPS

Scenes from two more of the Nation's playgrounds found places on United States postage stamps in September when the Post Office Department released the four and eight-cent issues of its National Park series. On Sept. 18, the 8-cent Zion Park (Utah) stamp joined its fellows already released for their twofold purpose of carrying mail and proclaiming the beauties of America's out-of-doors. The gray-green stamp has in its center a reproduction of "The Great White Throne"—towering templelike rock formation found in the park.

A week later, a four-cent sticker of autumn brown color, representing Mesa Verde National Park of Colorado, took its place in the upper right-hand corner of part of the Nation's mail. On its face stands, in a central design, the camera's story of "Cliff Palace," an awesome ruin of the now vanished cliff dwellers.

Yellowstone Best Known National Park

If your knowledge of geography is good, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society, you probably will know in which States eight of the ten parks are located; but only if your knowledge is much better than average will you be able correctly to place them all.

Yellowstone has been familiar to Americans since it became the country's first National Park in 1872. Yet every year thousands of visitors turn homeward from its gates unaware that its area includes parts of Montana and Idaho as well as Wyoming.

Inquiries as to the situations of the Grand Canyon (Arizona-), Mount Rainier (Washington) and Yosemite (California) can be answered by most persons with even a casual knowledge of the geography of America; but neither the embryo 427,000-acre Great Smoky Mountains National Park of Tennessee and North Carolina, nor Glacier National Park in Montana are so well known.

Monuments, Maps and Mountains Depicted on Stamps

Between the longitudes of Acadia National Park along the rocky coast of Maine, and Crater Lake National Park in southwestern Oregon, lie not only the parks that have been selected for the stamp series, but ten others, 20 in all within the continental borders of the United States. Two more, the Hawaii National Park and Mount McKinley National Park of Alaska, complete the list.

Postage-stamp geography was not born with the issue of this series. The Colosseum of Rome is depicted on an Italian stamp; a picture of the Arc de Triomphe is the central feature of a French issue; and several nations have placed miniature maps on the faces of their stamps.

In 1900, Nicaragua pictured her famous volcanic peak, Mount Momotombo, on a postage stamp. Some commentators on the history of engineering efforts to construct a canal between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, assert that the Momotombo stamp, calling attention to the presence of volcanoes in Nicaragua, turned the scales in favor of the Panama route.

LAWRENCE J. SMYTHERMAN

Lawrence J. Smytherman, former baggage master at Winchester Station of the Boston & Maine Railroad and a resident of Winchester for more than 60 years, died Friday afternoon, Jan. 11, at his home, 19 Richardson street, after a long illness. He was in his 80th year.

Mr. Smytherman was the son of Samuel and Ellen (Collins) Smytherman, and was born in South Boston, living in that city until he came to Winchester about 1875 and took up residence, first on Main street near Blanchard's Mill. His entire life in town was spent in the North End section where he was widely known, though his position at the station brought him in contact with residents of all sections of the community and he had many friends among citizens of all walks in life.

For more than 40 years, Mr. Smytherman was in the railroad's employ as local baggage-master, retiring about five years ago. He was a member of the Railroad Veterns' Association. As a young man he was an expert wood turner.

In July, 1855, he married Mary Fitzgerald of Winchester, who survives him, with four daughters; Mrs. Dominick Flowers, Mrs. George Joyce, Mrs. Albert McCall and Mrs. Irving Welch; and three sons, Samuel, Lawrence and Thomas Smytherman, all of this town. There are 34 grandchildren.

The funeral was held Monday morning from the late residence, with solemn requiem high mass in St. Mary's Church. The pastor, Rev. Fr. Aloysius F. Mahony, was celebrant; Rev. Fr. Joseph E. McGoldrick, deacon; and Rev. Fr. Conrad J. Quirbach, sub-deacon. Bearers were James and Edward Joyce, Franklin Flowers and Edward McCall, all of Winchester and grandsons of the deceased; and two nephews, Francis Mandze of Winchester and George Wells of Woburn. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

WINCHESTER ELKS ATTENDED MALDEN VISITATION

A delegation of Winchester Elks was among the large gathering at the home visitation of District Deputy Frank Doucette of Northeast District in Malden last Sunday. The visitation was held in the Malden Lodge rooms on Main street, preceding the Rotary Club for the banquet and entertainment.

The local delegation was led by acting Grand Esquire John F. Donaghey, P.E.R., and included Past District Deputy Fred H. Scholl, P.E.R., Exalted Ruler Arthur J. Harty; Esteemed Leading Knight, Harry W. Stevens; Esteemed Loyal Knight, Harry A. McGrath; Dr. James H. O'Connor, Secretary; L. J. Kartzman, Chaplain; and Lyman A. Flanders, Michael J. Queenan, John H. McCarthy, Frank Pauler, William H. Vayo, Charles Meek, John Murphy and John Kline.

ATTEMPTED BREAK AT A. & P. STORE

As Patrolman Farrell was approaching the store he saw two young men leave the doorway and start along Main street. An examination of the door showed that part of the moulding around the glass had been pulled away.

The two men had disappeared in the storm, and their tracks became obliterated at Richardson street. Officer Farrell notified Headquarters and Sergt. Edward W. O'Connell and Patrolmnn John Hanlon soon arrived in the eruising cur.

The moulding from the window was found around the corner of the building and replaced. Two jimmy marks were found on the door and an examination of the Klein Market nearby showed that it too had been tampered with.

WINCHESTER MEN'S CLUB UNDERTAKES PILGRIMAGE

The Men's Club of the Unitarian Church, undaunted by the financial problems of the day and with full confidence in the success of their venture, will embark on Friday evening, Jan. 25, for a trip to the Near East and Africa. They have engaged the Winsor room of the good ship "Parish House" for their exclusive use and in case the party grows to unusual size they have an option on Metcalf Hall. The announced time of departure is 8 o'clock. Unfortunately for the ladies, this is "to be a stag affair. Through the extreme courtesy of the management of the ship, no fares will be charged, the only restriction being that no one takes home any souvenirs.

No trip can be successful without a thoroughly trained conductor who knows intimately the territory over which the party will go. The Men's Club is particularly fortunate in securing the services of one of Winchester's own sons, Daniel C. Dennett, Jr. He not only will tell about the cities where stops will be made, but he will also describe their historical backgrounds as well as their economic conditions, His ability to paint word pictures, his knowledge of problems of the Near East, and, what is most important, his fascinating way of transporting his hearers, assure the members of the most successful voyage. The ship will dock about 9:30 p. m., after which light refreshments will be served.

Strangely enough, members of the club may bring guests.

ELIJAH PHILIP CHURCH

Elijah Philip Church, widely known in the advertising field, died suddenly on Friday afternoon, Jan. 11, at his home, 170 Forest street, after a long box alarms and four, false alarms. The firemen put in 1761½ hours of actual fire-fighting work, laying 17,750 feet of hose, 3600 feet of chemical hose, raising 1210 feet of ladders and using 1114 gallons of chemical. In connection with the fire alarm system, Winchester sent apparatus to Arlington nine times and to Woburn, five times. Arlington sent apparatus to Winchester nine times and Woburn came to Winchester on four occasions.

illness. from which it was thought that he was recovering.

Mr. Church was born in Springfield Feb. 26, 1889, son of Dana Sumner and Susie (Pierce) Church. He was educated in the schools of Springfield and spent his early life in that city, later living for many years in Belmont before coming to Winchester a little more than a year ago.

For 16 years Mr. Church had been associated with the Diamond Match Company of New York in the advertising field, enjoying a host of business friends. He was a member of Belmont Royal Arch Chapter and of Omar Grotto, 38, of Boston.

Funeral services were held on Sunday afternoon at the late residence and were conducted by the Belmont Royal Arch Chapter, led by Hans A. Laaby, King of the Chapter, who was assisted by Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church. A delegation of members represented Omar Grotto at the services.

Following the funeral Mrs. Church, her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Marshall of Providence, R. I., Dr. and Mrs. Church and Mr. James O'Connor of this town, a neighbor of the deceased, accompanied the remains to Irasburg, Vt., where the interment was made in the family burial lot. The pastor of the Irasburg Congregational Church officiated at the interment.

The people of Winchester who are interested in things of beauty with important historical associations have the opportunity offered them for an afternoon of rare entertainment on Sunday. We are all familiar with the remarkable project of John D. Rockefeller, Jr. at Williamsburg, Va. He has spent millions in restoring and rebuilding that old town the Revolutionary capital of Virginia and the seat of William & Mary College, until it stands today, virtually a perfect reproduction of one of the loveliest and most historic of old colonial towns. Mr. Rockefeller desired colored photographs of the buildings and street scenes of Williamsburg to be taken for exhibition all over the country.

Scenes of Williamsburg to be taken for exhibition all over the country.

He turned of course to Dr. Charles H. Tozier of Winchester, whose work in color photography is equalled by no one else in the United States. Dr. Tozier, after spending a year or more on the work, has completed a set of extremely beautiful photographs in full color which have been prepared for exhibition with the stereopticon. He would like his fellow-citizens of Winchester to be the first to see these beautiful pictures and under the auspices of the Winchester Art Association he is to show them at the high school auditorium at 4 p. m., Sunday next, Jan. 20. To add to the interest of the occasion, Mr. William G. Perry of New York, the supervising architect of the restoration project will be present and explain the pictures to the audience as they are shown. There is no admission fee for the exhibition. Dr. Tozier and Mr. Perry give their services. A silver collection will be taken at the close to meet necessary expenses incurred by the Art Association in preparing and carrying out the exhibition; but contribution is entirely voluntary; the admission is absolutely free.

All citizens who care to attend are welcome, including children or young people of high school or junior high school age. Those who know Dr. Tozier's color photography, can imagine how beautiful the pictures will be. Those who are not familiar with the distinguished work of our fellow-townsman, should by no means miss this opportunity to become familiar with it.

The big chorus of 100 trained voices including singers from Arlington, Belmont, Lexington, Medford, Melrose, Needham, Somerville, Stoneham and Woburn, as well as Winchester, has been rehearsing since early fall under Mr. Wilson's skilled and painstaking leadership, and will sing new music by such eminent composers as Bach, Wagner and Gounod, as well as two repeat numbers, for which there has been insistent appeal. Walter Kidder, favorite radio and concert baritone, is guest soloist.

The concert will commence promptly at 8 o'clock and as usual no one will be admitted to the hall during the singing of a number. The usual large audience is expected and the Society's policy of maintaining quiet during the singing of its selections has been much appreciated.

RT. REV. FREDERICK B. BARTLETT, D.D., TO PREACH AT EPIPHANY CHURCH

The Missionary Bishop of North Dakota, the Rt. Rev. Frederick B. Bartlett, D.D., will be the preacher in the Church of the Epiphany, at 11 a. m. on Sunday. Bishop Bartlett has certain ties with Massachusetts for he received his M. A. From Harvard University and is a graduate of the Episcopal Theological Seminary, Cambridge. His work in North Dakota with both white settlers and the Sioux Indians has associated with it the battles with wind and weather and 40-degrees-below-zero temperatures that are associated with the Northwest. One of the interesting features is the industrial training being given the Indian in an effort to enable him to conform to American standards of living and be a constructive citizen.

Bishop Bartlett has been a missionary bishop for the past three years, having been elected to succeed the Rt. Rev. John Poyne Tyler at the latter's death in 1931. He is a native of Connecticut and since ordination to the Episcopal ministry in 1908 has served equally well as a missionary riding a thousand mile circuit in Southern Oregon, and as Canon of Calvary Cathedral, St. Louis, Mo. For the past year having been deputed to head the Domestic Missions Department of the entire Episcopal Church, Bishop Bartlett has commuted, as it were, between New York where the Episcopal national headquarters are located, and North Dakota,—a hard task that his hardihood and strength have enabled him to endure. He is considered one of the best missionary preachers in the Episcopal Church.

WILL IMPROVE UPPER MYSTIC

Senator Daly of Medford and Representative Ramsdell of Winchester have filed bills with the General Court asking for an appropriation for the Metropolitan District Commission for the purpose of dredging and improving Upper Mystic Lake in Winchester.

The Legislature, in 1934, appropriated sufficient money to enable the Metropolitan District Commission to dredge that portion of the Aberjona River which flows from the Boston & Maine Railroad tracks at Wedgemere to the entrance to Upper Mystic Lake.

"SPREAD EAGLE" FOR LEGION PLAY

Four years ago Winchester Post, 97, American Legion, scored an outstanding local success with its production of "Journey's End," which is still remembered with praise. Ever since that happy beginning of what became an annual custom of producing a play, the Legion has sought with varying but never quite complete success for a play which would again reach the heights of "Journey's End."

The reasons for this partial failure are not hard to seek. The first play was magnificent theatre, one of the greatest pieces of theatrical writing of the current generation. It employed a large cast of men. It dealt with the Great War which brought the American Legion into being.

This year, for its fifth annual play, to be given in the high school auditorium, March 1 and 2, the Legion found the proper formula. "Spread Eagle" was selected only after a very wide canvass. It too, is a good theatre. It, too, uses a large cast principally of men. And while it does not concern the Great War directly, it is influenced by that conflict—its principals were not untouched by that war —and, finally, it deals with what might heppen in the relations of our country with a close neighbor, even to the point of depicting a mobilization.

The play was produced in New York towards the close of the 1927 season and was received with wide critical acclaim. Because of the large cast required and the technical problems it has rarely been produced in stock or by amateur organizations so Winchester audiences have a unique opportunity offered them.

If "What Price Glory" debunked actual war by showing its seamy side, "Spread Eagle" tends to do the same thing for the preliminaries to war. This it does by means of a rightly knit and highly dramatic plot. But its more sympathetic than "What Price Glory" in that it does recognize that there are true motives in the lives of men.

"Spread Eagle" may best be described as satirical comedy but it is much more than that. Written, as so many worthwhile post-war plays have been, by newspaper men who "knew their onions" it has plausibility and a brevity and snap to its dialogue. The play moves at terrific pace. Although its language is by no means so strong as that of "What Price Glory" to which in several respects it may be compared, it still is forceful and breath-taking.

The plot is too interesting to deprive audiences of enjoyment by rehearsing it here. Suffice it to say that it starts in New York and introduces us to a tycoon and his daughter, an ex-army corporal now the tycoon's right-hand man, and his buddy, now a reporter, a Mexican General and the son of an ex-President of the United States. The scene moves to Mexico where we see the General at full of his powers leading a successful revolution which ultimately results in United States intervention. The third act is played in a United States mobilization camp in Mexico. The denouement is sudden and unexpected with a last line that it is safe to say audiences will never forget. In the unfolding of that plot there is ample opportunity for many intermediate dramatic situations and a very considerable number of laughs, an opportunity of which the dramatists have availed themselves to the full.

As has been said, such a play offers a number of technical difficulties to the stage crew. These were carefully considered and worked out before the play was selected and the post is confident that the problems will be well solved under the able direction of Harry Goodwin, although they are perhaps the most serious ever undertaken by an amateur group in Winchester. They will be described in greater detail in a later issue.

The play has a cast of 23 of which 20 are men and of these a great number of parts are interesting and important. To it the Legion has summoned and received the co-operation of a distinguished local group of amateurs. This group, whose names will be announced later, go into rehearsals at once, under the able direction of Alan Hay, long and favorably known for his work with the Amateurs of Brookline and the Little Theatre Under the Spire in Winchester.

Of the play, John Anderson, one of New York's most accomplished dramatic critics, said in part, "There is the impact of sanity in it and the sting of mordant humor . . . two deadly weapons fatal to the pomposity of the war lords. It suggests that a nation parading around with a chip on its shoulder is faintly funny. In the cool, ruthless and tremendously effective manipulation of this story there is a searching use of fresh material in the theatre . . . reporters turned dramatist leave the mandarins bereft of their last hope—that those who run can't read . . . 'Spread Eagle' is of that incorrigible breed. It blurts out in mirthless and it does so with calm savagery . . . it is not pacifist . . . out of its own vigor come the implication that war is foolish, stupid, wasteful and inept, but if honestly come by, honestly fought. Somewhere in its hot scorn and blazing anger there seems to be a remote compassion, a sort of vague salute to the thing which, gallant or ridiculous, but anyway tragical, makes men fight."

The committee in charge of the play, in addition to Donald Wauchi, who is general chairman, includes Harry Goodwin, Stafford Rogers, Clifford Towner, Forrest Pitman, Gerald Hills, Reveley Smith, Ralph Dana, John Burchard, Conrad Larson and past Commanders Kenneth Hall and Kingman P. Cass.

EN KA

On Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Frank Rounds of Central street opened her home for the mid-winter meeting of En Ka. This was the first business meeting which the provisional members have had an opportunity to enjoy, and was very well attended, about 60 members, both old and new, being present.

Plans were outlined for the Street Fair which En Ka will put on in the spring. This will be the first Street Fair in Winchester, and doubtless will create much community interest.

The Club's next activity is for Friday, March 1, and will be a repitition of last year's most successful open house bridge, when each member entertains in her own home at cards and tea.

Last Friday afternoon, Mrs. Kenneth Moffatt of Church street entertained the members of En Ka's Board at tea, following their regular business meeting.

EVENING STUDY GROUPS

There has been so much interest in the study of Scandinavia, under the auspices of the Winchester College Club, that the original evening group for husbands and wives has been divided alphabetically into two sections. On Monday evening, Jan. 14, the two sections met separately to organize the program of study, continuing with a joint meeting at Mr. and Mrs. Robert Drake's. Mr. Judson Cross spoke on, "The Danish Folk Schools and the Folk School at Brasstown, North Carolina."

WORLD WAR MOTHERS IN FIRST MEETING

Winchester Chapter of the World War Mothers will hold its first meeting on next Monday afternoon in the Legion Headquarters with the president, Mrs. Mary Carroll, presiding. The Chapter especially appreciates the courtesy of the Legion Post in extending the use of its Headquarters for these meetings.

The Chapter's deep regret in the passing of Mrs. A. Beatrice Thompson was expressed by Mrs. Carroll. Mrs. Thompson, instrumental in organizing the local chapter, was to have presided at its first meeting.

Monday's meeting will open at 2 o'clock, and will be followed by a whist in charge of Mrs. Mary DeMorris, the Chapter's Sergeant-at-Arms. The public is cordially invited to the whist and it is hoped that many will attend.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

Details have arrived concerning the "Cotton Dress Project" to which reference was made at the last meeting of the Winchester Highlands Unit of the Middlesex County Extension Service on Jan. 8.

This is to be very definitely a "construction" project and not a "lecture" course. It will require attendance at four meetings at least, preferably all day, though it is a question whether this can be managed and probably a fifth meeting.

The course will include selection, care, use and arrangement of sewing equipment; selection of materials; measurements; analysis, choice and alteration of patterns; cutting and fitting of dress; inner and outer finishes; and decorative details.

If anyone is interested to the extent of purchasing pattern, materials and actually constructing a dress, will you please get in touch with Mrs. Edward S. Winn, 232 Washington street, Win. 1908-M by Feb. 1. If a sufficient number of people are definitely interested to make it worthwhile, such a class will be formed. Otherwise this project will be omitted although the W. H. U. will continue its existence and resume its meetings when another project is offered.

If you do decide to join such a group you are advised to postpone buying any patterns or materials until after Lesson I.

At 2:30 p. m. on Feb. 14, at Carey Memorial Hall in Lexington, Mrs. Esther C. Page will hold an open meeting on this subject. All persons interested are invited.

FIREMEN ELECT

President John J. Gorman
Vice President Raymond Bansemn
Secretary Edward D. Fitzgerald
Treasurer Eugene S. Flaherty

Deputy Chief Gorman, in his election to the presidency, succeeds John McCarron who resigned after 16 years of continuous service. During the business meeting, it was voted to hold no ball this year.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

Eggs are somewhat cheaper due to slightly increased production. Butter too, is a bit less expensive as the recent high prices greatly curtailed buying. Meats continue to rise in price, particularly pork and hindquarter cuts of beef and lamb. Veal is reasonable and forequarter cuts of beef and lamb also.

Ducklings are attractively priced and fowl, roasting and frying chickens, have changed little in cost.

Grapefruit, navel oranges, and apples are the chief fresh fruits available and all are moderately priced. Potatoes, cabbage, kale, various greens and root vegetables are within the reach of modest budgets. Cuban grown tomatoes are in the bargain class.

Low Cost Dinner

Corned Beef Boiled Potatoes
Creamed Cabbage
Bread and Butter
Apple Pie
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

Baked Stuffed Shoulder of Lamb
Mashed Potatoes

DR. FRANCIS H. ROWLEY ADDRESSES WINCHESTER S. P. C. A. AUXILIARY

On Thursday, Jan. 10, the members and friends of the Winchester S. P. C. A. Auxiliary were the guests of Mrs. G. Russell Mann in her home at 17 Fenwick road. In spite of the stormy weather, a large number gathered to hear the distinguished speaker of the afternoon, Dr. Francis H. Rowley, who for the greater part of his life has been closely identified with the humane cause, and who during the past 25 years as president of the Massachusetts S. P. C. A. and the American Humane Education Society, has become widely known throughout the world as a leading authority on matters pertaining to animal welfare and protection.

Dr. Rowley's message was one of encouragement and optimism. We as humane workers must face the future with hope. Though there still remain thousands of abodes of cruelty and though the animal world is still enduring intolerable burdens of pain and injustice, we must think not in terms of years, but of centuries. It was only a little over 100 years ago that the first society for the prevention of cruelty to animals was founded, in one such society, in one land—England. Now there is scarcely a land that is without one or more societies for the protection of animals. A century ago scarcely any attention was paid to cruelties which now are almost universally condemned. Only in very backward countries are the brutalities of the bull fight permitted. In nearly every land laws now exist for the protection of our domestic animals.

What another 100 years will accomplish depends upon whether we do our duty as these other workers in the past century did theirs.

In speaking of the American Humane Education Society, Dr. Rowley said that it is doing a tremendous work through many field workers in this country and special representatives in foreign lands; reaching thousands of children and adults in churches, schools, colleges, parent-teachers associations, and other organizations. By means of its magazine, "Our Dumb Animals," which has a very wide circulation, and through bands of mercy and Junior Leagues, the Society is constantly widening the scope of its influence. Few people realize the international character of the work, which is shown by the large correspondence with foreign countries, and the quantities of literature and other supplies which go to China, Japan, India, South Africa, Bulgaria, Palestine, Turkey, Puerto Rico, the Philippines, and various other points. In ten foreign countries the American Humane Education Society has special representatives. Dr. Rowley said he felt that to build ones' life into such a tremendous work makes life indeed worth living.

Mrs. Edith Washburn Clarke brought greetings from the Boston Women's Auxiliary, and expressed thanks for the hospital dressings which we have sent in from time to time. Any further help we can render in this direction will be most acceptable as the doctors at the Angell Memorial Hospital use a great quantity and the shelves are constantly being emptied. There is scarcely a time when the hospital is not filled to capacity.

Both Mrs. Clarke and Dr. Rowley commended the Winchester Auxiliary for its growth and service, and assured us of their continued cooperation. They feel that we need a shelter here and Dr. Rowley hopes some Winchester citizen or group of citizens will give to the Auxiliary a piece of land for the purpose.

At the conclusion of the program a pleasant social hour afforded all an opportunity to meet Dr. Rowley and Mrs. Clarke. The hostess was assisted in serving by Miss Gladys Folts and Miss Margaret Winn.

The following new members were enrolled: Mrs. Charles S. Livingstone, Mrs. Hollis W. Nickerson, Mrs. Andrew P. Cornwall, Mrs. Alfred H. Hildreth, Mrs. Allen E. Boone, Mrs. Frank C. Doble, Mrs. Royal N. Hallowell, Mrs. Rebecca J. Moody.

FORMER WINCHESTER GIRL ENGAGED

Mr. and Mrs. Seymour B. Willett of Chestnut Hill, formerly of this town, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Willett, to John Miller Musser of St. Paul, Minn., son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton R. Musser of Muscatine, Ia.

Miss Willett was graduated from the Beaver Country Day School and from Sarah Lawrence College. She made her debut during the season of 1928-29, and is a member of the Junior League.

Mr. Musser prepared for college at Hotchkiss and was graduated in 1930 from Yale where he was a member of Alpha Delta Phi and the honorary senior society, Skull and Bones. He is now in business in St. Paul. An early summer wedding is planned.

THANKS POLICE FOR TRIBUTE TO FATHER

134 Water Street,
Boston Mass.,
Jan. 11, 1935

Chief of Police,
Winchester, Mass.
My Dear Sir:

I am writing you as I feel that it is the best way in which I could show the appreciation of both myself and mother for the although seemingly small tribute, yet to us one with a big meaning shown by one of your officers as the body of my father passed by him as he was directing traffic at Fletcher street today. Father was a Boston police officer and a native of Winchester. Winchester was always beloved by dad although many years have passed since he left town,—returning in death today.

Please may I express again our appreciation to the patrolman who stood at attention. If dad could only know that his old town still remembered him. This is not the only time the Winchester Police Department has shown its efficiency. About a year ago, I needed to get in touch with relatives (namely John Winchester). They having no phone at the time, your department located them for us. I, having been a patrolman myself, know that the department is called on to do all sorts of jobs where no thanks are ever received. The public seem to take their work for granted. But many times a word of gratitude said to my dad was thoughtfully received. And it is in this feeling that I want you and the patrolman to accept our gratitude.

WINCHESTER MAN PREDICTS GOOD FURNITURE YEAR

Mr. Fred W. Aseltine of Cabot street, widely known to the furniture trade and president of Hill & Welch Company of Lynn, says that the furniture merchants are anticipating better business in the year 1935 than at any time since 1929.

As he was leaving to attend the semi-annual furniture exposition at Chicago and Grand Rapids, Mich., Mr. Aseltine gave out the following statement:

"Probably the best of the government's activities from the furniture point of view is the federal housing program. While furniture is not included under government loans, all new home construction and all modernization means new home furnishings. It is inevitable that there will be increased demand for furniture, floor coverings, decorative accessories and bedding. Shabby old pieces simply will not fit into shining new rooms. In general, furniture manufacturers are bringing out more interesting designs for the coming market than they have at any time since the depression got under way."

MT. HOLYOKE BOOK TALKS

OBSERVATIONS

By the Observer

of us become round shouldered carrying the burdens of our fellowmen.

Fable: He failed at everything he tried, but his mother-in-law remained loyal and uncritical.

That fellow here in Winchester who thinks he is a mechanic is mistaken. The other day he fixed a spark plug without getting grease on the steering wheel.

How many old timers in fair Winchester remember when gas lights were used in some of the best homes?

Believe it or not, some people here in Winchester who have common sense evidently think it is too common to use.

According to a Winchester fellow who usually knows what he is talking about when one is driven to drink he usually has to walk back.

There are said to be only four persons in the world who understand the Einstein theory and we hope if we ever meet one of them here in fair Winchester, he will not undertake to explain the theory to us.

Star Reader wants us to tell all the world that he is proud of his life-long residence in Winchester and that there is no better community in all the land. To which we say "Amen."

How many old timers here in Winchester remember when on every chair in the parlor was a "tidy."

And when all tubs, buckets, churns, vats, etc. were made of wooden staves, with hoops around them?

If the average Winchesterite doesn't get all that is coming to him he can call himself a very fortunate fellow indeed.

There is no room in fair Winchester for lazy men. A man might as well be dead as lazy—he takes up less room.

The smart fellow knows when to quit the game, but the fool keeps everlastingly at it until he advertises his failure.

Both in and out of the homes of Winchester there is a crying need for the development of a more alert "fire consciousness." Regardless of the fact that we have one of the most efficient fire fighting organizations of any town of equal size (and an organization superior to many larger towns) our people must always have an alert appreciation of the danger of fires and the need of all possible care in avoiding conditions that cause fire.

Most people in and out of Winchester certainly do not need a trouble light in order to find trouble.

It is a fact that some people in this town think they are entitled to a lot of credit for doing as they please.

An adequate catalogue of the needless noises even in a community of Winchester's size would fill a column in the Star.

BARTLETT—WINN

At a pretty candlelight ceremony, last Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. Mary L. Winn, 18 Elmwood avenue, her daughter, Miss Margaret D. Winn, was united in marriage to Mr. Lewis Bartlett of Haverhill, and Newton, N. H. Rev. Alice Bigley Snow, pastor of the Payson Park Congregational Church, Belmont, performed the ceremony and the couple were attended by Miss Gladys M. Folts of this town and Mr. Ralph Bartlett of Newton, N. H., brother of the groom.

The residence was most attractive in decorations of green and yellow chrysanthemums and snapdragons, and the couple were married standing between two miniature pine trees, with a background of pine and spruce.

The bride wore a traveling costume and carried bride's roses, her brides-maid wearing green and carrying Talisman roses. The ceremony was witnessed only by intimate relatives of the two families.

Mrs. Bartlett is well known among Winchester's young people. She graduated from the Winchester schools, and from the Gordon School, Boston; Fitchburg Normal School and Boston University. She taught school in Falmouth and also in South Carolina, after which she spent several years teaching in China. More recently she had been acting as instructor in the schools of Wilmington. Mr. Bartlett is a traffic transportation agent.

The couple will make their future residence in Haverhill.

HEATING HINTS .. by John Barclay

DO YOU know that the greatest waste in connection with home heating is what heating experts call "Chimney Loss"—the heat wasted up the chimney?

It is a simple matter to reduce this loss to an absolute minimum by using a little care in adjusting the Turn Damper—(that disc or plate-like damper inside the smoke pipe). Let me explain how this is done:

The next time you fix the fire, move the handle of the Turn Damper 1/16th of an inch toward the closed upright position. If the fire continues to burn freely, turn it another sixteenth of an inch. Repeat this operation until you find the ideal adjustment that will give you the greatest amount of useful heat with the minimum of chimney loss. Then take a piece of chalk and mark this position on the smoke pipe and leave the damper there.

Remember, the nearer the Turn Damper is to the closed position the smaller the chimney loss. (7)

BELMONT SET BACK WINCHESTER

The locals seemed to be in a thick fog when the game started and the visitors ran up 17 points before Winchester was able to tally.

Once the home team did start, it made a great rally and the score was 19—16 at the half in Belmont's favor. During the remainder of the game, play was much more even, but the visiters were able slightly to increase their first half edge.

Provinzano was again Winchester's best scorer with 11 points, but was edged for individual honors by Johnson, visiting left forward who rolled up 15. Between the halves the Winchester seconds defeated the Belmont seconds, 21—14.

Last Friday was a bad basketball day for Winchester High, in addition to the boys' defeat at the hands of Belmont, the girls' team losing to Melrose High girls at Melrose, by the close score of 14—12.

It was anybody's game, Melrose's edge in two-point baskets being the deciding factor. Between the halves of the first team game, the Winchester seconds won from the Melrose seconds, 25—13.

WOBURN HERE TONIGHT

The high school gymnasium will not be large enough tonight to hold all who will want to see the annual basketball game between Winchester and Woburn High Schools, a meeting in any line of sport between these old rivals never failing to pack them in.

Woburn is undefeated this season and last year it wasn't until after its regular schedule had been completed that the Tanners dropped a game.

Winchester, on the other hand, has been none too good this year, after tying for the Middlesex League crown a year ago. On paper, Woburn should win rather handily, and will do just that if the local boys wait until half way through the game to play ball.

First and second team games will be played, the opening contest going on at 7:30. You'll have to get there considerably before this hour to get a seat and at least by 7:30 to get in at all, if history repeats itself.

NEW EXPEDITION TO STRATOSPHERE IN HUGE BALLOON

Another expedition into the stratosphere early next summer in a balloon of three million or more cubic-foot capacity, under the joint auspices of the National Geographic Society and the U. S. Army Air Corps has been announced by Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, President of the National Geographic Society. As in the case of the expedition last summer, in the Explorer, the Geographic Society will assume the major portion of the expenses and will manage the details of the project, while the Army Air Corps, with the full approval of the War Department, will supply the flying officers and will direct the technique of the flight.

Problem of Torn Fabric Solved

Capt. Albert W. Stevens, scientific observer and internationally famous aerial photographer, will be in command of the balloon, which will be piloted by Capt. Orvil A. Anderson. Both officers made the flight of last July to an altitude of 15½ miles above sea level. Major William E. Kepner, who commanded the 1934 flight and who, with Captain Stevens and Captain Anderson, stuck to the disabled Explorer until after it exploded, will be unable to take part in the new expedition because of the continued assignment of important duties in the Army Air Corps.

First Lieutenant Randolph P. Williams, Langley Field, Va., will probably be assigned to have charge of ground operations for the flight.

The decision again to send observers and scientific instruments into the stratosphere by means of a large balloon, says Dr. Grosvenor's statement, was reached after careful consideration by the Board of Trustees and officers of the Society, and the Advisory Board of Scientists who assisted in last summer's flight. This decision was concurred in by the War Department as to the Air Corps' participation. In arriving at this decision the officials had before them data showing increasing salvage of the automatic records made during the 1934 flight, and a report from a special committee clarifying the problem of the torn bottom fabric of the Explorer and outlining methods for preventing a repetition of the accident.

Will Rise from Black Hills

It was found after careful examination and tests by the special committee, working with the assistance of the United States Bureau of Standards, that the tear in the under fabric resulted from a sticking of that fabric when it was folded partly up into the main bag of the balloon. The committee was of the opinion that the occurrence of the accident to the Explorer, as much as it is to be regretted, has made possible the solving of problems in the handling of large balloons that will be of great value in all future flights. In the National Geographic Society—U. S. Army Air Corps flight of 1935 full advantage will be taken of the lessons learned during the previous flight.

A continuation of the explorations in the high regions of the atmosphere is considered important and desirable to check and test data already obtained, to make additional photographic studies, to bring back samples of stratosphere air, and to make certain other new scientific studies. The expedition will place special emphasis on information that can be obtained only from a manned balloon capable of lifting standard laboratory instruments.

The flight of next summer will be made from the same place as that of 1934, a protected basin in the Black Hills eleven miles southwest of Rapid City, South Dakota. The equipment for the flight will be made available at an earlier date than last year and it is hoped, it was said at National Geographic Society headquarters, that the ascent can be made during the first part of June.

COLLEGE CLUB NEWS

The first meeting of the Morning Study Group of the College Club was held on Thursday, Jan. 10 in the auditorium of the Winchester Public Library.

The speaker of the morning was Dr. Caesarea Goduco, a young woman of unusual charm and accomplishment and a fellow in mental hygiene in the Boston Psychopathic Hospital. A physician herself, and the head of the women's division in one of the large prisons in the Philippines, she was able to give us very interesting and authoritative information about the customs and status of the women in her country.

The Philippine Islands, 7000 in number and comprising 115,000 square miles, were occupied by the Spanish more than 300 years ago and during this time, much of the Spanish civilization has been assimulated. More Spanish than American or Oriental, the influence of all three are evident in their customs, government and family life. The Islands are 90 per cent Catholic and Spanish is the social language, although English is taught in the public schools and is being more and more used in official circles.

Dr. Goduco, after study and observation in this country, is still unconvinced that western freedom and political suffrage for women is to be desired and she no doubt voices the opinion of a majority of the Philippine women, for when the question of woman suffrage came up in the constitutional convention this past year, it was rejected.

The women lead the sheltered secluded life of the Oriental woman, although the majority of them finish high school and 20 per cent of the graduates go to college. Very few women enter upon a professional career, for there is a keen division of work between men and women. What is outside of the home is the man's sphere, but all social functions are managed by the woman. She also holds the purse and decides how all the money is to be spent. There are no divorces and the home is the center of woman's affection and interest. The parents and old people are venerated and the woman finds self-expression through music, embroidery and the domestic arts. Dr. Goduco says that this simple outlook on life accounts for the very few psychopathic and nervous cases that they have to cope with.

At the next meeting of the Morning Study Group, on Thursday, Jan. 24 at the Public Library, Mrs. Elena Craver will speak on Bulgaria. The subject for the year is the status of women of foreign countries. Interesting speakers, all natives of the countries which are being studied, have been secured and the course promises to be extremely interesting. Further information may be obtained from Mrs. Frank Gunby, 12 Manchester road, tel. Win. 1223.

The New G-E Dishwasher Cuts Dish-washing Time to Less Than 5 Minutes

The new, perfected General Electric Dishwasher eliminates the wasteful, time consuming drudgery of "doing the dishes". All the dishes are stacked in its rubber trays as easily as in the sink—the cover is closed, a magic control is turned—and in less than 5 minutes the job is done. China, glassware silverware, pots and pans, too, are sparkling clean.

No Chipping — No Breakage

The chipping and breakage of glass and chinaware—always a penalty of hand dishwashing—is eliminated. Dishes are held stationary in soft, resilient rubber trays. A spray of scalding water is forced over every dish, cleaning even the hard to clean utensils such as egg beaters, graters, etc. The G-E Dishwasher also cleans and dries itself—human hands do not even touch dishwater.

Both you and your maid will love this modern electric servant. It releases an hour or more every day for other things. Stacks of dirty dishes no longer clutter up the kitchen. As the used dishes accumulate they are tucked away out of sight in the G-E Dishwasher and all quickly washed at one time. Your kitchen is always clean, neat and tidy.

Dishes Are Hygienically Clean

The health of yourself and family is protected. No matter how carefully tableware is washed by hand, germs and bacteria are not destroyed in luke warm water. They lurk in the unsanitary dishrag and drying cloth—and even on china and glasses that appear clean to the eye. The G-E Dishwasher destroys these germs and bacteria through the use of scalding water far hotter than human hands can touch, protecting your family from the dangers of bacteria laden hand-washed dishes.

There is a size and model G-E Dishwasher for every kitchen.

Terms as low as $10 per month.

Costs Less Than 1c a Day

The current cost to operate the new G-E Dishwasher is less than 1c a day. Its savings in time alone make it a thrifty investment, but in addition it will prove surprisingly economical in its savings in breakage, in soap, laundry and water-heating bills.

Movies, it is reported, will be a burning issue at our coming town meeting, the promotor, so it is said, having succeeded in introducing an article for his theatre into the warrant. Winchester will, therefore, again go to the ballot over this important question. Just how important it is, aside from those who expect to make money out of the town, may be questioned. Thus far the citizens of Winchester seem to have existed and thrived without movies, and doubtless the average resident, with nothing to gain other than the privilege of attending the show, has little interest in the matter. He may, however, have a serious interest in the progress of such a theatre, should one be built. The promotor who has "fought along this line if it takes a century" evidently holds no fear of any supervision by the Town, once his first battle to gain a responsive vote is won. His selected site should be the place movies are to be shown and he is to be the man to show them. On the other hand, while other movie magnates have been content to let Winchester go its own way and have movies or not, they may have a decided interest in who is going to have them. And still further, there may be some citizens in Winchester who have their own idea as to where a movie house should not be placed. There are some people who may not want their children passing to and from Bay and Sunday School by a movie house. There may be a few optimistic souls who can picture a thronged movie house, who think Thompson street is sufficiently congested with autos already. There may still be a few more who have their doubts of the success of the venture and who in fear their opinion may be vindicated had rather not have such a monument on our principal street. The biggest bid for movies in Winchester was made years ago by George Adams Woods. He satisfied many people here over questions of location, conduct and pictures, but when it came to financing the project he failed to find a sufficient number of Winchester people who considered the venture promising enough to invest in it. The big theatres in Malden, twenty minutes from Winchester and drawing upon a large territory for patronage and showing pictures equal to many Boston theatres, do not hesitate to offer souvenirs and outside attractions to swell their patronage. The fine Capitol Theatre in Arlington, drawing patronage from a territory far larger than Winchester could ever hope to acquire, likewise holds forth many inducements to draw a larger patronage. Winchester people would do well to consider all phases of the situation. If the movie concession in Winchester is valuable enough to cause votes and referendums, why not classify it with other valuable grants, and see what can be done to benefit the Town as a whole. If we have such a valuable asset available, why not cash in on it; if we do not wish to hold it for posterity? This movie business may bear looking into. Why is it a promotor should, after negative votes, persist in attempting this experiment. Can he, like our reigning President, tell us a year hence to look back and see if we are any worse off than we are today? Surely there must be a number of sites available for movies in Winchester. And yet cheerful confidence prompts our petitioner to buy his site and draw his theatre plans. He evidently has plenty of assurance of success! A movie house in Winchester, good, bad or indifferent, is always with us once it is erected. As far as promises go, we have seen enough of them in high quarters during the past few years to rate them exactly as they are worth—not much. But if we, within twenty minutes ride of at least eight movie theatres, have such a valuable concession right in our midst, it behoves us all to go slow and not follow today's lead in experimenting.

ALMOST COMPELLED TO ADMIT DEFEAT

We asked some questions through the Star a few weeks ago, and in later editions we received some answers, but it remained for Citizen Craughwell to give us a real surprise.

From modern times in these present years, we were carried back so fast and so far, we were almost compelled to admit defeat.

Winchester, the Athens of America. The comparison is unusual, and we hope the citizen will explain to us more fully. We have done our best to realize some similarities, but am afraid it is beyond our vision. We do remember one point, and that had to do with Modern Athens. Railroads were built to pass through the center of the town, and also through the principal streets. All these things we have although with the exception of the cream fined Boston & Maine, our highway department has given the other rails a decent burial.

We agree that the stars in the sky are beautiful, but don't you think if these were our only pleasures, we would be a nation of stiff necks?

Back to 1935 again. We didn't suppose there was a living person in Winchester or any other town, enjoying good health, but who had visited a movie at one time or other, nor could we imagine anyone writing either for or against a subject if they had failed to have some first hand information.

Mr. Craughwell, the movies are not as bad as they are painted, and you can enjoy some high class entertainment for a comparative small fee. Also, regardless of the source of your information, the movies do show some fine educational pictures.

Every subject has its two sides, good and not so good, and frankly the movies were putting out some pictures we could well do without, but with some precautionary measures already taken we will find cleaner and even better pictures.

Yours very truly,
R. P. Teele

ROTARY CLUB NOTES

The record shows three members absent from the meeting of Jan. 17, which was not a bad turnout to welcome the heaviest snowfall of the season.

The last week of this month, January, has been designated as "Rotarian Magazine Week" during which many clubs will present features that bring attention to the value of our great magazine as it interprets Rotary to the world at large as well as to members of our great order.

Obviously this "Rotarian" is a tremendous undertaking. Magazines of out-standing merit with appeals to every conceivable human requirement penetrate all civilized communities. To achieve an honorable position in this broad and highly cultivated field it is necessary for a magazine to present the product of the best minds at its command, indeed of minds that command the respect of its prospective readers. A physical set-up, modern and attractive? Yes! Contributors of prominence with a message and the ability to carry it to their readers? Certainly! An editorial staff of prophetic vision and the executive capacity to secure the greatest possible acceptance of their publication? By all means! A reading clientele of discrimination eager to receive and ponder on the offerings which their magazine affords? To be sure!

All of these privileges are enjoyed by the "Rotarian." And all these privileges would avail it little did it fail to promote the principles and enlarge the horizon of Rotary itself. When from its pages the reader culls a thought which inspires him to self-sacrifice for the good of his brotherman; when in its perusal that reader or another can glimpse that all pervading human sympathy which eradicates national boundaries and confounds the mightiest tyrant; when again one can be assured as he reads, that Rotary stands as the champion of Right as opposed to Wrong, that unquenchable spark inborn in the soul of man and consecrated on Calvary; then indeed is the "Rotarian" worth while, then does it fulfill its destiny.

We Rotarians who have become acquainted with our splendid magazine believe that it deserves this. We shall continue our loyal support of the "Rotarian," and cheerfully do our bit to maintain its splendid record and enlarge its usefulness whenever possible.

At our regular meeting of Jan. 24, there is going to be a special feature that no member can afford to miss, a feature requiring the services of a special committee to care for its complicated details. But why not learn all about it at first hand? It is your privilege. Bear in mind this notice.

HOCKEY RINK IN PROCESS OF CONSTRUCTION

Work on Winchester's modern hockey rink got underway early last Wednesday morning at the town barns, under the direction of Supt. Thomas McGowan of the Park Department.

This rink, which has been under consideration for some time, became a reality about a week ago when the Park Board made the final decision and started the ball rolling by ordering the necessary lumber.

The next step toward putting Winchester on the hockey map consisted of Mr. McGowan's trip to Bullough's Pond, Newton, the scene of one of the most up-to-date and capably-managed rinks in Greater Boston.

Mr. McGowan talked it over with Dean Ernest Berman, head of the Newton Park Department and Foreman Nazarro and together they went over the equipment and methods which have been used with such success in Newton for many years.

The Park Department has been putting special emphasis on two ice surfaces—one, Winter Pond, and the other the swimming place at Leonard Field. The rink is being constructed in 12-foot sections so that it is easily transportable and the chances are that it may be moved about as weather conditions make it necessary.

For the time being, Mr. McGowan has the use of a gasoline pump which has sufficient power to do a fairly good job at resurfacing although the obvious need of the Department is a planer for which at least $200 is required.

Mr. McGowan and his men are well-equipped with scoops and scrapers and intend to keep the surface in as good condition as is humanly and financially possible. Limited to four men at present, the Park crew will be hard put to clear the ice after a storm and it is hoped that it will be possible to expand the group a bit when snow falls.

Figuring on approximately four major storms per season and 12 extra shovel wielders to a storm, an appropriation of a hundred dollars would go far toward making the ice skatable in any freezing weather.

It has seemed wise to the Fifty Fathers of Newton to discard the system of free skating for its residents and already the convenient sum of $1700 has been gathered into the City's coffers from the sale of 25-cent identification buttons which enabled residents to skate on well-kept ice throughout the season. Non-residents may join a rink for a seasonal fee of $1 and occasional visitors may skate for a quarter a session.

There has always been considerable hockey interest in the town and during the past few years it has culminated in several informal teams. An unofficial high school team gave a fairly good account of itself last season and this year "Frannie" Felt is the instigator of an up and coming club which has already engaged in a number of outside tilts.

Reservations may be made by various groups for the use of the rink—and a large open area will also be provided for general skating.

Winchester is one of a good many towns in this section which has finally become ice conscious. There can be few more healthful forms of recreation whereby so large a group of persons can enjoy themselves with the entilment of so little expense to the town.

SOMERVILLE TOURNAMENT

Winchester was well represented in the Greater Boston Ping Pong tournament, sponsored by the Somerville Ping Pong Club and the American Ping Pong Association, held last Friday and Saturday at the Western Junior High School in Somerville, with a dozen local players taking part. Although the tournament drew players from a comparatively small area, some of New England's best players were entered.

The dark horse of the whole tournament was "Gus" Pistorino of this town. Although he is a player of acknowledged ability, it was somewhat of a surprise when "Gus" breezed through the first three rounds and beat E. Holden, a rated Massachusetts player, in a five game match in the quarter finals, only to be put out by Julian Weiss, who eventually won the tournament, in the next round.

"Dick" Leghorn, Winchester's No. 1 player, had a bad night and was put out in the fourth round by J. Rodensky.

Other Winchester entries in the men's singles were: "Tod" Dissell, Dr. E. R. Priest, Dr. Robert Blackler, J. A. Riley, Carroll Hilton and Paul Eaton. Dissell, Blackler, Riley and Hilton survived the first round, but all were put out in the second.

In the mens doubles, Hilton and Eaton were eliminated in the third round and Leghorn and Dissel were put out in the second.

Mrs. Robert Blackler, Mrs. E. R. Priest and Miss June Eaton entered the women's singles. Mrs. Blackler and Mrs. Priest both went to the second round before they were eliminated.

Town Ping Pong

The past week has brought few changes in the standings of the two leagues of the Winchester Ping Pong Club, the Somerville tournament taking a good part of the player's time. A few more entries are still needed to complete a league and those interested are asked to call Paul Eaton, Win. 2275.

A league for women under the direction of Mrs. Lawrence Sibley has been organized and a few matches have been played.

Metropolitan League

The first half of the season for the Metropolitan Ping Pong League has just come to a close. The league is composed of three divisions. Winchester has a team in both the B and C Divisions and both these teams held their own in the first lap of the year. The standings are as follows:

Winchester's entry in B Division includes Hector Cyr, Paul Eaton, Carroll Hilton and J. A. Riley. The C Division team is made up of Richard Leghorn, Laurence Sibley, Leon Hughes and Donald Gardner. "Ray" Hayward, Dr. Blackler, Dr Priest and "Gus" Pistorino are substitutes for both teams.

The C Division team hopes to clean up this next half Monday night. They beat Somerville, first half winners, 10—0. Next week they play the Burrough Newboys.

NOTES FROM WASHINGTON

Congressman Edith Nourse Rogers of this district is now in Washington attending the sessions of Congress, which convened on Jan. 3. She retains the same committee assignments as in the last Congress, which are: Foreign Affairs, Civil Service, and World War Veterans Legislation. On the last-named committee, Mrs. Rogers is the ranking minority member, and in the event of a change in the political complexion of Congress, would be in line for the chairmanship.

While the President has refused consistently to "earmark' any of the money he has asked for in his $4,000,000,000 work program, Congressman Rogers asked him, this week, to allot a portion of this to the completion of Fort Devens at Ayer. Under the plans, approved by the War Department, work would be given to 2000 civilian workers for one year. Mrs. Rogers pointed out to the President that such a project would not interfere with private enterprise and would relieve, to a great extent, the unemployment situation of this district. This work must be done, therefore, it is not an added expense to the taxpayer.

At a conference with President Roosevelt on Tuesday morning, Congressman Rogers took up the matter of the $200,000 cut in the appropriation for the Foreign Service. She protested against this reduction, pointing out that in foreign countries nationalism is now at its height, while our Foreign Service is truly the eyes of our defense and we look to them for the first news of rumblings abroad.

Congressman Rogers has introduced in Congress a bill calling for an increase in the rate of pension to be paid to widows and orphans of World War veterans who died of disabilities incurred in service. Under the existing regulations, such beneficiaries now receive $30 per month. Her bill calls for $60 a month, which is the same rate as that paid by the Canadian Government. The Congressman feels that no one can object to our Government paying as much as Canada does to the dependents of veterans who died as a result of their actual wartime service.

Although the Public Works Administration has not yet received additional allotment of funds for allocation to Federal and State projects, Congressman Rogers has continued to urge consideration of the project for the purification of the Merrimack River and the disposal of sewage. She first took up this matter early in December and has urged the sponsors to complete the plans and have all in readiness for submittal to the P. W. A. when such funds become available. The project not only affects Lowell, but many other towns and cities which border the Merrimack River.

WINCHESTER GIRL RANKED BY U. S. L. T. A.

Seven years ago Louise Packer put Winchester on the tennis map in indelible letters by winning a National "first ten" rating—the first of its kind for any local racket wielder. This was in 1928 and Louise, who was captain of the high school team that year, stood eighth on the list of the country's most proficient junior players.

In 1930, Helen Bidwell and Mary Cutter added considerably to the town's rapidly growing reputation as a tennis center, by respective National rankings of nine and ten. Mary Cutter was No. 11 in 1931.

Last week when the U. S. L. T. A came out with its list for 1934, Sylvia Hatch was ranked in both singles and doubles. In singles, she was ranked number eight, ahead of Helen Grawn of Grosse Point, Mich., National girl champion in 1932. In combination with Newton's Elena Ciccone, Sylvia had a ranking of number four in doubles.

OLD RELIC RESCUED

There is on view in the window of the Star Office an interesting old relic and landmark of Winchester's early days. It is the once golden bell which since 1877 marked the Winchester Highland Railroad Station, the only privately owned station so far as is known on the Southern Division of the Boston & Maine Railroad. The old bell, which had survived the years as an ornament at the peak of the station, blew down in the big gale of a fortnight ago and was rescued by Mr. John A. McLean of 4 Kenwin road, an employee of the Railroad. It is through his courtesy that this interesting relic is shown at the Star Office. He plans to present it to the Town.

According to historical record Aaron C. Bell came to this town in 1864. At that time there were 14 houses in what is known as North Winchester, and the old Boston & Lowell Railroad had provided for its patrons at that place a simple open shed. Mr. Bell engaged in the real estate business and built himself a home on Forest street. He served on the Board of Assessors for three years and then as Collector of Taxes, serving in this capacity for many years, and in addition held numerous other town offices.

There had been some agitation for a station at the Highlands, and as the town grew in population, Mr. Bell consulted with the Railroad and secured a permit to erect the station on land purchased of Eli Cooper, who was engineer of the first locomotive that ran over the Boston & Lowell Railroad. The building was dedicated in the fall of 1876 with much ceremony, amid great rejoicing by the town fathers and some 300 residents, among the number being Patrick Holland, who assisted in building the railroad in 1833.

Mr. Bell not only furnished the station, but the agent as well, George W. Richardson being the first agent and holding the position about ten years. Pride in his achievement and the fact that he conducted his real estate business in the old station, led Mr. Bell to erect the unique sign at the peak of the building, it being particularly appropriate as a symbol of his name and the fact that the building had been erected in 1876. From that time until a few days ago, it had weathered the storms of years, well gilded and bright during Mr. Bell's liftime, but weatherbeaten and shabby now.

There are still a number of old Winchester residents who remember Aaron C. Bell, and in his day he did much to develop the town. It was through his efforts, it is said, that the McKay factory was built here, and he was the town's one and only really estate dealer. His old signs, large and ornamental, which greeted passengers on alighting at the Center and at the Highland Stations were a real work of art. Identical in wording, we reproduce them here:

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "My son, attend to my words; incline thine ear unto my sayings. Let them not depart from thine eyes; keep them in the midst of thine heart. . . . Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life" (Proverbs 4:20, 21, 23).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "We all must learn that life is God. Ask yourself: Am I living the life that approaches the supreme good? am I demonstrating the healing power of Truth and Love? If so, then the way will grow brighter unto the perfect day. Your truest sense of what the understanding of God brings to man" (p. 496).

WINCHESTER BADMINTON CLUB

The Winchester Badminton Club won three of its four matches in its recent encounter with the Neighborhood Club of Waban which was played at Waban on Jan. 8.

The scores were as follows:

Powell and Williams, Waban, vs Wood and Bartlett, Winchester, 15—18, 15—2, 15—12.

Palmer and Wallace, Winchester, vs Cochran and Molloy, Waban, 15—5, 15—4.

Wheeler and Chaves, Winchester, vs Arrowsmith and Bell, Waban, 15—10, 15—10.

Wood and Wallace, Winchester, vs Williams and Mecheboro, Waban, 15—7, 11—18, 17—6.

On Jan. 15, a match was played with the Tedesco Country Club of Swampscott on the local courts, the result being that Tedesco won three of the matches and Winchester, one.

The results of this match were as follows:

Bogardus and Vrendenburgh, Tedesco, vs Wood and Bartlett, Winchester, 15—6, 15—2.

Keiser and Atherton, Tedesco, vs Tozier and Wallace, Winchester, 15—7, 15—12.

Macrane and Langmaid, Tedesco, vs Wheeler and Chaves, Winchester, 15—11, 15—10.

Palmer and Wallace, Winchester, vs Bardet and Bly, Tedesco, 15—5, 15—13.

The outstanding play of the local club was that of "Larry" Palmer, who played an excellent game. He first took up Badminton last fall and his natural aptitude for the game has made him the most promising member of the local club.

The Tedesco Club has several very fast teams and is making rapid progress towards first place in its division of the Suburban League. Badminton has become very popular at Tedesco, where about two years ago an addition was made to the Country Club exclusively for this sport. Considerable enthusiasm has been aroused and in response to the demand of the numerous members who are now playing Badminton a professional coach has been engaged.

The next match of the Winchester Club will be played with Watertown on the local courts next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. Watertown has a fast team and it is expected that an interesting match will result. Spectators are invited to the match and an invitation is extended to the residents of the town to visit the courts and try out the game at any time.

"THE WHITE PARADE" AT THE UNIVERSITY

Described as one of the most human and dramatic screen stories of the year, "The White Parade," will be seen at the University Theatre for four days starting Sunday. Loretta Young and John Boles play the leading roles in this of all films to deal with the student nurse—her training with the student nurse and her happidays, her heart aches and her happiness in service. To judge from advance accounts, the picture sets a new high for faithfulness to life and for discovering heart throbs, pathos and laughter in the most realistic of material.

"Peck's Bad Boy," suggested by the famous "Peck's Bad Boy" stories that delighted readers a generation ago, is the companion feature. Jackie Cooper and Thomas Meighan head the cast.

Greta Garbo's picture, "The Painted Veil" starts Thursday. The new film based on Somerset Maugham's novel, provides Garbo with one of the most colorful portrayals of her astounding screen career. The story opens in a provincial family setting in Austria and rises to great dramatic heights in the plague-infested regions of China. The supporting cast includes Herbert Marshall, George Brent, Warner Oland, Jean Hersholt, Beulah Bondi, Katharine Alexander, Cecilia Parker and Forester Harvey.

"It's A Gift," the companion feature starring W. C. Fields, presents the droll genius of comedy in a story that fits his peculiar talents better than anything we have seen to date. Supported by Baby LeRoy, who has learned to talk, Kathleen Howard, Jean Rouverol, Julian Madison and Tammany Young, Fields has incorporated the best of his hysterical gags and some of his funniest routines into this picture.

MYSTIC THEATRE MALDEN ATTRACTIONS

One of the outstanding musical films of the season opens Saturday, Jan. 19, at the Mystic Theatre, Malden. "Music in the Air" combines magnitude with uproarious comedy, tender romance with a magnificent musical score. Gloria Swanson, returning to pictures after a two years' absence, turns in a performance which will astonish even her most ardent fans. Opposite her in the role of a light opera tenor is that popular screen idol with the golden voice, John Boles. Douglass Montgomery and June Lang also have important roles as two young lovers.

The second feature on the Mystic double bill this coming week will be "Men of the Night," a colorful and exceedingly romantic film featuring Bruce Cabot and Judith Allen. Based on the problems of one of the 5000 girls who go to Hollywood annually from all sections of the country in the hope of becoming a motion picture stars, it blends comedy, romance and excitement into a story that is a series of thrills from beginning to end.

On Wednesday nights, the Mystic is presenting something new and different in the way of screen entertainment in Tango. This is a game played like bingo. Everybody plays free and the theatre is giving 25 valuable prizes to the winners each tango night.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

Greta Garbo in, "The Painted Veil" and Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey in "Kentucky Kernels" is the program opening a seven day run at the big Granada Theatre in Malden on Saturday. "The Painted Veil" is a screen version of the novel by Somerset Maugham with Garbo cast as the eldest daughter of an Austrian professor who, refusing to marry the man picked out by her parents, arouses her mother's ire. To escape her unpleasant surroundings she marries a doctor Fane, a young medical student. The bride and groom go to China where the husband neglects his wife to devote all his time to his work. The wife, lonely and yearning for love, believes she finds it when she meets an Englishman, played by George Brent. The husband discovers the affair but refuses to give her a divorce knowing that it is just another affair with Brent. Brent soon shows his true colors and the story rises to great dramatic heights during a native riot and destruction of a plagued city by fire, during which Garbo, and Herbert Marshall as the husband, contribute the finest performances of their respective careers. Warner Oland, Jean Hersholt, Beaulah Bondi and Cecelia Parker head the support.

Wheeler and Woolsey are said to reach the heights of comedy in "Kentucky Kernels." The nonsensical story concerns the comies' introduction into a feud when they deliver their orphan ward to his relatives in a Southern estate, which he suddenly inherits. The comedy swells to side-splitting proportions when Wheeler courts the opposing clan leader's daughter and Woolsey essays the role of arbitrater between the warring factions. Mary Carlisle, Noah Beery and "Spanky" MacFarland head the comedy supporting cast.

KHANKA: MANCHUTIKUO'S GREAT LAKE

Where is Lake Khanka?

Navigation on the lake was one of the subjects discussed by the recent Russo-Japanese Parley, called to consider the navigation rights of the two countries on waterways common to Manchutikuo and adjoining territory of the Soviet Union.

Lake Khanka, Hanka, Khinka or Chanka—it is known to travelers by one of these names depending upon the guidebook or map used—lies about midway of the eastern border of Manchutikuo in the same latitude as Portland, Oregon, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Frequently Overflows Banks

Practically the size of the State of Rhode Island, the lake is, roughly, shaped like a human head facing westward toward the city of Harbin. Because it is the only large body of water in this region of Asia, the lake long has awed natives who live on and near its banks. Normally it is relatively shallow, 30 to 35 feet at the deepest, and in many places scarcely more than 12 inches deep a half-mile from shore.

During summer rains, however, Khanka spills over its banks, flooding surrounding low-lying areas. When the high winds whip the expanded waters the lake then resembles a great inland sea. It was, perhaps, during one of the great floods that Khanka got its name. "Khan-Kai" is Chinese for "inland sea." "Khanka" is a Russian modification of the name.

Lake Khanka has been important to the natives near its banks for centuries by furnishing them a means of communication in small boats but it has been more valuable for its fisheries. One early writer stated that fish were so numerous that they could be taken from the water with bare hands. The same writer asserted that fish were so abundant in the lake that an observer, sitting on the shore, could hear the dull murmur of their fins as they moved through the water.

Amur River Is Busy Stream

The recent Russo-Japanese Parley, in addition to considering Lake Khanka, discussed navigation problems of the two countries on the Amur, Argun, Ussuri, and Sungari Rivers, each of which borders on or penetrates the new Manchutikuo State.

The Amur, one of the largest streams in northern Asia, forms the entire northern border of Manchutikuo. Twenty-nine hundred miles in length with about 2000 miles of navigable water, it flows from the hills of central Siberia to the Gulf of Tartary. It is the mid-section of the stream, the boundary portion, that separates Manchutikuo from its northern neighbor.

The Argun flows from Mongolia across a western knob of Manchutikuo and then forms the northwestern boundary of the new state, finally entering the Amur. The Ussuri, which also pours its mud-laden waters into the Amur, is, the smallest of the important streams discussed by the parley. With Lake Khanka it forms a portion of Manchutikuo's eastern border. It rises north of Vladivostok, and flows northward until it strikes Manchutiku near the lake.

Although each of these streams is an important Manchutikuoan commercial artery, none is as important to the new state as the Sungari which is entirely within its territory. It is, indeed, a life-giving stream to the thousands of inhabitants many of whom live far from its banks. It is the main "road" to Harbin, the great Manchurian market for soy beans and grain, principal crops of a vast region. Rising in the mountains of Kirin Province, in southeastern Manchutikuo, it flows northwestward to the center of the state and then northeastward past Harbin and thence to the Amur.

Sungari-oola, as the natives know the stream, means "River of Heaven." As it leaves the Kirin Mountains and strikes the flat lowlands of Manchutikuo, it divides into many branches. The principal stream is, in some places, nearly 1800 feet wide and from 20 to 40 feet deep.

The three-masted, square-rigged sailing ship "Joseph Conrad," belonging to the author-sailor, Alan Villiers, which was blown on the rocks on the Bay Ridge Shore of Brooklyn, N. Y., recently, is one of the few remaining of the picturesque wooden sailing vessels that plied the Seven Seas before the advent of steam-propelled steel-hulled craft. Mr. Villiers tells of the last home of the sailing ships in an article in the January number of the National Geographic magazine "Where the Sailing Ship Survives."

Twenty-six of the surviving square-rigged ships in commission in the world are registered in the small ports of the Aland Islands in the Baltic Sea, he writes.

Alanders Bought Discarded Vessels

Suez was opened in 1869 and the clippers passed. Steam grew and grew. The wooden ships of the American Merchant Service suffered; gradually at first but soon hurriedly, and then in a panic, they were discarded.

In the great discard of the sail the Aland Islanders, unworried by steam (and unworried by motor ships and turbo-electric drive even now), bought up such vessels as appeared to be good bargains. They acquired Nova Scotian barks, Bluenose barkentines, Down East full-riggers. The vessels were old and pretty nearly worn out when the Alanders got them, but the men were perfect sailors and great shipowners and could nurse a ship back from the scrap heap and grow a profit from her for years.

They bought ships cheaply and they bought good ships. One of their shipowning principles was that a ship should return her cost in three years. Buying cheaply, they could do this; if freights did not pay, they laid their ships up. The capital investment was so small, and usually there were so many shareholders, that it did not matter. They could wait for better times, and there was no flaw upon the earth with which they could not compete.

Old Aland Mariners Still Scorn Metal Hulls

So the turn of the century found them gradually adding metal-built ships to their larger fleet, though there were many old-timers who looked upon ships of iron and steel with apprehension, holding that it was not right to build ships of metal when there was good wood. Wood would float, they said. Iron sank. Give them wood.

Now the British were steadily scrapping their big sailing vessels; the wooden ships from America were worn out and could no longer be used for the deep sea. They descended to carrying timber in the Baltic and North Sea, and they were kept at that, with windmill pumps sending the clear water through their old sides, until they fell to pieces.

Iron ships were acquired to send tramping on ocean voyages. Marienhamn, the principal town and the strange name began to be seen upon the counters of ships in the Plata, at Valparaiso and in Table Bay, in Melbourne and Mobile. Wherever sailing ships went, the Aland ships were seen. Quietly and unobtrusively, they entered the commerce of the world; but still no one paid any attention to them, and there was no idea whatever that here alone sail would last when it had died in all other waters.

At the outbreak of the World War, 30 big ships had been brought to Aland and were run successfully. At the same time wooden ships were still being built for the short trades, and bought from Norway and Estonia, Sweden and Denmark, as they were discarded there. Through the war the Aland ships suffered heavily.

Sailing ships were largely kept, during these dangerous years, in the Pacific Ocean and on the Atlantic seaboard of the two Americas, where there was less chance of doom from mine and submarine. Insurance rates on sail were very high and the risks of making an Atlantic crossing were considerable; but here the best freights were paid and here the hardy Alanders ran their ships.

ASBESTOS: FROM ANCIENT LAMP WICKS TO MODERN AUTOMOBILE BRAKE LININGS

Asbestos, as the consumer sees it often resembles a textile because it can be twisted into cord and woven into fabric, but it is a mineral nevertheless which can be mined in much the same manner as coal and iron, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Known to Ancients

Asbestos was used by the ancients. They discovered that it would not burn so they used it for lamp wicks. When it was discovered that the mineral could be made into yarn and woven, it acquired numerous uses.

Today motorists use more asbestos than any other group of consumers. Asbestos-faced automobile clutches help to put motor cars into motion and asbestos brake linings stop them. If all the brake linings produced in the United States in a year were made into a motorous ribbon it would span the country between New York and San Francisco about ten times.

Asbestos curtains are not new to theatre-goers who are thus protected from fires arising back-stage; asbestos suits and gloves are worn by fire fighters and workmen handling molten metal in American mills; and American homes have asbestos covers to protect highly polished dining tables from hot dishes, covers for heating pipes and furnaces to prevent loss of heat, asbestos ironing board covers that insure against damage by hot flat irons, asbestos insulation on electric iron, percolator and toaster cords, and asbestos gas logs in fire places.

Canada Is World's Largest Source of Asbestos

Asbestos also has many uses where it cannot be seen and might least be expected by the average layman. Mixed with cement and other materials, it is pressed into fireproof shingles. Paint is made fireproof by the addition of asbestos, and if it is added to plaster, it not only acts as a fire-proofing agent but it also improves the acoustic properties of auditoriums and churches. Asbestos sheeting often is placed between floors and walls of buildings with a triple purpose—fireproofing, weatherproofing and soundproofing. In Europe experiments are being made with pipes for water and gas, molded from a mixture of asbestos and cement.

Canada is the world's largest source of asbestos. Its annual production of more than 200,000 short tons is more than the production of all the rest of the world combined although asbestos is mined in at least 16 other countries. Most of the Canadian supply comes from the Province of Quebec, only about 50 miles north of the United States border.

Next to Canada, Southern Rhodesia, Union of South Africa, and the Island of Cyprus are the most important asbestos sources. The United States trails in fifth place. The largest deposits of high grade asbestos in the United States are in Arizona, but the mineral also has been mined with some success in California, Georgia, Maryland, North Carolina, South Caroline, Vermont and Washington.

American manufacturers of asbestos products imported in 1930 about 262,000 tons of raw asbestos, which was valued at more than $11,000,000. They took about four-fifths of Canada's production and the remainder came from Union of South Africa, Mozambique, Germany and Russia. Russia ranked next to Canada in production of asbestos until the revolution.

After raw asbestos passes through modern American plants, some of it is shipped back to its native habitat in the form of brake lining material, pipe covering, textile yarn, and packing, roofing and other manufactures. In 1930 exports of asbestos products were valued at more than $10,000,000. Included among the exports were nearly 1400 miles of brake lining and clutch facing and more than 8000 tons of yarn, paper and millboard, and pipe covering.

The lakes of Killarney, famed in song and story, have been presented by their owner, an American, to the Irish Free State Government, according to news dispatches from Ireland. The Killarney estate comprises some 100,000 acres.

Killarney's lakes form a cluster of blue opals set in the emerald jewel that is County Kerry, Ireland's southwestern corner, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. William Wordsworth hailed the region as the most beautiful spot in the three kingdoms.

Traces of Druids Near

The ancient kingdom of Kerry surrounding the three principal Killarney lakes is strangely wild and beautiful. Here are remained such as they are, of the Druids. Here, too, are the earliest Christian relics in Ireland. It is a county of semi-tropical mosses, ever-freshened by the humid breath of the Gulf Stream, and of plants that are found nowhere else but in Portugal.

Kerry was the home of Irish classical learning, more Latin and Greek having been known in Kerry than in any other part of Ireland. Its people are grave and courteous and have pleasant voices. The Irish speak more abundant than elsewhere in Ireland, and there roam the last of the wild red deer. The lakes teem with salmon and trout, and along the shore land, or on the tiny islands, woodcock and snipe abound.

The name Killarney means "Church of the sloe bushes." Each of the three larger lakes has a local name: the Upper or McCarthy Moore's Lake; the Middle or Tore Lake; the Lower or Lough Leane. Many of the rocks in Lough Leane are called after the chieftain of the district, the O'Donoghue of the Glens. O'Donoghue's House was blown down during a storm, but his Table, Prison, Pigeon House and Library still survive.

Gap of Dunloe Has Lakes of Black Water

Near the picturesque little town of Killarney, on the Kenmare Road, rise the ruins of Muckross Abbey, one of the finest Norman abbeys in Ireland, with a somber yew tree in its cloisters 60 feet in height. Along the shore of Lough Leane is another striking, vine-clad stronghold—Ross Castle, in the vicinity of which Tennyson wrote part of "The Princess."

Close by Ross Castle lies beautiful Innisfallen Island, on Lough Leane, which Macaulay called "the gem of Killarney; not a reflex of heaven, but a bit of heaven itself." Its greatest charms are its holly groves and redberried rowan trees. The sky above in fair weather is a vivid blue.

In the Gap of Dunloe, which pours the brawling Loe River down into Killarney's Lakes, the stream expands into little lakes of water remarkable for their blackness. When visitors ascend the pass to the Gap of Dunloe from Kate Kearney's Cottage the guide walks along beside the pomes, reciting verses of poetry about Killarney, and when the gloomy gap is reached he makes the mountain walls of Golden MacGillicuddys Reeks echo with Irish airs played on his hugle. He explains that he does this as did his father before him.

Moeroun Castle, on the road to Cork, is the birthplace of Admiral Sir William Penn, the father of the founder of Pennsylvania. Gougane Barra, on the wild borderland between County Kerry and County Cork, is a place of dark and beautiful aspect. Here, in the steep mountains, broods a lake like black marble—whose severity is relieved by trembling silver rivers sliding down into the dark water.

Although the process of canning was brought to America about 1818, it did not become an industry here until 1820.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The regular meeting of the Fortnightly held last Monday at 2:30 p. m. was because of its unusually fine program, open to the public.

At the beginning of the program, a very moving tribute was paid to the memory of A. Beatrice Thompson, whose death is a deep personal loss to very many of the club members. She gave sweetness and warmth and kindliness wherever she went, and although her club associates are justly proud of her brilliant achievements which were many, it is the friendly greeting, the ready smile and the never failing helpfulness that they miss. A poem written by Mrs. Thompson within the last year was read by the president, Mrs. Wilson, and the audience all stood in silent tribute while "Auld Lang Syne" was softly played on the piano.

Legislative Conferences

Mrs. Arthur Kelley, Federation Secretary, announced two legislative conferences as follows:

1. Legislative Conference of District seven and eight at Winthrop, in Elks' Hall, Washington avenue, near Winthrop Beach Station, Friday, Jan. 18 at 1:30 p. m.

2. Legislative Conference of District eight, Maplewood, New Century Club of Malden, 2:30 p. m.

For further details consult Mrs. Kelley.

Dramatics

Mrs. George Budd, chairman of Dramatics, announced two one-act plays to be given at Fortnightly Headquarters on Friday, Jan. 25 at 2:30 p. m. The program will be in three parts:

1. Introduction—"Comedy and Tragedy."
   By Carolyn Gilpatric
   Comedy ..... Beatrice Budd
   Tragedy ..... Elizabeth Hall
2. "To My Dear Nieces," a comedy
   By Carolyn Gilpatric
   Cast: M. Alice Mason, Lilla J. Ryan, Annette Hughes, Ruth Cunningham
3. "When the Whirlwind Blows," a tragedy
   by Essex Dane
   Cast: Doris Hills, Josephine Arrowsmith, Hersilia Elmer

The first two numbers of this program are to be repeated on Feb. 4 at the West Medford Women's Club for their Neighborhood Day. Any members of the Fortnightly who would like to attend will be welcome.

Next Regular Meeting

Mrs. Vincent Clarke, chairman of Legislation, announced that the speaker at the next regular Fortnightly meeting on Jan. 28 will be Representative Horace T. Cahill of the Massachusetts House of Representatives. There will be music, and a social hour with tea.

Membership

Mrs. George Lochman, chairman of Membership, read the names of ten new applicants. This makes a total of 20 new members since the beginning of the club year.

Music

Mrs. Walter W. Winship, chairman of Music, reminded club members of the morning musicale, on Jan. 18 at 10:15 a. m.

She also announced the next Glee Club rehearsal for Thursday morning, Jan. 31 at 9 a. m. and issued a cordial invitation to any members who would like to join the Glee Club.

Literature

The Literature department, believing that "nothing comes, everything has to be fetched," asks all who wish to set their wits and pens to work on Imaginary Conversations for the contest to come to a symposium for discussion of models and methods on Tuesday, Jan. 29, at 10 o'clock at Fortnightly Hall.

Luncheon Bridge

Mrs. Arthur Speedie gave a brief outline of plans for the luncheon-bridge to be given on Monday, Jan. 21 in Fortnightly Headquarters at 1. There will be a prize at each table and a fashion show of the latest spring models in knitted goods.

Art Lectures

Mrs. Warren Whitman, chairman of Art, announced a morning program on Tuesday, Jan. 22 at 10 a. m. in Fortnightly Headquarters. There will be two motion pictures, "The Etcher at Work," "The Wood-Carver at Work." Coffee will be served promptly at 10, and the pictures shown afterwards.

Junior Membership

Upon a recommendation of the Board, the matter of junior membership in the Fortnightly was brought up for discussion, and after Mrs. Whitman, chairman of the special committee investigating this subject, had made a most interesting report and answered a number of questions asked from the floor, it was unanimously voted that the Fortnightly go on record as favoring Junior Membership. The matter of its organization was left in the hands of the board.

Nominating Committee

It was announced that Mrs. Florence R. Scales has been appointed to fill the vacancy on the nominating committee caused by the death of Mrs. Thompson.

Concert by Symphonic Ensemble

The annual musical afternoon of the Fortnightly given last Monday by the Boston Symphonic Ensemble, Boaz Piller, conductor, was, we believe, the finest musical performance heard in Winchester in many years.

These eight members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, all artists and virtuosi of the first rank, presented a program that was at once popular in its appeal and classical in its quality. A word should be said for Mr. Piller's masterly assembling of the numbers—lesser known works were interspersed in such n manner that the least musical person present could not have suffered from ennui.

The opening choice, "Pomp and Circumstance" by the English composer Sir Edward Elgar, was a most happy one. Its sturdy vigor and wholesome emotion is appealing. By giving the final repetition of the much loved theme to strings, in unison, a sublime exaltation is effected.

Rossini's Overture to "Semiramide"

one of his most ambitious and thoughtful works followed. In sheer vitality, witty vivacity, richness in rhythm, harmony and tonal color, it is outstanding in this composer's works.

In "Valse des Fleurs," the cosmopolitan Russian, Tschaikowsky shows himself a superb colorist. In this piece, his subtle feeling for richness and variety of tone has caused him to use the orchestra in its low range. Even this lighter work is permeated with a languid sensuous melancholy which is so characteristic of this composer.

The piece de resistance of the program was the entire "Unfinished Symphony" of the great Romanticist Schubert. In this gem we have a series of lyric, periodic, melodies which make their instant appeal. In Schubert, everything sings—in the first part of the first movement, there are three distinct melodies. Not only are the melodies lyric, but their assignment to the instruments and the peculiar register of each instrument, makes for a dazzling coloristic effect. As in the first movement, so in the second does its beauty lie in the melting lyrical quality of its melody and the color of its solo instruments. A charming dialogue takes place between flute and oboe and the enharmonic changes, give to the work an exquisite delicacy. We were most grateful that the entire symphony was played. It would have been disappointing to miss either movement.

After a short intermission, two numbers for strings were given. The immortal "Largo" from the opera "Xerxes," by Handel with violin solo by Norbert Lauga and the exquisitely dainty "Minuet" by Bolzoni. Probably the highest moment in the afternoon's program was reached in Mr. Lauga's solo. He fairly transported his listerners to heights which will be remembered by them for a long time.

The Bolzoni "Minuet" was an excellent choice to relieve that tenseness which was everywhere apparent in the hall. A graceful, naive work for muted strings, it was most appealing.

As an encore, "Serenade" by Mendelssohn played throughout pizzicato was a delightful offering. Noteworthy in the rendition of this work was the wonderfully even gradation of tone obtained in pizzicato.

The symphonic poem, "Les Preludes," written by Liszt to supplement, "Les Nouvelles Meditations," of Lamartine, was a tremendously taxing work for small orchestra. This work has undeniable charm and is cleverly written but there runs through it a certain sweetness of harmony that barely misses being cloying. However, the masterly thematic treatment of the musical ideas and the orchestral coloring causes one to enjoy it. Two additional encores followed "Estrellita" and the charming "Fairy Tales."

The musicians under Mr. Piller, played with a oneness, with a precision of attack and release, with a perfection for obtaining crescendi, diminuendi, forzandi which entranced them as the great artists that they are. Mr. Piller corrects the all too prevalent erroneous impression that it is necessary for a conductor to go beserk to obtain results. A slight but precise nod was all that was needed.

Finally, we wish to speak of the friendliness, the charm, the graciousness of the artists, and, since perfection cannot be improved upon, we hope that the time is not too far distant when we welcome the Boston Symphonic Ensemble with Mr. Piller to Winchester again.

China Dog Show

In as noiseless and unique a show of dogs, cats, bears and strange unheard of animals as has ever been seen, the ladies of the Fortnightly last Friday displayed their ingenuity and caught the fancy of more than 200 china dog lovers. Approximately 700 beasts were shown, ranging from those born yesterday to the aristocratic Staffordshire spaniels of 150 years ago. Awards, so numerous that scarcely an exhibitor went home without a trophy, were distributed by three judges drawn fro mthe ranks of antique experts.

From the standpoint of the student of antiques this exhibit was of unusual educational value.

One table boasted 150 dogs and cats, with a large group of Staffordshire dogs ranging from the smallest to the biggest. Also was a display in this collection of unusual Pennsylvania cats and dogs of plaster. Another table showed a group of family pieces, comprised mostly of Staffordshire animals. A distinguished display nearby contained a Staffordshire whippet, a Bennington cat peering into a basket and an English Parian greyhound. Most charming in every case were the Pennsylvania plaster animals, whose rigid, gaily-painted forms are expressive of the German-American folk life of the early 19th century. A Bell pottery stoneware dog decorated with a mottled brown glaze was to the collector one of the most unusual pieces to be found. There were Asiatic dogs, too, some from China and some from Japan, though the preponderant part of the antique display was made up of English Staffordshire. An extremely fine specimen was a group of Parian dogs peering into a rabbit-hole.

But by no means were antique animals the only ones to be seen, for every kind of high-bred modern creature was in evidence, from a glass dog an inch and a half long with red ears and legs and a green body to an intent appearing Scotty made of o'ack and red sponge rubber. There were a red candy dog, and a Japanese wooden dog. One table showed fully 100 tiny glass dogs, cats, and penguins resting upon a mirror. Also in this exhibit were an exquisite carnelian and jade dog, and several Alaskan dog trains of carved ivory. In one corner of the room was a complete pet shop with all the best varieties of animal delights lining the shelves, while an equally complete kennel adjoined it.

The judges were Mr. Samuel Temple of Boston, Mr. F. W. Stanton of Cambridge and Mrs. George E. Foster of Lexington. The first prize for the best dog went to Mrs. Lura W. Watkins for a Parian greyhound. The prize for the best cat was for a distinguished plaster feline from Pennsylvania and went to Mrs. Annie H. Mott.

The complete list of blue ribbon awards is as follows: Mrs. Ida MacDonald, Mrs. Lura W. Watkins, Miss Mary Alice Fitch, Mrs. Alice R. Andrews, Mrs. Annie H. Mott, Mrs. Ellen Parkinson of Harvard, Mrs. Georgianna Cole, Mrs. Marion Symmes, Mrs. Idabelle Winship, Mrs. Fannie Joslin, Mrs. Helen Fessenden, Mrs. Charles Mason.

Red ribbons went to the following: Mrs. Annie H. Mott, Mrs. Georgianna Cole, Mrs. Lura W. Watkins, Mrs. Alice R. Andrews, Mrs. Ellen Parkinson, Mrs. Beatrice Early of South Groveland, Mrs. Louise Parker, Mrs. Marion Symmes, Mrs. Edna Messenger, Mrs. Clara Dolben, Mrs. Anna DeWolf.

White ribbons went to Mrs. Annie H. Mott, Mrs. Edna Messenger, Mrs. Mabel Hudson, Mrs. Clara Dolben, Mrs. Marion Symmes.

Co-chairmen of the China Dogs Committee were Mrs. Annie H. Mott and Mrs. Marion Symmes, assisted by Mrs. Georgianna Cole and Mrs. Alice R. Andrews on the exhibition.

The exhibition was opened by a word of greeting from the club's president, Mrs. Gladys Wilson, who, as chairman of the hospitality committee, was assisted by Mrs. Anna Grosvenor, Mrs. Marion Hayden, Mrs. Jane Robinson, Mrs. Annette Hughes and Miss Mary Fitch. Mrs. Florence Scales was custodian for the exhibition.

The program of music and entertainment was in charge of Mrs. Ruth Hilton, which comprised several readings by Mrs. Clara Reynolds, and violin selections by Mrs. Helen Sibley, accompanied by Mrs. Mary Witham. Selections on the accordian by Mr. Norman Harrold accompanied by Miss Virginia Danforth were played during the tea hour.

Chairmen of the tea committee were Mrs. Ruth French and Mrs. Pauline Hudson, who were assisted by Mrs. Edith Harris, Mrs. Emma Price and Mrs. Dorothy Wills. The pourers were Mrs. Susan Ladd and Mrs. Emma Rice.

The Fire Department answered a still alarm at 3:10 Monday afternoon for trouble with the oil heater at the Winchester Trust Company.

Mr. Ernest Dudley Chase Speaks at Recent Assembly

The Winchester High School had as its guest speaker at a recent assembly, Mr. Ernest Dudley Chase, who showed some very interesting stereopticon pictures which he took while traveling abroad last summer. These covered part of the beautiful territory to be found in France, Switzerland and Southern Germany. Mr. Chase pointed out and explained various points of interest and renown, among which was that famous spot in southern Germany, Oberammergau. Pictures of Anton Lang, who portrays Jesus Christ in the great Passion Play and of his home, where Mr. Chase stayed while visiting the town, brought gasps of pleasure from the mouths of the students.

It was like being a member of Mr. Chase's party to travel the mountains and valleys of this section of Europe as pictured on the screen, and it was with great regret that the regular school curriculum was taken up after 45 minutes of romance abroad had captured the imagination of all.

The Uncommon Common Sailor H. M. S. Pinafore

It is Her Majesty's ship "Pinafore" at anchor in Portsmouth Bay. The morning is brilliant, the air is clear. A flock of little crafts, called bum boats, have set out from town with all manner of trinkets to tempt the sailor's eye, and delicacies to tease his appetite. Meanwhile, on board, the sailors are endeavoring to remain attentive to their duties as honest seamen. They are singing as they await the arrival of the little crafts which will bring them treasures.

Thus the setting is finished for the fascinating musical comedy of Gilbert and Sullivan entitled "The Uncommon Common Sailor," or just plain "Pinafore."

The remainder of the performance tells of the love of a lass for a sea going sailor, and how she won his precious love. An adaptation of this story in music and in song has been in preparation since before Christmas. When the choruses, which are now in rehearsal, begin to function perfectly, this very unique reproduction from Gilbert and Sullivan will be presented by the Dramatic Society.

The entire performance is to be portrayed at a coming assembly. The purpose of this assembly program of the society is to give every member the opportunity of showing his worth in his own desired line of dramatics. When a play is given, everyone simply can't take part in it. In "Pinafore," it is possible to use the entire membership of the society, barring none. H. M. S. Pinafore will be sailing into port before very long.

Intramural Basketball Progressing Well—Well-Balanced Teams Furnish Thrills and Upsets

The Intramural Basketball Leagues, John Doherty, president, (subject to orders from "Cabbo" Abbott, who is subject to orders from "Coachie" Mansfield) are, according to the president himself, bigger and better than ever this year, producing great basketball, especially on the part of the president himself.

However, dropping all light matters aside, Boys' Intramural Basketball is having a big year, with 20 teams and nearly 150 players. These teams are put into three leagues, the Eastern, for boys under 110 pounds, the Western, for those between 110 and 140 pounds and the Far West, for those over 140 pounds.

At least twice a week, games are played, with basketball managers as scorers and timers, and players on the basketball squad as referees. These games are not taken lightly and are the subject of conversation between many an aged Senior, as well as the frolicsome Freshman.

Following is the standing of the leagues up to and including last Monday's games:

Eastern League

	Won	Lost	P. C.
Navy	2	0	1.000
Army	2	1	.500
Princeton	1	1	.500
Pittsburg	0	2	.000

Western League

	Won	Lost	P. C.
Ohio	3	0	1.000
Indiana	2	0	1.000
Minnesota	2	1	.667
Northwestern	2	2	.500
Notre Dame	2	2	.500
Purdue	1	1	.500
Illinois	2	3	.400
Michigan	1	2	.333
Iowa	0	2	.000
Chicago	0	2	.000

Far West League

	Won	Lost	P. C.
Santa Clara	3	1	.75
St. Mary's	3	1	.75
Stanford	1	1	.50
Washington	1	1	.50
California	1	3	.25
Oregon	0	2	.00

The three leading scorers for each league are as follows:

Eastern League

E. Ballo, Navy 11
DeTessio, Princeton 8
T. G. Abbott, Princeton 8

Western League

W. MacDonald, Ohio 28
Sullivan, Northwestern 16

Girls' Basketball Echoes—Captains Chosen

Temporary captains, who are to serve during the first three games of the season, were elected last week, after which a permanent captain will be chosen. Betty Blake, veteran guard, led the team last Friday; Pauline Rallo, another guard, will act as captain in the next game; and for the game on Jan. 25, Janet Spicer has been appointed. Helen Reeves, new this year to the Winchester High School, has been selected by the Second Team for temporary captain for its first three games.

The varsity squad contains 24 members this year, seven forward, seven guards and 10 centers. These are all battling for positions, and the line-up is never certain until a short time before the games. On the squad are forwards: Barnard, Glidden, Gilbert, Herrick, Phelps, McDonald and S. Spencer; centers: Cutter, Pilkington, G. Moulton, A. Colucci and Robinson; guards: Berry, Blake, Kleeb, Russo, Stevenson, Trott and Little.

Miss Kingsley Replaces Mrs. Davis

Miss Shurtleff, who has been teaching in Winchester schools for the past seven or eight years has retired to private life as Mrs. Davis. Many of her pupils have known no other teacher of drawing and will undoubtedly miss her.

She has been replaced by Miss Hazel Kingsley who comes here from teaching in Ludlow. Miss Kingsley studied at the Massachusetts School of Art in preparation for her present occupation.

A program of intensive review is being carried out at the high school in preparation for the coming mid-year examinations. The dates of these important events are Jan. 23, 24, 25.

Mr. Keeney's Classes Working on Project

Two of the junior college English classes are working on a newspaper project under the direction of Mr. Keeney. Each of the classes has organized itself into a newspaper office, having a publisher, general manager, managing editor, mechanical editor, news editor and city editor, together with reporters, typists, copy readers, etc.

The names of the two projects are the "Chesterton Crier" and the "Boston Daily Citizen." These are made up to be as much like metropolitan daily newspapers as possible, although the news is mostly original rather than actual occurrences.

The high school Red Cross is sponsoring an intensive drive for playing cards which will be sent to the Veterans's Hospital. The support of the students is needed.

Junior English Class Present Play

Under the direction of Miss Janet Burns the Junior General English Class presented "The Valiant," a one-act play, in the high school auditorium on Wednesday morning, Jan. 16, with the class as audience. Miss Burns with the assistance of a group of about 10 classmates accepted the entire responsibility for casting, rehearsing, coaching and presenting the play—the second attempted by the class this semester.

Robert Higgins as James Dyke, the prisoner; Dexter Derby as Warden Holt, Norris Chevalier as Josephine Paris, John Plumer as Father Daly, supported by Arnold Morse as Dan, a jailer and Robert Dotten, an attendant, gave a highly creditable interpretation of the characters, situations and atmosphere of this rather difficult play. With very simple stage effects, it was necessary for these characters to be real in order to "click," with a critical, fellow student audience. Judging by the close attention of the class, throughout the performance, the players succeeded.

At least one more play will be given by the class shortly after mid-year's.

By Eugene Bertram Willard

What is Death but nothing more than the entrance into a larger and more complete life? Those men have been happiest who have looked upon Death as the end of trials and the inheritance of an eternal life devoid of all tribulation As we know the early Christians were in the habit of locking on the day of their Death as their birthday. And that, let us clearly recognize, is what it ought to be. What Saint Paul wrote to the Corinthians is significant: "Know ye not they which run in a race run all, but one receiveth the prize? So run, that ye may obtain. And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things. Now they do it to obtain a corruptible crown; but we are incorruptible." And Saint Paul recognized that this "crown" was to be gained in life here on earth, and so he goes on to tell us: "I therefore so run, not as uncertainly; so fight I, not as one that beateth the air; but I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection, lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway." Boiling the whole thing down to a few short words, the life of the world to come must have its beginning here. Arnold, too, had that thought, when he said:

> So, not the energy of life may be > Kept only after the grave, but then begun;
> And he who fought not in the earthly strife,
> From strength to strength advancing only he,
> His soul well knit, and all his battles won,
> Mounts, and that hardly, to eternal life.

The battle must be fought out here on earth, and the only fear that we have, or are justified in having, when we come to pass from this life, is not that we are to part from this earth, but that we may have been brave and clean and true to God and humanity. There surely is nothing else for men to fear.

It was Epictetus who said that "to a reasonable creature, that alone is unsupportable which is unreasonable; but everything reasonable may be supported." Surely nothing can be more reasonable than Death, which Whitman characterizes as "sane and sacred." There is no sound reason why men should look with horror when they are brought face to face with the great and blessed phenomenon—Death.

THE EYES OF EUROPE ARE ON THE SAAR

Europe's most spectacular vote of a decade was held Jan. 13 when the people of the Saar—a little patch of Europe between France and Germany that is not quite as large as the State of Rhode Island—went to the polls. It was called one of the strangest elections on record, for the populace was called upon to express its choice by ballot between remaining under the League of Nations, rejoining Germany, or becoming a part of France.

An international police force, composed of troops from England, Italy, Sweden and the Netherlands, had been quartered in the territory and supervised the plebiscite.

What the Saar lacks in actual size, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society, is more than outbalanced by its wealth of raw materials and busy industries. The Saar has one of the most valuable coal deposits in Europe, and its mills and factories annually turn out thousands of dollars worth of steel, iron, coke, glass, chemicals and pottery.

Mines Destroyed in World War

Coal mines, in fact, are directly responsible for 15 years of government as a ward of the League of Nations—and the balloting. Shafts and tunnels of hundreds of costly mines in adjacent French coal areas were practically destroyed by retreating German troops during the latter part of the World War.

Although the mines were recaptured by France before the end of the War, many of them proved to be nearly valueless.

Because most of the people of the Saar are German, trouble might have followed if the district had been turned over to France. But diplomats felt that France should get some repayment for her own crippled mines, and furthermore that there should be no tariff restrictions against importing coal into France. As a result coal-digging rights in the Saar were assigned to France for 15 years, from 1920 to 1935, and the League of Nations was empowered to set up a unique district, to be neither annexed territory, independent state, nor mandate.

The region carved out along the Franco-German border, including not only all mines under operation before the War, but also entire coal fields, embraced a large part of the basin drained by the winding River Saar, hence the name adopted for the new entity. Much of the territory lies north and east of the Saar River, but it also takes in a long, narrow strip on the opposite bank. To the south lies Lorraine (whose iron deposits and mills need Saar coal), and to the north the Rhine provinces of Germany. The northwest corner of the Saar does not quite reach Luxembourg.

Vineyards and Forests on Hills

The Valley of the Saar is fairly wide between Saarbrucken, the capital and chief city of the district, and Merzig, near which point it flows into the Rhine provinces. The picturesque hills that rise above the stream are covered with patches of forest, farms, and vineyards; but lumbering, farming and the production of wine are relatively unimportant compared with mining and manufacturing.

Although the Saar has been politically a sort of twilight zone between France and Germany for centuries, its 820,000 population today is largely German-speaking and of German descent. Signs and notices are in German, except for French inscriptions over the offices of the coal mines. German customs and traditions are maintained.

Over half the people profess the Roman Catholic faith. With a population of more than 1,000 persons per square mile, the Saar today is the most densely populated area in Europe.

Texel, Vlieland and Terschelling, three sleepy little Netherland islands near the recently-enclosed entrance to the Zuiderzee, will witness a new dramatic chapter in the history of the sea as the Dutch attempt to salvage the rich cargo of coin and bullion from the sunken hull of the English frigate, Lutine, which was wrecked in the channel between Vlieland and Terschelling in 1799.

Many other tales of maritime adventure and wartare color the history of these near-by yet strangely remote isiands, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. In 1594 four Dutch ships under the command of the intrepid explorer, Barents, set sail from Texel in one of the first attempts ever made to discover a passage to India through the polar regions. They named it, as peaces are Kara Sea; but it remained for a Norwegian, Nordenskiold, three centuries later, to navigate successfully the Northeast Passage.

Sheltered John Paul Jones

After the famous encounter between the Bon Homme Richard and the Serapis, 1779, John Paul Jones arrived at Texel with his two prizes, to the great consternation of the Dutch. The presence of the renowned "pirate" with his fleet was considered a dubious mark of distinction, and greatly hindered the fishing industry. Hundreds of little boats were tied back to their harbors, and refused to leave until John Paul Jones, with reconditioned ships, put out to sea once more.

Today there is little to disturb the peaceful life of the farmers and fishermen dwelling on these islands. Burg, the largest town and the capital of Texel, has 6000 inhabitants. Those who believe the moon to be made of green cheese would do well to consult the people of Texel, who are especially skilled in the manufacture of a cheese of this color. Green cheese, in fact, is one of Texel's leading exports. It also exports seabirds' eggs. Thousands of the eggs are collected on the northern extremity of the island, called Eierland (land of eggs), and shipped, chiefly, to the markets of Amsterdam.

Once Part of Mainland

The islands have not always enjoyed their present geographical isolation. A few centuries ago they formed part of the coast line of the mainland. Then there was no Zuiderzee; only an inland lake, named Flevo by Tacitus, which communicated with the North Sea by the River Vlie near Texel. Some think the channel between Terschelling and Vlieland formed the mouth of the this river. Breaches were gradually made in the coastal dunes, the land behind became inundated, and in the 13th century the waters of the North Sea found their way to Lake Flevo. The meeting of these waters formed the Zuiderzee, while stranded bits of coast line were left as islands and sandbanks.

From Texel Roads in 1667 de Ruyter and de Witt sailed with the Dutch fleet across the English Channel, and up the Thames to London. The British capital suffered no loss of life from this daunting gesture, but a serious blow was dealt to British pride. It was from Texel also that the Dutch fleet put to sea and engaged the English in the battle of Camperdown (1797), which cost the Dutch their fleet.

The exact site of the treasure ship, Lutine, now in the news has remained a mystery, as the only survivor died a few hours after reaching land. In the latter part of the 18th century, the British were conducting a campaign in the north of Holland against Napoleon and the Dutch. Their troops had to be paid, and their interests in the town of Hamburg protected. To this end the Lutine was dispatched from London with gold coin and bullion believed to exceed $70,000,000. Soon after the disaster, a part of this rich treasure was recovered, including the Lutine bell, which is still rung at Lloyd's in London, to give warning of overdue ships; but all subsequent attempts at salvage have failed. The frigate has sunk deeper and deeper during the years, until today it is buried under more than 18 yards of sand.

WAS FATHER OF FRANK B. KELLEY

Ernest F. Kelley, formerly postmaster at Bath, Me., who died in that city Monday afternoon, Jan. 14, was the father of Frank B. Kelley of this town.

The deceased was 75 years old and the son of Capt. and Mrs. Frances Kelley. He was a native of Bath and was graduated from the old Bath High School in 1879, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology for two years. He became a mechanical draftsman and designer, specializing in hull and engine work, being associated for some years with several mechanical and automotive firms. Specimens of his drawings have appeared in London engineering journals and the board of managers of the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago presented him a diploma in 1894 for skill as a designer and draftsman and for his portion of the exhibit of the Bath Iron Works.

He was an ardent baseball enthusiast and Bath honored him in this connection several years ago when it named the west side athletic field Kelley Field in his honor.

Mr. Kelley was active in politics, was three times a member of the Bath City Council and also served on the school board, later serving on the Board of Education. He was formerly principal of the Bailey Evening School for many years.

In 1892 Mr. Kelley was a delegate to the Democratic national convention in Chicago and the following year was a candidate for the Bath mayoralty. He was appointed postmaster by Grover Cleveland and served a four year term. In 1911 he served as city clerk and in 1923 was secretary of the Three Quarter Century Club. His son, Mr. Kelley, is his only survivor.

The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon in the Central Church in Bath.

CHORAL SOCIETY OPENED SIXTH SEASON

Chorus and Guest Artist, Walter Kidder, Acclaimed

The program for the opening concert of the Winchester Choral Society's sixth season under the direction of A. Albert Wilson, given Tuesday evening in the Town Hall, with Walter Kidder, baritone, as guest artist; Mary Ranton Witham, accompanist; and Lucy L. Wilcox, assisting accompanist, was as follows: Bach, Chorale "Grant Me True Courage, Lord"; Holst, Swansea Town (Hampshire Folksong); Selections for Men's Voices—(a) Candish, The Song of the Jolly Roger; (b) Herbeck, The Maid of the Valley; Wagner, Chorals, Prize Song and Finale (from "The Mastersinger") with tenor solo by J. Raymond Graham and bass solo by Walter Kidder; Negro Spiritual, "Go Down Moses," arr. Noble Cain; Negro Spiritual, "Were You There," arr. Burleigh; Selections for Men's Voices, (a) Storch, Reveries; (b) Ballard, The Sword of Ferrara; Czecho-Slovak Folk-song, "Wake Thee, Now Dearest," arr., Deems Taylor; Gounod, Waltz and Chorus (from "Faust") with solos by Idabelle Winship, soprano; Josephine A. Taylor, contralto; J. Raymond Graham, tenor; and Walter Kidder, bass. Mr. Kidder sang: Head, When I Think Upon the Maiden; Charles, Clouds; Gibson, Home on the Range; and Mana-Zucca, Nichavo. His encores were Speaks, On the Road to Mandalay; and Load, If You Know. An audience that comfortably filled the halls and balconies warmly applauded both chorus and soloists.

This first program of the new season was sufficiently varied to include music for almost every taste. In the Wagner and Gounod numbers the Society showed its ability to cope with opera to a degree much greater than had previously been attempted. In both instances the performance was very praiseworthy, and in particular the "Faust" waltz was sung with a swing and lilt that avoided any semblance of dragging, even in the sections that followed the solo voices. The musical intelligence of the singers was nicely displayed in the alternate staccato and legato singing of otherwise similar passages. The audience was not slow to appreciate the excellence of the rendition and only the lateness of the hour prevented the encore for which there was a real appeal.

Much more difficult, if less brilliant, was the score of the "Meistersinger," and here again the Society's performance was deserving high praise. The especially trying entrances were done with clean cut attacks, and both releases and nuance were of a high order. Especial mention should be made of the beautiful soft tone achieved by the big chorus while singing with the soloist, in marked contrast to the ringing attack with which the composition ended and the thrilling salute to Sachs and the "masters" with which the selection closed.

In lively vein were the two folksongs, "Swansea Town" and "Wake Thee, Now Dearest," which the Chorus sang with an engaging yet always controlled abandon that bespoke versatility. Of especial interest in the English tune was the portrayal of the storm by the lower voices while the melody was sung by the sopranos; and in the Czecho-Slovakian number, the gradual acceleration to the final shouted "Hai." The opening Bach Chorale was splendidly phrased and sung with a simple dignity and breadth of tone that was delightful.

The two Negro Spirituals were well received, and an encore demanded after the favorite, "Were You There." This beautiful arrangement of Burleigh lost none of its original popularity by repetition, the delicate head tone of the tenors, the lingering sweetness of the ensemble passages preceding the strongly sung climax, paving the way admirably for the spectacular low B flat of the basses, sung at the close of the composition against a mere suggestion of tone in the other voices.

"Go Down Moses" presented difficulties of which few in the hall were aware, so well did the chorus sing this plaintively appealing number, with its opening alto lead and bass solo passages. The closing harmony phrases, sung with all the power of the full chorus, were most effective.

As popular as ever was the singing of the Society's fine men's choir the four selections chosen being well adapted to display the ability of the choristers in music of varying moods. Most popular with the audience were the rollicking "Song of the Jolly Roger" and the martial "Sword of Ferrara," the latter being enthusiastically encored despite the fact that it was having its third singing. Few can withstand the virile measured swing and thrilling climax of Ballard's splendid composition which has been called the greatest bravura song written in America.

In Candish's pirate song the men's diction was most praiseworthy as was their responsiveness and staccato singing. The solo low D of the basses and the closing high B flat of the tenors contributed in large measure to the enjoyment of this number.

Lovers of soft legato singing were delighted with the rich harmonies of "The Maid of the Valley" and "Reveries," both of which the men sang unaccompanied with fine feeling and beauty of tone. The first named was especially taxing for both tenors and basses, the score calling for the repeated singing of notes in the very upper and lowest voice registers. Particularly effective was the 'cello-like tone achieved by the baritones in a harmony part that could easily have proved disasterous, had it been loudly or carelessly sung.

FRANKLIN—HALL

The final chapter of a campus romance was written in the Bates College Chapel in Lewiston, Me., Monday afternoon, Jan. 21, when Miss Kate Rebekah Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barnie P. Hall of Rumford, Me., and Benjamin Russell Franklin of this town, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Franklin of Fairmount street, were married at 3 o'clock by Dr. Rayborn L. Zerby. Baskets of evergreen with bows of white satin, and white tapers on the altar made an attractive setting for the ceremony, and the wedding music was played by Sedan T. Crafts.

Miss Hall had for her honor attendant Mrs. Herbert L. Hoyt of Sherborn, and the bride-maids were Miss Barbara Franklin of Winchester, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Howard E. Parker of Newton Center. Harold S. Adams of Ayer was Mr. Franklin's best man and the ushers were Mr. Paige and Wendell D. Mansfield of this town.

The bride wore a white satin gown and a net veil, arranged with a cap of rose point lace. Blue flowers were sweet peas and white roses. The matron of honor wore a silver cloth tunic over a blue skirt with a silver turban, and carried sweet peas. The bridesmaids wore tunics of silver and gold cloth over dark skirts with turbans to match their tunics and carried bouquets similar to that of the honor attendant.

A reception was held after the ceremony in Rand Hall on the college campus. Mr. Franklin and his bride are spending their honeymoon enjoying the winter sports at Bethel Inn in Maine. They are to make their home in Newberry, Mich., where Mr. Franklin is to act as sanitary engineer for a District Health Department, located there. Both are graduates of Bates and Mr. Franklin holds the degree of C. P. H. from Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He was graduated from Winchester High School in 1927, playing upon the championship football team in that year.

LOST! A TRUCK!

That's the call the police received at Headquarters from a lady living in the North End Monday evening, shortly after 7 o'clock. Sergt. Edward W. O'Connell was sent to investigate, and returned with a story, rather unusual even at the Station House.

The lady had told him that her husband had gone with a truck to Peterboro, N. H., to get a load of wood. He took a young man, also a resident of the North End, with him as helper.

Just how it all happened, the Police do not know, but while the leader of the enterprise was busy chopping wood in the woods, his helper commandeered the truck, and drove to Winchester. He had the grace to leave the truck at his employer's home, and the latter refused to prosecute. How he got back to Winchester is not known, but there will be no police action, we are told.

MISS ANNIE C. NOWELL

Miss Annie C. Nowell, for 60 years a resident of this town and formerly prominent in the artistic and literary life of the community, died Sunday, Jan. 20, at her home, 64 Church street. She was one of the town's oldest residents, having observed her 92nd birthday in December.

Miss Nowell was a native of Portsmouth, N. H., the daughter of James and Sarah (Jackson) Nowell. She came to Winchester in 1874 and was formerly actively interested in the town library. For many years she conducted a portrait studio in Boston, but retired from active business about 30 years ago. She was a long time member of the Copley Society of Boston. Her nearest survivors are two nephews, James Nowell of this town and Allen M. Nowell of Honolulu.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon at the late residence with Rev. George Hale Reed, minister of the Unitarian Church, officiating. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

FATHERS' NIGHT

The Fathers' Night given by the Wyman Mothers' Association will be held Jan. 30, at the Wyman School assembly hall. Dr. Payson Smith, Commissioner of Education, in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, will speak on "What the Parents Should Expect of the Elementary Schools."

An opportunity will be given to the parents to meet the teachers, and to inspect the children's work and the projects which will be on exhibition in their rooms.

Coffee will be served before the meeting from 7:45 to 8:30 p. m.

THE ROOSEVELT BIRTHDAY CARD WILL BE EXHIBITED AT THE CALUMET CLUB

The great birthday card to be sent to President Roosevelt next Tuesday night will be placed on exhibition from 2:30 until 5:30 Sunday afternoon, Jan. 27, at the Calumet Club, Winchester. The public is cordially invited to this showing of the card now being finished by Ernest Dudley Chase.

Monday evening shortly after 6 o'clock a Dodge sedan, driven by Francis L. Ryder of 7 Pine street, Stoneham, and a Ford sedan, operated by Arthur Thomas of 84 Brown street, Methuen, were in collision at the corner of Main and Mt. Vernon streets near the bus stop. The owner of the Dodge, Herbert Sweet of Linden road, Melrose, reported to the police that both machines were slightly damaged.

GEORGE WILLIAM NEWHALL

George William Newhall, veteran of the Civil War and former Stoneham assessor, died Sunday evening, Jan. 20, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles S. Adams, 11 Mystic avenue, after an illness of only a few hours, following 14 months of invalidism. A broken leg sustained in a fall caused him to be bed-ridden virtually all of that time.

Mr. Newhall had lived with his daughter in Winchester for the past three years. He observed his 90th birthday on Jan. 20, and was a native of East Bridgewater, son of George S. and Mary (Hodgen) Newhall.

After spending his early life, and receiving his education in East Bridgewater, Mr. Newhall, as a young man, went to Boston and entered the provision business.

At the outbreak of the Civil War he enlisted in Company H, 5th Regiment, Massachusetts Volunteers, and served during the war, on several occasions seeing service on scouting expeditions in the enemy's country.

After the war Mr. Newhall went to Stoneham and there until coming to Winchester. For a time he was actively engaged in the shoe business, and later for more than 30 years served the Town of Stoneham as assessor, being known as the oldest town official in the state at the time of his retirement a year ago. He was widely known in and around Stoneham and was held in high esteem by all who knew him. He was an honorary member of Wakefield Lodge of Elks.

Always actively interested in military affairs, Mr. Newhall was for several terms commander of J. P. Gould Post, 75, G. A. R., of Stoneham, holding membership in the post from its institution. At the time of his death he was one of four members of the post and the only one of many more than that number who had been enrolled in H Company, M. V. M., during the war. He was well known to Winchester veterans, having on several occasions participated in Memorial Day parades in this town.

Not long after taking up residence in Stoneham Mr. Newhall married Zoa Moody of Appleton, Me., who died 31 years ago on his birthday. Besides Mrs. Adams, he leaves two sons, Arthur N., and Moody Newhall, both of Stoneham; one sister, Miss Alice Cushing Newhall of East Boston; six grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Elks' funeral services were held Monday evening at the Adams home, conducted by the officers of Wakefield Lodge. Last night, attended services were held Tuesday afternoon in the Stoneham Congregational Church. Delegations were present from Stoneham Post, 115, A. L.; Leon E. Warren Camp, U. S. W. V.; Wakefield Lodge of Elks and the various Stoneham Town Departments, including the entire Board of Assessors. State Treasurer Charles Hurley attended the services with a group from the Treasurer's office at the State House. Col. Edward F. Gihon of Wakefield, former National Commander of the Spanish War Veterans, was also present.

J. P. Gould Post, 75, G. A. R., was represented by its three remaining members, Comdr. George Kenson, Henry Wallace and Rodman Davis. Other Civil War veterans present were Joseph Stoddard of Charlestown Post and Joseph A. Moulton of this town.

The Grand Army funeral ritual was exemplified by the Chaplain of the Post, Rev. Mont Thornberg, who was assisted by the pastor of the Congregational Church, Rev. John C. Miller. Bearers were a grandson, George Newhall; a nephew, Norman Houghton; Assessor James J. Kenney, Dr. William S. Coy, past commander of Post 115, A. L.; Wakefield Doherty, adjutant of Leon E. Warren Camp, U. S. W. V.; and Lester K. Pratt, representing Wakefield Lodge of Elks.

Full military honors were accorded the deceased veteran, eight members of Co. I, 182nd Infantry, acting as escort and firing three volleys over the grave after the interment in the family lot at Lindenwood Cemetery, Stoneham. Taps was blown by Edward Conley of Stoneham Post, A. L.

"WHAT LIFE CAN DO FOR YOU"

"What Life Can Do for You," will be the subject of the address to be given at the First Baptist Church by Rev. Charles N. Arbuckle, D. D., of Newton Center at the Young People's Fellowship hour on Sunday evening, Jan. 27 at 7 o'clock.

Dr. Arbuckle's address will be based upon a review of the book: "First and Last Love," by Howard Coxe. The book contains a challenging and timely message for young people of the present day, and will be presented in Dr. Arbuckle's inimitable and fascinating manner.

Dr. Arbuckle, pastor of one of the outstanding Baptist Churches of New England, a member of the Board of Trustees of Newton Theological and Associate Professor of Preaching at Andover-Newton Theological School, will speak to the young people at 7 o'clock, and remain for a conference around the luncheon table, answering questions, and discussing young people's problems. All young people of high school age and over, without a church home, are cordially invited to be present.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Morning Musicale

On Friday, Jan. 18, the music committee of the Fortnightly presented one of the finest programs of its truly outstanding career. The program was so unusual and so beautiful that several requests for its repetition in other places have already been received.

The subject was "Folk Songs" and Mary Ranton Witham was in charge. She spoke without notes, telling the whole story of folk songs from their earliest beginnings in Biblical times, making her explanations so clear and so interesting that everyone could easily understand, yet so scholarly that the most critical of musicians could find pleasure and profit in her talk. She herself wrote the arrangements used by the trio and voice, taking the simple old folk tunes and harmonizing them. They were beautiful.

A number of songs were sung by Idabelle Winship whose lovely voice and sweet personality made a gem of every lyric. Sometimes she was accompanied by Mary Witham and sometimes by the Winchester Trio, and once by the trio with a special violin obligato. The trio is composed of Helena Studzinska Sibley, violin; Wida Rohde, cello; and Mary Ranton Witham, piano and their work, as always, was exquisite and satisfying. They played a number of folk songs together, besides accompanying Mrs. Winship in a number of others.

Mrs. Witham began with a general description of folk songs—"storehouses of pure and exquisite melodies" unadorned by any frills and furbullous, unfolding to the listener the inate characteristics of the different peoples among whom they originated. Schumann advised his pupils to "learn well all folk songs."

Folk songs are pure melody, but there are certain fundamental principles which appeared even in the earliest of them—a feeling for balanced expression, a certain repetition of alternating themes, a "re-statement after contrast" which are very characteristic. And it is especially interesting to note that these are all found also in the Sonata, which is the most important instrumental form in music. So the folk song has given much to the more elaborate forms of music.

It has given method to the sonata, themes and airs and songs to many operas, especially the Italian, inspiration and material for church music, and for some of the finest oratorios. The English Glee School of the 16th century used folk songs in its madrigal writings. And the strong influence of the folk song can be clearly seen in the work of the masters of music themselves—Handel, Haydn, Gluck, Rossini, Mendelssohn, Brahms and many others.

It is generally true that the historical background, geography and climate will go far to determine the music that a particular type of people will produce. This principle is clearly illustrated by the folk songs of different nations.

The English songs are direct, positive, celebrating the heroic acts or tragic fates of individuals, lacking in imagination or romanticism, dealing with common facts and people.

The Scotch are more personal, intimate, sentimental. There are songs of melancholy, songs of patriotism. The music often has a mystical and unearthly quality.

The Irish folk songs have attained the highest perfection of melody. They are filled with a world of melancholy, due perhaps to the tragic history of Ireland. Their music has kept its integrity longer than some others. There are songs of vengeance, of regret, of love. The "Londonderry Air" is considered by many critics to be the most perfect and pure melody that we have.

The German folk songs show the same sub-stratum as the English. But they have also a certain pompousness and sentiment that becomes increasingly marked. They have many student, soldier and hunting songs.

The Russian music is melancholy, monotonous, feverishly restrained, sometimes tragic. There are boat songs, songs of complicated love and some lovely, appealing cradle songs.

The Italian folk songs have a romantic, intimate quality with a certain swagger and boldness. They deal with love and romance, and their melodies are closely allied to much in Italian opera.

Following the discussion of the folk songs of each nation, a group of illustrative selections was given. It would be impossible to describe them all. They were varied and interesting and lovely. At the end of the program, a final miscellaneous group was rendered which deserves especial praise. It was:

Swedish Lullaby
Mrs. Winship and piano
Czecho-Slovakian Folk Song
Trio
Slavic Folk Song
Mrs. Winship and piano
"Ye Banks and Braes o' Bonny Doone" Scotch
Mrs. Winship and Trio, with violin Obligato

THE BLIZZARD

Winchester Snowbound With All New England

What many people consider the worst winter storm since 1888 hit Winchester along with the rest of this section on Wednesday night, completely tieing up traffic and blocking streets and sidewalks practically impassable. It will be several days before the town is completely shoveled out, and coming at this time of the winter it is doubtful if the streets are again completely cleared to their full width until spring.

All old-timers have been arguing since yesterday over the size of the storm and whether it constitutes a record in these parts or not. However, it may be, the blizzard was of exceptional proportions and will long be remembered.

Starting Wednesday afternoon about 2 o'clock, a thick fall of light snow gradually grew to blizzard proportions. By 6:30 the full force of the storm had enveloped this section, blinding snow driven by a wind of hurricane force, making all travel almost impossible.

Automobiles were immediately stalled all over town. Where assistance could be obtained they were shoveled out or towed to shelter, but hundreds were left on the streets to be buried in drifts. Drivers and passengers either walked to their homes or sought shelter at the nearest available place. The velocity of the wind has not been equaled in a long time, and to face the storm was practically impossible.

Many Boston commuters were unable to reach their homes, and as many more, attempting to spend the evening either in Boston or surrounding places, were likewise marooned.

Yesterday morning found everything blocked. Trains and buses were stopped and the streets resembled open fields. Here in Winchester, snow plow gangs worked all night clearing the main roads through town. Only the main arteries were kept passable, to even to clear any others was

BADMINTON CLUB

The local Badminton Club ran into formidable competition in its encounter with the Watertown team last Tuesday evening. The Winchester club was outclassed by the visitors, who lead their division of the league. All four points were taken by Watertown.

No league match is scheduled for next week, but the following week, Winchester will play Framingham in the latter city. Special matches, however, have been arranged for next Tuesday evening on the local courts. Raynor Hutchinson—"Hutch" to his many friends will be the guest of the club. Other out-standing players have been invited and an evening of instructive and inspiring Badminton is expected. "Hutch" has held all Boston and New England championships, singles, doubles and mixed doubles, different occasions and is one of the leading amateurs in this section of the country. He has played in matches with the top-ranking players of the United States and Canada including the present professional world's champion, Jack Purcell of Toronto, and Douglas Grant of Halifax, Nova Scotia, who is the Canadian amateur champion. The latter is only 22 years old, but he holds unquestioned supremacy among all the amateurs of Canada and furnishes inspiration to the younger players by his consistent victories over the veterans of the game.

Canada is the real home of Badminton in this part of the world. It has become the national sport of the Canadians and tournaments are in progress constantly throughout the winter from Nova Scotia to British Columbia. The small town of Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, supports two Badminton clubs and when local competition becomes dull their enthusiasm is so great they journey over 100 miles for outside matches. The general superiority of the Canadians in their favorite game is well earned.

A new Badminton club has been formed this week at Reading where three courts have been laid out in the high school gymnasium. The Winchester club extended its co-operation in the formation of the new club and four members of the local team assisted in opening the courts Thursday evening. The new club has in excess of 30 charter members and hopes to double this number before the winter is over.

The Winchester club has 55 members, but would like to increase this number substantially. There are ample facilities to care for a much larger membership and dues have been kept at a minimum of only $4 per year. It is the hope of the active sponsors of the club to interest a larger number of the younger men and women in the game. Although it can be played with skill and success irrespective of age, the young men and women soon learn the game more quickly and become more rapidly proficient. Badminton has come to stay as a permanent indoor sport and is growing in popularity faster than probably any other sport in the country today. The men and women of Winchester are invited as guests to visit the local club and to try the game at any time. Next Tuesday's exhibitions are also open to all. Regular meetings are held Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at 7 o'clock and Saturday afternoons at 2 o'clock.

WILL FLY BIG CARD TO PRESIDENT

The search for a mail carrier born on Jan. 30, 1882, the same date as President Roosevelt, for the task of delivering to the President in person a 180-foot greeting card from Ernest Dudley Chase of Lakeview terrace, is still being conducted. The mail carrier selected will fly to Washington with the card, which is said to be the largest and most unique greeting card ever made. It is composed of more than 50,000 autographed postage stamps.

To date, two mail carriers with Jan. 30 as their birthday have been found, but neither was born in the same year as the President. The men are Richard T. O'Neil of Stoughton, born on Jan. 30, 1904, and Clifford O. Shook, of Victoria, Kansas, born Jan. 30, 1899.

The card originally was to weigh more than 100 pounds, but Mr. Chase was informed yesterday by Postmaster William E. Hurley that because of postal regulations for first class air mail the card will have to be kept to 100 inches length and girth, and cannot weigh over 70 pounds. Despite this lightening of weight, the card will probably still be the largest ever made, with more than 50 folding pages that will exceed 160 feet in length.

MR. CRABTREE THE SPEAKER

Mr. Paul L. Crabtree, president of the Caproni Galleries and residing at 25 Westland avenue this town, was the guest speaker at the meeting of the Advertising Club of Boston held Tuesday noon in the Georgian Room at the Hotel Statler. For one hundred years, museums have gone to Caproni's for their Venus de Milos, and recently the advertisers of America have turned to them for plastic reproductions of their manufactured products. The saw mill operator in Maine, then a real estate dealer, Mr. Crabtree joined Caproni Galleries ten years ago, and in two years became its president.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR

Lecture

The first of the 1935 lectures sponsored by the Winchester Chapter of the Guild of the Infant Saviour was held on Friday morning, Jan. 18 at the home of Mrs. Virgil Ghirardini, 12 Foxcroft road. The graciousness of the hostess, the excellent musical program given by Deran Dengian, dramatic bass baritone and the fine lecture by the Rev. Terrence Connelly, S.J., made it a morning we will long remember. Mrs. Thomas T. Caulfield and Mrs. Coren H. Hintlian, pourers assisted by Mrs. Frances R. Mullin and Mrs. Owen J. Logue were in charge of the morning coffee. Mrs. Allen L. Beausang and Mrs. William F. Hickey were the ushers.

The president of the Winchester Chapter, Mrs. Margaret T. Hintlian, introduced the guest artist of the day, Deran Dinjian. Mr. Dinjian is an advanced private student at the New England Conservatory of Music. He shows great promise of becoming one of our outstanding singers. The artist opened his program with "Ombra mai fu" from the opera "Xerxes." "Simon Boccanegra di" by Verdi and "Drakes Drums" by H. Newbolt were the second and third numbers by Mr. Dinjian. "Water Boy" by Robinson, was the encore which pleased the audience very much. Assisting Mr. Dinjian as his accompanist, was Mrs. Esther Hennessy, whose ability needs no introduction. Mrs. Hennessy is a graduate of the New England Conservatory and for several years was the instructor of music at Maycliff Academy, Arlington Heights.

The speaker for this morning was the Rev. Terrence Connelly, S.J., professor of English poetry at the Boston College graduate school. He is a recognized authority on Irish Literature and is known both in this country and in Ireland as a competent critic of Irish drama. He is the author of the book, "The Poems of Francis Thompson," which is recognized as the most authoritative book in its particular field. He has come into the public notice within the last few weeks by his criticism of Sean O'Casey's "Within the Gates." This criticism was given at the request of Mayor Mansfield who prohibited the showing in Boston. Father Connelly chose as his subject, "The Abbey Theater and Contemporary Irish Drama" and at the request of his audience spoke of the play in question. The Abbey players try to reconcile their plays to Irish tradition but for various reasons this is difficult. Going back to earl times, the first to take up drama in Ireland were not the natives, but Ascendency Irish, very often referred to as "More Irish than English, and more English than Irish." In this class we find William Butler Gates, Lady Gregory and Lenox Robinson, prominent playwright and the present head of Abbey Theater. The plays accepted by this group are not true portrayals of everyday life, but are often extremes of one kind or another. In "The Big House" we find the Irish people in an over dramatized light while no one accepts "Peg O' My Heart" as indicative of the Irish girl. This play is sheer sentimentality. The Abbey Theater in Dublin became a place of free thought and free speech. The Nationalists went to laugh at the Unionists and the Free Staters at the Republicans. Into this group came the young author, Sean O'Casey. He was born in the slums of Dublin in a very sordid environment. He practically never went to school, but started working at a very tender age and at very difficult work which embittered his life. He became very radical and writing became the outlet for his tremendous power. He went frequently to the Abbey and became interested in the drama. He submitted several plays before, "Juno and the Paycock," was accepted. It was not his work, but the timeliness of his themes that brought audiences to his plays. He is a pacifist regarding war, a socialist regarding government and a cynic regarding life. O'Casey was requested by the Irish people to go to England to live and while he was there, wrote and produced "Within the Gates" (of Hyde Park).

So much has been said and printed about the theme of this play that it is not necessary to go into it again. The characters are all symbolic and the theme futility of religion. The author is crying out against the bitterness, the defeatism, and the traditions of a world that has lost its faith and its hope and can find no guidance in those to whom it looks for help. It has a false view on life and while we do not feel it necessary for all characters in a play to end as saints at least they should leave us with something beside despair of life at the end.

The next morning lecture will be held at the home of Mrs. Earl M. Wood, 121 Church street on Feb. 15. This lecture will be at 2:30 p. m. and the speaker will be the Rev. Fr. Russel Sullivan, and his subject, "The League of Decency" will be most interesting. Tea will be served.

Glee Club

The Glee Club will hold its next rehearsal at the home of Lucia McKenzie, 65 Hemingway street on next Thursday evening. The Glee Club has been invited by the Kimball Trio of Woburn, to assist them in a musicale given for the benefit of St. Anthony's Church. Further announcement will be given at a later date.

Regular Meeting

The regular meeting of the Guild was held on Tuesday, Jan. 22. This was a sewing day and the hostesses were Mrs. Rose Drohen, Mrs. Mary L. DeMorris, Mrs. Mary Dissel, Mrs. Mae Doherty and Mrs. Jane Dunn. Plans were discussed for the formation of a new study group, which will include current events and book reviews.

The next regular meeting will be held on Feb. 12 with Mrs. Edna Hickey as chairman. At this meeting, Miss Lillian Clark of Somerville, will cut silhouettes.

CAMP REUNION

Several Winchester children were among the group of nearly 200 boys and girls from greater Boston who attended the annual mid-winter reunion and banquets of Camps Wyanoke and Winnemont, held at the Hotel Statler, Saturday.

The two camps held separate dinners, Wyanoke using the Georgian room and Winnemont an adjoining banquet hall. Following the banquets, both groups gathered in the Georgian room where they were entertained by the Floyds, magicians and mind-readers and by dances given by the Winnemont girls.

Mr. Walter H. Bentley, 24 Central street, owner of the camps and director of Camp Wyanoke, headed the list of speakers at the boys' banquet. David Ritchie, 48 Wedgemere avenue represented the Midget Camp, and Mr. Robert L. Nichols of the Department of Geology at Tufts College, the Alumni.

Winchester boys who attended the reunion included Parker, Wallace, and Charles Blanchard, Joseph Burton, David Chamberlain, Burton Cleaves, David Ritchie and Robert Richmond. Members of the Wyanoke Council staff present from Winchester were Bradford M. Bentley, William Gilpatric and William S. Allen.

BRYANT & STRATTON 70TH ANNIVERSARY

In January, 1865, Messrs. Bryant, Stratton and Co., opened the doors of the old Mercantile Library Building, Summer street, Boston, "for the reception of pupils in writing, book keeping, commercial law, commercial calculation and cognate studies."

On Friday, Jan. 25, 1935, some of the 75,000 students who have attended the school since its founding will gather at the main ballroom of the Copley Plaza, Boston, to celebrate the 70th anniversary of the founding of the school.

The Bryant & Stratton Alumni Association will hold its annual meeting in conjunction with the regular celebration. Mr. J. W. Blaisdell and Mr. L. O. White, assisted by past and present members of the faculty, will welcome the alumni after the short business meeting of the Association which will be held at 7:45.

Arrangements have been made that members of the same class may get together to talk over old times. The 50 year class is making a special drive to have as many of their class present as possible.

Mr. David Sprague, who is in charge of the entertainment has been able to secure the WEEI Entertainers, consisting of Miss Willie Morris, soprano; Russell Dorr, baritone; Dorothy Curtis, accompanist, and Robert Barlett, humorist; who will furnish an entertainment of interest to all. Elgart's Orchestra will play for the dancing which will follow.

W. C. T. U. MEETING

That repeal has failed and some form of Prohibition is the best way and that the Drys are advancing another Constitutional Amendment which will sooner or later be made public, was the statement made by Mrs. John A. Graves of Newton, vice president of the Woman's National Union for Political Action, at the meeting of the Winchester W. C. T. U. held Friday afternoon Jan. 18, with Mrs. Daniel Kelley, 4 Dix street.

In speaking of the meeting of the National Temperance and Prohibition Council held in Washington in December at which she was a delegate she said that the Council had sent a resolution to Homer S. Cummings, United State Attorney General urging that the committees growing out of the President's Crime Conference, which was then in session, be asked to make a broad and comprehensive study of consumption of intoxicating liquors in relation to crime.

Among other resolutions adopted by the Council was one in which it was stated that the Council stand for and demand the suppression of all liquor advertising on radio programs, and one in which it was recommended to the national groups there represented that they seek state legislation prohibiting the sale of liquors at gasoline stations and airports.

The following resolution was also adopted unanimously by this national gathering of representatives from 30 temperance organizations: Whereas the repeal of the 18th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States has been followed by ever-increasing tragic results—drunkenness among men, women and boys and girls, the maiming and killing of thousands, a veritable slaughter of innocents—and whereas, these results following a year of repeal prove that national prohibition was not a failure but a success limited greatly by lack of adequate enforcement, and that repeal has proven an unmeasured evil; be it resolved that the National Temperance and Prohibition Council calls for the return of Prohibition.

This Friday meeting was well attended, 27 being present.

During the afternoon, Mrs. Colver Dyer entertained with three violin solos, "Old Black Joe," "Grandfather's Clock" and "My Bonnie" and Mr. Arnold Morse sang "The Old Road" by John P. Scott; "Little Boy Blue" by Ethelbert Nevin; and "Isle of Capri." Both Mrs. Dyer and Mr. Morse were accompanied by Miss Delia Whitney, and their selections added much to the pleasure of the afternoon.

After the program, delicious and bounteous refreshments were served by the hostess and a delightful social hour enjoyed.

EMBLEM CLUB NOTES

Club members are again reminded of the reception and dinner to be tendered the popular President of the Massachusetts Association of Emblem Clubs, Mrs. Elizabeth Ratigan at the Hotel Westminster in Boston on this Saturday evening, Jan. 26. It is hoped that a large delegation of local members will attend, and all who wish further information should call the Winchester Club President, Mrs. Kathryn T. Griffin, Woburn 0643-M.

Wednesday evening wasn't especially conducive to large gatherings of any sort, and as a consequence the long-awaited beano and whist, sponsored jointly by the Emblem Club and Winchester Lodge of Elks was postponed. It is to be held, wind and weather permitting, this evening, Friday, Jan. 25, in Lyceum Hall. Don't miss it!

TO FORM LOCAL AERO CLUB

It is reported that steps are being taken to form a Winchester Aero Club by a group of local flying enthusiasts. These clubs have been formed in many places and have proven of great value in fostering interest in aeronautics.

WOBURN HIGH DEFEATED WINCHESTER

Usual Late Start Hurt Locals' Chances

Woburn High School's smooth working basketball team added Winchester High to its growing list of victims last Friday evening, defeating the local quintet in the high school gym by a two to one edge, 32 16. The gym was filled with rooters, but there was no jam like a year ago when about 100 fans were unable to get in to the game.

As usual the locals were late in really getting under way, and with a club like Woburn this lapse proved fatal. Capt. "Dan" O'Brien led the Orange invaders and gave a great all around exhibition, scoring 13 points on five field goals and three foul baskets.

Big "Pj" O'Connor failed to shine as brightly as in past games, but was closely guarded by the local boys, and this fact probably gave O'Brien his big opportunity. A club with two players like O'Connor and O'Brien is a hard one for which to build a defense. Cover one and the other breaks loose!

Woburn went right to work while the locals were fiddling round, and had a 21—5 lead at the halt. After intermission, Winchester braced and made a game out of it, outscoring the visitors in the third quarter and holding its own during the closing stanza. The big first half lead of the visitors, however, was never seriously threatened.

Winchester had a bit of bad luck when "Slicker" Cass was banished for personal fouls and "Buz" Kendrick, who replaced him and was doing a good job, hurt his ankle. Woburn, however, was just too good! That's the story.

The game of the evening was that between the two undefeated second teams. The locals had a one point lead at the half which ended 9—8, but the Tanners came back strong to lead 18—12 at the three-quarters mark and ran this lead to 20—12, before Winchester once more got into the game.

Staging a desperate rally, the local scrubs pulled up, and up, while the stands rocked with excitement. While tallying eight points, Winchester was unable to prevent the opposition from sinking a single basket and the Tanners won 22—20 in a game that was anyone's contest.

Mrs. James N. Clark of Bacon street, who has been ill at the Winchester Hospital, has recovered sufficiently to return to her home. Mr. Clark has been confined during the week with the grippe.

A big oil truck slid off the road at Hillcrest Parkway Tuesday and except for two stout trees, would have turned over. After several hours work by two Mack trucks, the tanker was pulled out of the swamp and on to the road.

WINCHESTER HIGH GIRLS FIRST TEAM WON

In a practice game in the high school gymnasium last Friday afternoon, the Winchester High School girls' varsity basketball team defeated the second team by the one-sided score of 27—2. Jeanne Phelps' floor basket was the only one scored by the seconds.

"Dot" Glidden, with eight flour baskets and one from a free try, led the scoring. The varsity had a 15—2 lead at the half and the scrubs were unable to tally following intermission.

WINCHESTER GIRLS PLAY MALDEN

Winchester High School girls' basketball team plays its second interscholastic game of the current season this afternoon with Malden High girls at 3 o'clock in the local gymnasium.

Coach Loysen's charges lost a hair-line decision to Melrose in their opening game of the season, but hope to break into the winning column this afternoon. The varsity looked very good beating the scrubs last Friday afternoon and expects to give a good account of itself against Malden.

MILTON HERE TONIGHT

Winchester High School goes outside the Middlesex Basketball League to meet the Milton High School quintet this evening in the local gymnasium, first and second team games, commencing at 7:30.

The locals have been playing Milton in basketball for several seasons now and have always found the club from that school in every respect worthy foemen. Coach Mansfield's charges have been meeting with none too much success thus far this year, yet have good possibilites in most of their games, and once they play four-period basketball, will win their fair share of games.

LEXINGTON BEAT WINCHESTER

Despite high scoring honors to its Captain, "Frankie" Provinzano, Winchester High School dropped its Middlesex League basketball game to Lexington High, Tuesday afternoon at Lexington, 31—21.

Provinzano ran up 11 points, but except for "Little Joe" Josephson, the remainder of the club checked their eyes for the basket outside.

The men's performance of "Reveries" was perhaps the most sheerly beautiful bit of singing on the entire program, a nice regard for rhythm and nuance enhancing the splendid balance in the voices.

Contributing largely to the success of the concert were the soloists, Isabelle H. Winship, soprano; Josephine L. Taylor, contralto; J. Raymond Graham, tenor; and the guest artist, Walter Kidder, baritone. Of these, Mrs. Winship, Mrs. Taylor and Mr. Graham are members of the chorus, and it is having voices such as these that has lifted the Winchester Society above the rank and file of choral groups.

Mr. Graham gave a most creditable performance of Walther's difficult role in the "Meistersinger," singing the taxing high notes with ease and sweetness of tone, despite the difficulties of tempo and phrasing. His singing of the tenor role in "Faust" was particularly praiseworthy, his climaxing high B natural being splendidly sung in full voice without a trace of falsetto.

The recitative in "Faust" depicted the first meeting of "Faust" and "Marguerite" during the Kermess Scene in the opera, when the former is rebuffed in his attempt to accompany the maiden home. Beside Mr. Graham as "Faust," the role of "Marguerite" was sung by Mrs. Winship, Mrs. Taylor singing the role of "Sybil" and Mr. Kidder, "Mephistopheles." Mrs. Winship sang the brief passage allotted her effectively as always, and Mrs. Taylor's rich contralto gave much pleasure in a part that was also all too brief.

No artist the Society has introduced to Winchester has been more generally satisfactory than Mr. Kidder. Returning, after a four years' absence which spanned the time between the Society's first concert and last Tuesday evening, he was warmly, even enthusiastically welcomed, the choristers joining in the applause. In assisting the chorus in the Wagner and Gounod numbers he displayed his vocal versatility by singing widely varying bass roles with equal success. As Hans Sachs in "Die Meistersinger" his voice took on the stately sonority of the sturdy self-respecting "Master," and he sung Sachs' long, vocally taxing solo, with its often recurring high E, with a dignity that contrasted sharply from the polished sardonic note demanded by the role of "Mephistopheles" in "Faust."

Mr. Kidder sang his widely varying solo group with equal effectiveness. Perhaps from the standpoint of the audience, the familiar "Home on the Range" by Guion, which was sung simply with a beautiful velvety tone, and the dramatic "Nichavo," with its atmosphere of fatalistic despair and spectacular ending, had the greatest appeal; but especial mention should be made of the singer's masterful control of tone and breathing in the selection by Charles, his voice at times diminishing to a finely sustained legato that was a merest musical whisper.

Those who heard Mr. Kidder at the Society's first concert hoped he would include "On the Road to Mandalay" among his selections, and as an encore he sang, in response to request, Ollie Speaks' arrangement of the famous Kipling poem, sang it with all the verve and fire that his admirers have come to associate with his performance of this much maligned favorite. Recalled by sustained applause, which the usual bow failed to dispell, he sang Loud's tender little song with much charm.

Besides a voice of virile resonance and great range with much of the desirable bass quality in its lower register, Mr. Kidder brings to the platform, a personality wholly pleasing.

Especially gracious were the commendatory pat he bestowed upon the shoulder of his younger colleague, Mr. Graham, at the conclusion of the "Meistersinger" and his insistance that his accompanist share in the applause at the end of his solo group.

The Society's director, Mr. Wilson, faced a difficult task in the Wagner selection and in masterly fashion conducted the big chorus through the many pitfalls with which this score is beset. He was especially happy in his choice of tempo for the Faust waltz, and generally kept the performance of the chorus alive and interesting. He was warmly applauded when he appeared upon the platform, and again at each reappearance, receiving an ovation at the conclusion of the program, in which his choristers joined. Only those who know the difficulty of ensemble singing in the Town Hall can really appreciate the excellence of his leadership.

The accompanist, Mrs. Witham, again demonstrated her ability as a pianist, and was especially helpful in supporting the chorus in the "Meistersinger," a difficult task in view of the heavily orchestrated score which is considered a necessary part of the performance on the operatic stage. For Mr. Kidder, she adjusted herself readily to the varying moods of his songs, overcoming such difficulties of technique as presented themselves with ease.

Miss Wilcox's playing in the accompaniments arranged for four hands added greatly to the evening's pleasure. In the closing waltz she and Mrs. Witham performed brilliantly and richly merited their share of the applause which followed their playing of the fast moving passages which brought the selection to a close.

MRS. WHITEHOUSE WILL DIRECT THE BELLAMY TRIAL

The Winchester Unitarian Players have arranged an interesting program for their monthly meeting on Jan. 28 in the Unitarian parish house.

Doris Branson Whitehouse will speak on, "Play Production from the Point of View of a Professional." Mrs. Whitehouse founded and has run for many years the Whitehouse Academy of Dramatic Arts, located for several years in Copley Square. Mrs. Whitehouse was brought up in the professional theatre and played in professional companies until her marriage. Since then she has been a teacher and a director of many amateur productions.

At present, in addition to her own school, Mrs. Whitehouse is in charge of dramatics at Dorchester High School, at Roxbury Memorial High School and at St. Paul's Cathedral. She also heads the Department of Speech at Portia Law School.

The Unitarian Players are so fortunate as to have secured Mrs. Whitehouse to coach the play, "The Bellamy Trial," which they will present on March 15 and 16 in Metcalf Hall.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

The officers and directors elected are as follows:

Commodore Marshall W. Symmes
Vice Commodore Stafford Rogers
Secretary Harry A. Gardner
Treasurer Kenneth M. Pratt
Crew Captain Ray A. Pistorino
Directors Daniel F. Barnard, Robert B. Blackler, G. Dwight Cabot, George B. Commings, Robert B. Graham, Dwight H. Hill, Willard R. Locke, Clarence W. Russell.

Although it was close to zero outside, the largest number of members who have turned out to an annual meeting were on hand. It seemed to indicate that the much increased activities of the past year have brought added enthusiasm.

The meeting passed a vote of thanks to Willard Locke, Clarence Russell, Marshall Symmes and "Gus" Pistorino for their untiring efforts in putting through the new swimming pool.

Mention was made of the increased showing of the paddlers this past season.

With two large meets on Mystic Lake and four major regattas outside of Winchester, the boat club's crewmen made a very good showing. The 4th of July Canoe Marathon, the first to be held on the Aberjona, was also a success.

It was voted to allow members use of the tennis court free this year. And a flat charge of 25c to be made for members with guests, playing.

After the meeting, members were treated to refreshments and did the hot coffee go good!

A session of ping pong followed at which it is understood that "Gus" Pistorino, the club's "darkhorse" was unhossed by one elongated gentleman with initials, "C. W. R."

MIXED BOWLING STARTS

THERE OUGHT TO BE A LAW!

Winchester, Mass.
Jan. 20, 1935

To the Editor of the Star:

Some people like cats (unlike a recent "Star" contributor!) Others, believe it or not, like police dogs. Our beautiful tiger kitty, adored pet, not only of our entire family, but of the surrounding neighborhood, was tranquilly sitting on his own front doorstep recently, when one or possibly two of these ferocious creatures covered him before he could escape, and tore his right hind leg from its socket. Now we have no Fluffy, and are inconsolable.

Just an incident in a police dog's day!

A RECTIFIED MISTAKE

I read in the Star of Jan. 18 that Mr. Aaron C. Bell came to Winchester in 1864 and built a home for his family. I wish to say that the house on Forest street in which Mr. Bell lived was built fully 12 years before he came to town, by my mother's oldest brother, Mr. Henry Richardson.

It was rented by several families, before Mr. Bell came and bought it of Mr. Samuel Richard-on.

It is such an old land mark on my grandfather's farm that I wished to correct the error.

HORSE AND DOG RACING TRACKS NEAR WINCHESTER

I believe it will be of interest to the citizens of Winchester to know that an application has been filed with the State Racing Commission for a license to establish a Horse Racing Track in Medford.

The applicant is the Middlesex Racing Association, Inc., and their track is to be located on land bounded by the Fellsway, Riverside avenue and the new boulevard, which runs from Mystic avenue across the Fellsway and connects with the Revere Beach Boulevard.

Another application has been filed for a horse racing track to be located in East Boston. Under the law, however, a license cannot be issued for a horse racing track to be located within 50 miles of another horse racing track, so if the State Racing Commission decides to grant a license for the East Boston Track, it cannot grant one for the Medford track.

An application has also been filed with the State Racing Commission for a license to conduct dog racing in Medford, upon the site formerly known as Combination Park.

Within the near future the State Racing Commission will consider these applications, and I am bringing this matter to the attention of the citizens of Winchester at this time, so that they may register their approval or disapproval with the State Racing Commission. Letters should be addressed to the State Racing Commission, 15 Ashburton place, Boston, Mass.

Very truly yours,
William E. Ramsdell,
Representative 29th Middlesex District

MY SONS—AND YOURS

By B. C. Forbes

I have four sons, two of them approaching the age when they must go out and face the earning of a living.

President Roosevelt's recently announced ambition to have the Government guarantee "the security of the home, the security of livelihood and the security of social insurance" causes me to wonder if the prospect of so much sheltering, so much safeguarding, so much financial protection, so much paternalism will cause them to discount, disregard, despise my teachings.

I have tried to impress upon them that they must fit themselves to make their own way in the world, that they must develop self-reliance, that they must cultivate a spirit of manly independence, that they must be prepared to earn every penny coming to them, that they must expect nothing for nothing in this world.

To achieve this, I have emphasized that they must be studious and industrious, that they must exercise rational frugality and self-denial until they have accumulated a competency, that they must aspire not only to take care of themselves and their dependents, but to acquire means to aid generously those who are in need.

I have warned them against extravagance, ostentation, thriftlessness, thoughtlessness, in order that they may escape the hardships and humiliations which befall so many in old age, explaining that it is infinitely better to be able to bestow charity than to be compelled to accept it.

"Don't let any professor convince you," I tell them, "that the world owes you a living. Get it firmly into your head that it is up to you to fit yourself to earn a living and that you will encounter plenty of competition. Don't hesitate to sacrifice in the fore part of your life if you hope to fare well in the later part of your life. Rainy days will come. Make diligent provision for them."

I tell them that, going forth in this spirit, eager to put more into the world than they hope to take out of it, and possessing unshakable faith in the eternal laws of justice and righteousness, they will find life joyous, they will accept difficulties as a challenge to their manhood, that, doing the right, they will never be tempted to give way to despair, but will find their own life increasing in happiness and service with the passing years.

Above all, that they must not be drones, loafers, leaners; that they must exert themselves to the utmost to be useful; that through self-discipline and self-denial they may reasonably hope to earn the means to practice generosity and unselfishness.

Now, however, there is dangled before them the prospect of an earthly Utopia, ruled by a Santa Claus Government, pictured as prepared to shoulder responsibilities which I was taught could be and must be discharged only by each individual for himself, responsibilities which were portrayed not only as inescapable, but as essential to the development of sturdy manhood, development of the soul, development of sterling character.

I am somewhat troubled lest my own young men and other young men may imbibe the notion that hereafter there is to be less need for supreme effort, less need for self-denial and self-discipline, less need for sacrificing to save, less necessity for self-reliance, less occasion to worry over finding work to do in the world or to sweat to perform it unstintedly, less reason for systematically striving to provide for old age.

But perhaps such questionings will prove wholly unwarranted.

PREFERS STARS IN THE SKY

To the Editor of the Star:

A correspondent of the Star asserted in last week's issue that "the stars in the sky are beautiful, but don't you think if these were our only pleasures, we would be a nation of stiff necks?"

My answer is absolutely no. Why? Because the records of the dusty books do not inform us that Socrates, Plato, Aristotle and others had stiff necks. It is, I believe, a well known fact that the great Greek philosophers and hold their heads high and observed the beautiful works of nature. I, for one, am delighted when I observe the twinkling stars of the sky, out in the open, inhaling pure fresh air. I am aware of the fact that some folks prefer to squint at the fading divoyed movie stars in a theatre, where the air is not as fresh as it is on the outside.

I assure you Mr. Correspondent that I am an old fellow, and yet I am a member of no lodge; hence I am not an Odd Fellow. I trust you will hitch your wagon to a star and not develop a stiff neck. I assure you, some folks require rubber necks to observe the antics of some of the movie stars.

As for the Athens of America, I believe folks who scrutinized the columns of the last issue of the Star, understand why some of us call Winchester the Athens of America. If you desire information in regard to Winchester and its traditions since it was incorporated a town in the year 1850, do not hesitate to seek information at the Star Office.

Now listen! Assuming that the theatre was erected in the business section of the town, it would most likely be an innovation and perhaps a large number of innocent children would be present at the first performance, but after they attended the initial performance, I believe, the attendance would dwindle. Why? Because, I do not believe the children in the outskirts of the town would pay carfare to mingle in the congestion that is manifested in the immediate vicinity where some folks contemplate erecting a theatre. I for one do not believe that folks who reside adjacent to the Arlington, Stoneham, Woburn and Medford lines, will pay carfare to attend a performance in Winchester, when they can witness the same performance in the above named cities and towns for the same carfare.

And remember, the innocent children who reside in the outskirts of the town are not obliged to pay carfare to receive an education in our public schools. We, the taxpayers, furnish the transportation gratis in order that they shall develop into sterling men and women. The mothers of these children have no worry, so to speak, when the children are under the supervision of the school teachers. When the movie magnates desire to sacrifice their dollars and cents like the taxpayers, in transporting the children to the theatres, then and only then, shall I believe that moving pictures educate our innocent children.

And please remember if 99 misinformed people who have never witnessed a fatal accident in the immediate vicinity of our business center, vote against the judgment of one man who has witnessed several fatal accidents adjacent to our business center, that makes their judgment correct by an overwhelming majority.

I trust Mr. Correspondent that I shall have the opportunity and pleasure to meet you on the floor of the old Town Hall at the annual town meeting next March. I believe I shall be able to prove to you conclusively that the stars in the sky are more illuminating than the fading movie stars of Bollywood.

Very truly yours,
Patrick H. Craughwell

BLINDING HEADLIGHT CAUSED ACCIDENT

The blinding light from a headlight is blamed for a collision that took place Tuesday afternoon at 5:45 on Forest street in front of the residence of Mr. Alfred Lowe. Mr. Lowe's Franklin sedan, parked in front of his home, was struck by a Ford coupe, driven north on Highland avenue by Muriel D. Gregory of 224 Forest street, both machines being damaged, the Ford so badly it had to be towed away. Mrs. Gregory told the police that she was blinded by the headlights of an approaching car and did not see Mr. Lowe's sedan.

AFTERMATH OF THE STORM

Winchester center presented the empty appearance this morning after the big storm, with little automobile traffic other than the early food trucks. A temperature ranging around five below zero made it one of the coldest thus far this winter. Traffic was still unsettled. On the railroad one of the early trains for Boston became stuck in the snow just after leaving the station, inward and outward trains being delayed until the locomotive could be pulled from the drift. Although trains were off time Boston bound commuters got away around 8 o'clock. Busses were running on both lines, with somewhat disrupted schedules. Fair and warmer weather is promised.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Shortly after 10 o'clock last Saturday evening, Police Headquarters was notified that a young woman had been taken to the Symmes Hospital in Arlington to be treated for injuries sustained while skiing at the Winchester Country Club. Sergt. Edward W. O'Connell was sent to investigate and found that the young woman was Miss Virginia Clarke, 25, of 10 Chatham street, Cambridge, who had sustained a fractured right wrist. The accident took place in Arlington, and the police of that town were notified.

It is reported that the School Committee, at its meeting Monday evening rejected the request of the teachers of the town that an attempt be made this year to have the ten per cent salary cut returned to the town's pedagogues. A committee of teachers, headed by President Samuel M. Graves of the Teachers' Club, met with the School Committee after a meeting of the teachers' club, at which it was voted to ask for the return of the former salary level.

Miss Barbara Small of 12 Park road entertained a few friends at bridge last Saturday evening at her home. Among the guests included were Miss Anna Lee Pinkham and Miss Betty Weir.

Miss Virginia Wadsworth of 152 Highland avenue was given a luncheon in her honor shortly before she sailed for California. The luncheon was given by Miss Elaine Bacl, in Filene's restaurant. The table was effectively decorated in ships and "bon voyage" favors. Among those present from Winchester included Miss Barbara Small, Miss Janet Nichols and Miss Frobbie MacVicar.

Miss Janet Burns of 12 Rangely, is having a breakfast party on Sunday morning. Among those invited are Norris Chevalier, John Painter, Doris Carlson, Forbes Kelley, Martha Herrick, Arnold Morse, George Dutton, Dexter Derby and "Bob" Siggins.

DE LUXE RAILWAY TAPS INNER MONGOLIA, "LAND OF THE MIDDLE AGES"

Modern Asia is the land of the paradox and China is the home of many contrasts which even the head-line hunter may miss.

At a time when foreigners are leaving the scenes of hostilities on the Sino-Japanese front north of Peiping and European mail formerly routed via the Trans-Siberian railway is taking the long sea voyage through the Suez Canal because the Chinese Postal Administration refuses to send mail through Manchukuo, the Chinese Government Railways are advertising an improved railway service, with sleeping and dining cars, over a railway line not far inside the battle front, says Dr. Maynard Owen Williams in a communication to the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Lasso Ponies With Pole Nooses

Two express trains a week now leave Peiping and run to Paotow in Inner Mongolia. Not only does this railway, started in 1905 and engineered by a Yale graduate, connect comfortable and colorful Peiping with the Great Wall, the Ming Tombs the desert-edge city of Kalgan, highly productive mines of some of the earths finest coal, and the fifth century Buddhist grottoes of Yun-kang, but it carries one into Inner Mongolia. In this little-known land wild game can be shot from a speeding motor car, Mongol herdsmen lasso wild ponies with slip nooses on long poles, and a reception for the Dalai Lama scatters rainbow fragments made of silken robes through a princely encampment, where permanent quarters are reserved for distinguished foreign guests. The Mongol chiefs prefer to live in felt yurts, or tents.

Paotow, present terminus of the de-luxe railway service, is the hopping-off place for nomad life such as the deepest recesses of the Sahara no longer offer. Dangling from a telephone post in the city where railway meets camel caravan, there may be a bandit head, between whose lips someone with a misplaced sense of humor has forced a cigarette, to indicate that even the desert is being made as secure as possible for those who seek thrills but want safety first.

North of Paotow a fair motor trail climbs to the bleak Mongolian plateau where thousands of gazelles can be seen at once and in whose hills a wide variety of horned game awaits the hunter.

Here are several Catholic Mission Stations whose main contact with the outside world comes when a party of huntsmen seek shelter while engaging some of the finest, and least known, hunting in Asia.

Crossed by Trans-Asiatic Expedition

American motor cars more or less regularly follow the Mongolian trails and although communication with Urga, because of political conditions, is less common than formerly, there are a score of interesting regions within easy reach of Paotow or Kalgan.

The Citroen-Haardt Trans-Asiatic Expedition on its way from Paotow to Kalgan, looped north through Inner Mongolia, visited the Lamaseries at Petingmiao and Sharatsaren and passed Chinese New Year's Day as guests of Prince Shi Sao Nying at his desert camp before descending on Kalgan over a much-improved trail. The road from here to Peiping, by way of the famous Nankow Pass, secures the Great Wall at one of its most picturesque spots and has been much improved within recent months.

Near the Mongolian threshold to Peiping is a hitherto inaccessible region now open to the adventuring motorist. The tourist who seeks unusual experiences can spend a week in surroundings unknown to all but a few, but well worthy of study. No early Buddhist grottoes in Asia are as accessible as those of Yun-kang, near which now pass sleeping and dining cars from whose luxury only a few lucky travelers will absent themselves, however, much Buddhist caravanserai-enliven old grottoes of Mongol tribesmen spatter golden, purple or red robes across the barren plain as familiar to the hordes of Genghis Khan.

The golden Text is: "Teach me thy way, O Lord; I will walk in thy truth: unite my heart to fear thy name." Psalms 86:11.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon." Matthew 6:24.

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The Christ Mind rightly demands man's entire obedience, affection, and strength. No reservation is made of lesser loyalty. Obedience to Truth gives man power and strength. Submission to error supercedures loss of power." (p. 185).

NIGERIA: BRITAIN'S MOST IMPORTANT WEST AFRICAN POSSESSION

More imposing than the famous umbrella of Tweedledum and Tweedledee are the two gold-lettered ceremonial umbrellas made in England recently for Akenzua II, Oba of Benin, Nigeria. Each is 12 feet across and stands 11 feet high.

Large as these umbrellas are, they will not seem out of proportion in Nigeria, a country of Gargantuan extremes, where many things grow oversized, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Gigantic describes Nigeria: its extensive desertlike areas in the north, its broad savannas, and its mighty forests. Its equatorial rainfall reaches a total in some regions of more than a hundred inches, causing luxuriant foliage, trees over 200 feet high, and yams over a foot long. Through the country sprawls the broad, lengthy Niger, one of Africa's four greatest rivers, and one of the dozen great rivers of the world.

With an area of about 372,674 square miles, Nigeria is nearly seven times larger than England, and contains more people than any other British dependency except India. It swarms with almost 20 million people. Of these only 6000 are Europeans, several hundreds are Syrian traders, the rest are Africans. No other country of equal size in Africa has such a variety of native tribes. Each tribe has its own peculiar customs. African women near Sokoto wear rings that stretch their ear lobes to their collar bones; while women in Bornu stain their front teeth black and their canine teeth red. Members of numerous tribes wear artificial tails.

Nigeria is as definitely striated as a marble-cake. Along its southern coast a humid, languorous region of swamps, mud flats, and lagoons stretches inland for only 10 miles near Lagos, but over 60 miles in the Niger Delta. The 200 miles of coast comprising the Delta is cut by numerous creeks in whose brackish tidal waters mangroves stand. These trees are of economic value to Nigeria as sources of timber and tannin. One variety is burnt to obtain the salt in its ash.

The creeks are known as the "Oil Rivers" because natives, chiefly Ibos, thrive on their banks, exist largely by trading in palm oil. Seeking palms, they travel in canoes up the creeks sometimes for 40 or 50 miles. Nigeria is an outstanding producer of palm oil, and in 1933 exported 136,000 tons of it.

The hot, steaming coast of Nigeria and its immediate neighbors has been dubbed "The White Man's Graveyard" because of its diseases that talk the white trader. Until 1901, one out of every 50 white men died by disease caused by tropical climate; for it so hard that Nigerians make axes and ploughs of it. West of the lower Niger, Yoruba tribes often burn the forests to provide clearings for the growth of cotton, maize and yams, and then to savannas of grass, dotted with shea-butter trees. Natives use shea-butter oil as food or ship it to Europe for use in soap making. On the savannas, the natives' mud huts are fenced around with stockades, often of cactus, to keep out leopards and other prowling animals.

Crops raised by Fulani and Hausa in the northern Nigeria include millet, cotton, groundnuts, indigo and tobacco. Horses, cattle, goats and donkeys are raised and hides are exported.

In extreme northern Nigeria, grass yields to thorn forests and semi-arid scrub land achieved chiefly by stunted acacias. On sandy plains extending to the Sahara, dates are raised by means of irrigation, and camel caravans wind into Kano.

Kano, one of the great African trading centers, is over 700 miles by rail northeast of Lagos. Its aggregation of mud huts is enclosed in a mud wall about 11 miles in circumference, 40 to 50 feet high, and pierced by 13 cowhide gates. Between October and March, camels lurch through these gates into Kano, loaded with bales of groundnuts. Bales of these nuts, stacked up in pyramids of from 500 to 1000 tons, and protected from rains by tarpaulins, are as distinctive a feature of the Kano landscape as are the dye pits, camels and red mud wall.

"EVELYN PRENTICE" AT THE UNIVERSITY

"Evelyn Prentice" co-starring William Powell and Myrna Loy, which starts Sunday for four days at the University, brings this popular team back to the screen for the third time as husband and wife. The story was put into production upon the universal demand of the motion picture public who besieged the studios with requests that they be cast together in another picture. The decision finally fell upon the sensational courtroom novel from the pen of Mr. E. Woodward, who previously had written several exceptionally fine books that promise to live for many years to come. The story deals with the domestic life of a brilliant criminal lawyer.

Romance, humor and charm are said to be combined in "Anne of Green Gables," the companion picture, adapted from L. M. Montgomery's famous novel. The picture, featuring the 16 year old Anne Shirley, concerns a red haired orphan heroine who is as dynamic and amusing as she is wistful and appealing.

"The Private Life of Don Juan" Douglas Fairbanks' first film in two years, starts Thursday. Produced by Alexander Korda for London films, the combination which gave us "The Private Life of Henry VIII." "The Private Life of Don Juan" tells in vivid and amusing fashion the story of how the incurable romanticist, deprived by a trick of fate of his name and reputation, wanders from one lovely creature to another, determined to prove to himself and the world that he's still the world's greatest lover. The film offers Doug one of his typical swashbuckling, daredevil roles and is replete with vigorous sword play and breath-taking stunts.

"Behold My Wife," the companion picture adapted from "The Translation of a Savage," by Sir Gilbert Parker, co-stars Sylvia Sidney and Gene Raymond. It is the story of a white man who married an Indian girl to disgrace his family, but learned to love her when time and events had proved her true value.

Little Shirley Temple, will appear at the big Granada Theatre in Malden on Saturday when her new film hit, "Bright Eyes," opens a seven day engagement. Shirley Temple is cast as the only child whose father, an airplane pilot, is accidentally killed. The mother is forced to go to work to support Shirley. James Dunn, another pilot, and pal of her dead father, tries to protect the child as best he can. She becomes the darling of the airport and Dunn is heart-broken to learn that the mother, too, has been killed by a motor car. The snobby people where Shirley's mother had been working want to send Shirley to an institution but Dunn puts up every cent he has for a court fight. James Dunn and little Shirley make a great team as each worships the other and this fact is reflected on the screen in each scene in which they appear.

"One Hour Late" with Helen Twelvetrees, Joe Morrison, Conrad Nagel and Arlene Judge as the featured players, will be the second attraction on the bill starting Saturday. Helen Twelvetrees is cast as the secretary to Conrad Nagel and secretly in love with him. Nagel, however, looks upon the girl merely as an efficient worker. Joe Morrison is also employed in the office and very sweet on Miss Twelvetrees. But she cannot see him because of the boss. In the meantime, Nagel's wife is planning to run away with another man and comes to the office to tell him. Joe Morrison is the hero of this occasion and when the scene is over, he has a fat radio contract and as won the hand of the girl he loves.

MALDEN STRAND THEATRE

"Sweet Adeline," starring Irene Dunne, and "West of the Pecos" with Richard Dix as the star, is the attractive double bill opening a seven day run at the Strand Theatre in Malden on Saturday. "Sweet Adeline" is a musical spectacle taken from the sensational Broadway hit by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein and is crammed with hilarious comedy, delightful romance and stirring romance in addition to gigantic specialty numbers. Unique dancing numbers are staged by Bobby Connolly on novel and mammoth sets with scores of Hollywood's most beautiful girls taking part. Irene Dunne sings several numbers in the film also and sings a duet with Phil Regan, the singing cop of radio fame who also sings one solo. Donald Woods, Hugh Herbert, Ned Sparks, Nydia Westman, Dorothy Dare, Joseph Cawthorn, Don Alvarado, Jack Mulhall and Noah Beery are in support. The story is laid in the gay nineties, and concerns the proprietor of a Hoboken beer garden and his daughter, who not only wait on table but sing for the customers.

In "West of the Pecos," Richard Dix portrays a character which is reminiscent of his earlier creation, Yancy Cravat in, "Cimarron." Martha Sleeper is the heroine of the film, who dresses as a boy for protection and first meets Dix when he gives her a kick thinking she is a boy. And he continues to think so for a long time. Despite the disguise of Miss Sleeper, the romance continues to flourish throughout, and is cleverly interwoven into the action. Comedy relief is provided by a team new to picturegoers, Sleep 'n Eat, a new colored star who is said to rival Stepin Fetchit, and Louise Beavers who was so good in "Imitation of Life."

Earl Nelson's Radio Auditions are given from the stage of the Strand each Tuesday evening. These auditions are very popular and many talented amateurs have already appeared.

Mint sauce with lamb is believed to have originated in the fact that mint was one of the bitter herbs with which Moses instructed the Israelites to dress the limb of the Passover.

MYSTIC THEATRE, MALDEN

To the aged toymaker to whom they are apprenticed, they were just plain dubs, but to the joyous villagers of Toyland they were beloved heroes. Thus, Laurel and Hardy, stars of the M-G-M screen version of Victor Herbert's immortal classic "Babes in Toyland," which opens a seven days' engagement at the Mystic Theatre, Malden on Saturday, romp through one of the most delightful and humorous screen fantasies ever made. Everyone knows and loves the music of Victor Herbert's "Bo-Peep," "Castles in Spain" and the famous "March of the Toys" are only some of the melodies that are included in the score of "Babes in Toyland." We have been crying for clean and wholesome pictures that are at the same time exciting, interesting and thoroughly enjoyable. Hal Roach's picturization of Victor Herbert's operetta is all of that—and more.

"Embarrassing Moments," starring Chester Morris and Marian Nixon, will be the second feature at the Mystic this coming week. This picture is also a comedy and those who wish to forget their troubles for a few hours and those who like a good laugh shouldn't miss this show. It presents Morris in his first comedy role in two years, with Miss Nixon as his sweetheart and the well-known New York stage actor, Walter Woolf in the role of the best friend who is the butt of most of the practical jokes, much to his embarrassment and discomfort.

Every Wednesday evening the Mystic is giving away 25 valuable prizes free to the winners of Tango, a game that is played like Beano. There is no advance in admission, every patron plays free.

BAYREUTH: WHERE OPERA IS BOTH ART AND INDUSTRY

A music-loving world turns once again to Bayreuth, Germany, as that quaint Bavarian town prepares to commemorate the 50th anniversary of Richard Wagner's death.

Because Bayreuth possessed the seclusion which the great master wished the city now virtually owes its existence to the memory of Richard Wagner and his immortal music, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Music Festival Each Summer

Bayreuth each summer ceases to be a little German town, as thousands of visitors assemble there for the annual Wagner Music Festivals. For two months the Festspielhaus, the theater designed for Wagner, resounds to the strains of "Parsifal" and other of his momentous works, and for those two months Bayreuth is all bustle and stir.

The town's shops carry a complete line of Wagneriana in addition to their regular stock. They show souvenir postcards and photographs of everything relating to the life of Wagner, books about him and his works, and even a newspaper that was published in his behalf—a unique example of a newspaper devoted entirely to one man and his affairs. Shop windows display little busts of Wagner and streets are named for the composer or his operas.

Few visitors leave Bayreuth without first paying tribute before the great slab of marble, unmarked by inscription or design, that covers the master composer's grave. The grave is in the garden of Villa Wahnfried, Wagner's refuge of peace, on Richard-Wagner-Strasse. A few days after Wagner was buried in the tomb which he had prepared, his good friend, King Ludwig II of Bavaria, rode to Bayreuth alone in the dead of night to pay his last respects. Wagner's home is now occupied by his son's wife and her children.

Remote from Traveled Routes

Wagner City is just off the route to anywhere. Its very isolation endeared it to Wagner. Many cities offered to do homage to the master's operas as long as there were listeners to hear, but Wagner chose Bayreuth. It lies in mountainous southcentral Germany. Scale 40 miles west of the westernmost wedge of Czechoslovakia on the map and you will find it.

Nuremberg is another 40 miles south of Bayreuth. An airplane journey from Nuremberg to the metropolis of Leipzig would take a sky-sightseer right over Bayreuth, but the forested mountains that close around it compel the main line railroad to seek a valley farther east.

Once in Bayreuth, the interest is not in the heart of town but in the lovely little hill toward which a broad, tree-bordered boulevard points. The lovely little hill is a perfect setting for the Wagner theater. No other theater in the world is quite like this one. Wagner's aim was to knit drama, stage setting and music in closest unity. Only in this specially-designed auditorium, he believed, could his operas fulfill the ideal of his conception.

The Playground of the Gods

Viewed from without, the theatre is plain but graceful. Not until one enters do the unusual details of construction become apparent. Seats rise in tiers like those of a Greek theater leaving no space for balcony or gallery. The orchestra is concealed.

Near the theater is a grassy park, which nightly becomes "The Playground of the Gods." Wagner's operas are peopled with Pagan deities, giants, witches, heroes, heroines, dwarfs and monsters. Out of the stage doors they pour and into the park during the long intermission as if from a magic box.

Bayreuth, little-known before Wagner's residence there, is the capital of the Bavarian State of Upper Franconia. Its industries include spinning and weaving, and the manufacture of machinery, porcelain, and furniture.

HAY TO DIRECT "SPREAD EAGLE"

"It wouldn't be war. We wouldn't send in an army but an armed constabulary. England never fought a weaker opponent. She preserves order."

The above speech from the lips of Martin Henderson tycoon of 120 Broadway, who is an imperialist of the first water and thinks nothing of engineering revolution in the Latin countries to the south of us, that his investments there may better prosper, is typical of the snap and wit of "Spread Eagle," which will be presented by Winchester Post No. 97, American Legion, in the Winchester High School auditorium, Friday and Saturday, March 1 and 2.

This play, with a large cast of 23 people, of whom all but three are men, was first presented in New York in the spring of 1927 under the auspices of that daring producer, Jed Harris, who was the proud owner the same year of another hit "Broadway." It stirred the critics up to a furore of writing. It cannot be said that all of the critics liked the play. Men of the Woollcott School liked the idea and the early acts but felt that the compromises made in the last act were unfortunate. Journalists of a more sensational type regretted the suggestion that all wars of invasion were not holy but enjoyed fully the somewhat melodramatic finale. Controversial as "Spread Eagle" unquestionably is, it is to be expected that residents of Winchester will also be divided into two camps about the matter of the play. It is equally certain that like Manhattan's critics they will be unanimous in agreeing that they found the play mightily entertaining and never boring.

The play was then taken to London where it was produced with a cast entirely different from that in New York except for Mr. Fritz Williams in the part of Martin Henderson. Mr. Raymond Massey played the London version of the key part of Joe Cobb while in New York it was played by Mr. Osgood Perkins. Certainly Mr. Massey and Mr. Perkins are not very similar—none the less, the London press received the play even more favorably than did that of America, even though in language and situations it was American to the core. There St. John Ervine, though demurring to some of the play, said, after calling it a very interesting and finely acted play, "I recommend my readers to see this play. They may or may not agree with the point of view expressed by it; but they will be immensely interested in it." James Agate remarked at the close of a long and analytical review, "The play was well received. This was quite right since it is a capable, thoroughgoing, and sometimes moving piece of work." The reviewer of the Daily Telegram waxed enthusiastic, "The play sets out to deal with big issues, strongly and with understanding. It moves quickly, tells a story well and above all it carries conviction," while the Manchester Guardian stated, "It is in out a 'western,' but in dramatic essence a genuine comedy, with men and women who have authentic life, in spite of the tricks of their setting. Forget the pistols and the wicked wars and there remains a good play of character. Remember them, and enjoy still a stirring and ingenious entertainment."

All of this comment from the London press is significant because the play has never reached the dramatic hinterland in which unfortunately Boston has come to be classed by New York producers. Thus people of Winchester will have the first opportunity in this vicinity to see this really stirring piece since the acquirtments of castinv and staving, plus the fact that the plot is slightly controversial usually warn amateurs off, while the gods of the professional stage have not seen fit to put the play on the road.

As a matter of fact the Legion is more stimulated than worried by these difficulties. Its play committee is confident that the matter and particularly its manner of presentation are peculiarly timely to a period when naval treaties are being denounced and munitions makers investigated. The committee is pleased too with the large number of men used in the cast and with the virile and dramatic nature of the play.

Mr. Alan Hay of Brookline who will direct the production was a member of the Harvard Dramatic Club while in college and was graduated from Harvard in the same class with Osgood Perkins who played Joe Cobb in the New York performance, Irving Pichel and Vinton Freedley. He has been a member of the Amateurs, Inc. of Brookline for many years, a past president of that organization; for ten years a member off and on of the Board of Directors and is at present a director. He has directed amateur productions including those of the Amateurs for many years. In December, 1933, he had the pleasure of seeing his own play, "Stop Over" presented by the Amateurs. In this cast were two residents of Wincester. He was the director of "A Perfect Alibi" in November, 1933, and "The Middle Watch," November, 1934, for the Parish Players of the First Congregational Church of Winchester.

Tickets will be placed on sale shortly and the committee is following the practice of last year in offering a graduated scale of prices, depending upon the location.

NORTHEASTERN HONSHU: UNSPOILED BY WESTERN INFLUENCES

Northeastern Honshu Island, which was recently swept by a tidal wave and severely shaken by earth tremors, is one of the most oriental of this, the main island of the Japanese archipelago, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Unlike the environs of Tokyo and Yokohama, only slightly more than 150 miles to the south, this region is little affected by Western influences. Roads are narrow and unpaved, motor transportation has not yet driven ox-carts and bicycles from the transportation field, Western fashions have failed to make an impression upon the populace, European-plan hotels are practically unknown, and only a few farmers have adopted modern farming methods.

Coast Dotted with Fishing Villages

The coast which felt the full effect of the tidal wave is dotted with fishing villages. Many small harbors are havens for large fleets of picturesque Japanese boats whose operators derive a livelihood from large hauls of mackerel, sardines, cod, bonito, squid and herring that swarm the coastal waters.

At the backdoors of the fishing villages begins a vast agricultural region spreading to the foot of the lofty mountain range that forms Honbackbone. This region of rollhills is famous for its beautiful amas and is visited annually by ands of Japanese tourists.

veling along the network of , one passes through quaint vil-, well-kept orchards of peach, and apple trees, nnd vast farm that have been cultivated with precision that the plots appear as though they have been worked with one immense rake. A large portion of the farming area is in rice which ranks with the finest rice grown in Japan, while other leading crops are wheat, potatoes, soy beans and tobacco. Many fruit trees and vegetables in this region are from slips and seeds from the United States.

Hills Give Up Valuable Minerals

The few spots that are not cultivated are occupied by small forests. In the rummer, they are ablaze with color. Clematis, spiraea, hydrangea and a host of other flowers thrive under the protecting boughs of lofty conifers, Spanish chestnut trees and birches.

Here and there the hills are flecked with mining camps, for gold and silver have been mined in this region, and copper, coal, iron and sulphur still are important mineral products.

Sendui, which, in a commercial way, probably felt the effect of the tidal wave and earthquake more than any other large city in northeast Honshu, is the most important city in northern Japan. It has 143,000 inhabitants and is the leading market of the devastated region.

Sendai is the capital of the Miyagi Province, and is situated in a vast fertile plain. It is the starting point for excursions into northeast Honshu. The famous Matsushima Bay, which the Japanese will tell you is one of the world's beauty spots, is but a few miles from the city.

In feudal times Sendai was the seat of the Date family which, until a few hundred years ago was one of the most powerful in Japan. A large part of the recently devastated area belonged to the Dates.

Fukushima, which also felt severe earth tremors, is an industrial city south of Sendai. Here silk is produced from the cocoon stage to the bolts of cloth that appear on department store shelves.

LIEUT.-COMDR. RUSH TO SPEAK AT THE CONGO YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETY

Ahoy, my heartles! The next meeting of the Congo young people will be of outstanding importance, for the society is to have none other than Lieutenant-Commander Richard Rush of this town as guest speaker. He is second in command at the navy yard and especially well-fitted to give an interesting talk of life on the seas and with the navy men. Supper will be served afterwards with sailor boys as waiters. Come and enjoy the atmosphere of the navy!

Last week the society secured Raymond V. Hayward, well-known to Winchester young people as a teacher of English at the high school. Mr. Hayward read selections from his own novel. The time was up, however, just as things began to happen to the leading characters, and it was necessary for him to complete the hour with an outline of events which followed. The audience wasn't satisfied until it was certain the story ended happily.

Don't forget Sunday's meeting. The hour is 6 o'clock and everyone of high school age or over is welcome. Will you be there?

Miss Ruth Bowe of the Parkway, left last Saturday for a month's stay in Florida. Miss Bowe was accompanied by Miss Dorothy Phipps. Miss Bowe and Miss Phipps have gone by boat to Savannah and will drive from there to Florida.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

Marketing for Sunday dinner becomes increasingly difficult as meat prices continue to rise. In general, prices of smoked meats, veal, pork and poultry have advanced less than those of beef and lamb. A little meat and plenty of vegetables would be the best for budget and health-minded folks for many vegetables are very cheap—particularly potatoes, parsnips, turnips, carrots, beets, onions, cabbage and kale. A salad or fruit dessert is a desirable addition to a main course using only root vegetables.

Navel oranges, bananas, grapefruit and apples are plentiful and inexpensive. The first rhubarb and strawberries are available for very special occasions.

OBSERVATIONS

By the Observer

Every time we hear a Winchester fellow expounding some pessimistic view of life we have to make up our mind that what he says is because of his acquaintance with his own shortcomings.

It has been on our mind for a long time to write something about fellows who are all the time borrowing but will let it go by merely saying that there are many touching incidents in the life of the chronic borrower.

Believers in Winchester are as fine a body of citizens as will be found in any community in the state.

How many readers of the Star ever heard any Winchester fellow going up and down the town bragging that his wife is the boss of his home.

Let's see, how many years ago was it that high silk hats, better known as "plug hats" were to be seen on the streets of Winchester?

How many of the old timers can recall when there was a wooden rail around the bathtub?

One Winchester fellow says he would rather have anybody tread on his corns than have to eat squash.

There are two kinds of wives here in fair Winchester as elsewhere: those who think their husbands are not making enough and those who think their husbands are not getting enough.

A Star reader writes in to suggest that a considerable percent of our national energy could be saved if all salary checks were sent direct to the instalment houses.

In order for a Winchesterite to make his money last, it is necessary to make it first.

Imagine a man looking for an apartment to rent here in Winchester with a saxaphone in one hand and several children keeping close to the other.

ALAND ISLANDS: LAND OF "AMPHIBIOUS MEN"

The Aland Islands, whose strategic situation between Sweden and Finland, has brought them repeatedly into world news, are again in the spotlight as European newspapers report that the two countries have re-opened discussions concerning the refortifying of the Isles.

Forming a dividing zone between the Baltic Sea and the Gulf of Bothnia, the Aland Islands have been a buffer between the Scandinavian Peninsula and the European mainland for centuries, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Nearly 300 Islands

Maps show the Alands in the same color as Finland, of which they form a department or province; but Swedish is as commonly spoken among the inhabitants as Finnish. A glance into the history of the islands reveals that the Russians long dominated them, but there are today few traces of this former domination.

In all, there are nearly 300 islands. About 80 of them are inhabited—the larger ones by farmers who live by their rye and potato crops and dairy herds; and the smaller ones by fishermen, whose tiny villages hug the shores. The uninhabited islands are mostly jutting rocks, which are no more to the islanders than menaces to navigation.

The islands, including the barren, uninhabited rocks, have a combined area of 550 square miles. There are about 25,000 inhabitants, most of whom live in neatly-kept buildings of logs or dressed lumber. In many villages, only the steepled church buildings are of stone construction.

Aland Island, the largest of the group is 30 miles long from north to south and 17 miles broad. Despite these measurements, however, the coast is so deeply indented that few spots on the island are more than a few miles from a deep outlet to the open sea. Aland, unlike its neighbors, is largely covered with rich soil. Forests clothe many square miles. Once the forests were favorite elk hunting grounds for Swedish sovereigns, but game now is almost extinct. The open spaces on Aland are almost entirely in farms. One recent visitor to the islands called the men of Aland "amphibious" because they were equally at home behind a plow and at the helm of a boat.

Mariehamn, the capital of the Alands and the leading town, is on the southern coast of Aland. It has about 1000 inhabitants.

The islands belonged to Sweden in 1809 when they were ceded to Russia with the Grand Duchy of Finland on the mainland. They remained Russian until 1917 when the Finns declared themselves free of Russian domination.

The islands have frequently drawn international attention, particularly during the last century. In 1854, during the Crimean War, French and British forces destroyed the Aland's leading fortress. Since then, the political status of the islands and the question of refortifying them have frequently been subjects of international parleys, including consideration by the League of Nations. In the same year that Finland declared its independence, the Aland Islands sought a change in government. The inhabitants, by an unofficial vote indicated that they preferred to be reunited with Sweden. Finland granted the islands autonomy in 1920, but refused to allow them to secede.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

Annual Meeting of Scout Council

The Calumet Club was the scene last evening of the annual meeting and banquet of the Fellsland Council, Inc., Boy Scouts of America. It is estimated that over 75 Scouters turned out to the meeting, comprising men from all of our Districts, namely, Medford, Winchester, Stoneham, Woburn and Burlington.

Gunnar Berg, a member of the Executive Staff of the Boy Scouts of America, in New York was the principal speaker of the evening. Mr. Berg gave a most interesting lecture on the work of the Boy Scouts throughout the nation, and related the work of the Boy Scouts of today to the worthwhile citizens of tomorrow. Mr. Berg spoke of the silver anniversary in February, denoting the 25th year since the founding of Scouting in America, for boys and men. After Mr. Berg's talk to the Scouters of our Council, he had an engagement to speak to the Scouters of the Quannapowitt Council of Malden at their annual meeting.

Among other highlights of the meeting were the election of all officers of the Council for the year 1935 and the reports of the officers for the year just ended.

The meeting was one of the best ever held in the Council, and all of the men were greatly encouraged with the work of conducting Scouting in the Council.

Winchester District Committee Meeting

There will be a meeting of all Scouters in the Winchester District of the Council on Tutsday, Jan. 29, at 8 p. m. at the office of Dr. Richard J. Clark, 40 Church street. It is of extreme importance that all Scoutmasters, Assistant Scoutmasters, Troop Committeemen and all other District Scouters attend. Mr. Hilliad B. Holbrook, better known as "Skipper" Holbrook, of the Regional Office, will speak to the group. It is hoped that we will have a good turn-out at this our first meeting in the new year.

Safety Merit Badge

The following will give you some idea of what one Winchester Scout has done in his work toward earning his safety merit badge, and it was thought that the statistics which he has gathered might be of interest to other Winchester Scouts.

In preparation for his safety merit badge, Henry Wightman of Troop 2, Winchester, has found the following facts to be true in regard to casualties and deaths on our highways. These facts were taken from newspaper clippings collected over a period of six months.

Out of more than 500 accidents, which resulted in casualties or deaths, 14 per cent were caused directly by drunken driving, or in other words, one accident out of every seven. One accident out of every seven can also be attributed directly to willful, reckless driving, which largely includes driving at excessive speeds. One-fifth (20 per cent) of all deaths or casualties are caused by pedestrians walking along highways or crossing streets. Pedestrians are to blame for most of these accidents. A surprisingly large number of babies and small children are killed when they unconsciously run into the paths of autos. Nearly 20 per cent of all auto crashes are caused by a disregard for traffic laws; such as cutting out of line, passing on curves, not being careful at cross-roads, etc. There is no so-called "unavoidable accidents" where the direct cause cannot be determined. All these accidents can be attributed to carelessness, if not criminal negligence, on the part of drivers. If a driver is wide awake every minute, accidents would not occur. Whose fault is it if a driver does not pay attention to the trains' whistle at the grade crossing; or if he drives carelessly over a slippery road?

The summary:

1. One accident out of every seven—drunken driving.
2. One accident out of every seven—speeding and reckless driving.
3. One accident out of every five pedestrians crossing and young children playing in streets.
4. One accident out of every five—disregard of traffic laws.
5. Many accidents caused when drivers are careless and not wide awake.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

Mrs. T. Grafton Abbott of this town spoke Tuesday afternoon at a party held in the interests of the Emergency Relief Campaign at the home of Mrs. Albion Boothby in Newton.

Mrs. Chester Smith and her daughter, Mrs. Chandler Symmes were among the winners in the New England Women's Contract Championship last week-end in the Boston Chess Club.

Monday evening shortly after 7:30 a Chevrolet coupe, driven by Paul Ruggiero of 14 Sheafe street, Malden, while going north on Bacon street, was in collision with a Cadillac coupe, owned by Daniel Beggs and parked in front of his home, 2 Everett avenue. The Cadillac was damaged, but no injuries were reported.

MUSCLE-SHOALS, "NIAGARA OF THE SOUTH"

Muscle Shoals and its Wilson Dam, to which President-elect Roosevelt made an inspection trip and in the further development of which he announced an interest, is the "Niagara of the South" insofar as potential water power is concerned, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Muscle Shoals is off the main highways and railroads, and considerably south of the center of population, and is therefore not so well known to traveling Americans as some less important power sites, says the bulletin.

River Crosses State Twice

The Tennessee River, on which these rapids are situated, is the main tributary of the Ohio River and carries a large volume of water, especially in the spring months. The river, flowing far to the south and then far to the north, makes a vast bend, greater than that in any other of the major streams of the United States except the Snake River and the Rio Grande.

Some of the headwaters of the Tennessee rise in Virginia and the stream then makes two complete crossings of the State of Tennessee, looping between times into northern Alabama. It is the portion of the river that lies in Alabama that contains Muscle Shoals, a section of rapids 37 miles long. In this short distance the river drops about 130 feet, nearly a third of the entire fall between Chattanooga and the Ohio River.

Plans to improve the Tennessee at Muscle Shoals have been in existence for more than 100 years. The work was first recommended by the Secretary of War in 1824. This improvement was wholly for the purpose of bettering navigation. Work was actually started in 1831 and a canal with several locks was constructed, but was of small value. Further improvements to help navigation were made up until the World War, when it was decided to harness the river by a power dam and to utilize its electric energy for the production of nitrates to be used in the manufacture of amunition. The Wilson Dam was begun in 1916 and was not completed until 1925.

This dam is one of the largest in the United States. The river spreads out to a great breadth so that the dam lacks only about 700 feet of being a mile long. It is approximately 122 feet high to the roadway on top, and contained at the time of its completion a greater volume of concrete than any other dam in the world. Because of the great width of the river at the dam site, construction was very costly. Dam and power house have cost to date $47,000,000. The power house is situated at the south end of the dam and has foundations which provide for the installation of 18 giant turbines that will produce a maximum of 600,000 horsepower. Of these, eight have been installed and are capable of producing a maximum of 250,000 horsepower. The maximum at low water will be about 100,000 horse-power.

Since the completion of the Wilson Dam and power house in 1925, the plant has been put to very little use. Some electric energy has been sold to existing power companies, but at no time has the power house been called on for its maximum production.

In connection with the building of the Wilson Dam, the Federal Government constructed two huge factories for the manufacture of nitrates from the nitrogen of the air. The various buildings of one, situated at the town of Sheffield, a few miles down stream from the southern end of the dam, are scattered over more than 1800 acres of land. It has never been in use. The second, four miles up stream from Sheffield and close to the end of the dam, occupies a tract of approximately 2300 acres. It has been operated only on a test basis. The Government also constructed a large steam power plant of 80,000 horse-power with which to operate the second nitrate plant pending the completion of the dam.

Near City of Florence

The north end of the Wilson Dam is in the suburbs of Florence, Alabama, a thriving little city of 12,000 inhabitants. Florence is a typical inland Southern town of shaded streets, many of them lined with fine old mansions. Like other communities near Muscle Shoals, Florence felt the hectic war-time prosperity that poured liberal wages into the hands of 20,000 workers on the dam and nitrate plants. But the town had grown up long before, and today it shows no scars from the boom period.

When the Wilson Dam was built, primarily for power production, the possibilities of improving the navigation of the Tennessee River by the structure were not overlooked. At the north end of the dam is a canal with its flight of locks through which river boats are lifted into the Wilson Dam. Back water from the dam makes the river navigable for 14 miles up stream, but at this point a shallow stretch occurs. There an auxiliary dam is being built which will make the river navigable to Chattanooga. A small dam, also, has been built several miles down stream from Wilson Dam to make possible the passage of river traffic over the lower end of Muscle Shoals.

When the up-stream dam is completed it will be possible for Tennessee River traffic to operate from Chattanooga to the mouth of the river and on down through the Ohio and Mississippi to the Gulf, carrying its burdens of coal, stone, phosphate rock, coke, iron, lumber, furniture and farm and food products.

FORTNIGHTLY NEWS

At the regular meeting of the Fortnightly on Monday, Jan. 28, the Legislation Committee, Mrs. Vincent Clarke, chairman, will present an interesting program. The speaker will be Representative Horace T. Cahill of the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

There will be music and a social hour with tea.

Art

A morning program of the Art Committee was given on Tuesday, Jan. 22. Two motion pictures were shown, the first of Mr. Frank Benson of Salem who illustrated in detail the making of an Etching. The art has been known since 1504 and was practiced by many of the world's famous artists including Van Dwyck, Millet and Whistler.

The second picture, "The Last of the Wood Engravers" was taken in the studio of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Cole, at their home in Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Mr. Cole showed in minute detail his painstaking efforts in the practice of his art. The work is very fine and is a most difficult and slow procedure. Each line is cut with the aid of a magnifying glass on box wood cut across the grain. Since the advent of photomechanical inventions wood etching is a lost art and Mr. Cole is the last to carry on.

In spite of the danger and unpleasantness of walking, the meeting was well attended and those present felt well repaid for their efforts and those who remained at home missed a very plensant, worthwhile morning.

Preservation of Antiques

Mr. Adelbert Jakeman, head of the Department of English of the Westfield High School and a former Winchester resident will give an illustrated lecture on, "Old Covered Bridges." He will show all types of covered bridges, past and present, most of which are or have been in New England. Mr. Jakeman is a frequent contributor of articles of both educational and historical interest to various New England periodicals.

The tea chairmen are Mrs. Louise and Eleanor Bancroft assisted by Mrs. Mary Russell, Mrs. Mary P. Symmes and Mrs. Esther Bursley. The hospitality committee includes Mrs. Harriet Hildreth, Mrs. Mabel Nichols, Mrs. Mary Evans, Mrs. Maude Jakeman, Mrs. Nina Smith, Mrs. Flora Winn and Miss Susan Richardson.

Due to the absence of the press chairman, full details of the morning musicale on Friday, Jan. 18, will be given next week.

Luncheon-bridge and Fashion Show

One of the most enjoyable of the many pleasant social events of the current club year was the successful luncheon-bridge and fashion show held Jan. 21 at Fortnightly Headquarters for the joint benefit of the Philanthrophy and Scholarship Loan Funds. The hall was filled with tables for four, where a delicious luncheon was served under the able direction of Mrs. C. Elizabeth Sneedie, assisted by Mrs. E. Adele Emery, chairman of the Education Committee and Mrs. Nita Smith, Mrs. Mary Cass, Mrs. Jane Robinson, Mrs. Irene Sittinger, Mrs. Wilhelmina Chase, Mrs. Florence Sargent, Mrs. Mollie Keepers and Mrs. Aldine Drewson.

The highlight of the afternoon was the fashion show by the Knit Shop, that busy clever shop in our center. Miss Barbara Watters was in charge of the dresses and models, and Miss Flora Locke explained and presented each costume, while Mrs. Nancy D. Alexander played the piano. As each number was shown, there were many explapations of approval and much applause at the 35 varied costumes, some made by the wearers, but many kindly furnished by the Knit Shop to whom the club was most grateful. The ones most admired were the suits with three-quarter length coats, two-piece dresses and suits in the light spring colors, and a snappy bathing suit. Little Barbara Burbank was most adorable in two different knitted dresses. The grown-up models were: Mrs. Allan Wood, Jr., Mrs. Arthur Rutter, Mrs. Charles Woolley, Mrs. Warren Whitman, Miss Mercedes Speedie, Miss Evelyn Corey, Miss Florence Winship, Mrs. William B. Elmer, Miss Barbara Berry and Miss Virginia Danforth.

After the show, the card party started and the winner at each table carried home the "sweet" prize that had been the centerpiece of each table. During the afternoon candy and nuts were sold under the direction of Mrs. Margaret Hintlian by the following children of members: Adeline Hintlian, Hope Wilson, Joan Robinson, Barbara Sittinger, Nancy Norton, Anne Cole, Eleanor Waite, Betty Pride, Muriel Fifield, Marjorie Dickinson, and Lillian Speedie.

Life is so short some people you know whom you meet on the streets of Winchester haven't time for a smile, much less a spoken greeting.

A Scotch friend of the Observer tells this one: a Scotchman greeted a diver who had just come up from the ocean as follows: "Mon, had I knew ye were going to walk over I'd a come with ye."

WATER DEPARTMENT REPORT

Summary of Year's Work in Winchester

The following report of the Water and Sewer Board of the Town, which will appear in the annual Town Report in March, is of interest to all Winchester residents:

GENERAL REPORT

New Main on High and Ridge Streets

The extending of the water main on High and Ridge streets to the Arlington line is completed, it connects there with the Arlington high service, which is a part of the Metropolitan System, upon which Winchester can draw in an emergency. All connections are made and a meter installed ready for use.

Twenty-five customers, formerly supplied with water from Arlington, have been added to our system.

This extension proved its value at a fire off Ridge street enabling the Fire Department to save a large amount of stacked hay.

Most of the labor and some pipe was furnished by the E. R. A. thus reducing the Town's Unemployment Relief costs. The water main on Nelson street was extended and connected to Holland and Spruce streets furnishing a much needed circulation. A short extension was made on Tremont street.

New Real Estate Development

A new real estate development called Inverness road leading from Chesterford road wanted water and sewer. Carrying out the policy of the Town not to install mains on private developments, the owner was requested to install his own water pipe saving guaranteeing of a proper return to the Town.

Removal of Water Tank

At the March Town Meeting it was voted to appropriate $25,000 to remove the South Water Tank from Symmes Park to land already owned by the Town in the Fells. The total cost of the job was $20,887.75. The cost of dismantling and re-erecting the tank with new foundation was $8,060.55.

To connect the tank in the new location required 2100 feet of 12 inch pipe laid in very ledgey ground, the cost of which was $12,827.20. In the future, as the Town develops, this main will be a necessary feeder for the district. The labor was given to the unemployed and amounted to 10,252 man hours—$4,200.24, and should be credited to the Town's Unemployment Relief Fund. We consider the removal of the tank to the new location a good solution of a very controversial problem.

Increase to Water Plant

There were 31 new services installed and nine discontinued, making a net increase of 22. Last year the net increase was 44. There were 42 services renewed, last year 28.

Reservoirs

The sanitary condition of the reservoirs is becoming a serious problem.

On account of unemployment large numbers of people from the neighboring cities visit our reservoirs to pick blueberries and mushrooms. They do not seem to realize that the ponds are a public water supply and take particular pleasure in washing their feet and their dogs in our reservoirs and committing unsanitary nuisances in the bushes and under the trees which is bound to drain into our drinking water. We have posted many "No Trespassing" signs that require people to stay on the roadway excluding them from the shores of the reservoirs but we are not able to properly enforce these rules with the existing police force and we are asking for a larger appropriation for 1935.

We think in the near future it will be necessary to chlorinate the water as a safety health measure. The following is a letter from the State Department of Health:

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts
Department of Public Health
State House, Boston,
July 20, 1934

To Mr. Edmund C. Sanderson,
Chairman, Water and Sewer Board
Winchester, Mass.

Dear Sir:

A recent examination made by an engineer from this office shows that the watershed of the sources of water supply of the Town of Winchester has been polluted by fecal matters, in some places at no great distance from the reservoirs, presumably as a result of berry pickers entering your water works reservation. This condition, if permitted to continue, must inevitably result in the pollution of the water in the reservoirs and might result in sickness among the water consumers.

Under the circumstances, the Department recommends that additional inspectors be employed if necessary for policing your water works reservation with a view to preventing pollution and that consideration be given to chlorinating the water supplied during those periods when berry picking and other activities take place which may expose the water supply to pollution. The Department will assist you further in this matter when more information is available as to the most appropriate type of chlorinating apparatus to provide for the purpose.

Respectfully,
(Signed)
Henry D. Chadwick, M.D.,
Commissioner of Public Health

A great many pine trees have been planted between the roads and the shores of the reservoirs, making it impossible for the police to see what is going on. This fall after careful consideration, the trees being approximately 10 years old and the lower limbs dying, it was decided to trim the lower branches in order to have a view of the shores and to be better able to fight fire. This is in no way detrimental to the conservation of the water and is now done at all well cared for reservoirs.

Our forester and police guard for the past 16 years, Mr. Edward F. Shea, became incapacitated through accident while on duty and has been pensioned. The Town loses a very efficient, conscientious and diplomatic man who has done much toward the development of our water supply and he will be greatly missed.

The usual amount of policing has been necessary throughout the year consisting of apprehending of bathers, fishermen, destroyers of property, committing of nuisances, extinguishing of fires, caring for accidents, caused by inexperienced horseback riders, and watching suspicious persons. There were no serious fires this year.

The Board has forbidden fast horseback riding owing to the danger to pedestrians. The police officer is instructed, when in his opinion a horseback rider is careless and is not in fit condition to ride, to oblige him to dismount and return to the stable and notify the riding stable. We receive the best of co-operation from the riding stables.

The Metropolitan Park Police cooperate in every way and are a great help in caring for our property.

The Federal Government through E. R. A. has furnished us labor which is being used in cleaning out and stoning up the shores of the coves. They are also furnishing the labor used in trimming the pine trees. The extreme cold of last winter appears to have eradicated the European Pine Shoot Moth.

The usual maintenance work consisting of the care of the roads, destruction of the tree parasites, and the cutting of brush has been done. It has been the custom to employ three men all the year for this work but this year our appropriation provided for one man. It was expected that the Welfare Department could furnish the balance but this did not work out and we were granted additional money by the Finance Committee from the Emergency Fund. The Town has a very large investment at the reservoirs and it should be protected.

Employee Retires

Mr. John Hall, who for over 25 years faithfully and efficiently served as foreman in the Water Department having reached the age where the Town is obliged by law to pension, was retired. We are sorry to lose such a faithful man.

Cleaning of Water Mains

During the dry period in July, complaints were received of very low pressure of water in certain sections of the West Side of the town and we immediately started a series of tests on the system. It was discovered, that owing to the large use of water on the West Side for lawn sprinkling, the pressure had dropped over 10 pounds and in outlying sections it made a great difference. A few houses were unable to get water on their second floors. The west side high service pump was stopped during the day and only permitted to run at night. Customers supplied by the west side high service were requested not to use the water for sprinkling between 4 and 9 p. m. This they cheerfully did, thus giving the storage tank a chance to fill.

We are planning to install another pump in the spring. Our test figures on the drop in pressure were submitted to the engineering division of the New England Insurance Exchange and they reported that the 16 inch main in Bacon street which is 40 years old had been reduced to the carrying capacity of a 13 inch main by tuberculation and sediment and that it was probable that all the rest of the older mains were in the same condition. They recommended that it be cleaned.

We are asking for an appropriation of $2500 to be used on Bacon and Church streets.

We believe a plan should be adopted whereby a certain amount of this work would be done each year. The City of Newton and many other places have successfully used this method.

New Feed Main

The greatest drop in pressure appears to be in the new developments west of Wildwood street and on Pond street. To improve this condition, the New England Insurance Exchange recommends that a new 16 inch pipe be put in Fletcher street and a 12-inch pipe to be put in Palmer street, Middlesex street, Sylvester avenue, Royal street and Brantwood road connecting with Pond street. This would supply a much needed feeder to the West Side.

Freezing of Water Pipes

The early part of last winter was extremely cold, the frost penetrating to an unusual depth. Many service pipes were frozen in the street. This condition exists on account of the rapid removal of the snow from the streets.

Whenever we have an extremely cold winter we may expect freezing of the pipes and the department should be equipped with an electric thawing machine which will cost about $1000. They cannot be purchased on demand but are usually built to order.

Fish in Reservoirs

In the spring the State Department of Conservation volunteered to remove some of the fish from the reservoirs and place them in surrounding ponds where they could be caught. Traps made of nets were placed in the water and were emptied into metal barrels each morning, being taken immediately to the ponds where they were set free.

A large quantity of fish were removed, among which were some fine specimens. This work was done without any expense to the Town.

Collecting of Water Bills

The water bills in many cases have been larger owing to the water that was used during the dry summer on the lawns. At the end of the year there were only 10 overdue water bills, amounting to $71.59 out of a commitment of $52,238.15.

The Town adopted the Lien Law at the annual Town Meeting and this has been a help in collections.

Sewer Division

Very little sewer was built this year. A short extension was made in Chesterford road to connect to a sewer in Inverness road, built by the owner of the real estate development. In this way the owner is not required to pay a sewer assessment.

A section of trunk sewer was built from the end of Inverness road to Pond street through private property, in which the sewer rights were granted by Mr. Alfred D. Elliott without cost to the Town. This extension will be used when a sewer is built in Pond street. Twenty-one house sewer connections were installed and three discontinued, making a net increase of 18. Last year the net increase was 33.

As the years go by the maintenance of the Water and Sewer systems will increase. We believe both systems are in good condition and no major extensions or repairs are contemplated.

HEART TO HEART TALKS

By Eugene Bertram Willard

When men enjoy good health, are successful in business and have no real worries in life they are inclined to take lightly the more serious things of living. Death for instance. We do not suggest that every person think of Death all the time, but it certainly behooves all of us to live here on earth in such a way that it will be possible for us to live happily hereafter. And it is in the power of every man to do just that. We know the difference between right and wrong and yet a lot of men go right along choosing the wrong because it means some advantage to them. There isn't a single man in or out of Winchester but who, when he does something which is in direct violation of all the laws of God and man, knows he dishonors his own nature and also insults the Almighty. How some men can have the nerve to go to church or to help the church in a financial way when they are engaged in wrong practices. We call such men hypocrites and every community is full of the breed. When such fakirs come to die, one would think they would shrink with real horror at the thought of Death. Many years ago, I was at the death bed of a man who had lived a bad life and to hear his cries for God's forgiveness just before his last breath was something I have never forgotten. And the worst of his case was that he had some standing in his community, occasionally went to church and gave money toward its support whether he went or he didn't.

There is not a single individual who has not the power to "refuse the evil, and to choose the good." And this is why one's belief in a future life, in life beyond the grave, imposes some constraint on the life and behavior of even many careless and reckless men. Every man is a free agent, and unless he is completely "dumb" knows or ought to know that he will have to answer to God for the manner in which he carried on here on earth. Man determines his own destiny. So what man has to fear, when he dies, is not Death itself, but the natural—and eternal—result of human conduct. And what a man's conduct shall be is for him to say.

It is a wonderful thing to be able to believe in the existence of the soul after Death, the continuity and persistence of life for ever and ever. Such a belief dignifies and glorifies life. Thus man also yets a motive for living rightly. Nothing can take the place of belief in the immortality of the soul as a stimulus to right and true living.

The only possible reason for a man to fear Death is the consciousness that he has failed to win the happiness that was desired and yet which every man in his right senses knew he might have won. Only to such a man can Death be a terrible experience.

HEATING HINTS

I RECENTLY explained how to adjust the Turn Damper of your furnace to reduce Chimney Loss to a minimum, by leaving it as nearly closed as possible. Now the Turn Damper should be left in this position throughout the burning season.

Do not use it to regulate your fire from day to day.

The only time you should ever move the Turn Damper, after finding the ideal position for it, is at the beginning of the very cold season and again at the beginning of the very mild season—to take care of extreme changes in outside temperature.

For daily regulation of the fire—to speed up or slow down the rate at which the fire burns—rely on the Ashpit Damper and Check Damper entirely. (8)

WINCHESTER HOCKEY CLUB PLAYS TWO

The Winchester Hockey Club is down for two games this week-end, playing the Christian Science Monitor team at the Arena in Boston Saturday morning, and meeting the strong Woburn Cubs Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock on the Central Square rink in the tanning city.

The locals have been after the Cubs for a game and are confident they will make a good showing against the Woburn boys. On paper, the Cubs should win, as they are a much more experienced club than the locals, but the game is bound to be interesting and there ought to be a good sized gallery looking on if the roads are dug out by game time.

FOLLOWED BY MAN

Police Headquarters was notified that two girls had been chased by a man into a house on upper Main street Monday night shortly before 11:30, and Patrolman James E. Farrell was sent to investigate.

Upon arrival he found that two Winchester girls, aged 17 and 19, whose home is on Swanton street, had been followed from Fowle street in Woburn by a man who was described as of short stocky build, wearing a soft hat and dark overcoat.

The girls took refuge in the house of Dr. A. L. Maietta who notified the police. They were taken home in the patrol car and the details of the affair telephoned by the local authorities to Sergeant Brophy of the Woburn Police.

BADLY CUT BY BROKEN GLASS

Last Saturday afternoon shortly after 12:30, Police Headquarters was notified by the Symmes Hospital in Arlington that a lady had been brought in for treatment for a badly cut leg, sustained in a house on Cambridge street in Winchester. Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy and Patrolman John Hogan were sent to investigate.

Upon arrival at the hospital, they learned that Mrs. Ora E. Rand, 34, of 4 Waverly place, Melrose, a representative of a real estate office in Cambridge, had been showing two ladies, property in Winchester and had stopped at a vacant house on Cambridge street near the Boat Club, on which there was a sign " open for inspection."

Finding the door locked, Mrs. Rand was attempting to look in one of the windows when a light of glass under the snow, on which she was standing, gave way and she fell into an area opening over a cellar window, badly cutting her right leg.

She was taken to the hospital by her prospective customers and after treatment held there. The police notified the agent in charge of the property of the accident.

futile. Highland avenue to the hospital, South and North Main street, Church street and Washington street received the bulk of the labor.

Yesterday morning only a comparatively few people even attempted to leave their homes, and while at daybreak it appeared that the storm had spent itself, the snow started in again heavily at 8 o'clock, although the high wind subsided greatly. Snow fell until 11, when the first rays of the sun struggled through and it cleared rapidly. By 12, the sky was clear, with not a cloud in sight, although the stiff wind kept the light snow drifting badly.

Every available truck was pressed into service and large crews of men were kept busy clearing away the snow from around the center so that business should be as little hampered as possible. At the headquarters of the Highway Department in the Town Hall one man was kept busy answering telephone calls for assistance from all over town. It was impossible to render assistance to private individuals, and those, who like the physicians were obliged to reach homes on side streets were obliged literally to "walker." School for all grades was not attempted, the "No School" whistle sounding at 7:30 o'clock.

The first train out from Boston in the early morning brought a group of local commuters who had spent a more or less eventful night marooned in the North Station. Those who missed the train leaving the station at 7 o'clock in the evening, and there were many who did not get out of subway tie-ups until long after that hour, found themselves faced with the prospect of a night in the station benches. Among those from Winchester seen in the station during the "wee small hours" were Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Miller, former Selectman Vincent P. Clarke, Mr. Robert F. Guild and his daughter, Miss Frances Guild, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lloyd, Selectman and Mrs. William N. Beggs, Miss Jennie Nardin, Miss Barbara MacNiff, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Snyder, Mr. Lawrence Walters, Miss Helen Carrel, Miss Dorothy Kean, Miss Mary J. Gurn, Harry Boyle and Mrs. Lee Mellett. The last of those who attended the performance at one Boston theatre left at 3 o'clock in the morning.

nesday night were put up and cared for at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Cove on that street. Taxi service was generally suspended and it was a case of "shanks mare" for those who were able to get around at all.

Two pedestrians were injured during the storm Wednesday afternoon when the light snow on the icy walks and roads made the going especially treacherous.

Mrs. Nancy Sellon, the nurse at the Home for the Aged, while walking along Washington street to the Home at 2 o'clock slipped and fell in front of the telephone exchange, breaking both bones in her left arm. She was taken to the Winchester Hospital and treated by Dr. Roger M. Burgoyne.

At 2:30 A. L. Tasker, 60, of 24 Pine street, Winthrop complained of injuries to his shoulder after he slipped and fell while coming out of the Town Hall. He was taken by the police to the office of Dr. Roger Burgoyne for treatment.

During the height of the storm at 10:30 Wednesday night, Mrs. Teresa Sweeney of 45 Summer street, Medford, was discovered in a hysterical condition at the corner of Main and Cross streets. She was taken to the Police Station by Henry Brown of 1635 Main street, Woburn, and Carrie Petilla and Teresa Colussi of 38 Swanton street. Dr. Philip J. McManus, who was summoned, found her suffering from exposure. Her family in Medford were notified and came and took her home.

While local conditions were bad, they were said to be far superior to those in other communities where the work of "digging out" was not so speedily or efficiently undertaken. With customary thoughtlessness many parked cars around the center and left them there all day yesterday, adding to the difficulties that beset those laboring to clear the business district of snow. Hand shoveling was necessary to clear both Cross street and High street, the power scrapers being unable to get through the snow.

Winchester was completely snowbound. Visitors to the center at 8 o'clock found only the middle of the main roads opened at all for traffic, and they had no difficulty using the street, for there were no automobiles to bother. The center presented a strange appearance not equalled since pre-automobile days. Beyond one or two cars buried in snow drifts, nothing on wheels was in sight, although trucks for clearing the snow soon made their appearance. Little or no attempt was made to clear sidewalks, even in the center, until well after noon.

Interest centered naturally in the condition of the railroad, and the main line north of the center presented a strange appearance with its unbroken stretch of snow. At 7:50 an inward milk train, hauled by two big 2700 and 2600 locomotives, went in, followed shortly by a short freight hauled by a still bigger 3000 engine. An outward train, hauled by a 2600 engine, appeared about this time and stopped at the station to allow a big crowd of storm bound commuters to get off. This train, it was said, should have reached Winchester the night before.

The first inward train to stop followed a plow at 8:45, it being hauled by two locomotives of the 1100 and 1300 type and running six cars. Although empty when it reached the Winchester station, it was well filled with the big crowd waiting there and in the center, the latter crowd hoping to take either a train or a bus. No other inward train appeared until 9:15, when two 3600s passed in with one of the morning expresses. A half hour afterward a 3600 with two cars went in without stopping and at 10:25 a second inward train stopped and picked up a few stragglers who had definitely decided to go to Boston. Five minutes after another double-header also stopped.

Up to 10:40 no outward train appeared following the earlier 7:55. At this time the first morning train, the paper train, arrived. It was held at the station until 11:05, when it went up the main line on the inward track to allow a snow plow to clear the Woburn line. It then backed up and went up the branch. Up to this time no train traveled north of the center on the outward track.

Following this time the trains began to run at irregular intervals.

The busses, while running occasionally after 8 o'clock, were not any means of man-portation to count on. The Arlington line between the Highlands and Arlington fairly often and the Woburn line put through occasional busses. By 11 o'clock the average resident had definitely decided not to attempt to go to Boston anyway.

Winchester received its morning papers, which were brought by train, and were on sale in the center as usual. The delivery boys, although they made heroic attempts, were obliged to pass up many of their customers off the main streets.

There was no school, the signal hoist sounded closing all grades and the high and sloping the school pupils began to be strongly in evidence with snow shoes, skiis and toboggans. They had plenty of winter sport right in their back yard. The lady drivers were few, apparently those venturing out having trouble with their "knee action," judging from the towing jobs going through the center. This gives ample illustration of the severity of the storm and the difficulties of travel. Most of the streets about town, other than main thoroughfares, presenting an unbroken appearance, or at the most a foot path down the center.

During the height of the storm Wednesday evening, while tuning into Berlin for the German news broadcast, the editor crossed Bowmanville, Ont., which was giving the weather. The announcer stated that the temperature at Iroquois Falls, Ont., was 73 below zero, the coldest ever recorded, was a remark that an old Winchester boy, Herbert Butterfield, brother of Mrs. Howard L. Burnett of Highland avenue, makes his home there. White Bear, the announcer stated, recorded 78 below, although this place was apparently outside Ontario.

OVER 1200 PEOPLE TO SEE ANNUAL WINTON CLUB CABARET

With the show two weeks off, Mrs. Irving Jennings, who is handling all tickets for the Winton Club Cabaret, reports an almost capacity house for both Friday and Saturday nights, Feb. 6 and 9.

This is most gratifying to the large cast of about 100 Winchester people who have given so generously of their time, as well as to those who have charge of various committees, many of whom have been working since last summer. Especially is this true of Mrs. Vincent Farnsworth, Jr. who, with Mrs. E. B. Badger and Mrs. Stephen Neilley are responsible for the entire production.

Everyone indeed is the Winton Club to have in its membership, Mrs. Fulton Brown who again has designed all costumes. Once designed, and with patterns cut, the sewing of the costumes is relegated to large committees, this year under the supervision of Mrs. Parker Wilson, and Mrs. Churchill Hindes' name is here again as chairman of music. No one who has not seen a show in progress can possibly realize that this year accompanying all rehearsals selecting music suitable for the dances with the cast auditions, and sometimes even orchestrating and transposing entire numbers. Of course Ruby Newman will be on hand with his popular orchestra for both performances and for the last few rehearsals.

Mrs. Lorimer Slocum promises us very lavish and beautiful scenery this year, much of which has been designed by Mr. Joseph Gray, a Winchester architect.

Mrs. Henry Spencer, responsible for last year's words and for "The Old Town Hall" of the year before, has written lyrics for, and is coaching the opening number. People who remember her priceless, "Old Fashioned School" of some years ago will not want to miss this.

Many tickets on the show have been sold simply on account of the appearance of two great favorites, Alice Badger and Georgia Farnsworth who are doing a number together. Need one say more? Others are frankly loved by the patrons of the New Yorker to Bermuda which will be given away each evening.

Others responsible for the show's success this year are Mrs. Paul Elliott who promises a bigger and better program than ever. Mrs. Joseph Worthen takes charge of the floor, Mrs. Clinton Mason of flowers, Mrs. Alan Cunningham of refreshments and Mrs. Kenneth Moffett of publicity. The coaching is again in the direction of Mr. Frederick R. Child.

WINCHESTER REPRESENTED AT BANQUET TO SENATOR CHARLES DALY

More than 400 attended the banquet, including Mayor Mansfield of Boston, Mayor Kenney of Woburn and Mayor Irwin of Medford.

Among those from Winchester who commended Senator Daly were Rev. William S. Packer, who as the Boston Globe's famous "Uncle Dudley" brought the greetings of the newspaper fraternity; Chairman Henry J. Maguire of the Board of Selectmen, Chief William H. Rogers of the Police Department and Sergt. Arthur T. O'Leary of the State Constabulary, now Governor Curley's personal bodyguard, but formerly associated with Senator Daly on the Boston Globe news staff.

EXIT "PERSIA" ENTER "IRAN"

New Year's Day for the Persians, which is March 22, will bring to the ancient kingdom of Persia a new name—"Iran."

"Persia" was derived from the province of Pers, or Parsa, the seed from which the European nation sprang. "Iran" is the ancient name for the entire geographical region, which includes parts of Afghanistan and Baluchistan. In recent times, however, "Iran" has been used as a secondary title for the Persian political unit. (It should not be confused with "Irak," the similar name of the nation which borders it on the west).

"Land of the Aryans"

Persians have always called their country Iran—"Land of the Aryans"—and themselves "Irani," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. But at the same time they have looked upon Fars (the modern name for Pers) as the most typical Persian province, and even as the cradle of the Aryan race.

The official change in name turns attention to the country as a whole, and emphasizes Iran's 3000 years of strong nationalism. Its people have demonstrated again and again their ability to revive from major catastrophies.

At different periods in its development Iran has been overrun and even subjugated by Greek, Arab, Turk, and Mongol armies; but the Irani have clung tenaciously to their national characteristics and culture. Iran's two great poets, Firdausi and Omar Khayyam, helped to preserve the Persian language and national spirit through many troubled years. Firdausi's best known work, Shah-Namah, is one of the world's epics; and Edward Fitzgerald's translation of the Rubaiyat focused the attention of Europe on the culture of Iran.

Iran Is Getting First Full-Size Railways

Iran, two and a half times the area of Texas, is covered by a network of modern highways, in varying degrees of repair, following ancient trade routes. Until 1931 Iran was a country without railroads, with the exception of a few extremely short stretches of narrow-gauge line. But now railway construction is progressing both in the north and in the south. Plans call for the meeting of these tracks within the next few years so that the fertile provinces bordering the Caspian Sea in the north will be linked with the Persian Gulf.

Tehran, the beautiful capital city, is now reached by airplane, motor car or camel caravan, but before long it will be included on the trans-Iranian railroad. The capital has a population of 220,000; but it is utterly unlike most of the modern capitals of the world of comparable size. Its wide boulevards, along which traffic is directed by helmeted policemen, lend an outward air of modernity to the city; but the lumbering caravans of camels and donkeys soon dispel the modern appearance of the main thoroughfares.

There is, of course, a section of beautiful modern buildings including the post office, the Imperial Bank of Persia, the legislative buildings of the Majlis (the Iraninn Congress or Parliament), and the Pahlevi Palace, home of His Imperial Majesty, Riza Shah Pahlevi, Shah-in-Shah of Iran.

Former capitals of Iran, including Isfahan, Shiraz and Kazvin, are still important in the economic life of the nation, and combine ancient culture with modern industry. Isfahan, with a population of about 100,000, has a cigarette factory and a woolen mill. Shiraz, a city of approximately 55,000 inhabitants, is famous for its wine and honey, and is the home and burial place of two famous poets. Hafiz and Sa'di. Kazvin, of about 30,000 population, has a large modern woolen mill.

Tabriz, in northwest Iran, is on the great trunk route between Persia and Central Asia. It has a population close to 180,000, and many carpet-weaving and cotton spinning factories. Bushire is the principal port on the Persian Gulf. Pahlevi (Enzeli) leads all other Persian ports on the Caspian Sea.

Until 1906 Iran was an absolute monarchy. In that year, the reigning Shah was forced to grant a constitution, under which the National Consultative Assembly or Majlis was established. In October, 1925, this assembly voted to depose the young Sultan, Riza Khan Pahlevi, then Prime Minister, was appointed to head a provisional government. In December of the same year, he ascended the throne as King. Under the present constitution Iran's government somewhat resembles that of Great Britain. The Prime Minister is the constitutional executive and head of the cabinet, and all executive action is subject to the approval and support of the Majlis.

The country is divided into 26 provinces, headed by governors-general (Wali) and governors (Hakim). Both are directly responsible to the central government. All towns and villages have chiefs called Kathuda, who are usually appointed by the governors although sometimes elected by the citizens.

Iran is modeling its educational system after that of England. The Valiahe (Crown Prince) is attending a school near Geneva, organized very much on the plan of an English public school. A large number of government students, women as well as men, have been sent abroad to schools. A University has been founded, in addition to a number of teachers' colleges, technical and secondary schools.

The education of the youth in the time of Cyrus consisted of learning "to ride, to shoot, and to tell the truth" and this idea is living again in the National Society for Physical Education, founded recently under the patronage of the Crown Prince. The Persians have always been fond of outdoor games. Polo was first played on the Iranian Plateau.

REINDEER HERD ENDS SIX-YEAR TREK

One of the longest and most dramatic overland migrations in recent times came to an end recently when a great herd of 3000 reindeer reached the frozen wastes of the Mackenzie Delta, near the extreme northwestern corner of Canada.

For six years the hardy beasts had been led along a 1200 mile trail from southern Alaska, through blizzards and over lofty mountains, in order that Eskimos of the Yukon and Northwest Territories might have a means of supporting themselves in a desolate region where ordinary draft animals cannot live.

The average American probably considers the reindeer only as a picturesque feature of an otherwise drab Arctic landscape, as a decoration on a Christmas card, or as a draft animal for fanciful Foreign-Lands class a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Now Staple Live Stock

But up near the Arctic Circle, both in Alaska and nearby Yukon, reindeer are today what lowing kine are to the dairy farmers of the Netherlands, humble sheep to the Australian wool raiser, or hulky shorthorns to the Texas cowpuncher—utility unconnected with very much romance.

Within a couple of generations "Cupid" and "Vixen" and "Comet" and "Prancer," those legendary companions of ruddy-nosed Santa Nick, have become the staple live stock of America's Far Northwest. Santa Claus may use a streamline plane in making deliveries to the modern child, but in Alaska the reindeer has made a place for himself as a hauler of the necessities of daily life.

In northern Europe and Asia the reindeer has been partly tamed and forced to lend a hand in man's work since earliest times. Not so in America, where native species of the family, the Cervidae, are known as caribou, and are still wild.

The reindeer mentioned in recent dispatches from the North trace relationship to the first herd imported into Alaska, at Teller, on July 4, 1892. The herd was slowly enlarged by later importations, both from Siberia and from far Norway, and by natural increase.

Many Killed for Food and Skins

From the outset the deer throve, and as the number increased, other herds were formed and driven into the hinterland. Many have been killed by Eskimos for food and skins, but still the herds grow, indicating that the reindeer has become well acclimated on the North American continent.

The reindeer, however, does not have many young. One fawn a year is about the average per female. The rapid increase of the herds is due to two facts: (1) the remarkable hardiness of the fawns, which only a few hours after birth are strong and able to run; and (2) the early age at which reindeer take on mates and begin to bear young. Extreme cold rarely kills off the young.

Another factor that must be considered however, is the attention given new herds in Alaska. A sharp lookout is kept for strayed or lost animals, and for wolves, lynx, and other animals that prey on fawns.

The reindeer is one of the most particular animals in the selection of its food. It pastures during the summer on tender mosses, lichens, mushrooms, algae and grasses. Its typical home is Lapland. In the Lapp tongue the word "rein" means pasturage. During the long winter months the deer subsist entirely upon a dry moss, which abounds in certain tundra regions of the earth.

Grazing Land for Millions

It has been estimated that there are 200,000 square miles covered with this brittle, corallike moss in Alaska and near-by Yukon—enough grazing land for more than 10,000,000 reindeer. This class of pasturage is suitable for no other animal, except, perhaps, the musk-ox; hence these thousands of square miles of tundra were it not for the reindeer, would prove valueless and could not be peopled.

Reindeer seek the sea coast in summer, both to escape swarms of mosquitoes that annoy them and to lick on salt deposited by ocean waters. The Lapps have a saying that "mosquitoes are the best herders in summer."

Herders can persuade the animals to overcome their inbred instict to seek seaside "resorts" in warm months, however, by providing salt, and leading their herds to breezy hillsides where mosquitoes do not abound.

Ancient Egypt Knew Steam

Alexander of ancient Egypt knew the use of steam, but he did not realize its real power. He ran a toy with it to amuse his court and himself.

CHINESE STUDENTS TO VISIT CONGO YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETY

An evening crammed full of new surprises and fun has been planned for the Congo Young People's next meeting. Here is a foretaste of some of the novelties in store for you.

Four Chinese students are coming from Boston to be there; Ken Wong, who will talk to the group, Robert Dong, his brother, Wo Dong and Wee Der, who will sing. After the meeting, the customary meal will be served in the social hall but this time it will suit the occasion, for it will be completely Chinese, even to the chop sticks.

Wednesday, the hostesses went in town with Miss Scott, the director of Religious Education, and ate supper in Chinatown, where they had a chance to observe the real thing.

Here's your chance to spend an interesting evening in a different atmosphere. There will be enough chop sticks for all, and you can take them home with you and pack them away as souvirs, or else demonstrate their value to the members of the household at the dinner table—if they will let you.

You won't want to miss this unusual good time, will you? Of course, not. So come down Sunday at 6 o'clock and join in the fun and entertainment.

LOCATED WANTED SEDAN

Patrolman Winthrop Palmer of the Police Department, while on duty at the junction of Mt. Vernon and Washington streets shortly before 6:30 Wednesday morning saw a maroon sedan heading north on Washington street that answered the description of the car that collided with Ladder 1 of the Fire Department at the corner of Oak street Monday morning, breaking one of the 50-foot ladders.

Following the machine along Washington street until he was able to pass, Officer Palmer noticed that the window in the left front door was broken.

He stopped the car and the police say the driver admitted hitting the fire apparatus. His name and address in Medford were taken by the police. What further action will be taken in the matter had not been determined yesterday.

TROUBLE WITH SHOVELERS AT TOWN YARD

Last Saturday evening, shortly after 7 o'clock, trouble broke out among the snow shovelers at the Town yard, and a call was sent in to Police Headquarters for assistance.

Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy found upon arrival, that there was no serious trouble, a group of about 40 young men having become disgruntled when they were laid off at 7 o'clock.

Apparently there had been a misunderstanding between the men and some of those in charge of the work, the men claiming they had been promised work during the evening, only to be told that they were not to work when they reported. The appearance of the police put a stop to the disturbance and the crowd of shovelers dispersed to their homes.

HELEN I. FESSENDEN ELECTED

Announcement was made the first of this week of the election of Mrs. Helen I. Fessenden of this town as a member of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange. This action was taken at a meeting of the Board of Directors. Mrs. Fessenden has been engaged in the real estate business in Winchester for a number of years, and has recently added insurance in all forms.

CHORAL SOCIETY HELD FIRST PARTY

The first post-concert party of the Winchester Choral Society was held on ast Tuesday evening in Waterfield Hall and despite a rather small attendance, due doubtless to weather conditions, proved most successful.

A most enjoyable burlesque of the recently presented concert program was written and staged for the occasion by Carolyn D. Gilpatric, in her inimitable manner, the Society's accompanist, Mary Ranton Witham, presiding at the piano and furnishing the musical score.

The burlesque had to be seen to be appreciated, and space forbids a complete description. Those in costume were Sophia Gardner, Edmund A. Merriam, Jr., Edward W. Berry, Jr., E. F. Cheney, George E. Willey, Mary Willey, T. Parker Clarke, David Downer and Walker L. Chamberlin. All were excellent, but perhaps special mention should be made of Mr. Merriam's profound slumber, Mrs. Willey's impersonation of the Nightingale and Mr. Cheney's rendition of "The Dancing Young Man on the Flying Trapese."

After the burlesque, a social hour was enjoyed with dancing and refreshments. The Society's president, Dr. William L. Davis, was in general charge of the party with Olive Page MacLellan, in charge of refreshments; and Carolyn D. Gilpatric and Mary Ranton Witham in charge of entertainment.

ATTENDED CONGRESSIONAL RECEPTION

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ambrose, now of Washington, D. C., where Mr. Ambrose is chief of publicity for the United States Postoffice Department, were among the guests at the big Congressional reception last evening, in the White House, at which President and Mrs. Roosevelt were hosts. Miss Julia Doherty of Arlington, sister of Mrs. Ambrose, went on to Washington the first of this week and also was among the reception guests.

SAW PRESIDENT'S BIRTHDAY CARD AT CALUMET CLUB

Between 150 and 200 residents of this town braved the drifts last Sunday afternoon to see the huge birthday greeting card, designed and executed by Ernest Dudley Chase of Lakeview terrace for President Franklin Delano Roosevelt and on exhibition at the Calumet Club. The huge card contains several pages, each bearing a design done entirely in postage stamps. It left Boston Wednesday by train, instead of by airplane as originally planned. Mr. Chase is a gifted artist, but has probably done nothing more unusual than this 70 pound greeting card. He previously created and executed a greeting card for President Hoover which was so large it had to be taken on out of Winchester on a flat car.

A NOVEL IDEA!

The Highway Department received many requests and complaints during the recent heavy snow storm, but perhaps the most novel was a request for a day's pay at the going rate from a resident of the town who in lieu of assistance from town officials and shovelers had shoveled himself out.

It is our personal opinion that there is something in this line of thought. We did a "jag" of shoveling ourselves and are still being reminded of the fact by a reproachful back and arms. All in all, our efforts must have extended well beyond an NRA day, but we'll let it go at the even figures. If the town decides to pay the first claim, we hope in turn to benefit!

THE GENTLEMAN COP

New Haven cops hereafter will have soft voices, if the board of police commissioners has its way.

A lecture course will be opened for members of the police force. Policemen having contact with law violators, particularly motorists, will be coached on politeness and general demeanor.

"We will expect every New Haven policeman to remove all traces of a snarl from his voice," a police commission official said.

BOY LOST ON HIKE

Police Headquarters was notified at 5:30 last Saturday afternoon that Lawrence Bacon, 9-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Bacon of 31 Grove street, was missing from home. In company with two chums, John Parkhurst and Paul Blake, the boy had gone on snowshoes at 1:45 for a hike to the Lawrence Observatory in the Fells. Lawrence had left the other boys in the course of the hike and when he failed to come home, his parents became apprehensive, especially in view of conditions caused by the heavy fall of snow.

Patrolman Henry P. Dempsey was sent out from Headquarters to take a look around and as he was turning into Everell road, met Lawrence trudging along on the way home. He was tired, but otherwise "O. K." and told the policeman he had simply gotten himself lost for a time in the woods.

WINCHESTER GIRL CARNIVAL QUEEN

Miss Jane Sexton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Sexton of Wedgemere avenue, has been chosen Queen of the Winter Carnival to be held at Knox Junior College in Cooperstown, N. Y., on Feb. 8 and 9. Mrs. Sexton and the Misses Helen and Betty Sexton are leaving next Thursday for Cooperstown to enjoy the carnival as Janet's guests.

TUCK RECEIVES CURLEY APPOINTMENT

Mr. Whitfield L. Tuck of this town was nominated Wednesday by Governor Curley to be a member of the state ballot law commission. Mr. Tuck replaces Timothy F. Callahan, who was appointed last year by Governor Ely and who resigned to permit Governor Curley to place Mr. Tuck in a paid position.

GUY P. WALTON

Guy P. Walton of 9 Fletcher street, died Thursday morning, Jan. 31, in the Deaconness Hospital, Boston, following an operation. He had been for some years in poor health.

Mr. Walton was 68 years old and a native of Boston, son of Prentice and Nellie (Moore) Walton. He had spent his entire life here in Winchester and had made his home for the past six years in Winchester with his sister, Mrs. Mabel E. Gleason, who is his only survivor.

Funeral services will be held on Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock in the Kelley & Hawes Chapel with Rev. George Hale Reed, minister of the Unitarian Church, officiating. Interment will be in Wildwood Cemetery.

BUSY DAY FOR POLICE CARS

Winchester's Police Ambulance made two hard runs through heavy snow on errands of mercy last Friday afternoon and cruising car 52 was also pressed into service during the morning to get a Winchester husband to the bedside of his wife in the Cambridge Hospital.

After vainly attempting to secure a taxi, and being unable to get his own machine out of the garage, a resident of the West Side called upon the police for assistance and was driven by Patrolman Dempsey to the hospital in Cambridge.

Officer Dempsey had returned to duty only a short time when he and Patrolman John J. Dolan were dispatched in the ambulance to take a 5-year old Burlington boy to the Choate Hospital in Woburn, the child having been severely scalded.

No ambulance in any of the surrounding communities was available so a call was sent in to Winchester and the local machine was sent. Officers Dempsey and Dolan were assisted by a large crew of shovelers who literally dug their way to the child's home so that the ambulance could take him to the hospital.

Returning from this trip, the ambulance was again requested to take a Burlington veteran of the World War to the hospital, he being in a critical condition as the result of stomach disorders.

This time, Patrolman Dempsey was accompanied by Patrolman James P. Donaghey and the two officers were again assisted by shovelers as they made their way through drifts, sometimes almost even with the top of the car.

On the way to the hospital, the sufferer was again stricken with a severe hemorrhage and was given first aid by Officer Donaghey. It was nearly 5:30 when the officers returned from their third trip, and both men were very ready to "call it a day."

PARISH PLAYERS PRESENT "UNDER COVER"

The next play in the series being presented this season by the Parish Players of the First Congregational church is, "Under Cover," a detective drama by Rob cooper Maguire. It is to be given on Friday, Feb. 8, at 8 o'clock in "The Little Theatre Beneath a Spire," First Congregational Church. This play is one of the classics of the stage and should be popular with our audience.

The directors of the Players endeavored to change the date of the performance because of the conflict with the first night of the Winton Club entertainment. Unfortunately no other date could be found. The directors hope that any of our subscribers who want to support the Winton Club will be able to go to the Saturday night performance of the Hospital Benefit Cabaret.

This service will be held at 7 o'clock, and will be open to the public, who are cordially invited to attend.

WINCHESTER ART ASSOCIATION

The Winchester Art Association announces an exhibition of pictures by Edith McCartney and Daniel West on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 3, from 4 to 6 o'clock at the art gallery of the public library.

Miss McCartney, a former Winchester resident, will show child portraits principally; and Mr. West, who is a resident of Winchester, will exhibit sketches and paintings, including a number made during his recent voyage to the South Seas.

Mr. West accompanied his cousin, William Albert Robinson, and the latter's wife, on the young explorer's scientific exhibition to the Galapagos Islands, an expedition that came to an unfortunate end when Mr. Robinson was stricken with appendicitis and had to be rushed by the Navy to the Canal Zone for an operation. Mr. West was the official artist of the expedition and his paintings on exhibition were made while on the trip.

Miss McCartney will show paintings of Winchester children. Tea will be served.

For last minute tickets for floor or balcony for Winton Club Cabaret, "A Day in Bermuda," call Mrs. Irving Jennings, Win. 1711.

WAS BROTHER OF MRS. GEORGE A. BARRON

Frark E. Perkins, circulation manager of the Boston Globe, who died early last Friday morning at his home in Newton, was the younger brother of Mrs. George A. Barron of Winthrop street.

Mr. Perkins was widely known throughout newspaper circles both in Boston and New York. He first joined the Globe staff as a telegrapher in 1901. It was his technical skill as a telegrapher that led to his joining the Boston newspaper and then sent him to its New York office when an especially rapid and accurate operator was needed.

For 20 years, Mr. Perkins acted as New York corrpesondent for the Globe, returning to Boston in 1911 and visiting New England communities in reorganization work. Acting circulation manager for several years, he became circulation manager in 1925, continuing in that exacting position until his death. Years of contact with newsdealers throughout New England made him one of the best known men in the business end of the newspaper world.

While in New York, he was one of the organizers and for two years president of the Correspondent's Club of New York, composed of newspaper men from all parts of the world assigned to New York as the news center of the United States.

Mr. Perkins was the son of the late Dr. and Mrs. Edward H. Perkins. He was born at West Windsor, Vt., May 30, 1865. He was educated in the Vermont public schools and at a business college. For two years he worked for the Northern Pacific Railroad in Minnesota and the Dakotas, and in that region gained his first interest in telegraphy. For a few years before coming to the Western Union's Boston office, he was a telegrapher at Fitchburg.

He leaves a wife, Mrs. Leah Perkins, and a daughter, Mrs. Harriet P. Clarkson, and they were his constant attendants in an illness which began last September.

Dramatics

Friday afternoon, Jan. 25, the Dramatic Committee produced two one-act plays in Fortnightly headquarters. Ninety-eight members and a few out of town guests braved the elements to enjoy the first activity of this committee this club year, of which Mrs. Beatrice Budd is chairman.

The program was introduced by Tragedy, "in robes of deepest gloom" Mrs. Elizabeth S. Hall, and Comedy, "in jester's garb arrayed" Mrs. Beatrice Budd. Mrs. Josephine Arrowsmith as Josepha, in whose home the scene was laid was the anxious mother whose son had been sent on an errand to bomb certain enemies of the common people. Mrs. Hersilia Warren Elmer, was the proud aristocrat, Madam Androva gave a fine interpretation of the lady of "high degree." Mrs. Doris Hills as Anna, the Madam's lady's maid, was the spy that sold her information to which she was paid dear cost. A heavy drama full of exciting moments, which proves the final triumph of intelligence. These distinctly difficult parts were taken with real ability and success Mrs Arrowsmith was convincing as the anxious mother. Mrs. Elmer was every inch a "fine lady" and Mrs. Hills was clever in her interpretation of the spy.

Comedy then presented her play "to make men laugh" written by Winchester's own Carolyn Dranor Gilpatric. It was called "To My Dear Nieces" and here made its initial appearance.

BADMINTON CLUB

Last Tuesday evening the Winchester Badminton Club presented an informal exhibition in the high school gymnasium. Mr. Raynor Hutchinson an Mr. Stanley Houghton, both of the Tennis and Badminton Club of Boston and Mr. Ralph Tibbetts of Winchester, member of the Badminton Club of Boston, were special guests. These men rank among the best amateur players in New England and have held numerous championships. The special exhibition was a doubles' match between Messrs. Tibbetts and Hutchinson and Houghton and R. Gilman Wallace, the latter being a member of the local club. The Hutchinson and Tibbetts combination won two out of three matches which were closely contested and in doubt until the final point was played. The guests of the club demonstrated many fine points of the game and displayed an accuracy and speed which gave some indication of the skill which the game demands. After the exhibition, the guests joined in matches with various members of the club to the great benefit of the latter. As in other sports, proficiency in any game is obtained by competition with superior players. Due to the enthusiasm of the members, it is expected that another exhibition will soon be arranged.

Next Wednesday evening the local club will play Framingham in the latter city. Tuesday of the following week, Feb. 12, the Waban Neighborhood Club will play the local club at the Winchester High School gymnasium.

"IS THERE ANY SCHOOL?"

If you happen to ask a member of the Fire Department this simple question within a day or two, do it from a vantage point and with a smile!

Yesterday shortly after the fire alarm rang for "no school," the Central Fire Station began to receive calls from mothers and children, in all 54 calls being received, requesting information.

In accordance with Fire Department regulations, the name of the party calling the station was requested by the man at the desk, and among those alleged to have telephoned in were: William Penn, Katherine Hepburn, Gary Cooper, "Al" Capone, David Livinston, "Buck" Weaver, Mae West, Miss Murphy, King Tut and Greta Garbo.

In the matches on Wednesday evening in the Community Bowling League the Elks won four points from the Atlantic Gelatine Co.; the Fells Plumbing won four points from the Sons of Italy; the Town Team won three points from St. Mary's and lost one; and the Legion won four points from the K. of C.

WINCHESTER RESIDENTS JOIN ARLINGTON STAMP CLUB

When it comes to riding a hobby, those persons interested in the collection of postage stamps, and who are members of the Arlington Stamp Club of Arlington, do not stop for rain, fog, or snow, as was proven by the large number present at their last meeting on Monday evening, Jan. 21.

This club has grown to be the most active and progressive stamp club of suburban Boston, and new members are joining at each meeting, seven being admitted at this last meeting.

The club membership is open to persons of 16 years of age or over, and was the first club in the district, with the exception of the Metropolitan Philatelic Society of Boston, to be available for women members.

The stamp bourse and the auction, which are features at each meeting proved to be a great attraction at this last meeting and a high quality of stamps was to be found in each.

The next meeting of the club, will be held on Feb. 4, at 8 p. m., at the Universalist Parish Hall, (opposite the Town Hall), in Arlington Center.

Members residing in Winchester are as follows: Mr. and Mrs. John Gilbert, 6 Stevens street; Mrs. Ednah E. Jackson, 50 Lincoln street; Mrs. Frances T. Wadsworth, 182 Highland avenue; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Seeton, 529 Washington street; Mr. E. F. Cameron, 50 Church street.

TRUCKS THAT PLOW THEIR WAY

Winchester residents along with hundreds of other users of fuel oil were interested in this week's advertisements of the Petroleum Heat and Power Co., appearing in Boston papers. A picture of the gigantic snow plows in use by this company, capable of clearing any roads for the delivery of their oil, has created much comment. In one nearby town, where one of these trucks was due to deliver oil, no attempt was made to plow the streets, and when the big truck appeared it made short work of clearing several of the main streets besides opening the roads for delivery of oil. Winchester customers of the Petroleum Heat and Power Co. had no difficulty in receiving their oil delivery. The Parker & Lane Co. is the local agent for this oil, and a telephone to Win. 0198 will insure you prompt delivery.

BARON GEORGE O. VON NERTA

Government Official Was Cousin of Mrs. William H. Cole

Baron George O. von Nerta, chief architect and supervisor of construction for the United States Government, who died Monday in Washington, D. C., was the cousin of Mrs. William H. Cole of Swan road. The distinguished old gentleman had often visited the Coles, both in Winchester and at their summer home in Marblehead, and was known and esteemed by many residents of this town.

Baron von Nerta was a native of Leipzig and a graduate of the famous university there. After four years of army service in his fatherland, he came to this country and secured a position under one of the Government architects in Washington, ability, integrity and personality causing him to be steadily advanced until he became the head of his department with offices in the United States Treasury Building.

It was while he was a young architect that the Baron met the young lady who was to become his wife. They met at a ball and the young lady was the only one present able to talk with Baron von Nerta in German. The young man knew little English and was delighted to meet some one who knew his native tongue. Their friendship quickly developed to romance and culminated in the Baron's marriage with the American girl who was a cousin of Mrs. Cole's father. She died some years ago.

Baron von Nerta was during the 50 years of his life in America, a staunch and loyal citizen of his adopted country. He served with distinction in the construction department, supervising the building of many important large government buildings, such as the custom houses in Chicago and Baltimore and also directing the razing of the old custom house in Boston. It is of interest that the appropriation for the Winchester Postoffice was in his department and he exercised general supervision of the construction of the building.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Dexter of Yale street are the parents of a daughter, born Jan. 23, at the Massachusetts Women's Hospital.

IT WAS AN ALARM!

More than one local merchant has reason to know and appreciate the watchfulness of the police officers who patrol the business center during the hours when most of the community is safely asleep in bed.

Anything at all unusual comes in for quick attention from the officers, and as a consequence, when Patrolman Joseph J. Derro heard a bell ringing intermittently in the Hersey Hardware store on Thompson street shortly after 1:30 last Friday morning he hastened to investigate.

An inspection from outside showed nothing wrong, but the bell kept ringing, and Patrolman Derro felt that there must be some reason for it. He got in touch with the proprietor of the store, J. Albert Hersey. The latter could not solve the problem, but obligingly got the key of the store to the police, and picking up Patrolman Irving Reardon, Officer Derro stealthily opened up the shop door and "slid" in to "take a look."

Everything was quiet, and the penetrating beams of the officers' flashlights disclosed no lurking figures in the shadowy corners. Suddenly the bell pealed out again, and both men hastened to the place from which the striden jingle issued.

The mystery was solved. An alarm clock was "doing its stuff," and you can take the word of both "Joe" and Irving that it would awaken the soundest sleeper. In their opinion, it was "the works!"

THE DIONNE QUINTUPLETS

The Dionne quintuplets are right in the news now because the Boston Sunday Post sent a staff representative to live with them in their own home town. He is telling in the Sunday Post all the fascinating details of their daily life, the diet that has made them plump and joyful with health, the exercises that are making them "roaring" to creep—information that is very helpful to all mothers as well as delightfully interesting reading.

The Sunday Post has also just started an authentic life story of Dr. F. E. Townsend, founder of the Townsend Pension Plan, and one of the most talked of men in America today. Also, starting next Sunday, the Sunday Post offers a series of passionate love letters by famous men and women who never expected these epistles would see the light of day and, therefore, wrote from their hearts.

Mrs. Whitelaw Wright of Myrtle street is reported as recovering from an attack of grippe.

MRS. BRENDA DRURY MORRILL

Mrs. Brenda Drury Morrill, wife of Cliney S. Morrill of 5 Lantern lane, died Friday afternoon, Jan. 25, in the Cambridge Hospital, after a short illness.

Mrs. Morrill was the daughter of John Herbert, and Winifred (Beard) Drury, and was born in Boston, Nov. 6, 1901. As a child, she went with her parents to Quincy where she spent her girlhood and received her education in the Quincy schools.

On April 25, 1925, she married Mr. Morrill and three years ago came to make her home in Winchester. Despite her short residence, she had made many friends among citizens in all walks of life, an especially friendly manner and great personal charm endearing her to all with whom she came in contact. She was a member of the Winchester Country Club.

Surviving, besides her husband, are two sisters, Mrs. John J. Phillips and Mrs. Daniel J. Harkins, both of Quincy; also two brothers, Arthur Drury of Quincy and John H. Drury, Jr., of New York City.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon in the First Congregational Church and was conducted by Rev. David Fraser, pastor of the Congregational Church in West Somerville.

WOBURN CUBS WON FROM WINCHESTER H. C.

Woburn Cubs came from behind last Sunday afternoon to win a 6—3 decision over the hard fighting Winchester Hockey Club in an exciting game on the Central Square rink in the tanning city. The locals were by no means satisfied with the result and hope to play a return engagement with the Cubs, feeling that they can win from the experienced city sextet.

For a time last Sunday, Winchester looked good to win, after a scoreless first period, "Skitchie" Farrar and Wilmer Smith beating Wheaton with unassisted shots into the strings.

Long shots by "Freddie" Kelliher, Woburn center ice man, tied the score, but Smith converted a pass from Collins and the locals were again out in front, only to have "Charlie" Murray of the Cubs again even the count with a solo effort.

Winchester scored again, but the officials ruled time had been called and the goal was annulled.

The last period was all Woburn, with left winger "Charlie" Murray running wild to tally twice, once on a pass from DeBenedictis and once unassisted. "Jim" Murray converted a DeBenedictis pass for the final tally.

Following is the summary:

WINCHESTER WON FROM MILTON

Winchester High School won a non-league basketball game from Milton High last Friday evening in the local gymnasium, 42—18, outclassing the visitors throughout the game.

As usual, "Frankie" Provinzano was Winchester's high scorer, but against Milton, his team-mates did a bit of scoring in their own right, making for a much better rounded attack, which the visitors' defense proved inadequate to stop.

The locals led at the half, 18—6, and had a 26—18 lead at the end of the third period. "Little Joe" Josephson and "Slicker" Coss were very much in the scoring, and the first named caged the final goal from the floor. "Steamer" Hanlon adding a goal from a free try with only 30 seconds to play.

Between the halves of the first team game, the high school seconds won a close, 26—24 victory from the Eagles of North Main street with Callahan, former high school player, leading the scoring on seven field goals for 14 points.

A "NEW DEAL" IN CLUB DUES!

We imagine that Rex Crandall, president of the Congregational Men's Club was simply waxing a bit facetious when he sent out this week a cleverly drawn little postcard announcing that yearly dues of two dollars (two "bucks," to quote from the card) are now payable and that coin, checks, stamps or barter are acceptable; only roubles and post-war marks being barred!

The whole thing was probably just Rex's fun, but Vermonters are a great people for taking folks literally,—at their face value and all that sort of thing, so it is not surprising that at least one Vermont member of the club took his proxy at his word. We suppose they do more bartering in Vermort than here, and so possibly the word had an irresistable appeal for the gentleman from the "Green Mountain State."

At any rate, be that as it may, he decided to save his "new deal money," conserve his checking balance in the bank, relieve the postal clerks from the tedium of counting out two dollars worth of stamps, and send in barter for his dues. Plenty of good old "rugged individualism" in the decision, too. We applaud the gentleman's stand. "Something for Something" is a motto which can be examined closely, which can be subjected to even the most searching scrutiny without disclosing the trace of a flaw.

The only thing which at first puzzled the pro-barterer was what to use for barter. The Indians held wampum in high esteem in this respect and also looked with favor upon cloth, gun-powder and rum as mediums of exchange. Somehow or other, none of these good old staples seemed "just what the doctor would order" in this particular case, and the gentleman from Vermont also decided, after mature thought, to reject the well meant suggestion of "two dollars worth of nails," inasmuch as he had to deliver the barter in person.

Deciding to seek expert advice in the matter, our friend called loudly upon Harris Richardson for "help," and Harris rallied 'round nicely. After a few minutes in his market, the sturdy Vermonter was seen trudging through the village common with a nice bag of turnips, for which he had exchanged two "new deal" dollars, return receipt received, thank you!

Dropping in at the Trust Company, the advocate of free trade deposited his barter with the greatly mystified treasurer, Dwight Cabot, mentioned upon the Crandall card as the recipient of all dues in whatever form they might chance to be paid. "What in this-and-that was Mr. Cabot to do with the turnips," he wanted to know? The gentleman from Vermont was not prepared to say. He showed his receipt in payment for goods and averred that they constituted barter in the strictest sense of the word. His contention admitted of no argument. He demanded a receipt from Mr. Cabot in payment of dues! He got it! We assume by now that Mr. Crandall has the turnips, (perhaps he has other articles of barter. We can't say, but it is our opinion that his next appeal for dues will probably be couched along more orthodox lines. And that, too, will be a pity!

MAJOR EDWARD LANGWORTHY BURWELL, JR.

Marine Corps Officer Died Suddenly in Quantico

Winchester friends of Major Edward Langworthy Burwell, Jr., Marine Corps officer and son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Langworthy Burwell of Winslow road, will regret to learn of his sudden death on Friday, Jan. 25, in Quantico, Va., following an attack of heart disease.

Major Burwell was born in Chelsea and was 39 years old. He was graduated from Wadleigh Grammar School and in 1913 from the Winchester High School, his family living at that time on Forest street in the Highlands. While in high school he acted as Highlands correspondent for the Star and was actively identified with the Highland Athletic Club, an athletic and social club of young men in that section of the town.

From high school, Major Burwell went to the University of Wisconsin, where he became interested in military science while a member of the student cadet corps, in which he was an officer. He was graduated from the university in 1917 and was immediately commissioned a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps, early in the period of the United States participation in the World War.

He was attached to the Fifth Marines Regiment and went overseas shortly after the United States declared war, his regiment being one of the first American military units to be ordered to France. He saw service in the Argonne and in other engagements in which the Fifth Marines figured so prominently and where the regiment lost heavily.

Major Burwell rose rapidly in the corps during the war, being promoted first to Captain and then, Major, and at Chaumont acting as a commandant guard for General Pershing. He also served as provost marshall and judge advocate for his regiment.

In the peace time reorganization of the Marine Corps, Major Burwell was reduced to Captain, but continuing to discharge his duty in a highly satisfactory manner, he was during the past summer again raised to the rank of Major.

In addition to his service in France he had served two arduous tours of duty in Nicaraguan where his services were especially commended by the Nicaraguan Government. He also served in San Domingo and at various times, had been stationed at practically all the Marine Corps posts in this country.

Major Burwell served several tours of duty at Quantico, making his home in Fredericksburg, Va., and the following is quoted from the Fredericksburg paper's report of his death:

"He was highly regarded by his superiors in the Marine Corps as an efficient, capable officer and personally as a man of high integrity. He was quiet and unassuming, attentive to his duties and conscientious in the performance of the offices entrusted to his care.

"For nearly a year he had been attached to the Eastern Marine Corps base at Quantico and during that time had made his home at Hartley Hall, making daily trips to the post. He was widely known in Fredericksburg where he was popular and highly regarded."

Major Burwell, besides his parents, leaves his wife, Mrs. Rena Butler Burwell, and two sons, Edward Langworthy Burwell, 3rd, 13; and William B. Burwell, 7. He is also survived by a brother, Basil, and four sisters, Mrs. John A. Rutherford and Miss Consuelo Burwell, both of this town, Mrs. Edward C. Gratiot of Richmond, Va., and Mrs. Virginia Burwell Hefley of Chicago, Ill.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at Arlington Cemetery, full military honors being accorded the deceased. Chaplain Lewis of the Marine Corps at Quantico, officiated, assisted by Rev. R. V. Lancaster.

WINCHESTER WON FROM WAKEFIELD

Winchester High School won a Middlesex League game from Wakefield High Wednesday afternoon in the local gymnasium, 24—14. The Winchester seconds set back the Wakefield Jay-Vees, 28—24, in the preliminary game.

The visitors led at the first quarter, 4—3, and at the half were in front, 9—7.

After intermission, the locals got going and outscored Wakefield, 8—1, leading at the three-quarter mark, 18—10. For the first time this season, Capt. Frank Provinzano was outscored by a team mate, "Little Joe" Josephson having a field day with 11 points on four field goals and three from the foul line.

HEART TO HEART TALKS

By Eugene Bertram Willard

A clergyman had preached an eloquent sermon about recognition of our friends in heaven. This led one of his hearers to remark to a friend after the service: "I have never heard our pastor preach on recognizing our friends on earth."

A lot of people do not like to admit it, but it is a fact nevertheless that there is far too little fellowship in our churches. Rev. F. L. Gibbs, A. M., not long ago wrote: "People sit in the same pew on Sundays, they commune at the Holy Table, they hope to spend eternity in heaven, but in spite of these facts there seems to be a barrier between them here so that one is inclined to doubt whether their hope will be realized."

Faith to each other. That is what we need today. More real fellowship. We need men full of fidelity, whose pulse leaps with kindred fire

"Who in the flash of eyes, the claps of hands,
Nay, in the silent bodily presence, feel
The mystic stirrings of a common life
That makes the many one."

"Live peaceably with all men." There are a lot of men who make such a thing out of all question. But where humanly possible every effort should be made to do so. One of the hardest things in the world is to live in peace with the individual who refuses to return one's unselfish friendship. The world is full of such traitors. But let us bear in mind that when we have done our duty, God will attend to the rest.

A WORTHY VENTURE

With the event of the Winton Club cabaret next Friday and Saturday evenings, Winchester reaches the social peak of the season, this show ranking as the premiere effort of all amateur and professional productions. Like most of the social events of this town, it is a philanthropic venture. And it is correspondingly popular, Winchester people turning out in force to lend their support. But with all, the Winton Club produce a show and entertainment which is unsurpassed during the winter season. The club was founded in 1911 in support of the Winchester Hospital, which comprises its only activity. It has always furnished the entire linen supply for the Hospital, an item which has figured anywhere from $200 to $1000. Last year this amounted to $750. Over a period of years the Club has donated large cash gifts, amounting to date to about $25,000. It has provided such improvements as the premature baby room, an addition to the children's ward and a new diatetic laboratory. The monthly meetings of the Winton Club are spent in sewing for the Hospital linen room equipment, such as various types of binders, pinning blankets, treatment sheets, tray doilies, hot water bag covers and hemstitched dresser covers—all in all, several hundred articles being completed each year. The cabaret is the only money-making venture of the Club undertaken, it being at present the social event of the season. This year's show is now nearing production perfection, and promises to be fully up to the high standard created by previous entertainments. Winchester is, as usual, giving it its hearty support, and in extending the cabaret over two evenings, all those who desire may have opportunity to attend and aid in a worthy Winchester philanthropy.

SOME STORM!

To the Editor of the Star:

The citizens of Winchester have shown to a remarkable degree, patience and forebearance during the inconvenience caused by the snow storm. It has been a long time since we have had snow which packed so hard that the ordinary equipment for the removal proved inadequate. The snow loader was used to good advantage around the centre of the town, saving a great deal of time and labor.

It is estimated the expense of the labor will be about $15,000, which with other items will make a total of about $20,000.

In trying to keep down the tax rate we have, like many other Towns, been getting along with more or less antiquated equipment. In spite of this handicap, the streets of Winchester were better taken care of than most of our surrounding neighbors. The removal of garbage was delayed, but through the strenuous work of the men the service is now about normal.

It has been customary for the Water Department to shovel out the hydrants immediately after a storm. Realizing that this would be a waste of time and energy until the streets were broken out, the Department kept one of their men who is familiar with the hydrant locations at the Fire Station to go with the apparatus in case of fire. This not only saved money, but increased the force at the Fire Station.

The Selectmen have authorized the purchase of an up to date tractor-plow which is expected in a few days. We can avoid much of the labor cost and inconvenience caused by heavy storm by a larger investment in snow removing machinery, but of course this will be reflected in the Tax Rate. The problem is which hurts the worst, the inconvenience or the Tax Bill.

SUPER-SERVICE

It's easy to complain when we think we have not received the service which we think we ought to have had from "the butcher, the baker, the candlestick-maker." But I take my hat off by way of tribute to two items of service during the recent blizzard.

Fernway was blocked with snow. My front path, the short-cut to Cambridge street, was not yet shoveled out. I was out watching some snow-shovelers on my driveway when a man came grinning and wallowing up the road with a cardboard box. "What's that," I asked, surprised to see him. "Your laundry," he replied, "the maid said you wanted it back Friday." I felt ashamed to have caused all that trouble. Not three minutes later, along came the milkman. He had wallowed up from Cambridge street, too, and was just as cheerful as the laundryman.

I'll try to remember that at some future time when my other shirt is a day late and the milkman doesn't come with the milk in time for brenk fast!

ROTARY CLUB NOTES

There were four absentees of record from the meeting of Jan. 31.

Due to very unusual circumstances our regular meeting of Jan. 24 was omitted. Local citizens do not need to be told that the record snow storm of the previous day had made our streets all but impassable, had caused the signals for "no school" to be sounded, and had made the assembly of any number of individuals in a secluestered section of the town quite impracticable. Fortunately it is improbable that we shall often be confronted with this difficulty.

The last letter from our District Governor informs us that Winchester stood third on the list of Class D clubs in the attendance contest for December 1934. Also that our club was one of those which had increased its membership since the report of July 1, 1934. Which is good assurance that the Winchester unit continues in a healthy condition.

"Nick" Fitzgerald, on account of his recent activities was an object of especial attention at the current meeting. For this was the first time that we as a club were able to extend congratulations to "Nick" since he has taken the vows of matrimony. The attentions bestowed were measured by the basketful and represented the lively imagination and ingenuity which characterizes our club members. We noticed a handsome electric clock among the items displayed. And now with the formal sanction of his club we feel that "Nick" has entered upon a long, happy and prosperous career with the loving care of a worthy helpmate.

Dwight Sayles, sales manager of The General Ice Cream Company and a former Rotarian of Watertown and Binghamton, N. Y., was guest speaker at this meeting. He brought before us the fascinating story of ice cream as it is prepared from basic materials treated, frozen and packaged for the market. In these latter years the American people have become, to an extent little realized, dependent upon this delicious and nourishing food product. Mr. Sayles does a distinct service in presenting many of the inside details connected with its production and distribution. And in like manner he was very generous in providing extremely attractive servings of his company's product, a courtesy that was enjoyed to fullest extent by all who were present at this luncheon.

Thursday, Feb. 7, at 6:30 p. m. (note the hour) there will be at the Calumet Club House another special meeting for all Rotarians resident in Winchester regardless of club affiliations. We especially request all such Rotarians who through oversight fail to get a special invitation by mail to present themselves on this occasion to receive a cordial greeting and in all probability to make new and highly valued friendships. A venison dinner will be served at the price of our regular luncheons, and professional guides from the hunting and fishing grounds of New Brunswick will be on hand to present special features. This is going to be one of the best meetings yet. Don't miss it.

EMERGENCY CAMPAIGN HALF OVER

Starting a week late in organization and handicapped by a week of snow, workers have canvassed many homes in the towns of the Metropolitan Division which to date has subscribed $50,000 to continue the services which Boston institutions render to outside communities. Thousands of residents in the Metropolitan area cannot be reached personally despite the work of 10,000 volunteers. To those who are not visited, campaign officials request that contributions—no matter how small—be sent to the drive headquarters, 70 Federal street, Boston.

Last year, Boston hospitals served 24,000 persons from the Metropolitan area outside Boston proper. In the same manner, 27,000 patients came to clinics while 3573 children were cared for by children's agencies of Boston. One of Boston's oldest and largest hospitals in their last annual report, declared they had treated 2259 free or part-pay patients from Boston proper while 5000 similar recipients came from Massachusetts towns and cities outside Boston.

Included among those who are working in Winchester are the following persons and the positions they hold:

Mr. T. Grafton Abbott, Citizen's Committee also Advisory and Educational Committee

Mrs. T. Grafton Abbott, Women's Division Speakers' Bureau

Mr. Otto Abrahamsen, Industry and Finance Staff Secretary

Mr. E. Everett Arnold, Industry and Finance Division Chairman

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

While patroling his beat last Monday evening, Patrolman Winthrop Palmer heard water running in the new house at the corner of Wildwood street and Salisbury road. He investigated and found that a water pipe had burst, flooding the place. He notified Headquarters where the message was relayed to Superintendent Harry Dotten of the Water Department. The owner of the property, Mr. Charles Underwood of Central street, was also notified.

The Fire Department was notified by telephone Monday afternoon at 5:25 that an automobile was on fire at Woodside road. Upon arrival, the men found that the owner of the machine, Mr. John E. Flaherty of 69 Woodside road, had put out the fire with snow. His machine had gone on fire while he was playing the good Samaritan and pushing a disabled car.

The Winchester schools were able to open Monday of this week after an enforced two day vacation due to the severe storm which made sidewalks impassable. By Monday, the schools had been shoveled out and every effort had been made to have the sidewalks leading to them in as good condition as possible.

MR. CROUGHWELL'S VIEWS

The readers of the Star will most likely recall that I asserted in the Star that was published Dec. 21, 1934, namely: the Town of Winchester has an enterprising Water and Sewer Board. I believe the report of the Water and Sewer Board that appeared in the last issue of the Star confirms the assertion that I made in the Star of Dec. 21, 1934.

We, the Town Meeting members, appropriated $25,000 to remove the water tank under the supervision of our Water and Sewer Board. The difficult work was accomplished for $20,887.20. That proves, I believe, that the members of the Water and Sewer Board are possessed of marvelous business acumen. Consider installing a 12-inch water pipe from the South Reservoir to the junction of Lawson road and Jefferson road, a distance of 2100 feet, through a ledge, blue gravel and large boulders. The work was accomplished in the extreme hot weeather. No accilents occurred during the excavation or blasting for the huge enterprise that was completed at a cost of $12,827.20.

As for the pine trees, let us not whine and jab needles—because it is needless. They are a valuable asset to our reservoirs and I trust that the folks that are apparently perturbed in regard to our pine trees shall not develop into restless sleepers. If they have sleepless nights, may I suggest that they lie like a lawyer—first on one side, then on the other.

If you are skeptical, consult your family doctor or your own attorney.

Most of the labor that was utilized in removing the water tank was furnished by the E. R. A. The town received something for the money that was expended.

I wonder how much money the United States saved when they paid for pigs that were never born, cotton that was never planted and pigs, Shoates and hogs that were frozen in New England in the recent cold wave.

In conclusion, the readers of the Star will most likely recall that during the World War, President Wilson scrutinized the country for a man to assist him in order that democracy shall not perish from the earth. The brain trust, so to speak, that was selected was ex-President Hoover, the conservator of the necessaries of life. He certainly did his part to help win the war despite what his critics may say of him. I believe, President Roosevelt will make no mistake if he consults Mr. Hoover on our international problems.

And remember, if the Democratic House and Senate that were functioning under Mr. Hoover presented him with dictatorial powers like they have President Roosevelt, Mr. Hoover could have paid for pigs that were never born or cotton that was never planted.

I believe, if the professional politicians and other chair warmers did more work and less talk, we would emerge out of the wilderness more rapidly. The great Daniel Webster tickled the earth with a hoe and moved March grass on the farm of Marshfield, and every time he spoke, he said something. And please remember that most of the world's great men have been misunderstood. Space forbids me to mention their names.

I trust that every resident in Winchester will scrutinize the Water and Sewer Board's report in the last issue of the Star. If the residents read the report, I believe they will concur with me that it is a comprehensive report from men who present to the Town, their valuable services gratis.

Very truly yours,
Patrick H. Croughwell

The scene opens with Annie, Mrs. Lilla Ryan, awaiting the arrival of the three nieces who have been instructed to come to the home and divide the contents of an old trunk. The first arrival is Jane, Annette Hughes, who has been a hard working woman all her life and has given the late aunt considerable attention. Next comes Charlotte, Mrs Alice Mason, a club woman, associated with all kinds of charities, but who does not believe in being charitable to her own kin. Flossie trots in a hurry, Mrs. Ruth Cunningham, having just been detained at the hairdressers. The trunk contains a damned nicknkress, an old faded switch, which Charlotte tells Flossie she could not wear; a book on daily living which Charlotte recommends that Flossie keep for her instruction; an old hot water bag, kid curlers which Flossie immediately recommends to Charlotte; a post card album which Jane falls in love with wishing she might visit the places pictured; and last an old faded knitting bag which Jane asks for and receives. Then Jane discovers a letter in the bag addressed to "My dear nieces." Upon reading it they discover the house and furnishings have been left to the one choosing the bag, and ten thousand dollars. The faithful Anna is retained as long as she chooses to remain. The lines are full of mirth provoking laughter. The play was well cast. Mrs. Ryan with the straight forward lines of Annie brought out many a laugh; Mrs. Hughes as Jane brought out the sympathetic and human touch needed, while Miss Mason furnished the haughty and unsympathetic feeling so often noticed in the would be charitable person. Mrs. Cunningham as Flossie was a real up to the minute society type with her bleached hair and strong make-up.

Mrs. Gilpatric showed more than one talent in the producing of this play. A portrait of the "dear departed Aunt Amelia" was needed to grace the center wall and Mrs. Gilpatric with crayon produced a really artistic likeness of an elderly, eccentric and decidedly set maternly woman with mouth which showed determination to put through her project at any cost. The tragedy and comedy introduction was also written by Mrs. Gilpatric.

Music appropriate for the drama and comedy was played before and after each play by Mary Ranton Witham.

Regular Meeting

The regular meeting of the Fortnightly was held on Monday, Jan. 28 with Mrs. Anna C. Grosvenor, vice president, in the chair due to the absence of Mrs. Wilson because of illness, although she was much improved.

Mrs. Wilson sent the list of delegates for the mid-winter meeting of the Federation of Women's Clubs at Hotel Bradford on Feb. 28 at 10:30.

Regular delegates: Mrs. Mary E. Siedhof, Mrs. Ruth E. Hilton, Mrs. Ida E. MacDonald. Alternates: Arzillia M. Huggins, Miss Doris McElwain, Mrs. Ruth G. French, Mrs. Wilhelmina R. Bugbee and Mrs. Cassie Wallace.

The very good-sized and appreciative audience who braved the snowdrifts felt more than repaid by the excellence of the program. Edna Merritt of Arlington proved to be a very charming and attractive young singer. Mrs. Mary Ranton Witham accompanied with her usual skill, adding most materially to the enjoyment of all.

Mrs. Vincent P. Clarke, as Legislation Chairman, had charge of the meeting, and with a few graceful remarks introduced Mr. William Ramsdell of Winchester, a member of the Massachusetts House. He in turn introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Rep. Horace T. Cahill of Braintree, a prominent member of the Legislature and identified with many of the important committees of the House. His talk was informal, witty and instructive.

Coffee and delicious cakes were served during the social hour which followed by the Social Committee under the efficient direction of Mrs. Mary Cass.

SILENT MILK DELIVERIES GUARD LONDON'S SLEEP

To the Editor of the Star:

The inclosed news item, from the Boston Globe of Jan. 25, 1935, will, I am sure, interest many of your readers if you will be kind enough to print it.

Lorence M. Woodside

London (A. P.)—Milk delivery in the early morning hours has been made painless for London's millions of sleepers.

First the delivery trucks were silenced by a regulation making rubber tires obligatory, and now the bottles have been made sound-proof, even when they're bounced.

LEGISLATIVE HEARINGS NEXT WEEK

On Wednesday, Feb. 6, the Committee on Metropolitan Affairs will hold a hearing on the bills filed by Senator Daly and Representative Ramsdell, asking for an appropriation to improve and dredge Upper Mystic Lake in the Town of Winchester. BOY SCOUT NOTES

Camp Lane

Sunday at 2:30 p. m., starting in front of 10 Church street, there will be an expedition for any Scouts wishing to go to our newly acquired camp, Camp Lane, in Burlington. At this time, we propose to lay out projects for future development. Snow shoes may prove to be useful. Quite likely it will be desirable to leave cars on the main road and walk in. We will hope to have extra transportation at the starting point for those desiring rides. Directions for reaching camp are again given below. It will be well to eat them out at this time.

From Woburn, go directly out Main street for a distance of three miles. Just beyond the Walker Farm there is a fork in the road. Keep to the right and take Locust street, the first street on the right after the fork. Follow Locust street for two miles. The road then crossed a stream. There are two farmhouses and just beyond the second there is a road into the woods. This road leads directly to the camp.

Troop 1 News

The meeting of Jan. 28, was held in the Junior High School gymnasium. The meeting opened with the salute to the flag after which the Patrols went to their corners and took dues and attendance.

A knot tieing contest was then held and a big improvement was noticed. A compass race was then held which also showed marked improvement and speed.

The inter-patrol contest is coming along with plenty of speed with the Silver Fox Patrol first with 51 points; Beaver Patrol second with 31 points; Panther Patrol third with 17 points and the Stag Patrol fourth with 12 points.

HEATING HINTS .. by John Barclay

IN THE MORNING—In order to get heat up quickly, open the Ashpit Damper wide and close the Check Damper. Do not add fresh coal until the fire is burning briskly. And when you do put on fresh coal, don't forget to leave an exposed spot of live coals directly in front of the fire door. It may also be necessary to shake the grates a little. This depends on whether or not they were shaken the night before.

DURING THE DAY—Rely entirely on the Check and Ashpit Dampers to control the fire. Never use the Turn Damper for daily regulation. Keep it as nearly closed as possible without hindering the free burning of the fire.

AT NIGHT—Before banking the fire shake the grates gently . . . until the first red glow appears in the ashpit. Wet the ashes and remove them. When banking the fire always open the Check Damper and close the Ashpit Damper. Never leave the Fire Door open when banking the fire. _____ (9)

The Golden Text is: "Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another" (1 John 4:11).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God. . . . And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love, and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him" (1 John 4:7, 16).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "A misplaced word changes the sense and misstates the Science of the Scriptures, as for instance, to name Love as merely an attribute of God, but we can by special and proper capitalization speak of the love of Love, meaning by that what the beloved disciple meant in one of his epistles, when he said, 'God is love' . . . More than this we cannot ask, higher we cannot look, further we cannot go" (pp. 319, 63).

MALDEN STRAND THEATRE

Katherine Hepburn in, "The Little Minister," will open a seven day run at the Strand Theatre in Malden on Saturday. Upon this talking picture re-creation of the romance of the lady masquerading as a Gypsy maid, and the shy Scotch clergyman, R. K. O. Radio has lavished all its artistic and technical riches. In addition to its stirring romantic plot, "The Little Minister" is filled with entertaining action of the sort that thrills movie lovers. The loves and hates, jealousies and humors of the Scotch village are woven into the story and form a moving, many-colored background to the highlights of the tale. Miss Hepburn's leading man is John Beal and the support includes Alan Hale, Donald Crisp, Lumsden Hare, Andy Clyde, Beryl Mercer, Dorothy Stickney and Reginald Denny.

"The Marines Are Coming," with Conrad Nagel, William Haines, Esther Ralston and Armida, the tiny Mexican dancing firebrand, will be the second feature on the bill starting Saturday. Filled with action and fun "The Marines Are Coming" presents William Haines as a fast-talking bad boy of the Marine Corps who laughs his way through life until he meets blonde Esther Ralston.

Earl Nelson's Radio Auditions on the stage of the Strand Theatre each Tuesday evening are proving a popular attraction. The stage auditions bring out some excellent talent as well as many amusing features. The winner of these auditions each week is permitted to broadcast over Station WHDH in Boston.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

The long awaited Bing Crosby and Kitty Carlisle picture, "Here Is My Heart," opens at the big Granada Theatre in Malden on Saturday. "Here Is My Heart," is an amusing, swift-pace story with good music and an excellent cast which all combines to make a swell show. In addition to Bing Crosby and Miss Carlisle the film presents Roland Young, Alison Skipworth Reginald Owen, William Frawley and Cecilia Parker. Bing Crosby is cast as a millionaire crooner in search of fun. He falls in love with a Russian princess played by Kitty Carlisle. The princess has lost her money but still retains her attitude of frosty hauteur, and it is Crosby's problem to chip the ice off her surface and find the nice girl he is certain is concealed beneath. As the first step he buys the hotel in which the Princess is living and between bowls of soup and caviar, Bing, disguised as a waiter, plights his troth. And the Princess, just because she feels a tendency to fall for the handsome singing waiter, makes things as difficult as possible.

"I'll Fix It" a delightful comedy-drama starring Jack Holt, Mona Barrie and Winnie Lightner as the stars, will be the second attraction on the bill starting Saturday. This film presents Holt as a big political boss who rules the local politicians. He gets so used to having his own way that he cannot understand it when he goes to his kid brother's alge-bra teacher and demands she give the kid passing marks. When this fails, he tries to placate her with gifts. Unsuccessful again, he finally has her fired. The resulting incidents are fraught with surprises, action and hilarious comic situations.

An added stage feature at the Granada the next few weeks is Louis Weir, famous organist, with his midget console. This tiny console with only 28 keys is capable of controlling every stop on the huge Granada organ. Mr. Weir is the inventor and gives a surprising performance.

WAKEFIELD THEATRE TIME SCHEDULE

On Friday and Saturday, Feb. 1, 2, "College Rhythm," at 3:30 and 9 and "Tomorrow's Youth" at 2:24 and 7:54.

On Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Feb. 3, 4, 5, "Evelyn Prentice" at 3:40 and 9:10; "It's A Gift" at 2:24 and 7:54. Sunday matinee at 2:45. Evening at 7:45.

On Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 6, 7, "Imitation of Life" at 3:20 and 8:50; "Straight Is the Way" at 2:15 and 7:40.

MALDEN MYSTIC THEATRE

One of the most unusual pictures of the season will be the feature attraction at the Mystic Theatre, Malden, starting Saturday, Feb. 2. It is Universal's master thriller, "The Black Cat." Two dead souls come to life after a lapse of many years, with a lustful desire to wreak vengeance upon each other. An innocent young couple, just married, and on their honeymoon, become involved in the sinister machinations. David Manners and Jacqueline Wells play the part of the young honeymooners. Others in the cast include Lucille Lund, the All-American girl, Henry Armetta and Egon Beecher.

The international stage success, "Tangerous Corner," is the basis for the second feature at the Mystic next week. The leading members of the cast include Conrad Nagle Virginia Bruce, Melvyn Douglas, Ian Keith, Erin O'Brien-Moore and Bette Furness. The story deals with the imperfections and illusions in a little group of friends and relatives, the truth revealing cross-sections in their lives and loves carefully hidden in their everyday existence. There are marriages that apparently haven't worked, and once the surface is torn away, human frailties stand out like spectres in the graveyard of hope. It is very often said that truth is stranger than fiction, and that is somewhat the basic idea of his production—that of truth vs half-truths.

Miss Barbara Louise Burbank of Bacon street celebrated her fourth birthday on Tuesday by entertaining some of her young friends. Miss Judith Flanders, Miss Nancy Tillson, Master Kenneth Tucker and Master Bouldin Gaylord Burbank, Jr., all of this town and Master James Craven Coulter of Clinton, came with gifts and birthday greetings.

"SWEET ADELINE" AT THE UNIVERSITY

"Sweet Adeline," the sensational musical comedy hit by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein II, that set all New York awhistling, now comes to the screen as the latest of the gigantic musical specials, and is scheduled as the feature attraction at the University Theatre for four days starting Sunday. Irene Dunne, favorite singing star of both stage and screen, will appear in the stellar role, supported by an exceptionally talented cast of comedy and dramatic players. The picture is laid in the glamorous Broadway theatrical district; a fashionable trysting place of young bloods and their lady loves on the outskirts of the city and in a picturesque Hoboken beer garden.

Richard Dix comes back to the type of picture that won him fame, in the companion picture, "West of the Pecos," from the popular novel by Zane Gray. Like "Cimarron," the setting is in the Southwest, with the time period slightly before the Oklahoma land rush. Martha Sleeper plays the leading feminine role.

Paul Muni, one of the greatest actors on stage or screen, comes Thursday in "Bordertown," which is said to be the most powerful drama in which he has ever appeared. The picture, suggested by Carroll Graham's novel, is a stark, realistic picturization of the colorful life in a town on the American border, with its night clubs and gambling resorts frequented by American millionaires and bored society women seeking diversion. In this atmosphere, Paul Muni, in the role of a foreign youth, rises to riches and power as the proprietor of a fashionable night club and gambling hall. Bette Davis, in the leading feminine role, is said to surpass even her splendid performance in, "Of Human Bondage."

Conrad Nagel, for many years a leading film favorite, returns to the screen in one of the principal roles in "One Hour Late," the companion feature. Nagel supports Joe Morrison, radio tenor, and Helen Twelvetrees.

ANNOUNCEMENT

In relinquishing control of the drug business which I have conducted in Winchester square for the past 28 years, I must avail myself of the opportunity to express my heartfelt gratitude to the people of this town for the valued patronage which I have enjoyed from them.

The success of any business is dependent upon the good-will of the community which it serves. This is especially true in the case of a pharmacy which plays so important a part in guarding the health of those who require its service. To me it is a source of pride that I have been able to gain and retain the confidence of my fellow townspeople in the course of our various contacts.

The pharmacy will be maintained at its present location by Mr. John C. Blaisdell, a registered pharmacist of wide experience in the drug business, who comes to Winchester from the Copley Square Pharmacy in Boston. Mr. Harry A. Wilcox, registered pharmacist, who has been connected with the store for the past 15 years, will continue with Mr. Blaisdell. Patrons will be assured of no interruption in the usual service.

May I once more express my cordial thanks to the people of Winchester for the many favors which I have received from them in my endeavor to render a service so necessary for the welfare of the community?

WYMAN SCHOOL NEWS

Among our January assemblies was the "Hansel and Gretel" play vividly acted by Miss Titcomb's fourth grade.

Miss Lowry's third grade gave a convincing thrift assembly. The class sang two thrift songs. Then six boys told the meaning of the word thrift. A little play about the "Grasshopper who did not save" was then given by six girls.

In agreement with health and wealth theories, at a later assembly, Miss Howard's fourth grade gave a health play called, "David's Dream," preceded by a Red Cross meeting.

On Jan. 22, Miss Rix's sixth grade presented a play on the exact manner of attaining citizenship—"The Naturalization of Mr. Straninsky."

The Mothers' Association, headed this time by Mrs. T. Price Wilson, served another of their delicious luncheons to the teachers on this Wednesday noon, Jan. 23.

FIRE APPARATUS DAMAGED BY AUTO

A 50-foot ladder on Ladder 1 of the Fire Department was broken when an automobile collided with the truck while the latter was answering an alarm from Box 38 at 6:26 Monday morning.

The ladder truck was turning into Oak street when a maroon sedan proceeding along Washington street, struck its rear, breaking one of the ladders. The driver of the sedan did not stop and the registration was not secured.

The alarm was for a fire in the partition of the house at 20 Spruce street occupied by Joseph Montillo. Attempting to thaw frozen water pipes caused the trouble. The damage was reported as slight.

ENTERTAINED AT DINNER

Dr. and Mrs. Richard W. Sheehy gave a dinner Monday evening at their home, 21 Washington street, preceding a meeting of St. Luke's Medical Guild, of which Dr. Sheehy is president, at the University Club of Boston.

The guests were: Dr. James J. Walsh of New York; Dr. Charles E. Morgan, Dr. James P. O'Hare, Dr. Edward J. O'Brien, Dr. Brainerd F. Conley, Dr. Edward N. Halligan, Dr. Roy J. Heffernan.

Dr. Walsh was the guest speaker at the meeting and his subject was, "Mediaeval Medicine."

MANY SOUND EFFECTS IN "SPREAD EAGLE"

Legion Play Poses Problems for Stage Management

Attendants at a rehearsal of amateur players are privileged to see many strange sights but your correspondent has never gazed on one so extraordinary before as that which greeted his gaze at the last rehearsal of Winchester Post American Legion's forthcoming production, "Spread Eagle." At a card table, center of a barren floor were Horace Ford and Stafford Rogers muttering into a monkey wrench which served for the nonce as microphone. These gentlemen, were, it appeared, radio announcers telling an eager American public that the Congress of the United States had just declared war on Mexico. Over at one side a liberal sprinkling of Winchester's best known amateur actors were engaged in alternate whisperings and shoutings working from one to the other by neatly graded crescendos and diminuendos under the spirited manual guidance of director Alan Hay. They were, it also appeared, for the moment not General Ramon Angel de Castro, Rosalie Arent, Father Estrella, Colonel Rojas, Manuel, Lois Henderson and "Bill" Davis, but a Broadway mob celebrating the declaration of war.

At the outset, Mr. Goodwin will have to cope with perhaps more different scenes than have ever before been required for a local dramatic production. Th first act of "Spread Eagle," is laid in the main offices of The Spread Eagle Mining Company, at 120 Broadway, the opulent office of Martin Henderson, himself head of a far-flung commercial empire. The second act transports the spectators from this quiet elegance to the rude shack which serves "Mike" Riordan, boss of Spread Eagle's Number 7 mine at Mercedes, Mexico. Thence it shifts quickly to the stage of a metropolitan theatre, to a broadcasting booth, to a motion picture mansion. The final act is played in a warehouse in Matamoras, Mexico scene of a United States mobilization. These rapid changes of scene might bother any less adroit gentleman than Mr. Goodwin. As it is, things already planned guarantee that they will be made rapidly and without hitch and that the effects will be as desired.

The cast for the play is now complete and will be announced next week. It is well-fitted as to types and numbers a very considerable group of players well-known to local audiences. The group has already been through a number of rehearsals and will reassemble about Feb. 10, will rehearse entirely without books so as to attain the snap and precision required by the rapidly flung lines of this taut piece.

It is perfectly clear why tickets are already selling rapidly for what promises to be the biggest Legion dramatic success since "Journey's End." Tickets may now be obtained through Donald Waugh, Kenneth Hall, Stafford Rogers, Gerald Ellis, Reveley Smith, Harold Meyer, Conrad Larson, Kingman P. Cass or any representative of a good-sized ticket committee.

OBSERVATIONS

How many old time Winchesterites remember when men shaved only on Sunday mornings?

Believe it or not, the shadow of a trouble is usually blacker than the trouble itself.

A man's cup of joy resembles an after-inner coffee cup, but his cup of sorrow holds several gallons.

We know a married man who holds his wife's hand to keep it out of his pocket. Fact.

Work by any other name would be just as distasteful to a lazy Winchesterite.

We once knew a fellow here in Winchester who pretended to be fooled just so he could fool others.

A Winchester woman says all this talk about the wiseness of Solomon makes her tired. Why shouldn't he be wise with so many wives to give him advice?

The "easiest way" to do a thing may not be the best, but it is the most popular.

Said a colored friend to me not long ago: "Some of these so-called negro spirituals heard over the radio sound about as much like the old time darkey songs as a crow can mock a mocking bird."

We heard a fellow say that the horse still remains. Maybe he referred to the horse power of the new automobiles.

Once upon a time a fellow right here in Winchester was harsh enough to say that a woman's proper sphere is a ball of yarn.

Women still carry water upon their heads in Syria. And we have seen girls right here in fair Winchester who acted as if they had water on the brain.

We know a fellow in this town who has no humor in his system. He reminds us of a rare beefsteak without any salt and pepper.

There are not many alive today who can recall it, but about 1880 when a girl crossed Winchester square she would carefully lift her long skirt fearing her stockings would show, to the amusement of the village cut-ups on the corner.

We know a fellow here in Winchester who humbly speaks of his own insignificance and gets mad because other people refer to it.

GENERAL ELECTRIC DISHWASHER

Dishwashing Time Cut to Less Than 5 Minutes. Chipping and Breakage Eliminated. Dishes Hygienically Cleaned by General Electric's Newest Contribution to Modern Living

General Electric has perfected the electric dishwasher. The new G-E washes all the dishes—china, glassware, silverware, and the pots and pans, too—in less than 5 minutes. It also washes and dries itself. Human hands do not even touch dishwater.

Soiled dishes are placed in soft, resilient rubber trays—as quickly and easily as stacking on a table—the cover is closed, a magic control is turned, and in 3 to 5 minutes the job is done. Dishes remain stationary and the breakage and chipping of hand washing and drying is eliminated.

Dishes—Dishes—Dishes!

In the average lifetime a woman washes and dries tons and tons of dishes—72 stacks, each pile as high as the Empire State Building. Many a golden hour has been drowned in the murky depths of a dishpan. The charm of lovely hands, the bouyant energy of youth have been sacrificed too long to this thankless task.

Now the General Electric Dishwasher frees your kitchen forever from this distasteful, monotonous drudgery. No more cluttering confusion of stacks of dirty dishes. As fast as the soiled dishes accumulate they are tucked away in the G-E Dishwasher.

Your kitchen is neat, clean and orderly at all times with never a dirty dish in sight. An hour or more time is saved each day for other things—an hour that is valuable and precious to you or to your maid.

Your dishes are cleaner, too—hygienically clean!

Dishes are a major carrier of disease germs. In the G-E Dishwasher a spray of scalding water, hotter than human hands can touch is forced over every dish. Dishes are hygienically cleaned, protecting the health of your family from the dangers of careless or hurried hand dishwashing.

Modernize your kitchen with this new contribution to the freedom of American womanhood. Savings in time, the elimination of breakage, the economies in soap, laundry and water heating actually pay for this newest electric home servant.

There is a size and model General Electric Dishwasher for every kitchen. Terms as low as

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

Wintry weather throughout the country has slowed production and movement of most perishable foodstuffs. A severe freeze in Texas has seriously damaged the spinach, broccoli, beet and carrot crops of that region so that higher prices may be looked for. Many vegetables, however, are plentiful and either cheap or moderately priced—among them potatoes, turnips, parsnips, cabbage, kale, cauliflower and green peas.

Grapefruit, navel oranges and apples are the outstanding fruits, though strawberries are beginning to be plentiful and very moderate in cost.

Meats continue high. Butter and eggs are higher, though eggs will be lower as production increases and shipping conditions improve.

Here are three menu suggestions which are timely and suited to three budget levels:

Low Cost Dinner
Pan-broiled Chopped Beef
Baked Potatoes Creamed Parsnips
Bread and Butter
Sliced Oranges and Bananas
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner
Roast Pork
Sweet Potato and Apple Scallop
Creamed Cabbage
Bread and Butter
Snow Pudding Soft Custard
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner
Consomme Julienne
Roast Lamb Pan-browned Potatoes
Carrots and Peas
Orange Salad
Hot Rolls and Butter
Ice Cream with Strawberries
Coffee Milk

PHARMACY CHANGES HANDS

F. H. Knight Retires After Nearly 30 Years Business in Winchester

After conducting the pharmacy bearing his name for nearly 30 years, Frank H. Knight, Ph.D., has sold his establishment to John F. Blaisdell of Somerville and retired, temporarily at least, from active business in Winchester. His retirement removes another of the old line merchants who have sought to maintain in the best business traditions of the community.

Mr. Knight, a native of Durham, Me., and graduate of Bowdoin with the degree of A. B. in 1894, entered the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy in the same year, completing the course in three sessions. He received his degree in 1898, getting the added necessary experience meantime in the employ of J. G. Godding & Co., on Dartmouth street in Boston. He passed the examinations of the Massachusetts Board of Pharmacy in 1897, and became registered in Maine in 1901.

After four years with the Godding Company and four more in Waltham with H. I. Johnson, Mr. Knight came to Winchester in 1906, purchasing the well known Young & Brown drug store at the corner of Church and Common streets, which he conducted from that time until last week Tuesday, Jan. 22.

Mr. Knight has been a member of the American Pharmaceutical Association since 1909 and has been for many years a member of the National Association of Retail Druggists, joining the State Association in 1921. He has been active in Winchester's social and fraternal life, holding membership in William Parkman Lodge of Masons, acting as secretary of the Winchester Rotary and as director of the local Chamber of Commerce. A talented musician, he has been identified with the Winchester Music Garden and has often contributed to its programs.

Those who have been associated with Frank Knight will regret his departure from the business life of the community, while wishing him all happiness in the future. His successor, Mr. Blaisdell comes to Winchester with 17 years' experience in the retail drug business, the past three years being spent at the Copley Square Pharmacy in Boston. It is of interest that the new proprietor of "Knights" is shortly to take up residence in Winchester, thus becoming more closely identified with the town.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. MacArthur of Valley road are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a son, Robert, at the Winchester Hospital on Jan. 20. Mrs. MacArthur was before her marriage, Miss Georgianna Watters of this town and the maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John W. Watters of Wildwood street.

WINCHESTER HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Mr. L. Waldo Thompson will speak on, "Old Inns and Taverns of Woburn and South Woburn (Winchester)," Thursday, Feb. 7, 8 p. m., at the Winchester Public Library Hall. Dr. J. Harper Blaisdell will preside.

Mr. Thompson, a most interesting speaker, is president of the Bay State Historical League, of which the Winchester Historical Society and more than 100 others are members. He is a prominent historian, and a descendant of the pioneer, James Thompson, who served on the first board of Selectmen in Woburn.

Many of Winchester's older residents will recall the Black Horse Tavern, one of the most important of the old hostelries. Located on the Boston-Montreal stage route, many weary travelers found shelter and sustenance there, and during the Revolution, it was a rendezvous for patriots.

Gifts

Miss Cora A. Quimby, curator, reports the receipt of several gifts, and promises of others. A letter received this week from one member expresses gratitude that there is a place in Winchester where some of her treasures may be preserved for posterity. She is happy that after her death, articles which she has cherished, will not be relegated to the junk heap nor sold for a mere pittance by some unappreciative heir.

Eventually the Winchester Historical Society will have its own home. Meanwhile it is adding to its collection. It is especially interested in the following:

1. Items connected with the early history of Winchester.
2. Items with historical interest.
3. Antiques prior to black walnut or late empire period.
4. Objects of antiquarian interest.
5. Town or family histories; genealogies.
6. Old maps of Winchester; deeds; photographs, articles; manuscripts; clippings.
7. Indian relics.
8. Costumes prior to 1870.
9. Daguerreotypes, miniatures, silhouettes, of Winchester's prominent citizens or of its "first families."
10. Relics of the Revolution; War of 1812; Civil War; World War.
11. Newspapers printed before 1840.
12. Old coins, stamps.

Tuesday evening's games in the Community Basketball League, played at the Town Hall, resulted in a 17—11 win for Foley's over the Sparks and a win for the Amico Bakery over the American Legion by default. Both the Foley's and Sparks were shorthanded, and played their game with four men on a side. "Lefty" Stuart was the game's high scorer, with 10 points on four floor goals and two from free tries. The veteran, "Robbie" Robinson, was high scorer for the winning team with four field goals.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

Both divisions of the Drum and Bugle Corps will meet on Feb. 4 at 4:45 p. m. at the Town Hall, because the Winton Club has the hall earlier in the afternoon for rehearsal.

On Saturday, Jan. 19, the Senior Troop 3 acted as hostesses at Cedar Hill. About 15 members of the troop went over at 10 o'clock. They helped people through the "maze" and stayed by the hill to aid skiiers and coasters. Each Scout brought her own lunch and hot cocoa was for sale. In the afternoon, there were also some interesting indoor games and then they watched the snowshoe baseball game between Newton and Cambridge. The Scouts left at 3:30 p. m. after a wonderful day. Cedar Hill should be used by more Scouts and their friends, for it offers both hospitality and a place for outdoor sports.

Troop 3 held its regular meeting on Jan. 22, at the Nurses' Home of the Winchester Hospital. After supper, one of the nurses took the Scouts through the hospital in three groups. Then they were shown the diet kitchen, X-ray rooms, some of the private rooms and the wards.

METCALF UNION NOTES

The public service of worship at 10:45 at the Unitarian Church will be conducted by the officers of the Metcalf Union in observance of the annual Young People's Sunday. The message of the morning will be delivered by Richard Elliott, president. The members of the Union will sit in a body.

At the evening meeting the Rev. John Nicol Mark, of Arlington, will be the speaker. Mr. Mark is very much in demand as a speaker for men's clubs and young people's groups. He is noted for giving talks both witty and inspiring. All young people of high school age are cordially invited for this meeting.

Following this service, Mr. Dana Cotton, director of Young People's work in the Unitarian Church and the young men of the Union will act as hosts at a "State of Maine Clam Chowder Supper."

CALUMET CONTRACT WINNERS

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sprague Pierce of Springvale, Me., are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Miss Geraldine Pierce, to Dana Meserve Cotton, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Henry Cotton of Gorham, Me.

Miss Pierce is a graduate of Nasson Institute and of Simmons College in 1929 and did graduate work at Cornell University. She traveled in Europe in 1933.

Mr. Cotton has done graduate work at Harvard and was sub-master of Brunswick High School for three years. Last year he was located in Washington, D. C. He is now a member of the high school faculty at Winchester.

BOY INJURED IN COASTING ACCIDENT

"Jim" Coon, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Coon of 24 Crescent road, was painfully injured while coasting last Sunday afternoon when his sled collided with a Ford sedan, being driven south on Washington street by John W. Hinckley of 2 Wolcott street, West Medford.

The accident occurred at the junction of Mt. Pleasant street, on which "Jim" was coasting with several chums. In sliding out of Mt. Pleasant street, his sled struck the left side of Hinckley's car.

The operator picked the boy up and took him to his home where he was attended by Dr. Wilfred MacKenzie. The doctor found that he had sustained a bad bump on the head, and to guard against possible serious consequences, ordered him removed to the Children's Hospital in Boston for observation. Here it was found, that his injuries were not so severe as at first feared. Unless unexpected complications arise, "Jim," who is a pupil in the sixth grade of the Mystic School, is expected to get along nicely.

IRAQ PIPE LINE FOLLOWS AGE-OLD CARAVAN TRAILS

One of the world's largest oil pools —the Mosul field, in northern Iraq, where ancient Assyrians stood in awe before burning rocks—now is linked directly with the Mediterranean Sea by one of the world's most spectacular pipe lines. The big conduit was dedicated in January.

On a map of the Near East this newest of trade "routes" looks like a huge letter "Y," because it is really a double pipe line, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Both tubes begin at Kirkuk, in northern Iraq; but 155 miles to the west, near the little desert village of Haditha, the two part company. One pipe strikes nearly due west 376 miles to Tripoli, in the French mandate of Syria; the other runs southwest along age-old caravan trails 463 miles to Haifa, in British-controlled Palestine.

Runs Through Lonely Deserts

More than 15,000 workmen have been engaged for nearly three years on this huge enterprise, constructed by American, British and French engineers. Although there are longer pipe lines in the United States, none of them has been laid under the difficult conditions that faced the builders of the Iraq-Mediterranean project.

Barren unpeopled deserts, differences in altitude from more than a half mile above sea level to 850 feet below sea level, wandering bands of hostile native tribesmen, total lack of railroads for transport, and only desert tracks for the huge motor trucks carrying the pipe—these are a few of the problems faced by the men on the job.

Under a concession obtained from the Iraq Government, oil companies of four nations—the United States, France, the Netherlands, and Great Britain—will share the profits of the enterprise. The new line is of greatest importance to France, which has no oil of its own.

The Mosul oil field, source of the thick black fluid which will pour through the new line and into the holds of tank ships at Haifa and at Tripoli, is a rectangular area about 10 miles long and two miles wide, at a point 40 miles northwest of Kirkuk. Prospecting is still going on, and new wells are being sunk at regular intervals. The oil is piped from wells to the trunk line, and powerful pumps push it along the first stage of its journey. The big tubes pass under both the historic Tigris and Euphrates rivers, and then strike out into the dusty desert, a desolate region inhabited by nomadic tribes.

Zenobia's Desert Capital

The northern and southern lines branch off at the village of Haditha. The northern line passes close to the ruins of Zenobia's desert capital, Palmyra, and thence over a mountain range 2600 feet high to the Valley of the Orontes, south of Homs. It reaches the Mediterranean three miles north of Chateau Raymond, of Crusader fame, today the port of Tripoli.

The southern section passes wholly through territory under British Mandate after leaving Iraq. From Haditha it continues southwest to the high-walled stockade of famous Rutbah Wells, where travelers by airplane, motor car, and caravan, following the old trade routes between East and West often halt for fuel, food, or lodging. Here halts, too, the palatial Damascus-to-Baghdad pullman bus, which, with its 63 feet of length, its 18 wheels, its buffet and bathroom, represents the largest motorized transport in the world. Its Diesel engines consume the crude product of the Mosul field.

In Trans-Jordan the southern section traverses the lava country, one of the most desolate regions in the world, consisting of lava boulders and rocks, with many extinct volcanoes and only the sparsest of vegetation. Thence it crosses the famous pilgrim railroad which leads toward Mecca, and descends into the Valley of the Jordan. In 18 miles the pipe line drops from 2700 feet above sea level to 850 feet below, presenting perhaps the greatest problem in pipe line construction in the history of crude oil transportation. After crossing the highly-cultivated plain of Esdraelon the line reaches the sea on the Bay of Acre, near the spot where the Crusaders made their last stand against Saladin and his Saracens, a few miles north of the modern port of Haifa.

To keep the thick oil in motion from Kirkuk to the sea there are 12 powerful pumping stations, their positions depending upon the lie of the land. A revolving pipe cleaner is used to free the inside of the big tubes from debris. At certain points valves can be opened, the cleaner inserted, and then driven to the next valve by heavy pressure.

The annual "throughput" of the double line is expected to be about 4,000,000 tons. The pipe line will eventually pay for itself, saving both time and expense of ships which once had to sail around the Arabian peninsula, and, in addition, pay duties at the Suez Canal.

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

The regular meeting of the Women's Republican Club will be held on Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 6, at 2:30 p. m. in Waterfield Hall. Mr. Edgar J. Rich, a prominent citizen of this town, will be the guest speaker. His discourse will be upon two of America's most beloved heroes, Lincoln and Lee. Mr. Rich has made a profound study of the lives of these men and has given many addresses, both in the North and South, regarding their characters and achievements. His address on Lincoln and Lee delivered in 1928, when President Coolidge dedicated the Fredericksburg Battlefields' Park at Frederick-burg, Va., has been highly praised. All club members are urged to attend this delightful lecture and to interest friends and neighbors in attending and joining the club.

Following the lecture a social hour will be enjoyed with tea served by the Social Committee, Mrs. F. W. Asceltine, chairman.

TO SEND OUT TAX DEMANDS EARLIER THIS YEAR

Tax Collector Nathaniel M. Nichols has sent out the tax demands earlier this year than last because he was ordered to do so in December by the Commissioner of Taxation, Henry F. Long, and the wording of the demand is prescribed by law.

All forms used must be approved by the Commissioner, and not a word can be changed in any of them. This does not mean that the local collector is going to advertise immediately, but that the personal unpaid taxes must be paid at once. The commitment this year is almost $50,000, more than last year, but the uncollected taxes are $26,699.79 less than at the same time last year, showing that $75,000, more has been collected. The amount of uncollected Polls, Personal and Real Estate, is now $221,062.42. This is less than 25 per cent of the whole.

WEEK-END FIRES

The first call the Fire Department received last week-end was at 12:50 last Friday afternoon when a woman locked out of a house on Herrick street called the Central Station for assistance. With several men on meal hour and one or two ill, there were no firemen available to send out on such a call, and a young man who happened to be in the station volunteered to go to the woman's assistance.

Saturday afternoon at 12:07, telephone Box 59 was sounded for fire in the cellar of the residence of Mr. Frank Burns at 27 Wedgemere avenue. There was fire damage done to the basement and first floor, and smoke damage throughout the house.

Sunday afternoon at 12:13 a telephone call was received from an operator at the local exchange reporting an automobile on fire in a garage at the residence of Mr. Lincoln H. Howe at 33 Grayson road. The fire was out when the apparatus arrived.

As Engine 3 and Hose 4 were leaving the station they narrowly avoided a collision with an automobile, headed west on Mt. Vernon street, which did not stop to permit the apparatus to pass. The operator drove around Engine 3 and narrowly avoided Hose 4 which was forced to swing sharply toward the center to avoid a collision.

In the center the operator of the automobile was stopped by Traffic Officer James Noonan. He gave his name and an address in Medford. He stated that he did not know the apparatus was coming out until it was too late to stop without being hit.

MUSICALE AT HOME OF MRS. GINN

Mrs. Edwin Ginn opened her beautiful home, "The Terrace of Oaks," on Bacon street, last Friday evening for a musicale, given by the Hampton Institute Quartette and Miss Dorothy Mainor, soprano. The occasion served as an opportunity for a large group of Winchester music lovers to hear the Hampton singers, who are in the North on a concert tour in aid of the Virginia institution, famous for its work with colored young people.

Mrs. Ginn and her daughter, Mrs. James Bernard Patterson of Boston, received the guests, all of whom were delighted with the hospitality extended them and the music presented by the talented colored singers.

In the main, their selections were spirituals, true folksongs, so often burlesqued and made other vindictive or boring by singers with an improper approach or lack of emotional background.

It is given to few outside the colored race to sing these simple folk tunes as they should be sung; reverently, as befits the place they fill and have filled in the life of the negro; joyously, as befits a people who have borne their burdens with a smile; and melodically, as only those can sing who have an innate sense of harmony and rhythm.

The Hampton singers sang with all the poignant appeal and beauty of tone so characteristic of colored vocalists, offering such old favorites as "Deep River," "Were You There?" "Roll Jordan Roll," "Go Down Moses," "All God's Children Have Wings," and others less often heard. Their interpretations were convincingly straightforward and sincere, those of singers singing music they obviously love and understand.

During its last few numbers, the quartette was assisted by Miss Mainor, who also appeared in a solo group. This former member of the Westminster Choir, displayed a glorious voice of great range and that velvety quality peculiar to singers of her race. Her high notes were sung where her effort or loss of tone, and her breath control was truly remarkable. Like the quartette, she sang with deep feeling and respect, especially apparent in her spirituals, though the same sincerity was also apparent in her secular selections.

President Howe of Hampton Institute spoke of the work the institution is doing and at the conclusion of the musical program refreshments were served in the dining room and a social hour enjoyed. An informal program of organ music was played on the Ginn organ by Mr. Swanier, director of music at the Fessenden School.

Gideon Huppe, 41, of 57 Emery street, Lowell, a coal employed by the Boston & Maine Railroad and stationed with a work crew car standing on a spur track south of the Swanton street bridge over the main line of the railroad tracks, had his right leg cut off below the knee when he was struck by an inbound train not far from the crew car shortly after 5:45 Monday afternoon.

According to the story told the police, Mr. Huppe had left the car to walk to Winchester station where he was to board a train for his home in Lowell. He was walking on the outbound track and had reached a point opposite the switch at the entrance to the spur track when he was struck by a passenger train, in-bound, and in charge of Conductor Harry Slack, with E. E. Pelton, engineer, and Edward M. Sullivan of this town, fireman.

Gate-tender Michael Crampton notified Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy of the Police Department that there was apparently trouble up the tracks, his suspicions having been aroused by the sudden stopping of the train and whistling of the engine.

Sergeant Cassidy hastened to investigate and arrived at the scene of the accident just as the train crew was placing the injured man on a stretcher, a tourniquet having been applied to his severed leg.

Mr. Huppe was placed in the baggage car and accompanied by Sergeant Cassidy, taken to the Winchester Station, an emergency call being sent in from the switch tower to have the police ambulance meet the train there.

The ambulance with Sergt. Edward W. O'Connell and Patrolmen John E. Hanlon and John J. Boyle, met the train and the injured man was driven to the Winchester Hospital where he was attended by Drs. A. P. Aitkin and Philip J. McManus. Mr. Huppe was conscious while being taken to the hospital and was in a critical condition upon arrival. It was necessary for the physicians to work upon him for three hours before he was sufficiently revived to permit the necessary operation. His name was placed upon the hospital danger list, but after the operation he rallied and by Wednesday, his condition had so far improved as to make the physicians confident of his ultimate recovery.

CURLING NOTES

Country Club Curlers Defeated Boston Curling Club—Local Curlers to Invade Nova Scotia

The Winchester Country Club curlers turned the tables on the Boston Curling Club Tuesday evening at the latter's rink, winning the return match between the two organizations, 15 to 11. A previous match in the recent bonspiel for the Worcester Cup was won by Boston, 14 to 10.

Tuesday evening's match, for the District Medal, was both interesting and exciting. Winchester had a decisive 10 to 2 lead in the early stages of the match and were out in front 15 to 6 with but two ends to go. Boston picked up five points in these two ends, while holding Winchester scoreless.

The Boston Curling Club lined up with Colonel Dillion, Fred Smith, G. F. Jones and Dr. J. T. Paul, skip; the Winchester Country Club being represented by S. B. Neiley, R. F. Guild, E. Y. Neill and G. C. Neiley, skip.

Boston had the first end, due to the last stone of Dr. Paul who found an open pathway and got inside for a counter. Winchester then picked up a couple of four ends that counted heavily in its ultimate victory. In one of these "Good" Neiley, with his last stone, took out three Boston stones which were lying points and left two Winchester stones inside.

The feature of the match was Dr. Paul's final stone, which he gave an out-turn to land on the inside of one of Winchester's stones, wicking to the button for a counter.

The Winchester curlers decided Tuesday evening to accept an invitation recently received to go to Yarmouth, N. S., for a series of informal matches as guests of the Yarmouth Curling Club on its rink. The invitation was for four teams, but the difficulty of securing 16 men for the trip made it advisable to double up with one and possibly two other clubs, this suggestion being offered by R. F. "Bob" Guild, former Harvard football player and present secretary of the Country Club curling committee.

"Bob's" plan is to have the local party leave by boat on the afternoon of Feb. 20, get in its curling, do a bit of sightseeing, and have Yarmouth in the early evening of Washington's Birthday, arriving home the next morning.

Already Harold V. Farnsworth, E. Y. Neill, R. F. Guild, G. C. Neiley and R. F. Fenno of the Winchester Country Club have signified their trip together with Dr. Paul, Gardiner Jones and Fred Smith of the Boston Curling Club. There is a possibility that the Country Club of Brookline will also send a group. The local curlers are enthusiastic over the prospect of meeting the Yarmouth group and expect to give a good account of themselves.

Curling at the Country Club has been going strong this winter, and up to the big snow-storm local enthusiasts had enjoyed an even dozen Saturdays and Sundays of good sport. Since the storm conditions have been bad, but the curlers have refused to quit under adverse circumstances and have even borrowed "ice bars" from Allen Kingman to assist in making snow ice after water had several times spoiled the surface made by shoveling away the heavy coating of snow on the rink.

BELMONT WON FROM WINCHESTER

Belmont High School practically clinched the Middlesex League basketball championship for 1935 Wednesday afternoon when it won from Winchester High on its home floor, 18 to 14.

"Mel" Wenner's boys were given plenty of competition by the locals who were always within striking distance, though never on even terms with the winners after the first quarter.

Coach Mansfield shifted his line-up for Belmont, sending "Little Joe" Josephson up to center and dropping "Steamer" Hanlon back to guard from the pivot post. Josephson had been doing some effective scoring from the back-court and at center it was hoped to take even more advantage of his possibilities. However, none of the boys had on their scoring glasses and only Frank Provinzano was able to get more than one basket from scrimmage.

At the same time, Winchester's defense was holding Belmont well in check, the winners tallying only one more floor basket than the locals, and having a two point edge at the foul line. The six free tries Winchester failed to convert were very costly.

Between the halves of the varsity game, the Winchester seconds won an exciting 18 to 16 victory over the Belmont jay-vees, with Richardson of the Belocals tallying 11 points to lead both teams.

NOMINATION PAPERS

Nomination papers are in circulation for Robert A. Reynolds for School Committee and for Kenneth F. Caldwell, also for School Committee.

THE EMERGENCY CAMPAIGN

More than 400 workers are canvassing 67 towns and cities throughout Massachusetts under the leadership of Mrs. Philip S. Dalton, metropolitan chairman, as the Emergency Campaign of 1935 rounds out the fourth week of its intensive drive for $4,000,000 for 97 major charitable organizations.

Campaign officials estimate that last year the Metropolitan area sent to Boston 18,000 hospital patients, 27,000 clinic patients and 3573 children to the children's agencies participating in the drive.

In soliciting metropolitan donors the canvassers are stressing the fact that approximately one person in every three helped by the agencies in the campaign lives outside the city limits. Help given by the agencies, includes care of the sick, the neglected, the abused and unhappy child; medical aid, legal advice for those who cannot afford professional fees; help in finding employment and the working out of complicated financial and domestic problems.

The following stories, typical of the service extended to the Metropolitan District, have been selected at random from reports made by the agencies.

Twelve-year-old "Tom" has lived for years in single rooms over a stable, keeping house there for his father, whose brutality had been largely responsible for his mother's death and had driven his older sisters and brothers away from home. For five years "Tom" had slaved for his father, cooking, washing, chopping wood, often cold from lack of clothing and weak from hunger. Fear, and a pitiful sort of family loyalty, kept him silent, but when his father, after repeated abuse, beat him with a hot poker, he could stand it no longer. A neighbor to whom he told his story sent him to one of the campaign agencies. There immediate action was taken to protect him from further cruelty by his father, who is being forced to support the boy. In the meantime, "Tom" is living in safety under the agency's protection, while arrangements are being made for him to go to another city, where a married brother has been found, who will be glad to give the boy the care and affection for which he has starved.

Another child, a little girl of six, has known no lack of affection during her short life, but affection has been powerless to protect her from the devastating effects of an infection. Day by day she wasted away, and local physicians and hospitals confessed themselves powerless to check the disease. Lying helpless on a board, wracked by pain, she was brought to a Boston hospital, where special facilities for the care of such diseases are available. It is too early to know what the results of the new treatment will be, but at least the care that is being freely given offers the child a chance of life. There is no way in which her father and mother, hard working people who barely manage to keep going in these hard times, could pay for this care; but, like many other fathers and mothers, they have learned that Boston hospitals do not hold back waiting for money when a child's life is at stake.

Children are not the only ones who benefit from the services of Boston agencies. Many a family has retained independence and self-respect through their constructive help. One agency tells of a man who came to their office a few months ago asking for suggestions for handling his financial problems. His wife had had a long illness, and to meet the expenses that piled un so rapidly he had gone to three different commercial companies for loans. It had not occurred to him that a man at work and earning a fair salary could find any other way out of his troubles. However, when his obligations reached a point where the interest and principal payments amounted to more each week than he earned, he reluctantly asked for advice. A loan that covered all his indebtedness was arranged for him, and the repayments spread over a period long enough to make it practical. With the burden of worry lightened, his wife improved rapidly and it became possible for the children, who had been scattered among relatives, to return home. Thus far, the man has met every payment on the appointed day. When he came in the last time, he reported that the family was happily reunited and everything going well. "We have to pinch and scrape to make these payments," he said, "but at least, you have made it possible for us to keep honest."

FIRE IN OLD SECOND CHURCH BUILDING

Wednesday night's alarm at 11:17 o'clock from Box 33 was for a fire in the building at 20 Cross street, formerly the Second Congregational Church, but later remodeled into a bungalow-type house and for a time, occupied.

The fire started in the kitchen of the house and was confined by the firemen to the rear of the dwelling. The flames ate their way up through the roof at that point, but as the building is one story construction the damage done was not extensive.

Chief David H. DeCourcy stated that the fire was probably started in spontaneous combustion. The owner of the dwelling is Dominic Carpucci of upper Main street, North Woburn. Patrolman Charles Harrold, Clarence Dunbury and Irving Reardon attended the fire and took care of traffic.

THANKS FROM TOWN OF BURLINGTON

The following letter refers to the trip to Burlington made by Patrolmen Henry P. Dempsey and John J. Dolan in the Police Ambulance on the Friday following the heavy snow storm:

Town of Burlington, Mass.
Office of the Selectmen
Jan. 30, 1935

Wm. H. Rogers, Chief of Police,
Winchester Police Department
Winchester, Mass.

Dear Mr. Rogers:

We, Thomas Mohan, David Ward and Ralph MacDonald, Selectmen of Burlington, wish to take this opportunity to thank the Police Department of Winchester, Mass., and especially yourself for the very humanitarian service which your Department performed in transporting the Batchelder child from Burlington to the Choate Memorial Hospital.

Unquestionably, had it not been for your kindness in the use of your ambulance during the terrific snow storm we fear that the child would have perished, as the burns he received by the accidental scalding on that day required immediate hospitalization and medical attendance. Fortunately he is now well on the road to recovery due entirely to your very kind efforts.

We know that we express the gratitude of his parents and also the citizens of this town, whom we are privileged to speak for, for this kindly act.

If we, with our very limited efforts, can, in the future in any way serve you, we will consider it a very great pleasure to do so.

Sincerely yours,
A. G. Vigneau,
Clerk of the Board

NEW ST. JEROME'S CHURCH NEARING COMPLETION

Another monster penny sale in aid of the new St. Jerome's Arlington-Belmont Parish taxed the capacity of the Robbins Memorial Town Hall in Arlington, Wednesday evening.

The windows and pews for the new building are gems of beauty of design and craftsmanship, and many have already been subscribed for. Father Fitzgibbons is having the stations of the cross done in rich oil paintings with beautiful hand-carved frames.

MT. HOLYOKE BOOK TALKS

The last in the series of Mt. Holyoke Book Talks was given on Jan. 29 at the Mystic School. Mrs. Bond spent a short time on modern poetry, chiefly on, "Wine from These Grapes" by Edna St. Vincent Millay and "Rider of the Sky" by Leighton Brewer, the latter being a very dramatic poem about aviation in the great war.

The rest of the time was spent in reviewing "Via Mala" by John Knittler, which bids fair to be one of the outstanding pieces of literature of the present time. It is a novel full of romance, eventure and keen psychological analysis. Everyone present regretted that the course had come to an end and hoped that Mrs. Bond would be with us another year, as she has selected her books so well, read from them in such a dramatic manner and made discriminating criticism of them.

Mrs. William A. Kugler of Winslow road, chairman of arrangements for the course, entertained her committee and Mrs. Bond at tea at her home after the lecture.

MANY MAKING RESERVATIONS FOR BOWLER DINNER

Harry A. McGrath, treasurer of the committee in charge of arrangements, reports that over 150 reservations have already been made for the complimentary dinner next Wednesday evening at the Winchester Country Club for Harry Bowler, popular club manager and former professional, who is shortly to sever his business connection with the club after more than 20 years' service. The committee has decided to admit any of Mr. Bowler's friends, whether club members or not, and as the guest of honor is widely known in golfing circles with a host of friends in and around Boston, it is expected that the capacity of the club house will be taxed to the utmost when the hour for the banquet arrives. Former members of the club, some from quite a distance, are writing in for tickets.

It is doubtful if there is any professional in the game, aside from the brigade of tournament highlights, more widely known than Mr Bowler. While he was yet in his professional role, he had club customers in many parts of the country because of his known skill as a clubmaker, in the days when that was an important part of a professional's job, and because the Winchester expert had so systematized the job that any person who once had had him make a club could write and secure an exact duplicate, because Mr. Bowler had every club numbered and catalogued as to style, weight and all other details.

Among those who will attend the dinner are a number of local golf professionals, for Mr. Bowler in his long years of service started many of them as his assistants and helped many others to secure club berths.

CONGO YOUNG PEOPLE TO HAVE VALENTINE MEETING SUNDAY

Sunday the Congo Young People's Society plans to celebrate the coming of St. Valentine's Day with a speaker who will talk on a subject apropos to the season. This is Professor Winslow Loveland of Boston University, and he has chosen for his subject, "Famous Lovers." He is very interested in this field, particularly in those lovers which abound in Shakespeare's works. After everyone has learned about these lovers, he will go to the social hall and partake of a hearty supper and Valentine frolic. This week, instead of supper being served in the far end of the hall, the tables will be spread farther apart in the main hall which will add a more festive spirit to the party.

The meeting last week was warmly accepted. The four Chinese students proved very popular with the young people, and were detained for some time after the meeting, while many questions were put to them. Considerable merriment was had at the supper, also, among those who had a little difficulty in wielding chop-sticks. However, everyone took his pair home, and by the time there's another occasion for using them, better luck will be had.

Don't forget Sunday's meeting. It's going to be different!

WYMAN SCHOOL NOTES

On Friday, Feb. 1, the children were delighted by the adept performance of Mr. Bertram Adams the magician.

On Saturday, Feb. 22, Dr. Tozier gave an interesting talk on Wild Animal Life, chiefly the buffalo and the beaver.

On Feb. 1, Miss Crossley's second grade gave an assembly on the transportation unit they had been studying. The children held up a large construction paper frieze. This showed the development of water travel, land travel and air travel. Each child told about the picture of canoe, steamer or airplane he had drawn.

On Feb. 4, Miss Bowie's fifth grade gave a thrift assembly. There were poems on thrift, and a large graph of the Wyman School children's bank deposits month by month. There were also statistics on the price of school books and materials which should be carefully handled. Time saving was cleverly recommended and two songs were sung.

CONCERT AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

On Friday evening, Feb. 15, the M. I. T. combined musical clubs under the auspices of the Philathea Class of the First Baptist Church will present a concert at the Baptist Church. The Glee Club, the Banjo Club, and the Octette of the Musical Clubs will participate in the program. The Glee Club is under the capable direction of Mr. William E. Weston, who is assisted by student leader, Richard L. Hughes.

This year's organization consists of some 50 men and is regarded as one of the best groups at Tech during the past four or five years, as many of the members are veterans of one or more concert seasons. The octette is also coached by Mr. Weston and consists of David Buckwalter, Richard Hughes, Gerald Rich, Edward Morris, William Saylor, Harold Everett, Louis Birchall and George Akin.

The Banjo Club, a unit of six men, under the leadership of Frank Walters will entertain with its characteristic novel interpretations of light classical music. The featured soloist will be Walter H. Stockmayer, who was also the soloist at the last Tech Sunday concert held jointly by the Glee Club and the Wellesley Choir. In addition to being an accomplished pianist, Mr. Stockmayer has the distinction of being this year's recipient of the Rhodes Scholarship which provides for study at Oxford. The whole concert will be of an hour and a half's duration and has been so planned as to please the most critical audience. The concert will begin at 8 o'clock.

William Earle of Station WHDH will direct a Junior Radio Revue, Friday, Feb. 15 at 8 p. m. sharp in the Hobbs Junior High School, West Medford. This revue will be sponsored by the Class Mothers of Grace Church, Medford. The proceeds will go towards Scholarship Fund for teachers of Grace Church Sunday School. Mr. Earle can be heard over Station WHDH Saturday mornings from 11 to 12 o'clock. Many local children will take part.

CURRENT ART EXHIBITION INTERESTING

There was a large attendance last Sunday at the pre-view of the exhibit of paintings by Edith McCartney and Daniel West, sponsored by the Winchester Art Association and being held in the art gallery of the public library. The fact that both artists grew up in Winchester and that Mr. West still makes his home here, being widely known among the town's young people, undoubtedly influenced the size of the gathering, though the exhibit in itself is very interesting.

Miss McCartney, in a sense discovered, and as a young student encouraged by the eminent artist, H. Dudley Murphey, formerly of this town, has become widely known in the field of child portrait painting. Her portraits of President Roosevelt's grandchildren, which she painted last year, came in for national notice, though they were but two of several fine studies which she produced in that time at her new York studio.

A particularly charming group of pastel portraits and still life studies are included in her exhibit here, among the subjects being Miriam Harris and Arthur Harris, Jr., children of School Committeeman and Mrs. Arthur S. Harris, and Alexander Bowles Samoiloff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Samoiloff, the former Carlene Murphy. Also of interest is the portrait of the artist's daughter, Patricia, and a profile of a young man, done in an interesting manner in gray, against a darker gray background. Portraits of the mature Walter Alexander of Milwaukee and Mrs. William Sabine of Washington, D. C., show Miss McCartney's versatility, both being finely done. Two interesting still lifes are, "Bittersweet," depicting a buff pitcher of this colorful vine with a glass candy jar and "Wheel of Life," a glazed Chinese figure against an open fan with a water lily in a shallow dish in the foreground. Feminine hearts went out to the study of "Master Gopal Mukerji," son of a Hindu author, whose large dark eyes and low-growing hair are skillfully treated to produce an expression of youthful brooding that is compelling. A cleverly draped colorful shawl lends an effective atmosphere for the painting.

Mr. West found the subjects for many of his paintings and sketches on his trip with his cousin, William Albert Robinson, to the Galapagos Islands in the South Seas. His youth and enthusiasm shows in his work, in the boldness and lack of conventionality with which he treats his subjects and in his very choice of subjects. The "Gonzoles Watchman," who is also a smuggler, "Bird With Broken Wing," "Happy Joe's," "Shack in Taboga," "Head of Charleston, S. C., Negro" and the "Squall Over Panama," are pictures which will appeal to young people.

Many of Mr. West's pictures are impressionistic, a notable example being the, "Lagos Lagoon" study. Water color, crayon, charcoal and pencil are mediums used, though there are two large oil portraits, one a self portrait, that are interesting and a sketch of trees in Woodstock, N. Y., is done in pen and ink and water color. Local visitors will find the view of, "Morningside at Noon," across Mystic Lake from Grove street interesting. The little nest of white buildings in "Tahara, Peru," is well drawn, and the coloring and drawing in, "After the Hurricane, Cuba," are effectively combined.

The exhibition is to remain at the library during the month and it is expected that its local interest will attract many to see it during that time.

The following communication was received by the Star this week in connection with the above exhibition.

To the Editor of the Star:

On Sunday afternoon, the wind was decidedly in the West at the Winchester Art Association tea, when the young artist, Daniel West gave a second showing of his impressionistic water colors, very tropical in color and others, although local, hardly less so.

Unhampered by academic training, he records his impetuous and fresh outlook on a new country, the South Sea Islands, adopting a set style and rather mathematical approach interspersed with vivid color, which would suggest illustration in the modern manner. This tendency to modernism, so-called, is particularly noted in the several pencil drawings, character sketches.

In quite a different view (and who ever thought of combining these two) are the portraits and still life by Miss McCartney.

Their charm is readily understood by those to whom the water-colors might be more or less of an enigma. The most successful being the Polish Boy. The subdued colory of a paisley shawl, making a rich background for the head with such soulful, dark eyes.

WINCHESTER GIRLS BEAT BELMONT

Winchester High School girls' basketball team had little trouble defeating the Belmont High girls at Belmont last Friday afternoon, taking the decision, 31 to 19, in an interesting game.

"Dot" Glidden of the local club had a field day at the expense of the Belmont guards, tossing in nine floor baskets to come within a single point of the entire Belmont score.

Between the halves of the first team game, the Winchester seconds won a 14 to 7 decision over the Belmont seconds.

WINCHESTER WON FROM READING

Winchester High went into third place in the Middlesex Basketball League by virtue of its 25 to 13 win over Reading High in the local gymnasium last Friday evening. It was the third straight win in a week for Coach Mansfield's boys, and reversed the decision won by Reading in an early season game.

The locals started slowly as usual, and were held very even by Reading during the first half, having only a single point advantage at intermission, the score being 9 to 8.

With the resumption of play, Winchester began to click and gradually forced ahead, playing good ball during the remainder of the contest.

Provinzano had eight points to lead both clubs in scoring, his team mates Josephson and Hanlon being right behind.

LEONARD FIELD CUBS PREPARE FOR 1935 SEASON

Manager Mario Marrone and Captain DeMinnico of the Cubs are settling down to business and getting their players for the 1935 basehall season. They are planning to get about two more good players for this season. Manager Marrone reports that his two star pitchers, DeMinnico and Kenton, are in good shape for the coming season. Last season, DeMinnico won eight and lost one, Kenton winning six and losing two. Manager Marrone says the Cubs will play better ball the coming 1935 season, than last year when they only won 23 and lost three games.

LEXINGTON HERE TONIGHT

Winchester plays what will probably be one of its hardest basketball games of the Middlesex League season tonight, when it meets the big quintet from Lexington High on the local court, first and second teams, commencing at 7:30. Several of the Lexington football players are in the Minuteboy's lineup, and a spirited contest is looked for when they again lock horns with the gridiron warriors on the local roster. Coach Mansfield's charges have been playing much better haskeball of late and have climbed in the league standing. They are confident of turning back Lexington, particularly after the latter's recent defeat at the hands of Stoneham.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

25th Anniversary of Scouting in America

Throughout the ages, celebrations of birthdays and anniversaries has become a matter of custom. The Boy Scouts of America has for years set aside a full week for celebrating its anniversary. Feb. 8, begins a program of celebrating the 25th anniversary birthday—the silver anniversary of Boy Scouts of America! Because it is the 25th anniversary, the program of celebration will continue through the entire year of 1935.

Since it was founded over 6,000,000 boys have had the benefits of the Scout program. Scouting has now reached a point where one in every hundred men, women and children throughout the United States is definitely related to Scouting. Last year the grand total membership involved 1268, 441 persons. Since it was first published in 1911, 4,999,999 copies of the "Handbook for Boys" have been printed. It is the best seller in the United States, except for the Bible.

The programs as developed will of course bring Scouting prominently before the American people, and will, we believe, occasion great satisfaction to all. However, we want to have as an outcome of the celebration, the development of suggestions and plans whereby in the next 25 years, even more good may be accomplished and more boys may experience the joys and satisfactions and values which come from the program of the Boy Scouts of America.

Now, for the celebration of the beginning of anniversary week for this year. President Franklin D. Roosevelt has personally agreed to open anniversary week celebration by participating from the White House in a radio program lasting from 8:45 p. m. to 9 p. m. Eastern Standard Time, on Feb. 8, Anniversary Day. President Walter Head will open the program from the arena of the annual circus of the St. Louis Council in St. Louis, Missouri.

It is hoped that every troop in America will meet in their regular meeting place on this occasion, where the Scouts will have an opportunity to listen to the broadcast in a group. Watch your local newspapers for the station.

Expedition to Camp Lane

On Sunday, Feb. 10, at 2:30 p. m., there will be an expedition of Scouts and Scouters of Winchester to the new camp site recently presented the Winchester District, Boy Scouts of America, by Charles Lane of this town. The group will assemble in front of the office of Dr. Richard J. Clark, 40 Church street. The committee in charge are anxious to have all troop members, Troop Committeemen, Scoutmasters and Assistant Scoutmasters, and all Scouts, to attend. If possible, we would suggest that you take either snow shoes or skiis, and as many as possible, bring shovels.

As far as possible, it would be advisable for each troop to furnish their own transportation. In the case of those who do not have transportation, it will be provided for. Troop Committeemen and Scout fathers may be interested in furnishing transportation for the boys. Don't forget the time, 2:30 p. m., 40 Church street. In case of heavy rain or snow, or a temperature below 10 degrees, the expedition will be postponed until a later date.

Competition for All Scouts

The Winchester District is to sponsor a competition for all local Scouts, in the nature of a plan for a camp site at Camp Lane in Burlington. There will be four projects in the competition, namely, the general layout of the camp site; the lean-to; the fireplace; and the bridge, which will be built across the brook which runs by the site.

The competition will end on March 2, 1935 at 12 p. m., at which time all drawings should be submitted to Scoutmaster Raymond Bohannon, 569 Washington street. A Scout may submit plans for any one, or for all four projects. The drawings will be judged by a committee of Winchester Scouters, and the winner will be announced at the following Court of Honor. These drawings will also be shown at the Court of Honor. This is a great opportunity for Scouts to learn more about the Camp, and to see their ideas carried out in the building of the new camp site in Burlington. It is planned to have each troop select a project and build it. Mr. Bohannan is compiling a sheet of rules, which will be available within a week or two.

One Scout's Idea of Camp Lane

Scout George Manning, Jr., of Troop 2, Winchester, has submitted an article on Camp Lane, as follows:

Winchester has come in possession of a wonderful camp-site, Camp Lane. It is a good 15 minute walk from the main road, and a suitable place for most any phase of Scouting. It is just seven miles from Winchester Center, therefore making an ideal location for the mid-point of the 14 mile hike, which is necessary for first class Scout rank. There is no better site for miles around, for surveying, camping, map making and signaling. It is the best possible place for nature and tracking. There are literally hundreds of birds, even in winter; and as for squirrels and rabbits, there must be thousands. One can observe five or ten different kinds of trees without any trouble; among them, the somewhat rare yellow birch. Just above the stream, in which trout may occasionally be caught, is the Council ring, where one can cook and stargaze to his heart's content. The whole property is as large as Camp Pow-Wow, the summer camp of the Lynn Council, so there is no danger of being crowded.

Truly Winchester has acquired the best piece of land possible, and anyone discontented with the camp, must greatly undervalue the property. There are really not enough words to describe Camp Lane, and all that I can say is to, "Go see for yourself."

Troop 1 News

Patrol Leader William Syer conducted the meeting of last Monday. Martin Katcoff and Syer lead semaphore and Morse signaling groups in a gem of "touch." This gave a little variety to the drill on this subject.

Because of cloudy weather marching by patrols was substituted for star-gazing.

The Scoutmaster told the troop of President Roosevelt's broadcast on Friday. Each patrol plans to meet on that evening to hear the President formally open Scout Week, (Feb. 8-14) at 7:45 p. m. over a national broadcast. Plans for the National Jamboree at Washington in August were also presented.

UNITARIAN MEN'S CLUB RETURNS

In spite of hea winds and heavy seas, the good ship "Parish House" made the dock safely with the Men's Club on board. Daniel Dennett, Jr.'s stimulating talk was the high point of the trip. The passengers succumbed not to sea-sickness as might have been expected, but to nostalgia. They wanted news of their home town. As a cure, the officers of the club prevailed on their fellow member, Raymond S. Wilkins, to talk on Thursday, Feb. 14, on, "Town Finances."

Shades of the Town Meeting What an evening that will be. A stump speech based only on facts, heckling of the highest order, not to mention refreshments for the inner man. Thursday, Feb. 14 at 8 o'clock in the parish house.

Since the last issue of the Star the time of Kenneth McLeod's weekly Friday afternoon broadcast over Station WHDH has been changed from 2:15 to 2:30 o'clock. Mr. McLeod's fine baritone has long been a favorite with Winchester music lovers who will welcome the opportunity to hear him "on the air."

Meeting a friend this week we remarked upon his improved and cheerful appearance, and were told that he had recently gone out of business and lifted a load of worry from his mind. His only worry, he stated, was what to do about the code bills for his clerks. He hated to pay them and yet if his clerks continued to work anywhere the code had to have the money. NRA estimates code authorities are costing business about $41,400,000 a year. A simple sum in these days of billions! Add old age pension, unemployment pension, city, state and federal taxes! No wonder the gentleman was glad to be relieved of business worries! (Insurance too, can produce a few more grey hairs.)

This "movie" agitation we are now experiencing has its amusing side as well as its political aspect. Boiled down to present day facts and arguments the pith of the question seems to be not so much as whether we shall have movies as to how we shall have Mr. Locatelli's theater. Now that a decided opposition has appeared over the purchased site for "our movies," steps are being taken to insure that pictures shall be shown there and nowhere else. The purchaser of the Main street site is making the only bid for a movie at this time and is simply continuing his campaign instituted years ago. Those who do not favor his already purchased site, appear to be growing in number. If we are to have a three-way split—Mr. Locatelli, another location and movies —it might be a good thing for Winchester to drop the hot potato before it gets burnt. As the Star has already stated, it appears that outside those directly interested, the population at large has little or no interest in whether it continues to take its choice of surrounding movies or has an added movie within its borders, and judging from observation, our people will go to the theater which is showing the picture they want to see, be it Malden, Medford, Arlington, Stoneham, Woburn, Cambridge, Wakefield or elsewhere. A 10 to 20-minute [illegible] often enjoyed to get a little [illegible] into one's lungs. The children get a dime will probably be [illegible] customers for a local house. In [illegible], it is interesting to note the last paragraph of a letter in this issue regarding block booking of movies. Mrs. Smith writes that "under the provisions of the Motion Picture Code, any exhibitor employing block booking shall have the right UNDER CERTAIN CONDITIONS, to eliminate without cost, ten per cent of all of the motion pictures he has purchased." The bold face is ours, but one wonders much concerning the remaining 90 per cent.

THE CODE AUTHORITY ON BLOCK BOOKING

Feb. 6, 1935

To the Editor of the Star:

In the discussions one hears, as to whether our Selectmen should or should not grant a license for a picture house in Winchester, many speak of the trade practice known as "block booking." It has been my privilege to secure the following paper written by the executive secretary of the Code Authority of the Motion Picture Industry, and read last month before a study class at Columbia University.

Would you kindly print in the Star, that portion, relative to "block booking," in the interest of basing the question of the value of pictures in Winchester on facts rather than opinions; facts of the industry that would govern our local situation? If a referendum comes, the townspeople should know what it would mean to vote "yes" (and there are many who will) or why they should vote "no."

Let us encourage an understanding vote.

Thank you,
Mary A. Smith

The motion picture industry Code is the only Code, out of 618 which have been approved by the President, in which all functions of the industry are united under one Code Authority. I believe you are all aware that in most industries there is a manufacturing division which in turn distributes its articles through jobbers and wholesalers, many of whom own and control their own copyrights and trade marks, and they in turn distribute to retailers with whom they have no financial connection or interest whatsoever, except in the single transaction of buying and selling. So there must be a very good reason why it was found necessary in the motion picture industry out of all of the industries in the United States, to consolidate under one administrative body the multiple functions of producing, distributing and retailing. In that very reason is to be found the outstanding peculiar and unique characteristics of the motion picture industry which places it in a class far removed from nearly every other form of merchandising in modern times.

If I can convey to you tonight an understanding of what that difference is, and just why it is so, then you will have gained an insight into some of the mysterious things about the motion picture industry.

In the first place, the motion picture industry deals with a product in which the element of time plays a most important factor in the value of its goods. I know only one other industry where time is more important, and that is in the handling of fresh vegetables, but even there, science has been able to can vegetables and preserve them for months at a time. No one yet has been able to can or preserve a motion picture once the trap has been sprung and the film has started its exciting career.

I am speaking, of course, of the dramatic entertainment motion picture, the kind of motion picture which is made in the Hollywood studios with professional actors, prominent stars, written by prominent authors, usually adapted from some well-known play or book, produced by one of the large film organizations and directed by one of the nationally known directors. Such pictures on the average, entail a cost of production ranging between $500,000 and $900,000.

Some motion pictures which have enjoyed great popularity have cost much less than that. Others, which have been both extremely successful and others equally unsuccessful, have cost five times that amount. There will be approximately 600 new motion pictures made, distributed and exhibited in the United States during the season starting in August, 1934, and ending in July, 1935. This great number of productions represents, therefore, an approximate cost of $180,000,000.

Situated throughout the country at strategical shipping points are film exchanges, where duplicate copies of the motion pictures so produced are placed and kept in constant circulation among motion picture theaters. On the average there are about 100 copies of each motion picture made for the American market. The geographical boundaries within which these film exchanges serve theaters are uniformly and definitely drawn so there is no over-lapping of effort and with the generous assistance of the parcels post division of the Post Office, and of the American Express Company, films are shipped daily from the centers of distribution, exhibited for periods of one day or a week or more at various theaters, returned to the film exchange, and the process is repeated until all theaters having contracted to play a picture for a specific period have completed the process of public exhibition.

With each succeeding exhibition of the film, the rentals paid to the distributor by the exhibitor diminish in direct relationship to the so-called age of the picture. Thus, the first runs are the most profitable, and theaters showing films first in any community are generally able to charge higher admission prices than the subsequent runs. The process continues and is repeated again and again, the element of time dominating the financial arrangement of each exhibition. At the end of about 14 months, the course is finished and the film retired from circulation.

Now one comes to the much discussed and little understood "block booking" problem. I'm not going to hold any brief as to the merits or demerits of block booking in these short remarks tonight. But the reason for block booking is because the person who invests a large amount of money, sometimes amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars, in an individual theater enterprise, knows from experience that the only security he can buy which will week in and week out, attract a sufficient number of the public to his theater, is to fortify himself well in advance, like any prudent man, with an ample, adequate and certain supply of motion picture films. Thus block booking in its genesis, was born through demand and not through supply.

There has seldom been a situation in which misunderstanding has played so large a part as in the present crusade against "block-booking." It is reflected particularly in the belief of certain social and civic groups that the abolition of block booking will increase the social values of motion picture entertainment.

That higher standards of film entertainment are desirable is not a disputed issue but an accepted and ever-present fact. It is unreasonable, however, to assume that a task so vast as that of elevating the popular entertainment taste of a great nation can be accomplished merely by changing the channels through which motion pictures pass from the wholesaler to the retailer.

It would be equally logical to assert that the nation's appreciation of art and music depends on the bookkeeping methods of the dealers, or that its patriotic instincts are governed by the trade practices of the flag industry.

If the elimination of block booking could provide a short cut to higher standards of motion picture taste and acceptance, or even contribute toward them, it is only fair to assume that all responsible elements of the motion picture industry would welcome its immediate abolition.

What are the facts of block booking? Why is it considered objectionable? When and where did opposition on social grounds originate? What evidence supports the social case? Are exhibitors without choice in the selection of films? What use do they make of such choice as they have? Does block booking actually affect the character of screen entertainment? Why are some exhibitors opposed to it? What is blind buying? How does it affect the situation? What constitutes community choice?

The tendency to regard block booking as a barrier to the social development of motion pictures has accelerated rapidly in recent months. As a result the practice may now be said to occupy a definite place as a social issue in the thought of various public groups.

Block booking is essentially a trade practice, however. It is a factor in the struggle for advantage between the exhibitor and the distributor—the buyer and seller—of motion pictures. As such, it is the focal point of a conflict common to all forms of commerce. It has been assailed from time to time in the past by exhibitors seeking to better their trading position.

With the injection of the new element into the discussion block booking would appear to present two problems, the one commercial and economic, the other social. In reality this is not the case; the latter is merely the lengthening shadow of the former. Only the trade problem—the conflict of buyer and seller—has substance. It underlies all other issues in the final analysis, as will be shown.

An important distinction must be made at the outset if the situation as a whole is to be understood. No informed person within or without the motion picture industry seeks to abolish block booking itself. To urge such a step is to reveal a basic misconception of the problem.

Motion pictures are neither bought nor sold in a legal sense. Exhibitors are licensed to show them under copyright, and "lease" or "rent" films from distributors for that purpose. As a convenient method of distinguishing between the licensor and the licensee it is common practice to say that distributors sell films and exhibitors buy them.

Block booking is simply the sale and purchase (licensing) of a number of pictures at one time, in other words, the wholesale merchandising of films. It is not block booking that is opposed but the element of compulsion that block booking as now practiced is alleged to involve.

In every branch of trade retailers are expected to take a quantity of the merchandise offered if they wish to buy on wholesale terms. So it is with films. Distributors look to exhibitors to accept a group or "block" of pictures, if they wish to benefit from the wholesale prices at which the films are offered. The group of pictures—not the individual pictures that compose it—ordinarily constitutes the unit of sale.

It is this situation that certain groups and individuals seek to alter. They believe that the block should not determine the constituent pictures but that individually selected pictures should determine the block. They aim in this way to eliminate the disadvantages that block booking is now thought to entail from a social standpoint without disturbing the essential service of wholesale distribution.

To put it another way: Block booking is commonly thought of as the act of the distributor who offers pictures to exhibitors in groups or blocks. On second thought it is seen to apply as well to the act of the exhibitor who buys pictures in groups. To "abolish block booking" would mean, therefore, that distributors could not offer and exhibitors could not buy more than one picture at a time.

Obviously this is not the intention. To destroy wholesale distribution of motion pictures would be as disastrous to the exhibitor as to the distributor. The resulting increase in film selling costs and rentals would close thousands of theaters in outlying communities. Not even the most ardent opponents of the existing practice seek to prevent exhibitors from acquiring films of their own choosing in blocks, or to restrain distributors from supplying them.

It is proposed, in reality, to prohibit what is frequently termed "compulsory block booking"—that is, an offer of films involving insistence that all or a designated part thereof be accepted, or refusal to permit the selection of a lesser number. The proposal aims to leave both distributors and exhibitors free to trade in blocks as heretofore if in doing so there is no interference with the exhibitor's choice. In a word, the elimination of "compulsory" block booking and the substitution of "selective" block booking is advocated.

Under the provisions of the Motion Picture Code, any exhibitor employing block booking shall have the right under certain conditions, to eliminate without cost,10 per cent of all of the motion pictures he has purchased.

FAVORS MOVIES

To the Editor of the Star:

I read with amusement the opposition to the granting of a license for a Moving Picture House in Winchester.

It is a fact that most of the population enjoy and attend the movies.

I am frank to say that my family and I find good entertainment at the theaters in surrounding towns.

I can not understand why we who enjoy pictures, and there are few who do not, can not have them where we would not be inconvenienced to attend them. There are many people in Winchester who have not means of conveyance and who have not in these times extra money for transportation that would like to have an evening's entertainment at little expense.

Much has been said against the type of pictures that are shown at some houses. Mr. Locntelli has always had the reputation of showing high grade pictures.

Surely if license is granted it is only from year to year and it would be an easy matter not to issue same, in case pictures were unsatisfactory.

It seems to me that no man would make an investment of $200,000 without feeling in duty bound to protect that investment. This he would be forced to do in the way of giving the people of Winchester only what they would care to see.

To be sure he is not a local man, but what local man do we know who has had experience in Moving Pictures? The greatest catastrophe would be to have someone who was unacquainted with the business, attempt such a venture.

I do not think that Mr. Locatelli intends to foist a Moving Picture Theater on the Town of Winchester, in fact I know of many Winchesterites who have approached him to put one here. Therefore the agitation is not from the outside. Also I feel that he is not telling the town what it needs. On the contrary, he is trying to give the people what they want.

I see no reason why one person or a group of persons should speak for the whole Town of Winchester.

I am a property owner and a taxpayer and I do not hesitate to say that I want the Movies and I want only the best.

The matter of visiting Stoneham or Woburn on a Saturday afternoon is very far fetched.

I see nothing very immoral about a matinee throng. In fact there are a lot worse things that could happen to our children than have them attend a Moving Picture Theatre and see such pictures as Alice in Wonderland, Little Lord Fauntleroy, Tom Sawyer and several of the other good things that they go to see.

Two hundred thousand dollars builds a structure that I think one could hardly call a mediocre theatre. As I understand it, Mr. Locatelli intends giving us the prettiest small theater that any suburban town could have, also he intends to have this theater under his personal supervision at all times.

Aside from the benefit the movie going population of Winchester would have from such a venture, I point out the fact that a beautiful taxable income property will be much more pleasing to the eye and incidentally the town funds, than the delupitated old houses and buildings that are on location at present.

It is a fact that Mr. Locatelli would not spend that amount of money he anticipates, if he thought he were not going to get any return for same, but would any business man venture into any business if there was no return.

Winchester can control what is shown in its Moving Picture House. Winchester can control what its children see if they are here. Can Winchester control what the children see when they go out of town, and how do they know what other doings may be going on while they are not in Winchester?

A board of censors, appointed by the Selectmen, could see that what we had was the best and those who did not want to go, I am sure need not be forced to.

I say have the Movies, so that as we grow older and find it harder to go away from our own firesides, we may have something at hand for amusement.

The town will still be clean even if there are movies. I am sure that there are nice people in other suburbs of Boston; Milton, Newton and Brookline, who have not been contaminated because they have the privilege of attending a Moving Picture in their own town.

Mr. Locatelli has purchased two of the most centrally located properties in the business section, which, when reconstructed into the new building will contain 12 stores and offices with every modern equipment for present day business; the income derived from these alone will prohibit any failure in the success of the structure, the building will be commercial, the theater is only a part of it.

Would it not add to the beauty of the center of Winchester to see a fine Colonial type structure from the bridge to the center of Thompson street, with the projection that is an eye-sore taken away at the corner of Thompson and Main streets. How many lovely business buildings have we in our center that have architectural beauty?

Be consistant, you know you go to the Movies, let some poor mothers who are not fortunate enough to have cars see something besidethe wash-tub and house-work that they may know there is something in life hesides drudgery, let us brighten the corner where we are.

Yours for the Movies and the best the Movies can produce.

ROTARY CLUB

Six members were absent from the meeting of Feb. 7.

In the matter of the attenance contest for the month of December, we note that the 31st District registers a greatly improved rating (85.77) per cent. This is highly creditable for a District composed of so many clubs, and comprising so large a number of individual Rotarians. While practically all of the clubs in the District have helped in achieving this good work we would mention several clubs in the immediate vicinity of Winchester which have been turning in consistently high percentages—such clubs as those in Woburn, Stoneham, Melrose and Wakefield.

The Convention City of Rotary International for 1936 has been announced. The choice fell on Atlantic City and we have no difficulty in visualizing one of the greatest conventions in the history of Rotary. But Mexico comes first and Mexico is prepared to give its prospective visitors a most hospitable and truly satisfying welcome. The Rotarian who takes advantage of this tour may be prepared for a journey of exceptional novelty pleasure and educational value,

For the fourth time our club has acted as host at a special meeting for the benefit of those Rotarians who reside in Winchester, but are not affiliated with the Winchester Club. And for the fourth time it has been a red letter day for local Rotarians. In this connection it was most interesting to hear the remarks of George Palmer, chairman of the Community Service Committee of the Rotary Club of Boston, who represented President Glade Perrin, President of the Boston Club, at this meeting. We have previously noted that the idea of holding gatherings of this sort originated in that committee of which George Palmer is chairman. And again we are told that the Winchester Club was the first to put this idea into practice, thereby furnishing proof that it was sound and of exceptional merit. We should indeed be ingrates did we fail to give generous credit to those Winchesterites who belong to the Rotary Club of Boston, yet we take pardonable pride in the thought that the Winchester Club is an efficient vehicle for the working out of the plan.

On this occasion, Past President Alfred Marchant of the Boston Club was in a position to bring to us several professional guides from the hunting and fishing grounds of New Brunswick, namely George Allen, Morris Phillips and Gordon Tweedie. And with them came "Cliff" Davis of the Boston Post staff, as man whose experience in the great north woods, is not excelled by that of any person in this vicinity. And the atmosphere of this great sportsman's paradise thus produced was heightened by the serving of a delicious dinner where moose-meat and salmon from these same north woods was featured. Following the dinner, "Cliff" Davis exhibited several reels of motion pictures, which revealed the magnificent scenery, various hunting episodes, and rare and excellent portrayals of wild life characterizing this region.

Approximately 70 Rotarians and guests voiced the pleasure which they enjoyed as they gathered for this evening of fellowship and entertainment.

And on Feb. 14, we shall pay homage to St. Valentine. Yes Tom we mean you!

Limerick, Ireland

Limerick, Ireland, the city through which the River Shannon flows, is one of the chief ports of the Island and combines the associations of a historic town with modern improvements. One of the chief points of interest in the locality is the Treaty Stone, where Irish patriots long ago forced William and Mary to sign a document which protected the privileges of the Roman Catholics in the country. Along the Shannon also are located the remains of several castles, now falling into hyclad ruins, where in days gone by the Irish barons defied the might of England.

Where Belladonna Is Found

This liquid, often used by oculists for dilating the pupil of the eye, is extracted from a plant known scientifically as the belladonna, or, more popularly, by the name of deadly nightshade, notes G. R. Turner in the Kansas City Times. The plant, which is native to Southern Asia, is readily identified by its reddish bell shaped flowers and shining black berries. Not only does it give forth a most disagreeable odor, but in addition it is highly poisonous, causing it to be shunned in much the same manner as is poison ivy in our own country.

Treatment of Slaves

Slaves belonging to primitive peoples are often treated better than those in civilized countries, writes A. W. Robertson, London, England, in Collier's Weekly. In various parts of Africa, many dusky owners not only allow their slaves to own all kinds of real and personal property but even permit them to have slaves of their own.

Radiations and Injury

Various radiations can cause pain without injury and injury without pain. For example, heat waves easily excite pain without injury, as is shown in the sensitiveness of the eye to the radiation of a dull red fire. On the other hand, ultra-violet and X-rays cause no sensation whatsoever when they are seriously damaging the skin.—Collier's Weekly.

"Spirit" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Feb. 10.

The Golden Text is: "Where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty" (II Corinthians 3:17).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. . . . The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God" (Romans 8:14, 16).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Man understands spiritual existence in proportion as his treasures of Truth and Love are enlarged. Mortals must gravitate Godward, their affections and aims grow spiritual, they must near the broader interpretations of being, and gain some proper sense of the infinite, in order that sin and mortality may be put off. This scientific sense of being, forsaking matter for Spirit, by no means suggests man's absorption into Deity and the loss of his identity, but confers upon man enlarged individuality, a wider sphere of thought and action, a more expansive love, a higher and more permanent peace" (p. 265).

TIFLIS, CAPITAL OF GEORGIA, U. S. S. R., NOT GA.!

Tiflis, the capital of the Republic of Georgia, in the Caucasus, has undergone many changes in recent months. Although nearly 2000 years old when Leningrad was in its swaddling clothes, Tiflis today is one of the "newest looking" cities in the Soviet Union.

Recent reports from the Georgian capital indicate that the old city of traders is being transformed into an industrial community, using electrical power from the first large hydro-electrical plant—Zages—completed in the Soviet Union. Many narrow streets, unsanitary markets, and ancient buildings in "Old Tiflis" have been razed, and modern structures and asphalted boulevards are replacing them.

One of the most unusual changes was in a name. The main street was given new signs reading—not Stalin, or Lenin, or October Revolution—but Rustaveli Prospect. Rustaveli was a famous Georgian poet of the 12th century.

Always A Gay City

Tiflis, despite its years and even despite its former slums, has always possessed the air of a gay city, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. This may not be apparent at first. Alighting from a train or bus at Tiflis, the traveler may notice the depressing heat, if in summer time, or the sun-parched peaks of the Caucasus, that suggest famine rather than gayety.

But the newcomer is not long in Tiflis until he notices that the city is dominated by a vivacious, ambitious, happy-go-lucky race of mountineers whose men are big, stalwart, and well built, and whose women are graceful, with classic features and wonderful complexions. Centuries of shifting of races in the Near East have given Tiflis an extremely mixed and blended populace. In the principal square of the city many types of Georgians, Russians, Germans, Persians, Armenians, Turks, and others exchange ideas in more than 70 different tongues and dialects.

Tiflis is far enough east so that one might visualize it as a city of squat mud buildings, bordering narrow, crooked streets, with now and then a camel caravan making its way to the market place. But Tiflis has faced West for many generations, and its new streets have a fair quota of street car and motor traffic.

Cheap Power Attracts Factories

Cheap power has brought electric lights and machine shops, as well as factories making wool, soap, silk, ice cream, bread, macaroni, and scores of other products. Here are important locomotive repair shops, copper rolling mills and brick kilns. The population is now 400,000.

The Rustaveli Prospect, once famous as the Golovinsky, is a wide, tree-lined boulevard. Bordering it are modern restaurants, cafes, jewelry shops, art shops, theaters, commodious mansions, a museum, high school, library, and a park covering many acres. Facing the park is the Garrison Cathedral, atop which the cross of the Greek Church has been displaced by the star of the Soviet. Beside it is the handsome vice-regal palace used now as Soviet Government offices.

Near the cathedral is the valley station for the funicular railway which transports passengers to the hilltop "Coney Island" of Tiflis on Mount Ploskaya, where the natives take refuge from the city heat, and play. In a niche, half way up the mountain, the white buildings of St. David's Convent stand out boldly against the tawny background.

While some of the natives of Tiflis look like walking arsenals with clanking swords, daggers, pistols and cartridge cases fastened to their picturesque tcherkeskas, the Georgians are renowned for their hospitality. As with the Arabs, their home is yours.

The Workers Clubs, post-revolution additions to Tiflis life, are the entertainment centers of the city. In them one may play chess, checkers or other games, listen to good music, read in a quiet, well-stocked library, or dine better than elsewhere in the city. Beautiful gardens furnish delightful places in which to lounge. One flower bed is so arranged that th edate is shown in bedded plants and changed daily. Others contain likenesses of prominent Georgians or Russians.

Among various innovations originating in Australia are a mechanical device for starting horses in a race; the sliding seat used in rowing; the left hook used in boxing, and the totalizator system of betting.

"BRIGHT EYES" AT THE UNIVERSITY

Shirley Temple, most sensational film discovery of the year, will be seen at the University Theatre, beginning Sunday in her latest and according to all advance reports, her best picture, "Bright Eyes." Once more James Dunn is cast as Shirley's leading man, a fact which is said to have enchanted the young star. Preview audiences in Hollywood are said to have greeted "Bright Eyes," as the finest and most heartwarming picture in which Shirley has been seen. A human and compelling story, that at moments brings the tears, is combined with thrills that will chill the spines of any audience.

"The Band Plays On," the companion feature, is a story of college life, its romantic interludes, its lighter moods and its spirit of youth. The cast includes Robert Young, Betty Furness, Leo Carillo, Preston Foster and Russell Hardie.

Bing Crosby's new picture, "Here Is My Heart," starts Thursday. It presents America's favorite radio songster with another opportunity to display his comedy talent as well as his singing ability. Adapted from a play by Alfred Savoir, "Here Is My Heart," is a bright and frivolous little comedy written about a millionaire crooner's heroic courtship of a haughty princess with whom he falls in love at sight in an elevator. Kitty Carlisle is cast as the princess, opposite Crosby, and Alison Skipworth, Ronald Young and Reginald Owen are prominent in the supporting cast.

"Romance in Manhattan," the companion picture, is a beautifully acted drama of bitter-sweet romance, touching pathos and the struggles and dreams of two of New York's six millions who face life's eternal problems a bit afraid but with sunny optimism. Francis Lederer and Ginger Rogers play the young lovers whose romance eventually blossoms despite tremendous odds.

MALDEN STRAND THEATRE

"Bordertown," starring Paul Muni and Bette Davis, is the special attraction opening a seven day run at the Strand Theatre in Malden on Saturday. Incidentally, in this difficult role, Bette Davis is said to top the great acting she did in "Of Human Bondage." The second woman to interest Muni is Margaret Lindsay, a rich American society girl, bored with her own set, who seeks a new thrill by dirting with the young gambler. The amazing, torrid love of Muni for the society beauty brings about the climax which is as gripping as it is unusual. The supporting company includes Eugene Pallate, Robert Barrat, Henry O'Neill, Robert Cavanaugh and Gavin Gordon.

"Bachelor of Arts," a story of college life with a young cast of favorites including Anita Louise, Tom Brown, Arlene Judge, Mae Marsh, Frank Albertson and John Arledge, will be the second attraction on the bill starting Saturday. And in addition, to top the laughs, Stephin Fetchit appears as a slow-motion bellhop in a fraternity house. "Bachelor of Arts" is lively and full of fun with genuine college atmosphere.

Earl Nelson's Radio Auditions given each Tuesday evening at the Strand are a popular attraction. These contests have already brought out a number of talented youngsters. Any talented person is eligible to enter these contests by registering at the Strand Theatre.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

"Forsaking All Others," with the best cast of the year, starring Joan Crawford, Clark Gable and Robert Montgomery, and a supporting company that includes Charles Butterworth, Frances Drake, Billie Burke and Tom Ricketts, will be the headline attraction on the double bill opening at the big Granada Theatre in Malden on Saturday. "Forsaking All Others" is not as dramatic as its title would indicate, instead it is a comedy with plenty of laughs. Because of its three popular stars, "Forsaking All Others," is one of the ranking attendance attractions of recent months and a film that has received high praise from those who have seen it.

"The President Vanishes," the film which caused so much comment on its first release that it was almost banned as a screen attraction, will be the second attraction on the bill starting Saturday. The hero character, is the fictional President of the United States and while highly imaginative it is a story by no means impossible. An imposing cast including Edward Arnold, Arthur Byron, Paul Kelly, Andy Devine, Janet Beecher, Osgood Stevens and Sidney Blackmer play the more important roles.

MYSTIC THEATRE, MALDEN ATTRACTIONS

The hair raising thrillers of the Pearl White era pale to insignificance when compared to the modern thrillers of the rails, "The Silver Streak," the feature attraction at the Mystic Theatre starting Saturday, Feb. 9. "The Silver Streak," brings to the public the first intimate glimpses of the new streamline train of the Burlington Railroad. The picture features in addition to the new streamline train, pictures of the great Boulder Dam.

In "Romance in Manhattan," which will be the second big feature at the Mystic next week, Hollywood has sent to the screen a beautifully acted drama of bitter-sweet romance, touching pathos and the struggles and dreams of two of New York's six millions who face life's problems a bit afraid but with sunny optimism. Francis Lederer and Ginger Rogers play the young lovers whose romance eventually blossoms despite tremendous odds.

Sabotage

The parts for whom the casting is not here announced have all been cast but the names of these amateurs are reserved as a pleasant surprise for the audiences.

In addition to the cast which will be seen on the stage, past-Commander Hall, appropriately enough for the general of the piece is drilling an off-stage firing squad and Harry Goodwin who knows quite a little about artillery, is working on the off-stage bugle calls and the sunset gun which symbolize retreat.

With a cast of recognized ability, well-cast as to types, with Alan Hay directing and with a pungent play, Legion is moving steadily towards what the Post anticipates will be its most successful play since "Journey's End."

BETHANY NEWS

After being snow-bound, ice-bound and grip-bound for several weeks, it did seem good to have the mercury rise to three above zero, and in this mild temperature, about 40 of the Bethany ladies braved the elements and came out last Thursday for a very enjoyable party, silver tea and treasure hunt in the assembly hall. A little skit, entitled "The Obedient Princess," most convincingly portrayed by our president, was given by five of the ladies, games followed and then the treasure hunt, with Mrs. Farnham the lucky winner of the lovely, which had been hidden in the kitchen in an attractive basket previously decorated and filled to overflowing. Refreshments followed and the inevitable little tin cup yielded five dollars to the fun of the finance committee.

The February luncheon was held at noon Tuesday with two tables filled. Plenty of business at the meeting, and it looks as though our social duties would keep us well occupied during this month. The youngsters are celebrating this week with a party planned entirely by themselves. The adults are paying guests, Friday evening at 7:30.

On Tuesday evening at 6:30, there will be "oyster stu" with oysters in it," served in the assembly hall. This is a Cornerstone event to which all are most welcome provided you come bring your little ticket with you.

The notable event of the month is scheduled for the evening of Feb. 15. Note well that the S. S. Kenwin is to launch out on a cruise that night for parts unknown. All persons in any way connecter with the little church on Kenwin road are invited to come—and there is no admission. Guests are requested to dress as they would if contemplating a cruise. However, it is a mystery trip and people arriving in ski-pants bound for snowy regions, may find themselves booked to Bermuda, while those attired in bathing suits with Florida in mind, may be sent on an expedition to the South Pole. Deck games will be enjoyed; all sorts of interesting features have been provided. If you feel like rejuvenating, leaving all cares (and the children, at home do come and join in the fun.

On the evening of Feb. 22 at 8 o'clock the children in the senior department of the Sunday School are planning to give a musical recital and entertainment, the proceeds to be given to the music fund of our church. It is interesting to note how many of these youngsters are developing quite a bit of musical talent and we hope you will give them your support and encouragement by attending their little function.

COLLEGE CLUB NEWS

The members of the morning study group who braved the icy streets for the meeting on Thursday morning, felt well repaid when they heard the interesting talk on woman's status in Bulgaria. The subject was especially timely because of the recent prominence of the Balkan Peninsula in current events.

The speaker was Mrs. Carver, the wife of a professor in Constantinople College, who with her husband is studying in Boston this winter. She is a native of a small village in Bulgaria and wore the picturesque costume of her people. It was hard to realize when we heard her fluent English that she knew no English until she entered college.

In 1878 Bulgaria won her independence after 500 years of domination by the Turks and although western ideas are coming in now and are evident in the cities, the villages or farming hamlets, which comprise 80 per cent of the population have changed little and show the influence of the old Turkish civilization. The women are treated as inferiors and lead a life of toil. They are completely dominated by their husbands and the older members of the husband's family, of which on marriage they become a part.

Bulgaria is a country of contrasts. While the factories in Sophia turn out yards of cloth by the minute, in the villages the woman still spins and weaves and makes all her clothes and household linen that her family uses. Almost at babyhood the girl begins on her trousseau, for by the time she marries at the age of 18, she is supposed to have enough clothes and blankets, etc. to last the rest of her life. Then too on her wedding day there must be gifts of her handiwork for all the members of her husband's family—suits of beautifully embroidered clothes for the father and mother-in-law, embroidered socks and handkerchiefs for the brothers and sisters. For a woman to be idle is considered a disgrace. After a day of work in the fields, the women members of the patriarch's household gather in a corner of the large fire-lit room and talk, in whispers as they busily spin and embroider, for they must not intrude on the conversation of the men who sit smoking their pipes and swapping yarns around the fire.

There is a very picturesque side of Bulgarian life. Mrs. Carver told of the acres of roses at the foot of snow capped mountains and the mounds of rose petals from which the famous attar of roses is made; of the folk songs that the peasants sing as they work in the fields and of the dances on the village green. The girls come in their fine embroidered dresses, to which the boys can single out the girl of their choice but may not dance with her.

"The Woman's Association of Bulgaria," was organized some years ago and its influence is being felt in Sophia. It has done much for child welfare and for the widows and the sick and for the cause of peace.

The next meeting will be held on Feb. 14. The subject of the lecture will be "Belgium."

CLOVES: KINGPIN OF ZANZIBAR'S COMMODITIES

The clove market of Zanzibar is feeling the effect of the discovery that synthetic vanillin may be produced from coal tar products. For although vanilla and cloves have markedly different flavors and odors, it is a fact the production of vanillin, the substance that gives vanilla its characteristic quality, has long consumed large quantities of cloves. The vanillin, so extracted, was used, as is its synthetic substance, in flavorings and perfumes.

Although most of the world's cloves have for years come from Zanzibar, botanists agree that the native home of the clove tree is the Moluccas Islands, 6000 miles east of Zanzibar, in the East Indies, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Native of East Indian Islands

Cloves first sprang into the world's commercial spotlight in the 16th century when Portuguese mariners found clove trees thriving on the Moluccas. For a century the Portuguese developed the clove trade and then were elbowed from the islands by the Dutch who grew rich on the trade. Vision of larger profits by controlling the clove supply caused the newcomers to destroy the trees on all islands except Amboina where the spice was extensively cultivated.

Amboina had a "corner" on cloves until 1770 when the spice was discovered on Mauritius and Reunion islands in the Indian Ocean. How and when the trees got there no one knows. Zanzibar was absorbed in its slave and ivory trade and cloves were of no interest to the natives until an Arab returned from a visit to Mauritius in 1818 with clove seeds. Some seeds were planted on the island, but the natives' attention could not be diverted from slaves and ivory until the visit of the Sultan of Muscat, the ruler of Zanzibar, in 1829. The Sultan recognized the value of cloves and encouraged their production. In a few decades trade in slaves and ivory waned and the clove succeeded them as the island's leading commodity.

3,000,000 Trees Supply Zanzibar Market

Today Zanzibar and Pemba produce nine-tenths of the world's supply of cloves. Nearly every available spot of the islands is occupied by a huge, bushy, clove tree. In all, there are about 3,000,000. The islands' atmosphere is permeated with the aroma of the clove, and the clove industry employs thousands of natives.

A bird's-eye view of a Zanzibar clove plantation reveals row upon row of tall bushlike trees, for the glossy leaves hide the tree trunks from the ground to their uppermost tips. Some of the trees reach a height of more than 40 feet.

The clove of commerce is the sun-dried bud of the clove tree blossom. If the blossoms were allowed to mature, Zanzibar and Pemba would be adorned with millions of yellowish green blossoms with blood red centers. Clove plantation owners, however, think of cloves in terms of money rather than as an adornment for their island.

Before the bud bursts, pickers are dispatched to the trees. With almost the agility of monkeys, they swarm through the trees, stripping off the bud-tipped stems which they deposit in cotton sacks hung about their necks. At frequent intervals, the sacks are taken to a convenient concentration point, usually under a mango tree, where the buds are separated from the stems and then spread in the sun for five to six days, when they are transported in baskets upon human heads, donkeys' backs and in wheelbarrows to the clove market of Zanzibar town.

With pyramids of cloves as a background, buyers for importers of many countries bicker with native brokers over quality and price. Agreement or disagreement between them is often indicated by the way the men shake hands under cover of the broker's shawl. Cloves thus sold are packed in sacks, dispatched to the beach and thence to a vessel lying at anchor in the harbor.

CALIFORNIA RECALLS ITS DAYS OF '49

Prospectors are again storming California's old '49 gold country; but this time seekers of the precious metal are loading rumble seats of their roadsters with the ore, in contrast to their predecessors who bore their "dust" to town on mule-back or in the slow covered wagons of the day.

The desert town of Mojave is the center of the excitement and activity resulting from rich gold strikes at the near-by Silver Queen mine and at Middle Butte and Pine Tree Canyon, where two ore bodies similar to that at the Silver Queen have been laid bare.

Today's Order Contrasts with Old Turbulence

Orderly conditions now prevailing in the California gold country bring to mind by contrast the days of '49, when vigilance committees were formed by law-abiding citizens of mining communities terrorized by the criminal element that flocked to the source of gold, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

During the period of the gold rush of 1848-49, California was theoretically under temporary military rule of the United States. The Mexican Government had been ejected. Congress had adjourned in the summer of '49 without taking action regarding California's status, and the mining communities had no accepted basis of law and order. As a result, miners organized their own courts and in many instances administered summary justice. These courts and a few vigilance committees paved the way for a development of more orderly habits that finally culminated in a constitutional convention held at Monterey in September, 1849.

San Francisco became the most important, largest, and most picturesque city of California. Its phenomenal growth during the years 1849-51 was a direct result of the gold rush. Its population in 1851 numbered over 30,000. The lawless class, with which the city was over-run, was composed of paroled convicts from Australia and other criminal colonies of the Pacific region, a great number of desperadoes from Mexico and other countries, and the ever-present rascals who had found their way to California during '49.

Like Modern Racketeers

At first these lawless persons operated on a petty scale and as individuals; but they gradually became more wealthy, their power increased, until, much as the racketeers of today, they had established a sort of criminal caste. The continued lawless activities of this class were down the patience of the respectable people of the city, and the first of San Francisco's two famous vigilance committees was formed in 1851. The great bell of the old Monumental Fire Company was used to call together the 184 prominent and wealthy citizens who were members of the secret Committee of Vigilance. The grandfathers and great-grandfathers of many of San Francisco's socially prominent families of today were numbered among the membership of the vigilance organizations of 1851 and 1856.

A community unique to the Pacific coast of a little less than 90 years ago was Sydney Town. The entire population of this town was composed of escaped or paroled convicts of the criminal colonies of Australia and Tasmania. The Vigilance Committee of 1851 revived an old Mexican law forbidding the entry into California of any person convicted of crime in another country. Armed with this statute, the Committee deported the entire population of Sydney Town.

For four years the Vigilantes' activities were dormant, but early in 1856 the old Monumental Engine House bell tolled once more and San Francisco knew that the Vigilance Committee of 1851 had awakened to renewed activity. During the following months several colorful figures of American history figured prominently in the struggle between the Vigilantes and their opponents, the so-called "Law-and-Order Party." General William Tecumseh Sherman, of "Marching Through Georgia" fame, was then in command of the Second Division of Militia which included San Francisco. General Wool, commander of the Pacific Division at Benicia, and Commodore David Farragut, later in command of Union gunboats during the war between the States, and at this time commandant of the Mare Island Navy Yard, moved constantly in and out of the dramatic activities resulting from the conflict of authorities. General Sherman was finally driven to resign his commission because of the constant friction between him and Governor Johnson, who repeatedly requested him to disband the Vigilance Committee.

The Committee managed successfully to avoid all open contests with Federal authorities and on Aug. 18, 1856 it formally drew its activities to a close, with a grand military review in which paraded over 6000 perfectly trained, equipped and disciplined men.

CONSTITUTION DESIGNED AS CHECK UPON DEVIOUS

To the Editor of the Herald:

Your correspondent, M. H. Morgan, lightly chides columnist Frank Kent for his belief in the bookishness and austerity of the justices of the Supreme Court of the United States. Mr. Morgan decries as distasteful to him in these bench attributes too little consideration of today's social orientations, and too much of slavish cloisterism. Yet in his attack on this alleged undesirable function, he brings the most hookish of men to support his contention—a professor.

It seems to me that generally there is a misconception of the function of the supreme court in relation to the constitution of the United States. If Mr. Morgan wants to make these justices less academic and severe—less bookish—he should certainly not quote an opinion from the most bookish gentry—professors—of whom the country has had by this time quite enough. Here is one class at least that should stick to its books.

But the supreme court of the United States is one place where nothing save extreme "bookishness" should prevail. Before this court—the social and political genuflection of the present generation should be meaningless—and for a very good reason.

When contemplating the provisions of the constitution of the United States, this august court has one distinct duty only, and that is to see that not a single word, phrase or intention is violated, because of the peculiar nature of that great document.

The framers of our constitution were in the highest sense gentlemen, by which I mean men benevolent, scholarly, farseeing, industrious, patriotic and honest. They had pondered with philosophical anguish the tumult in Europe for 200 preceding years, where every ruler had plunged his country into bloodshed time and time again.

Often these wars were started on the mere whim of these hereditary monarchs. Europe had been the battleground of every family feud, of every international triviality, of every squabble on the "succession of sovereigns," on every sub-division of territory and by every vagary of the feudalism of hate. Armies were hired as blind instrumentalities intended to force outcomes delivered in the cloaks of despotism, or in the transparencies of incompetence.

This whole human disaster, as it was laid out in the reading and thinking of our own early patriots, made them quite certain that the only way to make this new land happy was to arrange matters so that no ruler should ever, by any means, come to a power which might be used oppressively.

Our constitution is far more than a scrap of paper. It was the first deed to liberty in the entire civilized world and another like it has not yet actually been indited.

The early patriots thought, and they thought rightly, that if given sufficient power men will come in time to abuse it and further, that it is the exceptional incumbent who will use any power benevolently. Consequently with the countless examples of 1000 preceding years of human misery before them they determined that, for us at least, the people should forever retain their powers, and should never under any consequence or circumstance no matter how the times might alter, give up one iota of that Power to a human being in whom it was certain the essence of thousands of years of frailty would reassert itself in oppression upon us. For this reason our tenures of office under the constitution are of short duration, since men cannot easily learn to love power to suck it up within the short terms of office.

If after election the new incumbents endeavor to gain power for themselves, by violating any of the terms of the constitution, they are violating a solemn contract not only as between themselves and the present generation, but as between countless succeeding generations, and in violation of that which has been found good for countless past generations.

Thus the constitution of the United States was written expressly to preserve the theory that no clique or single man should ever exercise any more than the modest divisions of power which this document accords. It is consequently a contract in the highest sense of that word because it is a contract between the people and certain of their number. Circumstances were to be moulded to it—not the contract to circumstances.

It is therefore not only highly necessary but directly incumbent upon the sitting judges of the supreme court that they should be learned in every syllable of this essential contract, and that they resist with the sharpest edge of jurisprudence any encroachment upon its terms, and that they shall visit with quick punishment any violation of them.

It is not too much to say that much of our political graft, many of the ramified complexities in public life today have arisen from a slow and insidious encroachment upon this essential social contract which, born in the fine and rare environment of true patriotism and of objective scholarship, can still save us all.

To say that times are changed and that the constitution is archaic is simply not to know the circumstances. It was against change that this great instrument was written, while the inconstancy of humans was its chief target.

Devious men will always seek power and this our constitution framers knew. They knew, too, that once devious men got power (Massachusetts is not without knowledge in this matter) they use it with oppression and vigor. Our constitution framers knew that with the first taste of power goes a lust for more power, and power thus swollen finally translates itself into oppression absolute.

The constitution was written to prevent devious men from coming to power or if a devious man comes to power, to prevent him from encroaching upon the established rights of the people. Ordinary citizens are not always "looking," but the constitution must have an eternal eye, and in this eye must flash a cold steel light which will shrivel the ambitions of a mean man, the extensions sought by the charlatan, the indentures required by the slicker, the specious arguments proposed by the opportunist, the hokum of the revolutionary, and the cockeyed arithmetic of the socialist.

Yes, by all means, let our supreme court judges learn the constitution word for word so that they can recite it forwards and backwards. Let us pray that from them all other forms of knowledge might fade out for the sake of clearly knowing this great book of liberty. This book is not a book of today or yesterday, it is a timeless conviction that if men are prevented from coming to seats of oppression, then no one may ever be oppressed.

HEART TO HEART TALKS

By Eugene Bertram Willard

Rupert F. Jones, in his communication to the Star, tells how a couple of police dogs so maimed the family pet cat, "Fluffy," that it had to be put out of its misery. As a cat lover, writer of Heart to Heart Talks easily recognizes what a heartbreaking experience Mr. Jones and his family have gone through. It reminds us of our boyhood when we lost "Plunky," who had been in the household for nearly a quarter of a century. I personally made a little casket and tenderly carried the body to the animal cemetery in Dedham. I am not ashamed to tell all the world how we cried when "Plunky" died—he wasn't killed by ferocious police dogs which never should be allowed in a civilized community anyway, but "Plunky" left us just the same and remembering our own experience it is easy to console with Mr. Jones and his family.

Many of the profoundest theological thinkers of all time have conceded immortality for the animals. I know that many will feel with me that Heaven will not be complete without the companionship of our faithful animal friends and is it unreasonable to say that

Those who e'er their "Fluffy" hier
Unashamed shed the bitter drops like rain,
Know that a brighter, happier sphere
Shall give "Fluffy" to their arms again,
For God hath marked each anguished day,
And numbered every secret tear,
And Heaven's long arc of bliss shall pay
For all poor "Fluffy" suffered here

What help to us in our weakness, what a soothing balm to our lacerated hearts when an animal pet we dearly loved is taken from us, to know that that pet, by the mercy of God, has been lifted into a higher and more blessed life than was possible here on earth even with all tender care. How the cruel passing of "Fluffy" should lighten the burden of Mr. Jones and his beloved ones to feel assured that much as they have lost by death, "Fluffy" has gained infinitely more than they have lost. Of course, Mr. Jones and his family loved "Fluffy"—that is why we read Mr. Jones heart rending letter in the Star—it was hard indeed to part with so faithful a friend, that is why their sorrow is so sharp and keen—the family loved "Fluffy."

Blessed be God for this blissful assurance of the immortality of our animal friends, which takes the sting from their death.

Peculiarieties

The Chinese usually tell fortunes by reading the lines of the feet as well as those of the hands; the Swedes seldom fail to shake hands with one another after they have finished a meal either at home or in a restaurant; and many negroes in our southern states still leave the price tags on new suits of clothes to show that they were not made at home.

Home of Scott

Travelers in Edinburgh can see the house where Walter Scott met Robert Burns in 1787. Scott was a boy of fifteen, and the little realized that his name would be linked with Burns as a great native genius of Scotland. Burns' house was at 477 Baxter's Close.

IMPORTANT CHANGES IN DOG LAW

Few towns or cities should be more interested in the new laws applicable to keeping dogs than Winchester for there surely can be few places where there are more dogs to the running yard than right here in our own community.

The vital changes are few, but important, and are in the main those briefly stated below:

1. Requirement that all dogs wear Tags. The old requirement, that each dog wear a collar with plate engraved with owner's name and license number, was not practical, being much the same as putting a registration plate under the hood of an auto. Under the new law the tags will be of different design each year and it will thus be easy to tell if dogs are licensed.

2. Kennel Control. Kennel licenses are substituted for "breeder" licenses under the new law which requires licenses for all sorts of kennels were dogs are kept and provides control by proper officials through maintenance of adequate standards of sanitation, records, etc.

3. Anti Rabic Vaccine and Treatment. The vaccine provision is two years old, but treatment is new, license money being primarily for payment of damages done by dogs. The new law provides that under proper control, expenses incurred by being bitten by a mad dog shall be furnished and paid for out of license money. Under the new contract for vaccine the price for 14 treatments is $7.50, instead of the former $10 to $20.

4. Dog Officer to Catch and Confine. This provision supercedes the former requirement that a dog officer must kill a unlicensed dog at once and then prosecute the owner. Dogs are now to be confined for six days, during which time they may be taken back by the owners on presentation of a license and payment of 50 cents per day for care. After the six days, dogs are sold or destroyed.

5. Vicious or Barking Dogs. The new law gives proper and substantial control to the authorities over nuisances caused by vicious or barking dogs, carefully guarding against spite cases yet providing the public with real protection.

6. County Dog Officers Given More Authority. This is not a radical increase in power, but makes it possible for county officers to act when dogs, living on one side of a town line do mischief or create a nuisance on the other side. With full and unqualified authority County officers may now investigate, assist local officers, aid county commissioners in settling claims and in necessary instances act where local officers have failed to enforce dog laws at all.

Under the new law, dogs are better protected, owners have their rights more clearly defined, the public has for the first time clearly defined rights and means of securing enforcement. Dog stealing is made less easy, health is better guarded, and the whole matter of licensing is made more plain and equitable.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

Meat prices, with the exception of beef, have eased slightly in the past week. Eggs too, are a little cheaper; but there is no prospect of lower butter prices. Imported New Zealand butter may prevent native butter from going higher.

Potatoes are the outstanding food value this week. Cheap potatoes are a boon to the low food budget for they are nourishing and satisfying. Other root vegetables, cabbage and lettuce are the next best fresh vegetable values.

Good grapefruit continues to be cheap. The first Florida Valencia oranges are coming to market, but they will be less plentiful than anticipated because of the December freeze. Several varieties of apples are inexpensive. Strawberries are fairly plentiful and moderate in price.

Here are three menu suggestions which are timely and suited to three budget levels:

Low Cost Dinner

Pork Chops with Apples and Onions
Mashed Potatoes Cole Slaw
Bread and Butter
Rice Custard with Raisins
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

Roast Lamb Pan-browned Potatoes
Creamed Carrots
Bread and Butter
Fruit Cup
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner

Cream of Broccoli Soup
Fried Chicken Parsley Potatoes
Green Peas Currant Jelly
Rolls and Butter
Lemon Meringue Pie
Coffee Milk

CHAHAR; SCENE OF NEW JAPANESE TROOP ADVANCE

Chahar, province of Chinese-controlled Inner Mongolia, where Japanese troops are reported to be operating, has twice the area of New York State, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Chahar forms a wedge, the bulletin points out, between Japanese-controlled Manchukuo on the east, and Outer Mongolia on the northwest, the latter a territory under the influence of the Soviet Union. Chahar is one of the three provinces of Inner Mongolia remaining after Jehol became a part of Manchukuo. The others are Suiyan and Ningsia. Chahar and Jehol together made up about one-third of the former area of Inner Mongolia.

Once Land of Nomads

Once a land of nomads, Chahar in recent decades has become more and more important agriculturally. The desert lands of the northern portion of the province still remain largely barren wastes; but increasing areas in the south and central regions have been planted to oats, wheat, buckwheat, millet, and beans.

Slow progress in Chahar and its neighboring provinces of Mongolia can be charged in part to Manchu rulers. During the Manchu reign, nomads held sway. Agriculture and industry were at their lowest ebb. The rulers frowned upon Chinese colonization. But in the last half century, Chinese from the south have flocked to the region, opening farm lands and introducing dairy herds. Today few nomads are seen in Chahar.

Kalgan, in the southern part of the province, is its chief city. Its popular nickname, "Gateway to Mongolia," is literally applicable. There a huge trade from China flows through the Great Wall which runs across Chahar just north of the city. A railroad links Kalgan with Peiping, Tientsin and Hankow, while caravan routes spreading northwestward, touch important trade centers of Inner and Outer Mongolia and southern Siberia. Because of its volume of trade and the fact that it is one of the chief gates in the Great Wall, Kalgan was long closely guarded as a place of strategic importance.

Although camels still carry the bulk of commerce northward across Mongolia, Kalgan is linked with Urga, Outer Mongolia, also by motor service which trans-ports mail and commodities. Over 100,000 camels once were used to carry tea from Kalgan to Siberia, while more than a million camels and a quarter-million bullock wagons were used on the other trade routes extending inland from the gate city.

BRIDGING SAN FRANCISCO'S BAY

Energetic San Francisco is about to begin work on one of the largest bridge projects in history. This month, February, bids will be opened for the construction of a series of mighty spans which will link downtown San Francisco with its neighbor Oakland, eight miles across San Francisco Bay.

Frederick Simpich, in a communication to the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society, describes the proposed bridge and the teeming city which will realize a 50-year dream when the span is completed.

Remember that San Francisco stands on a peninsula, he writes. North and east of it spreads the great harbor; to the west, the Pacific. So most travelers reach it by water.

Its Voice the Blast of Ferryboat Whistles

San Francisco's voice is the hoarse blast of ferryboats on the Bay. That sound never ceases. Counting commuters, nearly 55,000,000 people a year pass through the vast Ferry Building at the foot of Market Street, a city within itself.

For years men have talked of a bridge across the Bay tying San Francisco to Oakland. Now it is assured—a toll bridge, to be part of the State highway system. An engineers' boat loiters near Yerba Buena Island. On board are world authorities on foundations and bridge-building. Deep borings are made to determine the structure of the earth far under the Bay, for this will be a colossal feat. Nearly eight miles long and rising to a height of 680 feet, the bridge will take five years to build. The estimated cost is $75,000,000.

Planned as a double-decker, it will carry nine lanes of automobiles and two tracks of street cars. At present the Bay ferryboats haul about four and a half millions of vehicles each year. The new bridge will be able to handle 15,000 vehicles an hour, at the peak of traffic, and may carry as many as 40,000,000 a year, the engineers estimate.

Another Planned for Golden Gate

Still another bridge, higher but shorter, is also being surveyed, actually to span the picturesque Golden Gate itself, that spectacular breach in the Coast Range through which, long ago, a great river flowed and which still forms the only flood gate for draining the vast inland valley of Central California.

You can think of this Bay as a great turning-around basin for ships of all nations. In a year, between 7000 and 8000 vessels sail in and out of the Golden Gate. Once California was the Union's greatest wheat exporter; now, on boats from this Bay you find the first ten items in point of value to be mineral oils, dried fruits, canned fruits, barley, cigarettes, automobiles, canned milk, sardines, redwood lumber and wheat flour.

Richard Dana, writing a century ago, said: "If ever California becomes a prosperous country, this Bay will be the center of its prosperity." A bold prophecy then, for the land was empty. Now more than 1,750,000 people live about the Bay in Alameda, Berkeley, Oakland, San Jose, San Francisco—in all the 60 odd towns and cities that cluster on the Peninsula and along the Bay shores.

San Francisco is one of our richest cities, per capita, in real and personal property; yet one of the most democratic. You may see a fastidious old gentleman buy flowers from a street vendor, then climb on a tiny cable car for a five cent ride to clutch mansion up the hill. At sea-food lunch stands millionaires stop for a crab-meat cocktail or a hot clam broth, rubbing elbows with newsboys.

To boisterous San Francisco of gold-dust days, music and drama were born in those noisy nights when shouting miners threw nuggets at the twinkling feet of Lotta Crabtree, and Lola Montez danced "The Spider," to forget her romance with Ludwig, mad King of Bavaria.

Now new stars rise on bigger and better stages to entertain the growing city. In the Civic Auditorium, where opera is sung, 11,000 people find seats; and the city's Symphony Orchestra ranks with America's best. It has an opera association which supports a permanent ballet, chorus, and its own scenery painters; its Chamber Music Society tours the Nation.

High Above the Sea

HEATING HINTS .. by John Barclay

IN A recent article I outlined the proper way to bank the fire. In this connection there's one additional bit of advice that I want to give you: Never bank your fire with anything but fresh coal.

The old fashioned practice of banking the fire with ashes will not only result in unsatisfactory heat but it will cause you no end of trouble. You can see yourself that when you throw ashes on top of a fire it acts like a wet blanket and prevents the heat from coming up through the fire-bed. It is this air that carries the heat upward away from the grates. When you put ashes on the fire the air travels downward, overheating the grates and fusing the ashes on the grates. Moreover, the next time you put coal on the fire, the air again travels upward and causes the ashes on top of the fuel bed to fuse and form a solid mass of clinkers. This of course chokes the fire and makes it impossible to heat the house.

Don't burn rubbish or garbage in furnace. They cause heavy soot to cake on surfaces and waste heat. Keep ashpit clean.

The only place for ashes in the furnace is the ashpit—except for the thin layer of ashes on the grates. Don't mix ashes and live coal. (10)

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE, 1934

The School Committee expresses to the citizens of Winchester its appreciation for the support which has made it possible to operate the schools during 1934 with continued effectiveness and with maintained standards. The school department budget this year was approximately $20,000 less than in 1931, salary reductions have continued in effect, and many economies have necessarily been enforced. Nevertheless, throughout the depression, none of the essential functions of the Winchester schools has been eliminated or seriously curtailed. This must indeed be a source of satisfaction to the citizens as it is to the committee.

Finances

The school department budget as originally approved at the annual town meeting, in March, 1934, was $240,077.57. The increased cost of supplies and repairs and the increased cost and consumption of coal made it necessary in December to request a transfer from the Reserve Fund of $1660. The total amount available for operating the schools in 1934, including refunds of $4.83, was, therefore, $241,742.40.

Members of the committee occasionally hear the thought expressed that with so large a budget it ought to be possible under present economic conditions to make further large savings without giving up any necessary school activities. We submit the following analysis of our original 1934 appropriation to show how large a proportion of the budget is represented by charges which are more or less fixed, unless the teaching program is reduced or the salary scale changed:

Salaries and Wages	$199,443.10
Fuel	5,845.25
Electricity	3,872.50
Telephones	300.00
Transporting pupils to school	3,150.00
Tuition paid to other cities and towns for vocational education	2,191.67
	$215,304.52

In any school plant repair costs are inevitable. In our budget, because the buildings are comparatively new, only about one-half of one per cent of the value of the physical plant (estimated at $1,250,000) was allowed for repairs. Text books and supplies are likewise necessary in order to operate the schools. With increasing costs even the following minimum allowances provided for in our original budget proved inadequate in each case:

Repairs	$6,160.00
Text books	4,036.00
Supplies (including janitors' supplies)	7,952.50
	$ 18,148.50
Previous Total	215,304.52
	$233,753.02

The following items totaling $6,324.55, or about 2.6 per cent of the original budget, permit of a somewhat larger degree of control by the committee:

Expenses of Superintendent, Supervisor, Principals and Nurse	$ 200.00
Miscellaneous expenses of instruction	887.50
Other expenses of maintenance and operation	878.00
New equipment Furniture and fixtures	1,850.00
New equipment Heating, lighting and plumbing	981.05
New equipment Instructional apparatus	1,000.00
Other capital outlay	278.00
Sundry expenses	250.00
	$ 6,324.55
Total original budget	$240,077.57

It should be evident from these figures that with only 2.6 per cent of the budget represented by items which are of sufficient elasticity to afford any latitude of discretion to the School Committee, large economies cannot be effected without eliminating activities.

Salary Scale

The scale of salaries paid to teachers in Winchester prior to the 10 per cent reduction which went into effect at the beginning of the school year in 1932 was generally considered equitable. We were on fairly equal terms with other cities and towns of our type. Now other municipalities have begun to restore salary cuts or discontinue "voluntary" contributions. As a result, we find ourselves comparatively less favorably situated. The committee believes that normal step-rate increases should be given again this year, as they were last year, to teachers who were employed with the understanding that they were to receive such annual step-rate increases until they reached the maximum salary established for their position. We hope also that economic conditions will improve sufficiently so that the town may soon feel justified in restoring the salary cut.

Membership

The total school membership as of December, 1934, is 2572 as compared with 2545 the corresponding time last year. The increase in membership is entirely in the high school which now has a membership of 719. The enlarged building was designed to accommodate 700 pupils. With a prospective membership during the next few years of over 750, the school will be uncomfortably crowded. If this proves to be only a temporary condition, relief can be afforded by using some of the rooms in the Wadleigh School; if it proves to be permanent, the Junior High School should then be enlarged and the high school freshman class transferred to that building.

As was pointed out last year, the Junior High School membership has already exceeded the figure anticipated for 1933. The school was built to accomodate 450 pupils. The December membership is 442, excluding 15 boys of Junior High School age in one of the special classes which we have had to transfer to the Lincoln School.

Elementary School Buildings

The elementary school buildings are, generally speaking, in excellent condition. During the year both the interior and the exterior of the Lincoln, Noonan and George Washington Schools have been painted. The paint at the Mystic and Wyman Schools is in fair condition and will not require attention during the present year. The committee has, however, been forced to spend too large a proportion of its limited repair budget, particularly at the Lincoln School, in remedying conditions caused by vandalism.

The Junior High School

The Junior High School was opened for school use in September, 1932, and is still a comparatively new building. Some difficulty has been experienced in heating the rooms on the westerly side of the building. During the summer, by a special appropriation made at the June town meeting, an auxiliary receiving tank was installed in the boiler room of that building into which feed all the return lines both from the Junior High School and the new portions of the High School building. It is believed that this installation will correct the difficulty.

Wadleigh School

If the Wadleigh School could be heated, the committee could use it to considerable advantage. We have already mentioned its possible use to relieve crowded conditions in the high school. During the summer months the canning activities of the Middlesex County Extension Service was carried on in the basement of this building. It was also used by a group of women sewing and knitting under the auspices of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration—Women's Division. When cold weather came, it was necessary to transfer this group of women to the Lincoln School where they are now housed in one of the classrooms. During the year the committee has been asked to provide headquarters for census tabulators employed under the auspices of the Federal Rural Census. More recently several adult classes have been formed to receive instruction from teachers approved by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration—Emergency Educational Program Division. Some of these classes might well be conducted in the daytime. Because of lack of available heated space, it has been necessary to conduct them at night in the Lincoln School. Class rooms equipped with children's chairs and desks are not well adapted to adult instruction and there are other obvious objections to such use of our elementary school buildings and facilities.

The Wadleigh School we believe should be retained for school purposes and, when finances permit, equipped with new boilers. In the meantime, we hope that sufficient funds will be appropriated to replace the copper on the roof decks and make other minor repairs to prevent further deterioration of the building.

High School

The exterior and interior of the old portions of the High School are in need of paint. We hope we may do this work during the coming year. In the cafeteria, the tile floor which was laid on top of the wooden floor of the old gymnasium has given us constant trouble with buckling. It will be necessary to remove the wooden flooring and install an entirely new floor. Some buckling has been noticed in the floor of the new gymnasium due to the excess of condensation in the exposed area beneath the floor. This we believe can be corrected by properly ventilating and drying out this area.

The difficulties experienced in heating the new portions of the high school were discussed thoroughly at the June town meeting. We stated then that we believed the steam lines running across Main street to the central boiler room should be so laid as to provide a straight gravity return. The present pocket in the pipe not only is a constant source of possible trouble, but also necessitates running the pumps in the boiler room of the Junior High Schol constantly day and night. The town meeting members voted against the appropriation of several thousand dollars necessary to relay the steam lines. Having pointed out to the voters the dangers of the present layout and the possibility of serious truhle in the new portions of the high school if the steam lines should break in zero weather, the School Committee is obviously relieved of further responsibility. The steam lines certainly ought to be relaid when the heating system in the old portion of the high school building is connected with the central boiler room. That will be necessary when the boilers in the high school, now over 30 years old, are condemned. If in the meantime the steam lines should break again as they did in the fall of 1932 before all of the present safety devices were installed, the warning should not again be disregarded.

Some features of the heating system which have given the School Committee and the Superintendent great concern and required an undue portion of their time and attention have been corrected, while others still require attention. Automatic thermostatic control of the heating units, particularly in the high school auditorium where the manual controls are almost inaccessible, should be provided for this year.

Closing Elementary Schools Wednesday Afternoons

For several years the committee has been considering the practicability of closing the elementary schools one-half day each week and has been gathering information from other towns where the plan is already in operation. This year the committee voted to put the plan into effect as an experiment for the school beginning in September. A letter from the committee explaining its action and the motives which prompted it was first published in the Winchester Star. Later a letter was sent to the parents of pupils affected, modifying the original statement to the extent that schools would remain open on Wednesday afternoons during a week in which there were less than five full school days.

The plan adopted by the committee provides that each teacher is to be available either for professional group conferences or for assisting individual pupils who especially need help. Pupils who are doing creditable school work are afforded an opportunity on Wednesday afternoons to visit doctors and dentists, to take private lessons, to make visits to nearby points of interest or to get extra outdoor exercise. Pupils whose work is not satisfactory have an opportunity to secure special individual help from their teachers.

The committee has received some complaints about the plan from parents who think their children "already have enough time to play." On the other hand, a large majority of the parents seem to approve the arrangement. It is being conducted frankly as an experiment and the committee would appreciate further comments from parents.

Ability Grouping in the Junior High School

The committee has found it difficult to decide whether to follow the advice of many professional educators who recommend that pupils should be classified in groups according to their demonstrated ability or to follow other equally competent professional leaders who believe in heterogeneous grouping. Our Superintendent believes theoretically in ability grouping, but also recognizes the practical difficulties of completely carrying it out in a public school system. Ability grouping was discontinued in the Winchester elementary schools in 1932. This step may eventually be necessary in the Junior High School. For the present school year a compromise arrangement is being tried whereby all pupils in the seventh and eighth grades, except those in the special classes, are divided into two ability groups. These groups, in turn are divided into several sections, all of equal rank. This plan has not been in effect a sufficient length of time to judge of its value. The committee and the Superintendent are both following the matter closely and will not hesitate to make further changes if it seems desirable to do so.

College Preparation

The committee was gratified by the uniform success with which members of last year's high school graduating class gained admission to the college or school of their choice. It proves that our high school can adequately prepare students for college. The number of failures in the College Board examinations taken by a group of students in last year's Junior Class has been the subject of concern to the committee, the Superintendent and the High School staff. The committee, with the cordial co-operation of the Superintendent and the High School principal, has taken active steps which it believes will result in correcting this situation in the future.

In last year's report, we stated that each month a notice would be sent to the parents of all pupils taking the college course who do not maintain at least a "B" average in each subject. With defficiency notices being issued every five weeks and report cards every ten weeks, the monthly college warning notices proved to be somewhat of an over-dose. It has now been decided to send the college warning and the deficiency notices out at the same time, midway through each term.

Each teacher in the high school has arranged a definite afternoon every week for conferences with parents. This step should greatly promote the cordial co-operation between parent and teacher which is especially helpful in college preparation. Each teacher has also arranged a definite afternoon schedule for giving special help to pupils who need or desire it.

Conclusion

The committee expresses its thanks to the Superintendent who has rendered indefatigable service to the town throughout his 11 years of association with the Winchester School Department. The average citizen has little appreciation of the manifold problems with which he has to deal daily, not only in professional matters involving educational policy, but in supervising the myriad of details which arise in the maintenance and operation of a physical plant as complex as ours. Mr. Quinn has met every test.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Dramatics Next Monday

The next regular meeting, Monday, Feb. 11, at 2:30 p. m., will be in charge of the Dramatics Committee, Beatrice Budd, chairman. After the fine piece of work that Mrs. Budd and her committee did on "Comedy and Tragedy" on Jan. 25, the club is eagerly anticipating the big production to come.

"The Mollusc," a three act comedy by Hubert Henry Davies, is the play to be given and Beatrice Budd herself has done the coaching. The cast includes Claire Reynolds, Thelma Pitman, Anna Grosvenor and Winnifred Nicholas.

After the play, there will be a big food sale for the benefit of the scholarship fund. The Education Committee, Mrs. E. Adele Emery, chairman, is very anxious to continue the help that the Fortnightly is giving to three college students from Winchester. Please consult advertising article on front page of this issue of the Star for details of sale.

Music Conference at West Medford

On Monday, Feb. 11 at 10:30 a. m. there will be an Eighth District Music Conference at Community Hall, Harvard avenue, West Medford. This is very near the West Medford railroad station. An interesting and delightful program has been arranged. Luncheon will be at 12:30. For reservations, telephone Mrs. Jessie A. Smith, Arlington 1802.

Morning Musicale, Feb. 15

Next Friday, Feb. 15, at 10:15 a. m., there will be a morning musicale at the home of Mrs. Georgianna Cole, 7 Woodside road. The subject is, "Old Forms," and the program will be in charge of Hildegarde B. Livingstone and Mary K. Sargent. Idabelle Winship is chairman of the Music Committee.

Literature Meeting, Feb. 4

Conversation of the 5th Century B. C. still lives and pleases; much good talk of the 18th century is read today for its own charm as well as for a picture of its age, but the test of time may not be applied to such 20th century writing as has been cast in the form of talk. Mrs. Gunby and Mrs. Hayden, introducing the topic, "Today's Good Talk," chose to present Lowe Dickinson and Bernard Shaw, using some of Shaw's clever dialogue and Dickinson's "Modern Symposium." It would be hard to think of a greater contrast than is apparent when these two examples of today's talk are heard together and the comments on the characters and backgrounds of the two works ought to be fashioned into something having the literary style and content which it is the purpose of the group to discover.

OBSERVATIONS

By the Observer

How many of Winchester's old timers remember when kerosene lamps were considered dangerous and candles were used to light one to bed?

And when Star subscribers stopped the paper when said paper held or advocated different views from their own on prominent topics of the day?

There isn't a thinking man in or out of Winchester who takes any stock in the supposed blissfulness of ignorance. That is the bunk. Ignorance isn't even a decent counterfeit.

A pessimist is a man who knows a lot about himself and but little about his neighbors.

We know a woman right here in fair Winchester who married for love who recently advised her daughter to look up her "steady's" financial rating before giving him the glad hand.

Some men here in Winchester are good through and through, and some are more popular with the ladies.

If there were no strangers, on whom would certain people practice good manners?

How can a man live in Winchester for 20 years and never find out that matches are on sale all over the town?

How many men working under ERA are honestly inspired with a desire to work hard?

Talking about this tough old winter: the winter of our discontent is made up of kinds of weather.

Some one has truly remarked that man is the only animal with a chronic longing for the unattainable.

That Winchesterite only wounds himself
Who in man's warring way
Strikes with his pistol and pelf
Some enemy to slay.
And none from that wound revive.
None from its poison rest,
Who cannot in contentment thrive
And be glad of life's best.

A Star reader tells us that there is no law against saving money in the bank. But with some there is that little law of necessity.

It isn't annoying to meet a fellow citizen more righteous than yourself unless he tries to prove it.

CAPRI: NEW BIRD HAVEN IN THE MEDITERRANEAN

Mussolini's edict making the Island of Capri a bird sanctuary assures safety this spring for the first time to thousands of birds. Each spring great numbers of tired birds rest on the slopes of Capri's mountains before continuing their migratory flight to the north, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Autumn brings another invasion of birds of many species as they stop at Capri before flying the Mediterranean on their way south for the winter. For a period of six weeks in each of the two seasons, the natives of the island heretofore covered the mountain sides with nets stretched on poles. The helpless birds flew into the nets, were seized, packed in boxes, and shipped to Paris for the tables of epicures. It was a thriving business, and for centuries Capri was the seat of a bishop financed by the sale of the netted birds. In Rome he was called the "Bishop of the Quails."

The Italian Premier's recent decree is the result of the efforts of Dr. Axel Munthe, Swedish author, who waged a long fight for the protection of the birds on the island. In his most noted work, Dr. Munthe describes the natives' method of placing in the bushes live decoy birds whose eyes had been stung out with a red-hot needle. The blinded victims produced ceaseless and almost automatic songs which lured visiting birds to the nets.

Blinding birds to induce constant singing was practiced by the Greeks and Romans, and is still done today along the southern shores of Spain and Greece. Only a few birds in a hundred survive the operation.

Capri, now dedicated to the living bird, is a twin-humped camel of an island, kneeling in the blue just off the tip of the Sorrento peninsula. Naples is 17 miles across the bay, Sorrento six miles away, and the nearest mainland, three. From the bay of the Marina Grande on the northern coast of the island, old Vesuvius is visible in the distance. Mountainous and not easily accessible, Capri measures about four miles in length, and nearly two miles in width at its broadest point.

Because of its equable climate and striking natural features Capri attracts some 60,000 visitors annually. From the sway-backed huddle of white, pink and blue houses along the water front, a break-neck road ascends to the town of Capri. White-roofed and Moorish, the houses nestle among the hills. A winding road connects Capri with Anacapri, the other town of the island, two miles distant.

The Blue Grotto, famed throughout the world for its beauty, is the most frequented spot in Capri. It is a cavern hollowed out by the waves in prehistoric times; and now, owing to the sinking of the coast, half filled by the sea.

The two towns are engaged in producing fruit, olive oil, and wines. Fishing is also a pursuit of many of the island's 7500 inhabitants. The High Commissioner for Naples last summer set aside $325,000 for the construction of a harbor for Capri. Vessels now anchor at a pier when the weather permits.

Capri has passed through the hands of several nations in the course of its history. The Greeks established themselves in ancient Capreae at an early period, and in the fourth century B. C. the island came under the dominion of Naples. It was Augustus who first made Capri known. He included it in the Imperial dominion, and gave the Neapolitans in its place the larger and wealthier island of Ischia. In 1806, during the Napoleonic wars, Capri was captured by the British, fortified, and converted into a miniature Gibraltar. In 1808, however, the island was recaptured by the French. The British restored it to Ferdinaud of Sicily in 1815.

Capri today offers much to the sightseer, artist, historian, and geologist. Artists occupy the center of the stage in the town of Capri, and overflow to Anacapri, and other points of vantage. On every hand are shaded walks, wild backgrounds of tumbled rock, and thick groves of orange and lemon, laurel and myrtle.

DURANGO, GATEWAY TO PAST CENTURIES

Durango, Colorado, near which the unexplained cracking and sliding of a mountain has aroused nation-wide interest, is virtually fenced off from the rest of Colorado by mountain barriers, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

The Continental Divide—the backbone of the Rockies—towers to the east, continues the bulletin; the lofty Needle Mountains close in on the north; and the rugged La Platas, rise steeply a few miles to the northwest. The natural outlets of the southwestern corner of Colorado, where Durango lies, are southward into New Mexico through the valley of the Animas River, and westward among low hills and across desert stretches into Utah.

Trains of Lilliput

Two excellent highways breach the mountain barriers to north and east. One winds its way over a high pass between the Needle and La Plata mountains; the other over still loftier Wolf Creek Pass in the Rockies. But in winter, snows sometimes close these roads for weeks; and Durango then must look to its neighboring States for contacts.

From Durango one may make a unique journey on the little trains of the narrow-gauge railway that dips down into New Mexico and dodges back into Colorado over the Continental Divide at Cumbres Pass — the only rail service that Durango has. They seem like the trains of Lilliput, these strings of toylike coaches drawn by bantam locomotives; but they have proved worth to southwestern Colorado, which has been dependent on them since the first track of steel was pushed over the Divide, in 1881. They had, in fact, all Colorado for their domain in those days.

Narrow Gauge Made Development Possible

Construction in the mountains was so costly and grades were so steep that building standard railways with heavy rolling stock was out of the question. The narrow gauge saved the day. It nosed its way into almost every canyon where gold and silver were discovered, following hard on the heels of the pioneers. Hundreds of mines, at first dependent on wagon transportation, were saved by these quickly built railways.

Through Durango passes a rapidly growing stream of tourists, for the town is the eastern gateway to the cliff dwellings of the Mesa Verde National Park. Mesa Verde (Green Table) looms up 30 miles west of Durango, a huge block of rock and earth rising 2000 feet above a level plain. You must climb to the top of this tableland to reach the canyons in which are hidden some of America's most fascinating and mysterious ruins; but the climb is no longer difficult. The National Park Service has built a broad motor road that winds up the steep slope of the mesa, traverses for nearly 15 miles the juniper and pinon forests of its top, and leads to the cliff dwellings near the southern rim.

Into the south end of the great mesa a maze of deep canyons has been eaten by erosion, leaving narrow tongues of land between them. Under great overhanging masses of sandstone near the tops of these canyons the cliff dwellers built their homes.

Apartment Houses 700 Years Old

You pick your way on foot along a narrow trail that leads below a canyon rim and drop straightaway into distant centuries. You pass beside steep, sloping cliffs of sandstone into which brown workers pecked hand and toe holds long before Columbus was born, round a huge boulder, and come upon a great structure of masonry, story piled upon story, stretching along the canyon wall.

The dry air and the protection afforded by the overhanging rock have preserved these buildings so well that it is hard to believe that they were built seven or eight hundred years ago and have probably stood abandoned for half a millennium. The age of these cliff dwellings was a mystery to archeologists until the secret was solved by the ingenious tree-ring calendar developed by Dr. Andrew E. Douglass while investigating the age of Pueblo Bonito for the National Geographic Society.

Cliff Palace was under construction seven years after William the Conqueror invaded England, and Spruce Tree House was rising under its cliff while half around the world Genghis Khan and his hordes were conquering all Asia. The youngest beam found in any of the buildings was put in place in 1262, nearly two and a half centuries before white men brought their civilization to the New World.

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

The regular meeting of the Women's Republican Club was held on Wednesday, Feb. 6, at 2:30 p. m. in Waterfield Hall, with the president, Mrs. C. Harold Smith in the chair. Following the salute to the flag, the president paid a very tribute to A. Beatrice Thompson, whose death is so keenly felt by members of the club.

Mrs. Kingman P. Cass, chairman of the Registration Committee, announced the following dates for registration: Monday, Feb. 11, 2 to 9 p. m. and 7:30 to 9 p. m. Monday, Feb. 18, 2 to 5 p. m. and 7:30 to 9 p. m. Wednesday, Feb. 20, 12 o'clock noon till 10 p. m. Mrs. Cass urged club members to see that any unregistered voters in their neighborhoods were registered.

Mrs. Smith then gave brief but comprehensive talks on the following problems with which the country is faced—namely the Townsend Plan, the World Court, Unemployment Insurance and the Central Banking System. Mrs. Smith announced that the Economy League urged all persons opposed to the Townsend Plan to write their Congressmen, as the plan is daily gaining adherents.

Mrs. Ashley K. Hayden, acting chairman of the Education Committee, announced that at the next regular meeting on March 6, a School of Politics, under the direction of the Education Committee, would be held from 10:30 a. m. to 4 p. m. with luncheon served at 12:30 under the auspices of the Social Committee, Mrs. F. W. Aseltine, chairman. There will be further information regarding this program in the Winchester Star but the program will include prominent speakers on all branches of government affairs, local, state, national and international as well as an unusual musical program.

The president then introduced Mr. Edgar J. Rich, guest speaker of the afternoon, whose brilliant and scholarly discourse on two of America's greatest heroes, showed why they are so admired and beloved by all true Americans.

Although these two men, one of old Cavalier stock, the other a frontiersman, were born and reared in such utterly different circumstances; Lee in luxury, wealth, and traditions of war and gallantry; Lincoln in grinding poverty and a constant struggle for existence; each grew through boyhood to manhood with his best qualities developed. Lincoln with none of the cultural advantages of Lee, by his wit, humor, love and understanding of human beings was marked early as a leader. Lee was ever the brave soldier and modest gentleman, so living as to do nothing to dim his noble heritage. He hated Slavery and loved the Union, which he had served so nobly in war and peace and which his ancestors had been so influential in shaping. Yet he gave up President Lincoln's offer to take command of the National Army and, setting aside self interest, cast his lot with Virginia, because he firmly believed a state had the right to withdraw from the Union and resigned his commission. For four years he commanded the Confederate Army and guiding their destinies against tremendous odds, proved himself the greatest general who ever fought on the American continent. Lincoln, meanwhile, elected President of the United States, was conscious of no personal elation, but only of a great responsibility. With the Union disintegrated and disloyalty among his advisers, his mental and political courage never faltered and, though unversed in diplomacy, he dealt with foreign nations with consumate skill. His Emancipation Proclamation, coming when it did, was a gem of strategy for its prevented foreign interference in behalf of the Confederacy. Although a staunch patriot, Lincoln never uttered an unkind word against the Southern people and after Lee's surrender his one thought was to make the way easy for the South's return to the Union. Lincoln was killed at the peak of a triumphant career but Lee lived on under defeat enduring all indignities with dignity, acknowledging only one country and one flag, that of the United States, adored by the youth whom he taught and upon whom he ever impressed loyalty to the nation.

These two great Americans then, following such different roads through life, had these characteristics in common—charity, kindness, love and understanding of their fellow men, firmness, fairness, integrity, justice and patriotism. These are the characteristics which have so endeared them to the people of America and have made them so universally admired and respected.

A short summary can in no manner do justice to Mr. Rich's brilliant exposition. His wealth of anecdote and explanations of personal experiences in the South made the discourse doubly interesting. In drawing a parallel between Lincoln and Lee he demonstrated clearly the points of view held at the time by the North and South. It was a most delightful and informal talk and the club is highly appreciative of having had this opportunity to hear Mr. Rich.

Following the meeting a social hour was enjoyed, with delicious refreshments served by the Social Committee, under the direction of Mrs. F. W. Aseltine, chairman. The long tea table presented a delightful appearance with its color scheme of red and white and Mrs. Helen I. Fessenden and Mrs. J. Harper Blaisdell acted as hostesses.

METCALF UNION NOTES

You haven't forgotten the play have you? Remember we are leaving the church tonight at 7:15 o'clock to attend a notable performance of "Rebound" given at the Repetory Theater in Boston by the Young People's Religious Union.

The committees for the dance are headed by Dorothy Ober and include

Music Robert Higgins and Robert Graham
Publicity Margaret Plumer
Decorations "Billy" Reap and David Chamberlain.
Refreshments Judith Reed and Richard Elliot.

The Metcalf Union was fortunate in having as guest speaker last Sunday evening Mr. John Nicol Mark, of Arlington. He took as his subject, "Robert Burns" and gave a very interesting biographical sketch. He told many Scotch jokes which added greatly to the pleasure of his audience.

Great credit must be given to Mr. Cotton, our new director, and the boys of the Union for they turned out to be first rate cooks. Certainly the oyster stew couldn't have been beaten!

MEN'S CLUB OF FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The annual meeting of the Men's Club of the First Congregational Church of this town, was held in the parish house Thursday evening, Jan. 31. A dinner was served, which was followed by the election of the officers for the coming year. On the recommendation of the Nominating Committee the following were unanimously elected to office:

President R. Gilman Wallace
Treasurer Albert E. Klech
Secretary Carmen G. Newton

Mr. Rex Crandall, retiring president of the club, expressed his heartfelt appreciation for the co-operation which he had received during the past two years of his incumbency both from the Board of Directors and the members of the club.

Following the election of officers, was a comedy sketch presented by Mr. Clarence Newton which was greatly enjoyed by the members.

Following this, the Rev. John Nichol Mark of the First Congregational Parish of Arlington, gave a special talk on Scotch wit and philosophy. Mr. Mark is well known in Winchester and throughout New England where he is a favorite after-dinner speaker and lecturer. He entertained the members with a seemingly inexhaustible supply of jokes and witticisms on the "generosity" and other idyosyncrasies of the Scotch. Mr. Mark's Scotch ancestry was very evident and added greatly to the presentation of his stories. These were followed by a thoughtful and serious discussion by Mr. Mark of the compass of one's life.

The Police say the man is a Syrian and an international crook who is wanted by the United States Secret Service agents. He is described as about 42 years old, 5 ft. 7 in., 162 pounds, florid complexion with scars on neck and cheek. According to the authorities he has served a term in prison.

Color of Negro Babies

All infants, whether born of white or colored parents, have skin of a pinkish beet-red hue within the first 12 hours following birth, writes G. R. Turner in the Kansas City Times. Babies of the Negroid type are of only slightly darker color during this period of infancy, but immediately thereafter a rapid darkening of the skin occurs. Not, however, until they are one month old does the skin register the normal dark pigmentation characteristic of adult negroes.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON MUSIC

On Sunday afternoon, Feb. 17, at 4 o'clock, at the Epiphany Parish House, there will be an hour of good music followed by a buffet supper. Mary Ranton Witham is directing the program with the following artists: Idabelle H. Winship, Sophia Gardner, Jane Hill, Marion Wright, David Downer, T. Parker Clarke, John McPherson, Clifford Cunningham, Helen Studzinska Sibley, violinist; Vida Rohde, 'cellist; Mary Ranton Witham, pianist.

A splendid program of music by the men's quartet, a group of songs by Jane Hill, and other arrangements by this group should give us a very nice afternoon. Members of the church and their friends are invited. A silver offering will be asked at the supper tables.

PARKHURST WILL PROBE PRISONS

Announcement was made Tuesday morning of the appointment by Governor Curley of Lewis Parkhurst of this town to make an investigation of conditions prevailing in the prisons of the State. Mr. Parkhurst, it is reported, will present his findings to the Governor for submission to the newly organized unofficial crime commission. He has taken considerable interest in the State's prisons, was responsible for the erection of the Norfolk prison and is probably as familiar with present conditions as anyone in the State.

NOMINATION PAPERS

In addition to those already reported, nomination papers have been filed for the office of Selectman by James J. Fitzgerald, Jr.

THREE MOTOR ACCIDENTS SATURDAY

The first of three automobile accidents last Saturday took place shortly before 6 o'clock in the morning when Joseph Guay, 63, of 292 Marginal street, East Boston, was struck and knocked down while walking on Main street about 100 feet from the Medford line by a Ford sedan, owned and driven by Arthur Jutras of 174 Ludlam street, Lowell.

Jutras told the police that he was driving south and did not see Guay until it was too late to avoid striking him. The snow which was falling at the time made the visibility poor. Guay, who is employed at the Bacon Felt Mill, was walking to Medford on the westerly side of the street. The impact of the machine knocked him down and he complained of injuries to his shoulder, back and stomach.

Jutras picked him up and took him to the center where he met Patrolman Archie T. O'Connell. The injured man was then taken to Headquarters and from there, to the Winchester Hospital by Patrolmen O'Connell and Winthrop Palmer. He was treated at the hospital by Dr. Philip J. McManus.

At 7 o'clock in the morning, a Ford coach, driven by Benjamin W. Smith of 8 Maple court, Woburn, and a Ford sedan, driven by Arthur A. Hughes of 114 Fayerweather street, Cambridge, were in collision on Cambridge street. The cars were going in opposite directions, that of Smith being headed toward Arlington. No report of damage to the cars was made, but Smith claimed injuries to his back.

At 9:15 a. m. a Chevrolet sedan, driven by William Ayer of 74 Sylvester avenue, while making a right turn from Bacon street onto the Parkway, skidded and collided with two machines stopped at the stop sign there. One of these cars was being operated by Mrs. Georgia Farnsworth of 2 Calumet road and the other, by Antonio M. Finkham of 103 Church street. All three machines were damaged, but no one was reported injured.

EDWARD H. WALKER

Edward H. Walker, a resident of Winchester for nearly 20 years, died early Tuesday morning, Feb. 12, at his home, 17 Lakeview road, after a three months' illness. He was 82 years old.

Mr. Walker was the son of James and Ann (McDougal) Walker, and was born in Waterbury, Conn. As a boy he went with his parents to Chelsea and during the 50 years of his residence there, was widely and favorably known, being actively identified with the business and social life of the city.

He spent his entire business life with Walker Brothers, a Chelsea dyeing and bleaching house, of which he was treasurer when he retired eight years ago. He was one of the last of the old line Chelsea business men, so well known throughout the city during his generation.

Mr. Walker came to Winchester in February of 1917, and among those who knew him, was held in esteem. He was a widower, his wife, Mrs. Annie L. Olmstead, having died in 1929. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Jennie Merrill of Newton, mother of Raymond Merrill of Winchester and by a grandson, Ronald Walker Olmstead of this town.

Funeral services were held on Thursday afternoon in Moyse Chapel of the Unitarian Church with the minister, Rev. George Hale Reed, officiating. Interment was in Woodlawn Cemetery, Chelsea.

McHUGH—REYNOLDS

A marriage of Winchester interest took place in the Church of St. Francis of Assisi in Medford last Saturday afternoon when Miss Ruth P. Reynolds, daughter of former Alderman Patrick J. Reynolds of Fellsway west, in that city, became the bride of Francis P. McHugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. McHugh of Canal street. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Fr. Thomas F. Golding and the ceremony was performed in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends of the bride and bridegroom.

Miss Reynolds was attended by Miss Tay C. Cadagan of Milton and Joseph F. McHugh of this town was his brother's best man.

Mr. McHugh and his bride are to spend their honeymoon at Miami Beach in Florida, where they will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Delehanty of New York City, Mrs. Delehanty being the bride's sister. They are to make their future home at 627 Fellsway west in Medford.

Mr. McHugh is well known in Winchester, having graduated from Winchester High School in 1927. He is also a graduate of Northeastern University and is associated with the Globe Indemnity Insurance Company in Boston.

DRAWING FOR FREE TRIP TO BERMUDA

Lawrence S. Martin, Master of Ceremonies

The opening scene represented a hotel lobby with guests seated in the lounge, clerks at the desk and waiters attending. Two small red-clad "bell boys" did a soft-shoe dance which elicited much applause; passengers from the boat arrived to the singing accompaniment of the desk clerks.

"A Bicycle Jaunt" was one of the cleverest numbers in the show; performers in bathing dress manoeuvering their bicycles about the small floor space with remarkable ease, dancing and riding in perfect accordance with the music.

MISS McAULEY INJURED IN MEDFORD MOTOR CRASH

Miss Mary McAuley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William McAuley of 397 Highland avenue, was badly injured last Friday morning when the automobile she was driving south on Main street was in collision over the town line in Medford near the Good Stables with a car driven by Luther W. Puffer of 33 Wildwood street.

According to the police, Miss McAuley had pulled out to pass a street railway bus when she saw Mr. Puffer's automobile. In an attempt to avoid it she drove into the snow which caused her to skid and crash into the Puffer car. Both machines were damaged and Miss McAuley was badly injured, being taken to the Winchester Hospital by passing motorists.

Dr. Philip J. McManus was summoned and found that she had been severely cut and bruised, especially about the face and head. Her jaw was dislocated and she lost several teeth, as well as sustaining a fracture of the left leg. As the Star went to press yesterday her condition at the hospital was reported as very satisfactory, and it is not thought that she will experience any permanent ill effects from her injuries.

GEORGE HARRINGTON

In the death of Mr. George Harrington of 89 Bacon street, at his winter home in Winter Park, Fla., on Friday last, Winchester loses one of its outstanding figures, long identified with its development and known for his generous support of its institutions, while for the past few years his health had been somewhat impaired, his friends had hoped that for many years more he would be seen strolling around his estate on Bacon street and driving his familiar electric automobile about our streets.

Last week Wednesday, however, he suffered an acute heart attack and passed away on the 9th. The funeral was held Thursday afternoon at the Kelley & Hawes Funeral Home, Rev. George Hale Reed, of the Winchester Unitarian Church conducted the services. Interment will be in the family lot at Wildwood Cemetery.

Mr. Harrington was born in Mobile, Ala., on September 23, 1854. His father, Noah Harrington, died many years ago. His mother, Sophronia Alexander Harrington, is still remembered by older residents of Winchester where she died at the age of 96, retaining her vigor until a few weeks before her death. A brother, Frank, and two sisters, Nancy and Myra, died at the Winchester home many years ago.

The family came North when Mr. Harrington was a young child and lived in Wayland, until he was 11 years old, later moving to Boston. They came to Winchester while Mr. Harrington was still a young man and soon after acquired the Bacon street estate which is one of the familiar landmarks of the town. At that time the Bacon street section was practically unbuilt, and Mr. Harrington witnessed the steady growth of this part of the town of which he was so interested and interesting a member. For many years he was in the wool business in Boston.

He was unmarried.

He was intensely fond of country life and on his Bacon street estate was able to gratify his love of flowers, shrubs and trees. He took a particular pleasure in the enormous rhododendron which with its thousand or more brilliant lavender blossoms is admired each spring by passing townsmen and automobilists.

With this love of nature he combined an unusually keen interest in public affairs and those who heard him discuss current events were impressed by his mental vigor, his sound judgment and the kindly humor which was one of his outstanding characteristics. A conservative in politics, he was an optimist and contended that out of the present turmoil and distress, a better and higher civilization would eventually emerge.

Distinctly a gentleman of the old school, his dignity and courtly manner covered a warm, kindly nature. His public benefactions, which are well known to his fellow townsman, but to which he never referred, were watched by a hundred and one instances of private generosity and kindness known only to the recipients.

His Winchester friends will not be surprised that he won the affection of his neighbors in Winter Park, but may be interested to read the following paragraph from a local Florida paper, written only a few weeks before his death:

"Time moves on, but there is one institution in Winter Park that looks as though it never going to change. That is GEORGE HARRINGTON and his battery propelled electric car that floats along the streets of Winter Park, at the breath taking speed of 20 miles an hour. Seen in the evening it carries with it a whiff of New England and the dignity of a visit in Brookline, Boston's aristocratic suburb, when we were younger. One half expects to see the lamplighter with his ladder come along to touch the green-roofed street-lamps again.

"Probably that electric car, and all that goes with it is more symbolic of Winter Park than anything else it possesses. Miami can keep its streamlined chariots, this is still the little New England town its founders meant it to be."

A graceful tribute to one who will be sincerely missed in Winchester and Winter Park, alike.

WOBURN WON RETURN GAME FROM WINCHESTER

Woburn High School's basketball team made it two in a row over Winchester High, Wednesday evening at Woburn, defeating the local quintet, 32 to 22. The Woburn seconds won the preliminary game from the local seconds, 18 to 9.

"Slicker" Coss scored twice for Winchester to start the game, but Woburn soon pulled up even and then went out in front, never to be headed. The tanners had a 15 to 8 advantage at the half, and led 25 to 14 at the end of the third quarter. "Pi" O'Connor and "Dan" Kelley were the Woburn luminaries with Capt. "Ref" Provinzano starring for the locals.

ROTARY CLUB

Five members were absent from the meeting of Feb. 14, two of whom have already made amends.

We gratefully acknowledge the courtesy of the Rotary Club of Bade Axe, Mich., in supplying our members with a choice assortment of recipes for cooking beans. While this circumstance may well call to mind the old saying about carrying coal to Newcastle, yet the fact remains that any thing which has to do with beans always awakens a responsive chord in the heart of your true New Englander.

Attention is called to the fact that a new club has been organized in the 31st District, namely Attleboro. This makes the 69th unit in our district, one of the most compact areas in Rotary. Attleboro will be presented with its charter on Thursday evening, Feb. 28. All of our members who propose to attend should notify the secretary at once in order that proper reservation may be provided. And Governor Hall advises that there is an excellent prospect for the admission of other clubs in the near future.

The 30th anniversary of the foundation of Rotary will be observed during the last week of this month with special programs by most of the clubs throughout the organization. Rotary is thriving and spreading as few oth organizations have, because there is a definite need for the functions which it fulfills and because Rotary adequately presents the services required. It well deserves the increasing respect in which it is held the world over.

It is always a pleasure to greet our good neighbor, Waldo Thompson of the Rotary Club of Woburn. And at this meeting we were especially favored because Waldo read before us one of those delightful papers resulting from his careful research into the history of his native city and its surroundings. At this time he considered the ancient taverns which played so prominent a part in New England Colonial life, drawing attention to the fact that they had very little in common with our post-prohibition "taverns," so called. We surely learned many interesting facts as a result of Waldo's visit. It is our hope that his next call on us will not be deferred.

The entertainment hour at next week's meeting will be in charge of the Vocational Service Committee, which means that the meeting will be very much worth while. Members should show their appreciation of the efforts of their committee by turning out in full force on Feb. 21—next Thursday.

A large number of Dartmouth Alumni and friends living in Winchester are planning to take the Dartmouth Snowbird, fast special leaving Winchester Sunday at 8:30 for Hanover, N. H. This train will take only three and one-half hours for the run.

SELECTMEN'S REPORT PUBLISHED

In advance of the distribution of the town report the Board of Selectmen has caused to be printed, at its own expense, 100 copies of its own particular report which have been distributed to fortunate citizens throughout the town. The Star's copy was appreciatively received and while we have not thoroughly digested it, a preliminary scanning of the text convinces us that those past humorists on the Board, "Joe" Worthen and Harper Blaisdell have fostered a worthy successor. The guilty finger" points to Henry Maguire, retiring chairman, and while Henry didn't work in the pigeons he did take due cognizance of the Board's authority in the matter of eels in the town's streams, ferris wheels, carousals and feminine performances on tightropes. The important items seem to have been covered, at least in the opinion of Boston newspaper cartoonists, who found it good copy yesterday morning. But how about "Sipio," Henry? Didn't you forget that?

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

The remarkably low price of potatoes makes it advisable to stock up as generously as possible on this good food. Turnips and parsnips are two other excellent values. Green peas and cauliflower are good quality and moderately priced.

Pork and veal offer the most attractive of meat values. Eggs are again somewhat scarce due to continued cold weather.

Navel oranges and grapefruit continue to be excellent in quality and low or moderate in price. Strawberries are coming to market in fair quantity and are reasonable.

Here are three menu suggestions which are timely and suited to three budget levels:

Low Cost Dinner

Braised Pork Chops
Browned Potatoes Creamed Carrots
Bread and Butter
Orange Jelly with Bananas
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

Roast Pork Mashed Potatoes
Browned Parsnips
Bread and Butter
Sliced Oranges with Soft Custard
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner

Grapefruit
Roast Beef Baked Stuffed Potatoes
Braised Celery
Lettuce with Chinese Dressing
Rolls and Butter
Boston Cream Pie
with Crushed Strawberries
Coffee Milk

WINTON CLUB CABARET

Clark was at the piano and her rendition of the accompaniment was worthy of the tumultuous applause.

"At Elbow Beach" six girls in beach costume stepped from a gay cabana to tap-dance on a flight of steps with speed and precision that showed training and talent.

"Adventure With a Cab," was delightful comedy; the cabby's efforts to manage his perverse "horse" and active "fares" provoking gales of laughter.

The "Crystal Cave" scene was a beautiful finale worthy of a professional production. A cleverly designed and executed set provided the necessary elevation to display 12 girls in flowing gowns and gorgeous head-dresses, each representing a jewel, who formed a brilliant background for the dancers in red and silver. The scene, both in detail and in entirety produced an unusually beautiful effect rarely equalled in amateur shows.

One of the attractions to the cabaret this year was the round-trip ticket to Bermuda given away each night of the show. Miss Louise Dempsey, supervisor of nurses at the Winchester Hospital was blindfolded, and withdrew the tickets, won on Friday night by Mr. Robert S. Hoag, a senior in the Winchester High School, and by Mr. Walker Jones on Saturday.

It would be impossible to select any outstanding participant; all performed with an amazing ability, the result being that some numbers reached an almost professional perfection. It is also impossible to mention the many members "behind the scenes" who gave so whole-heartedly of their time, talent and efforts in the weeks of preparation.

The audiences on both nights were equally responsive, gay and enthusiastic. Dancing to the music of the popular Ruby Newman and his orchestra was enjoyed before and after the show. Colored lights playing on the dancers on floor and stage lent a glamorous atmosphere and the Town Hall was quite transformed in its tropical attire of palm trees, lilies and climbing flowery vines. Decorative awnings covered balconies and rear windows.

LADIES' FRIENDLY SOCIETY

The February meeting of the Ladies' Friendly Society was held last Tuesday, the 12th, at the Unitarian Church.

A delicious luncheon was served by Mrs. Theodore von Rosenvinge and Mrs. Raymond S. Wilkins, with the aid of a helpful committee.

Mr. Edgar J. Rich of this town, spoke to the Society on, "Lincoln's Supreme Intellectual and Moral Characteristics."

Not many very great men's biographies have been written by people who knew them, but there are over 400 such biographies of Lincoln. Mr. Rich is tremendously interested in the biographies of Lincoln written by men and women who knew him. Through his eager studying and enthusiastic collecting of these biographies, Mr. Rich was enabled to introduce Mr. Lincoln anew and his audience felt they were meeting Mr. Lincoln again as though through a truly personal friend.

Mr. Rich exhibited three interesting pictures of Lincoln, one etching and two photographs, and several volumes of the biographies from his collection. In his talk he brought out anecdotes of Lincoln and some of his viewpoints probably not so commonly known.

Mr. Rich fairly radiated the joy of knowing Mr. Lincoln through his studies and the thrills and comfort gained from making a collection of the biographies.

After Mr. Rich's talk, Mrs. Bernard, president, called the business meeting to order. The usual reports were read, and Mrs. Arrowsmith gave an outline of study for the questionaire sent out by the Board of Appraisals and announced that furtaer study of the questionaire will be resumed next Tuesday morning.

The meeting adjourned at 4:15 o'clock.

Mr. Franklin Miner of Lagrange street has returned to town after spending 12 weeks in New York City.

WINCHESTER DISTRICT NURSING ASSOCIATION

The Winchester District Nursing Association is now making its annual appeal for new members and thus it seems fitting to print at this time a short history of the founding and accomplishments of this Association, so that those who are planning to become members may know what a worthy cause they are helping.

In June, 1885, the president of the "Fortnightly" called attention to the need of hospital accommodations in Winchester, saying that Dr. Winsor felt that even a tent for use during the hot months, would be of great benefit to sick children. A committee was formed to canvass the town and inquire into the possibility of starting a cottage hospital. This committee reported that the expense would make the undertaking impossible. The following year a course of Emergency Lectures was given by Dr. Winsor and Dr. March under the auspices of the Emergency and Hygiene Association of Boston, followed by two lectures on Home Nursing. Eighteen ladies attended these lectures, took examinations, and secured diplomas.

Three years later the subject was again brought before the townspeople only to be turned down because of fiancial reasons. This time a committee had been formed of 50 members called the "Ladies' Hospital Aid Society," who solicited subscriptions. The appeal met with ready response and the committee recommended to the "Fortnightly" that this Association be regularly organized; its first object being to aid the sick by furnishing good nurses; its aim the establishment of a hospital; and that the "Fortnightly" should pledge itself to yearly payment to help carry on the work. After a great deal of discussion it was decided that the treasury of the Fortnightly would not warrant such an appropriation.

After an interval of nearly ten years, in October, 1898, the subject was again brought up. This time the need for district nursing was spoken of and in February of the following year, 30 ladies met at the home of Mrs. Stephen Thompson and formed the Winchester Visiting Nurse Association. A board of officers was chosen and the constution and bylaws adopted. At the end of its first year the existence of the Association was amply justified by the steady increase of its work and the good will shown towards it. It had a membership list of 143 and 65 subscribers. Its only financial basis in the beginning was the fee of $3 due from each member, but the large faith and personal enthusiasm admitted no doubt of its success. Kelley & Hawes kindly let the nurse have the use of its cabs, and the managers of the electric roads supplied her with tickets so the Association was spared any expense of transportation. Young & Brown allowed the use of their store for communications with the nurse and exercised great care in the receipt and delivery f messages. Thanks also went to the Star which made known the progress of the work and its needs to the community and helped greatly in procuring some valuable gifts for the Association. The nurse's salary at that time was $50 a month, but this was soon increased to $60.

In reviewing the second year's work of the Association it was felt that the report of the first year was the record of an experiment. The Visiting Nurse Association had been trying to combine the care of the sick poor with the work of sending a nurse for an hour's service, to those paying a small sum, yet not needing nor able to pay for a full time nurse. The physicians had cordially co-operated in this worthy venture and its success was now assured. Two nurses were needed to take care of the calls which amounted to 4462 at the end of the second year. Of this number 2045 were free and the rest pay calls. The fee charged was 50c a visit. The patients visited then, as now, represented all ages and conditions, but the work during the second year was mainly among the poor. The Association however, always intends to be of service to those whose claim upon them is other than that of poverty. It is of great advantage to all of our citizens to know that in cases of emergency or when some short daily service only is required, there are skillful trained nurses upon whom they can call.

During those formative years the founders of the Visiting Nurse Association did not misjudge the people of Winchester. The work was doubled very shortly and the money came with the need for it. Through the thoughtfulness of the clergy and some of the town officers, a large sum was received from voluntary offerings at the watch meetings thus proving the general interest which is taken in a society formed to meet the needs of all, and which knows no creed but that of love.

For 12 years this Association carried on its important work, steadily increasing its membership and watching its needs grow in the town. At a special meeting in 1912 it was voted to hire a house for two years and to equip it for a hospital and prove by experiment that such an institution was wanted in Winchester. Thus the Visiting Nurse Association was seeing its aim become a reality. The house on the corner of Washington and Lincoln streets was leased and on March 8 the hospital was dedicated and opened.

This is only one of the innumerable things which the Visiting Nurse Association accomplished and is still accomplishing, but more will be told about those things in another story. Meanwhile if you are approached to become a member of its Association, please realize that it is our work in the community that the nurses are doing for us and that membership in the Association ought not to be considered a charity, but a duty and a privilege.

WINCHESTER WON FROM LEXINGTON

Winchester High School strengthened its hold on second place in the Middlesex League basketball race last Friday evening when it won from Lexington High on its own court, 28 to 22.

The first half of the game was close enough, the locals starting slowly as usual and having only a 13 to 9 advantage at the half, trailing at the quarter, 8 to 5.

With the resumption of play, Winchester started to click and looked like the best club on the circuit during the third quarter when it ran its score to 22 while holding Lexington scoreless. As the game went along, Coach Mansfield sent in many second string players with the result that Lexington spurted rapidly in final quarter, without, however, really threatening to pull up on even terms.

Between the halves of the first team game the local seconds won from the Lexington seconds, 12 to 7, the visiting scrubs showing a pair of giants in Kelley and Tyler, beside whom the local boys looked like dwarfs.

"Slicker" Coss dominated the varsity game, showing some nice all around floor work while scoring 11 points on five floor goals and one shot from the foul line.

Following is the varsity summary:

GUILD RINK LEADS IN CURLING COMPETITION

WINCHESTER CURLERS TO COMPETE AT YARMOUTH

The two teams of curlers who will represent the Winchester Country Club at Yarmouth, N. S., in a two-day series of matches with the Yarmouth Curling Club next week have been announced as follows: Team A: G. C. Neiley, R. F. Guild, E. Y. Neill, H. V. Farnsworth; Team B: R. F. Fenno, Allan Kimball, J. P. Carr, C. P. LeRoyer. The team from the Boston Curling Club, accompanying the local curlers, is made up of F. Smith, Gardiner Jones and Dr. J. T. Paul.

Leaving Boston, Wednesday, Feb. 20, at 1:30 p. m., on one of the Eastern Steamship liners, the local curlers will spend two days in Yarmouth as guests of the Yarmouth Club, returning to Boston Saturday morning, Feb. 23. A round of sight-seeing will be enjoyed in addition to the curling competition.

Linde Fowler, curling and golf writer of the Boston Transcript, will accompany the party with a few other late signers and several non-curling friends like James Doty and Walter Dickson.

The alarm from Box 38 last Friday afternoon was found to be false. Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy investigated and located a 10-year old boy living in the vicinity of the box who the police say admitted ringing in the alarm. He appeared in Court Thursday.

FACULTY TEAMS WON FROM HIGH SCHOOL

It was again a case of the "teachers teaching" at the high school gymnasium Monday afternoon when the faculty basketball teams, masculine and feminine, won from the boys' and girls' varsity clubs by close scores.

There was a good sized crowd on hand for the games, drawn no doubt by the opportunity to "razz" the profs and "professors" with impunity as they dashed about the floor. The men bore the brunt of the "kidding." "Hank" Butters' white knickers being the target for many a shaft of student wit, though none of his colleagues was fortunate enough to escape unscathed. Principal Grindle's sang-froid in the face of the roundriding was worthy of special note.

"Bart" Bartlett showed, however, faulty his judgment in the matter of Middlesex League ends may be, a great eye for the hoop and led the faculty team with 10 baskets. "Coach" Mansfield ringed eight and "Bob" "Laffin'" Friery, seven. "Mickey" Muerling caged two, and the remainder of the faculty club, Messrs. Butters, Grindle and Fenton, confined themselves to strictly defensive efforts. "Joe" McKee refereed the contest and showed a nice discrimination in the matter of eyesight and whistle.

The final score was 27 to 24 for the faculty, and the feminine teachers' team had a four point edge, winning, 13 to 9. Coach "Del" Loysen was the star of this contest as well as the individual high scorer, tossing baskets from all angles with all the abandon of the best male performers. She was accorded spirited assistance by the Misses Sprout, "Guinie" Nelson, Niven of the faculty and Harriet Cooper, a "p. g.," who, however, showed the undergraduates no mercy. Rose Russo handled this game acceptably.

All in all it was a great day for the "profs" and if some of them have been a bit adicted to the arnica since the battle, it probably, taken for all in all, was worth it.

Lecture

The second lecture of the series will be on Friday afternoon, Feb. 15 at 2:30 at the home of Mrs. Earl Wood, 121 Church street. Mrs. Frances Slattery, of Boston, will speak on, "Communism in the United States Today." Miss Margaret O'Connell of Newton, is the soloist. Tea will be served.

Regular Meeting

On Tuesday, Feb. 12, the regular meeting was held at Lyceum Hall. The afternoon was spent in sewing. Mrs. William Hickey was chairman and a very enjoyable program was arranged. In honor of Washington's Birthday, a salute to the flag was given. Mrs. Anita McGaragle read, "The Perfect Tribute," the poem which brings to us the earnestness and appeal of Lincoln's Gettysburg address.

A very clever young artist, Miss Lillian Clark, of Somerville cut silhouettes during the afternoon. Those members having birthdays during the month of February were given complimentary silhonettes.

Those assisting Mrs. Hickey as hostesses were Mrs. James Haley, Mrs. William Hevey, Mrs. Richard Sheehy and Mrs. James Gaffney.

ESHBACH IN EDITORIAL COMPETITION

Charles E. Eshbach, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eshbach of Brookside avenue, is one of three students at Massachusetts State College in competition for appointment to the positions of editor-in-chief, associate editor and managing editor of "The Collegian," the student paper. Each of the three students will assume for a time the duties of each of the three positions on "The Collegian," after which the permanent assignments will be made on the basis of excellence shown in the actual departmental work. Of the three candidates, Eshbach, who is a graduate of Winchester High School, is a sophomore, the others being juniors.

WINCHESTER AT STONEHAM TONIGHT

Winchester High School will close its 1935 basketball season tonight at Stoneham where it will engage in a Middlesex League contest with the Stoneham High quintet. The locals have improved greatly over their midseason showing, and against Lexington a week ago looked like the best club on the league circuit, despite their second place rating.

Stoneham is further down in the league standing than Winchester, but has had the faculty of upsetting stronger clubs, and Coach Mansfield's boys should take no chances. Four-quarter basketball throughout the season would have landed Winchester at the top of the league heap. The locals have outplayed all opposition during the second half of their engagements, but have permitted big adverse scores during the first two quarters which against teams like Belmont and Woburn have been too heavy a handicap to overcome.

TESTIMONIAL DINNER TO HARRY BOWLER

C. Harry Bowler, for 22 years connected with the Winchester Country Club, first as professional and later as manager, and who is terminating his services at the club, was tendered a testimonial dinner on Wednesday evening at the club. The affair was attended by about 200 friends and associates, and during the evening he was presented with a purse of money, in addition to a beautiful watch and a silver cocktail shaker.

Phil Hendrick, for many years one of the club's officials, and closely associated with Mr. Bowler, acted as toastmaster. The speakers included Mr. Charles E. Mason, president of the M. G. A.; Mr. John Abbott, former president of the club; Leslie Cottrell, professional at the Bear Hill Country Club, who represented the New England section of the P. G. A.; A. Linde Fowler and Francis Quimet. Gene Sarazen, who had been expected to attend and speak, was unable to attend, but sent a telegram, which was read, together with many others from a host of friends made by Mr. Bowler during his long term of service.

Harry McGrath, secretary of the club, made the presentation gift to Mr. Bowler who, in replying, stated that he would always remember the occasion as one of the biggest in his life and hoped that the many friends he had made at Winchester would keep in touch with him in his new position.

During his term of service at the club, Mr. Bowler has made a host of friends and is widely known in golfing circles throughout New England. He is responsible in a large degree for the popularity of the Winchester Country Club as well as being the originator of many of the popular annual tournaments held there, some of which have spread throughout the State.

ANNUAL PING PONG TOURNEY ANNOUNCED

Entry blanks were in the mail this week for the second annual Winchester Ping Pong tournament, to take place at the high school gymnasium on Friday, March 15 and Saturday, March 16. As was the case in last year's tourney, this event is under the auspices of the Winchester Ping Pong Club and is sanctioned by the Massachusetts Ping Pong Association. It is open only to residents of Winchester.

The 1934 tournament was exceptionally well patronized, both by players and spectators, but this year's committee has made arrangements which will, it is believed, make this competition even more popular among the local ping pong fans.

Beginning at 7 p. m., March 15, the entire evening will be devoted to men's singles and doubles. Only six tables will be used, thus gaining considerably more playing area between each table. The ladies' singles and mixed doubles events will commence at 2 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, and any uncompleted men's singles or doubles matches will also be played off at this session. The semi-final matches in the men's singles, and the finals in all divisions will be played on one table on Saturday evening, to be followed by the presentation of prizes to the several winners.

The participating players will, of course, have free admission to the entire tournament and spectator's ticket are available which will admit to all three sessions.

Due to the very evident popularity of ping pong in Winchester, it has become necessary to limit the number of entries in each of the several divisions, and it therefore behooves anyone who intends to take part in this tourney to file his or her entry as soon as possible.

Those who played in last year's tournament realize that there are no exceptional stars among the local players, and that the most inexperienced novice need have no misgivings in entering this competition. Care is taken to properly seed the more outstanding contestants, and to arrange the draw so that no one will meet his everyday opponents within the first few rounds.

WINCHESTER BOY SCOUTS AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

This week the Boy Scouts of America celebrate the 25th anniversary of the founding of their organization in this country. On Sunday morning at 10:45 o'clock, the Winchester Boy Scouts will be special guests at the First Baptist Church of this town. A section of seats will be reserved for them, and they are asked to come in uniform if possible. Rev. R. Mitchell Rushton will preach, taking for his subject, "Too Much Religion When I Was A Boy."

The 1935 Old Farmer's Almanacs are ready for you at the STAR Office.

MRS. CLARA PEW

Mrs. Clara Pew, 94, one of Winchester's oldest residents, died Tuesday, Feb. 12, at the home of her stepdaughter, Mrs. Wilbur S. Locke, 37 Dix street, after several months of failing health.

Mrs. Pew was born in Gloucester and spent most of her long life in that city. She was the daughter of Francis M., and Eliza (Bruce) Loring, and came of families who figured prominently in early New England history. On her father's side she was descended from Mathew Loring and on her mother's side, from Jonathan Bruce.

After receiving her education in the schools of Gloucester, Mrs. Pew studied voice and won recognition as a singer, appearing often upon the concert stage in Boston and other cities, and singing for some years in many of Boston's churches.

Mrs. Pew was the second wife of the late Charles H. Pew, widely known in business circles as head of the Pew Fisheries Company. After the death of her husband she came to Winchester and for the past 28 years had made her home in this town. Besides Mrs. Locke, she leaves, two step-daughters, Mrs. David A. Somes of Winchester and Mrs. H. P. Garland of Saco, Me.; and a step-son, H. G. Pew of Gloucester.

Funeral services were held on this Friday afternoon in the Mt. Auburn crematory chapel, and were conducted by the Rev. George Hale Reed, minister of the Unitarian Church.

RICHARD LEES FOSTER

Richard Lees Foster, two year old son of Jerome Bailey and Margaret (Cox) Foster, died Wednesday morning, Feb. 13, at the home of his parents, 89 Mystic Valley Parkway, after an illness of several weeks. Funeral services were held this Friday afternoon at the late residence with Rev. J. West Thompson, pastor of the Crawford Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church, officiating. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

Last Friday afternoon Police Headquarters was notified by a resident of Fenwick road that two boys were on a cake of ice paddling around on the river. Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy went at once to the place mentioned and met two boys who admitted that they had been on the ice. They were warned about the danger of such sport.

Governor Curley's order stopping the slaughter of deer on Nantucket Island is to be commended. For years the Islanders have pointed with pride to their deer, "many so tame they will eat out of one's hand," and it is a surprise that they were willing to allow the slaughter. Every summer visitor, upon inquiring regarding wild life on the Island has been told with pride about Nantucket's deer. The fact that 84 of the animals were killed on the opening day should be no surprise, and the doughty hunters (?) needed little skill to get these deer. The surprising fact is that there were any deer left when the shooting was ordered stopped.

Correspondents to the Star, interested in securing a moving picture house here, seem to have stressed one idea—that the Star's opposition to the theatre is solely on moral grounds. Such is not the case. It has no delusions over what we will get in the way of pictures. We will get what the producers give us—just as every other town does. We will not get any different type of show than anywhere else. Furthermore we have no delusions over any philanthropic motive on the part of any promotor. The theatre is a money-making idea. If it fails to produce dividends, we will hold the bag. When anyone stresses the idea that an objectionable theatre may be closed, they are asking us to believe the incredible. With a theatre built and the money invested, no one would be foolish enough to believe that any investor would sit quietly by and take a loss because some of us did not like his shows. It is stated that to make a financial success of the theatre, Sunday shows must be held. So we will have Sunday movies. No one who has any information regarding block booking has any illusion over what that feature means or that we will be exempt from what is practiced everywhere else. Aside from these features, belittled and pooh-poohed by theatre advocates, there is to the Star the importance of an unprofitable financial venture; an unprofitable theatre which nobody wants, but being as it is, must be operated and run on any basis possible to give some return on the investment. Such a theatre would be not a convenience to some Winchester people, but an eye-sore to the whole town. If, as one correspondent stated, the block of stores in the proposed theatre will supply the necessary revenue to make up a deficit, the Star's contention seems proper, and why, if we need a block of stores to support the theatre, should we have the theater? Surely every adult in Winchester has encountered the unprofitable movie house—there are plenty about. Surely they would not have such a theatre moved to Winchester. Surely if such a condition exists in Winchester we do not want an idle building, available to all and everyone who desires to "take a flyer." So far as movies are concerned the Star has no quarrel, although it is absurd to imagine Winchester will get anything different from any other town of its size; but if a theater such as engineered by George Adams Woods, run and financed by Winchester people, could not attract enough capital to build it, and if a block of stores and Sunday shows are now necessary to finance a privately owned theater, the production fails to show any necessary adjunct to Winchester's attractiveness—in fact quite the opposite.

A CHEAP MOVIE

To the Editor of the Star:

If, as I hear, there is a new and modern movie theatre in Medford, closed now for several years as an unprofitable proposition, I desire to inquire why this could not be purchased cheap and brought to Winchester? This would be a great boon to Winchester and put another closed theatre into circulation.

THE EXPENSE OF THE MOVIES

To the Editor of the Star:

Monday afternoon was a good example of what we might expect if we have movies in Winchester. During a play in Waterfield Hall the automobiles were parked from 2 to 6 o'clock in a solid line on both sides of Church and Common streets between the Center and School street. If this traffic had been added to what was in the center a congestion would have resulted that would have required the attention of our entire Police Department.

If the time ever comes when we MUST have movies, the theatre should not be in our congested square.

If the present suggestion for a movie house is carried through, tax payers are loading themselves with an additional amount of money to be appropriated for the Police Department to be used in handling traffic. This will be an ever recurring additional expense, and will amount to a very appreciable sum.

WHAT BLOCK-BOOKING MEANS TO YOU

By William H. Short, Director, Motion Picture Research Council

To the Editor of the Star:

Possibly the following excerpt from the "Advance" may settle the controversy now underway regarding "block booking" of motion pictures.

Martha G. Stone

1. Do you know that movie exhibitors generally have to buy their pictures in large blocks—on the principle of "all or none"—whether or not the pictures are the kind they and their patrons desire?

2. Do you know that this is what "compulsory block-booking" means?

3. Do you know that your exhibitor has to buy these blocks of pictures for the most part without seeing them, or knowing what they are going to be—before they are even planned, and months before you and your children see them on the screen?

4. Do you know that this is what is called "blind-selling?"

5. Do you know that the claim to the effect that exhibitors do not have to buy their pictures in large blocks, "sight unseen," is either mere quibbling and pettifogging, or is based on incorrect information?

6. Do you know that this trade practice of block-booking and blind-selling takes away the right of your community to select its own films, and gives autocratic power to the producers to force into it whatever they care to make?

7. Do you know that this autocratic system of block-booking and blind-selling defeats the efforts of your local film council to get the best films into your community, and to keep out those you don't want your children to see; and that you will stay defeated until block-booking and blind-selling are ended?

8. Do you know that the same people who have been responsible for the character of films during recent years are still in control at Hollywood and New York, and that so long as block-booking and blind-selling last they will continue to be the dictators of what films shall come into your community?

9. Do you know that block-booking and blind-selling establish and maintain a monopoly of the "Big Eight" producers that prevents high-class independent films from being produced in competition with their output?

10. Do you know that defenders of compulsory block-booking and blind-selling insult your morals and intelligence by arguing that if you had freedom to select your own films you would choose only the sensational and salacious; and that this autocratic marketing system is necessary in order to compel you to take any decent pictures at all along with the bad?

11. Do you know that the motion-picture art rightfully belongs to all the people and that monopoly of it is as offensive as would be a monopoly of the art of printing, of sculpture, of music or of printing?

12. Do you know that in England compulsory block-booking and blind-selling were forbidden by Parliament as long ago as 1927?

13. Do you know that this was done by requiring the trade showing of motion pictures before they could lawfully be offered for rental, and by limiting the life of rental contracts to six months?

14. Do you know that, with our system of federal control of interstate commerce, the only way compulsory block-booking and blind-selling can be got rid of in the United States is by federal legislation?—[Advance

DO WE WANT MOVIES IN WINCHESTER?

To the Editor of the Star:

If our primary wish is to increase the beauty of the town by a fine new building, to increase town funds through taxation, or to have near at hand a solace for our old age, then the question is debatable.

If, on the other hand, we wish to conserve the high character of the town, if we care to give to growing children only the best influences and environments, we shall answer "No" as long as block booking is compulsory, instead of selective, and as long as other objectionable trade practices in the motion picture industry persist.

It is all very well to say that we want a motion picture house in Winchester and that we shall expect the best pictures. The wishes and expectations of movie patrons are of no avail at the present time. Censorship is an acknowledged failure. Even well-meaning and conscientious exhibitors are comparatively powerless in their efforts to get enough clean and entertaining pictures to fill their programs.

Although there are notable examples of fine films, both for children and adults, the comparative number is surprisingly small. How many worth while films from a total of five or six hundred produced does one see or hear about in the course of a year? Very few. In the February listing of 91 motion pictures in a magazine widely distributed among parents, only 10 were said to be good for children, 28,000,000 of whom attend the movies in the United States every week.

If we are depending on published movie lists or guides to help us in selecting good pictures, we are doomed to disappointment, for one can never tell the whole program in advance or be sure that some objectionable features may not appear before or after the good picture.

If we are thinking particularly in terms of children and wish to know what effects motion pictures of an unsuitable type are having on them, we can read the results of the findings of the Motion Picture Research Council. In Forman's "Our Movie Made Children" we are told about a little girl whose mother was trying to break her in to attend the movies. The child frequently got so wrought up that it often took the theatre nurse an hour and a half to quiet her. During "The Phantom of the Opera" children would scream all over the house, many would dash out, and mothers would leave with hysterical children clinging to them. Danger pictures, such as "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," "The Gorilla," and "The Cat Creeps," produce results which are virtually the same as shell-shock. Boys and girls testify that after seeing such pictures they have "bad dreams, nightmares, put their heads under the blankets, cry out in their sleep, and fall out of bed."

Motion pictures have reached a remarkable state of mechanical perfection. They have infinite possibilities in the field of education and recreation and should be used by communities for themselves and not for profits. Schools are more and more using visual aids to education in the form o fmotion pictures, which they control. Many schools are also showing pictures fr entertainment purposes.

Several national educational organizations are now declaring that recreation like education should be controlled by boards of education or boards of recreation in order that commercialized amusements may not undo the work of the schools into which so large a proportion of our tax money goes. It is a short-sighted policy which allows those working for profit to neutralize the efforts of those working for welfare.

Do we want movies in Winchester? Most decidedly, no.

MORE ON AMUSEMENT

To the Editor of the Star:

I desire to inquire through the columns of the Star if the real estate operators and others who favor a moving picture theatre at the corner of Main and Thompson streets believe it is a square deal or a new deal for the folks who erected a beautiful church equipped with marvelous chime bells less than 400 yards away? I for one do not believe that a theater will harmonize with the Church, High School, Junior High School, Post Office, Mystic Valley Parkway, beautiful bridges and last but not least, the Soldier's Monument. And remember, if the theater is erected, it will be adjacent to two churches and two schools.

Now, Mr. Editor, your correspondent asserted in the last issue of the Star the following few lines: "I read with amusement the opposition to the granting of a license for a moving picture house in Winchester." If some folks are amused when other people are serious in their convictions, that certainly is their privilege.

Your correspondent asserted: "I see no reason why one person or a group of persons should speak for the whole Town of Winchester." May I please ascertain through the columns of the Star if your correspondent and the real estate operators speak for the whole Town of Winchester? If a person or persons express their views in regard to a new enterprise, that does not necessarily suggest that they speak for the whole Town.

I realize that there are thousands of people in Winchester and elsewhere who do not concur with me in regard to moving pictures, but there were thousands of people who did not concur with the Master, the Saviour of Mankind. And remember thousands of people did not subscribe to the views of Christopher Columbus, Abraham Lincoln and others too numerous to mention.

In the past we discussed erecting a theatre north of the railroad tracks adjacent to Richardson Block, better known perhaps as the Cannon Ball. After a lengthy discussion and a referendum we decided a theater was not desirable in the Athens of America. But lo and behold, instead of a theater we have a gas station that appears to harmonize with the gateman's shanty, the street sweeper's tool box, a traffic officer's cubby house and the overhead pass at the depot: that certainly requires, from casual observation, considerable paint to harmonize with the shanty that was recently painted.

Now listen and please concentrate. We are informed that if the theater is erected it will fetch $200,000 worth of taxable property to the Town, and yet we expended hundreds of thousands of dollars in the immediate vicinity of Main and Thompson streets when we removed the tannery, machine shops, blacksmith shop, carrying shop, forge, furniture factory, dwelling houses galore, stores, apple orchards, a freight yard and a large livery stable; and substituted on the sites a beautiful church, two modern schools, Winchester Field, two excellent bridges and a portion of the Mystic Valley Parkway. The hundreds of thousands of dollars that we expended fetched millions of dollars worth of property to the Town of Winchester.

In fact, Winchester developed rapidly when we erected modern schools, beautiful parks and playgrounds. I wonder how much taxable property a moving picture theatre will fetch to the Town of Winchester? Surely some of the Star correspondents will favor the readers in the next issue. I trust some correspondents will be amused when they read the above few lines. Why, because they asserted in the last issue of the Star that they read with amusement the opposition that some of us have in regard to a moving picture enterprise in the Town of Winchester.

I trust Mr. Editor, that you will pardon me for gobbling up so much space. Thanking you for the above space.

Very truly yours,
Patrick H. Craughwell

MOVIES, A CASE IN POINT

To the Editor of the Star:

Mrs. Smith's article last week did a valuable service in discriminating between block-booking and compulsory block-booking. No intelligent person objects to block-booking. What the motion picture theaters and their patrons object to is being compelled to show and see what Hollywood thinks is good for them. The local movie theater owner, under his contract, can reject only 10 to 15 per cent of the films offered him. If censorship were applied in any community it would act, therefore, only within this range of 10 to 15 per cent of the films, and consequently would be futile.

The attempt of Hollywood to control even the independent movie theaters shows that all is not well under the present movie code. The New York "Times" of Jan. 31 says:

Judge George A. Welsh in the Federal District Court of Philadelphia today gave independent motion picture operators in this area an injunction against nine of the large movie producing and distributing companies of the country, restraining them from enforcing a contract clause which prohibits small exhibitors from showing "double-feature" programs.

In his opinion, the judge declared that he had found an "almost complete domination" of the motion picture industry by the nine companies mentioned in the suit. He added that, if this condition were permitted to continue unchecked, "the opportunity for expression of the cultural life of our great nation would be controlled completely by a small group."

"If the independent exhibitors are destroyed," he remarked, "it might be a long time before the monopolistic control and domination could be challenged and broken."

"Threats" Were Recalled

Neighborhood theater owners contended in their suit that they were forced to present programs with two feature pictures in order to compete with houses run by the "combine."

The large companies warned them, however, that if this were done their contracts would be canceled, their deposits for future films forfeited and no further bookings made.

Judge Welsh termed the "unanimity of action" on the part of the large companies on the two-feature issue a "well studied intent to accomplish a purpose prohibited by Federal laws."

In the light of the above, what chance has Winchester for anything but the "run of the mill" films which any other small community gets?

NOT FAMILIAR WITH THE DISCUSSION

Feb. 8, 1935

To the Editor of the Star:

In these days of "Horse Racing" and "Dog Gambling" it is amusing to see the naive discussions that crop up in reference to the building of a movie theater within the boundaries of our fair town.

For Winchester's "leading newspaper" to come out again editorially praising such a proposition along with several of our prominent citizens in this year of 1935, shows conclusively that the spirit of our ancestors is not dead and that there is still hope that our puritanical blue laws will be revived. The writer recalls that there was some law in past days against smoking on the streets on Sunday, and doubtless after this annual appearance of the Movie Theater plague has properly been squelched, good constructive effort can be directed toward the revival of some good old puritanical laws.

Although it makes little difference to the personal convenience of the writer, whether or not Winchester has a movie theater, it might be well for the protectors of our morals to take into consideration the welfare and convenience of the large number of citizens that do not have an automobile available, when they want to see one of the large number of good pictures that are being shown at the various theaters around Winchester. These people cannot avail themselves of that "10 to 20 minute ride that refreshes the lungs," to quote from your recent editorial.

However, you perhaps can get the Eastern Massachusetts Buses to install air conditioning, and then of course the problem would be solved.

Sincerely yours,
Daniel F. Barnard

High School "Highlights" Column

Faculty to Publish "Highlights" March 1

March 1, the "Highlights" is going to publish a feature issue. The editors will hand over all the cares of publishing a newspaper to the faculty.

On the news staff we find Mrs. Stacy, Miss Bronson, Mr. Butters and Mr. Alley. You'll find news that will surprise you.

Mr. Keeney, Mr. Grindle and Mr. Hayward will take care of editorials, and Mr. Hayward will write the editor's column.

Mr. Bartlett is going to be our personal's editor. The students had better watch out for him. Anything they say may be used against them.

Coach Mansfield and Miss Loysen will replace the sports writers and we guarantee that you will receive some "inside" news from them.

With these teachers and several others not yet assigned, at the helm, the high school may look forward to a "Highlights" full of new and interesting write-ups.

Ticket Selling Contest for Vau-Devil Show

Little by little and piece by piece we are getting more information concerning the much talked about vau-devil show, which will take place on March 8 in the auditorium.

The latest bit of news concerns a stupendous vau-devil ticket selling contest which will be carried on again this year because of its great success last year. Here is a good chance for any ambitious and quick-witted boys and girls to pick up a little extra pocket money and at the same time give the A. A. a big boost.

The "It" Girls

At last, the Personality class, which most of the school has been wondering about all year, will come out into the open and show the school some of its work. Few realize that this course is a well-organized group out to "get" Personality and to keep it. The assembly will be given on March 15 in an endeavor to show the curious what has been covered in the first half year's work. Three groups have planned to entertain with two playlets and a fashion show. It is hinted that they'll give some pointers on applying for a job, correct attire, and a restaurant scene where lessons will be given in spaghetti swallowing.

Group Gives Assembly in Honor of Lincoln

A committee under the direction of Mrs. Stacy, teacher of American History, arranged and presented an assembly last Wednesday in honor of Lincoln's Birthday.

Nancy Hall was mistress of ceremonies and after Mr. Grindle read the opening exercises, she introduced Dorothy Glidden as the first speaker. Then followed a vivid sketch of Lincoln's life from boyhood to manhood.

The second speaker, Albert Gunn, brought out that every great man has some pattern of living, often that of hitching your wagon to a star. Not so with Lincoln, who believed in doing well each day what is to be done.

Phyllis Hartwell gave a brief space of time to the famorous side of Lincoln, telling several lesser known stories.

Richard Elliott followed with that famous old English classic the Gettysburgh address. Several interesting stories go with that incident and one of these he told.

"Lincoln Was Slanderproof." This was the text of Richard Leghorn's talk, wherein he stated that Lincoln believed in doing what he knew to be right, regardless of petty whisperings.

The assembly closed with a poem, "Lincoln, the Man of the People," which Lester Gustin spoke.

Miss Norris Chevalier of 6 Copley street and Miss Geraldine Moulton of 1 Lewis road are among the pupils of the Bishop-Lee School of Boston who are taking part in a dramatic recital tomorrow afternoon at the school.

Mr. Dunbar Carpenter, Jr., of Rangely, was one of the participants in the skii-joring at Dartmouth carnival last week-end.

Howard Cosgrove returned to his home on Black Horse terrace on Wednesday from the Winchester Hospital where he underwent treatment for a frozen foot sustained in the last cold spell.

Mrs. Raymond Cottle of Vineyard Haven, Martha's Vineyard, was in town for a few days this week visiting Mrs. Lowell Bond of Park avenue.

Mrs. Hazel Frost of Norwood street is changing her residence tomorrow to Norwell, on the South Shore.

Mrs. Ernest L. Paquette of Washington street, returned home the first of the week from the Winchester Hospital where she underwent an operation for appendicitis.

"Dickie" Frost of 16 Norwood street entertained a group of his young friends yesterday afternoon in honor of his sixth birthday.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

The many friends of Mrs. Virgil Ghirardini of Foxcroft road, will be pleased to learn she is able to be out, after having been confined to her home for the past eight weeks with a fractured ankle.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hickey of Edgehill road sustained injuries in an automobile accident in Hyannis this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Cushman of Sheffield road spent last week-end at the Dartmouth carnival in Hanover.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Troop 1 News

The Monday meeting marked the largest attendance of the year with 39 boys present. Eight of them are candidates of Troop 7 who will attend our meetings until that troop completes its reorganization plans.

Patrol Leader Whitelaw Wright conducted the meeting. A rigid inspection followed the opening exercises. The Silver Fox Patrol rated first, Panther second, and Stag third.

While half the troop went outside to locate constellations under patrol leadership, the other half played Kim's game. Then the patrols changed places and the other half went outside. Beaver Patrol ranked first on Kim's game, with Panther and Silver Fox close second and third.

Mr. Kenerson read Bryant's poem, "The Death of Lincoln," and Walt Whitman's "O Captain, My Captain" in memory of Lincolns birthday.

Mr. Phillip Gallagher who has recently come to Winchester to live, met those Scouts who are interested in Sea Scouting at the close of the meeting. All first class Scouts in Winchester that are 15 years old are cordially invited to attend these meetings at 8:30 o'clock on Monday evenings at the Junior High School gym. This invitation includes all ex-Scouts who have dropped out who can meet these qualifications.

After April 1, 1935, only registered members of Troop 1 are eligible to join.

Camp Lane Competition

This competition is designed to acquaint Scouts with the wonderful camp site Mr. Lane has so generously given to the Scouts of Winchester. It is your camping grounds, and a wonderful opportunity to put the Out in Scouting. Those who have visited the place know what chances there are for real Scouting in Winchester. If you have read Scout George Manning, Jr.'s description of the site in last week's Star, you will have a good idea of the place.

The bridge to be built over the stream gives a good chance for Scouts who want to pass pioneering to get busy and submit designs. There are many ways to build the bridge, and it is hoped that this competition will bring out the real designs. It will be built of trees that can be cut at the camp. The bridge should be about three feet wide and about 10 or 12 feet long, with a railing.

The lean-too should bring in some very interesting designs also. It should be large enough to house eight to 12 boys. The roof should be tight enough to keep them dry in wet weather and designed for winter camping. For the floor, warmth should be the first consideration.

Why not build a fireplace with an oven so you can do your cooking, and merit badge work there? There might be bars across to hold your cooking utensils.

The general layout of the camp should show where to place all of these projects, and in addition, sanitary conditions must be thought of.

"Soul" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Feb. 17.

The Golden Text is: "Set your heart and your soul to seek the Lord your God" (1 Chronicles 22:19).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Preserve me, O God: for in thee do I put my trust. . . . Thou wilt shew me the path of life: in thy presence is fulness of joy; at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore" (Psalms 16:1, 11).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Soul has infinite resources with which to bless mankind, and happiness would be more readily attained and would be more secure in our keeping, if sought in Soul. Richer enjoyments absolutely satisfy the cravings of immortal man. We cannot circumscribe happiness within the limits of personal sense. The senses confer no real enjoyment. The good in human affections must have precedence over the evil and the spiritual over the animal, or happiness will never be won" (p. 60).

LEGION AUXILIARY TO PUT ON EXTRACT SALE

Manufacturer Donated Quantity of Extracts

The Auxiliary to Post No 97, American Legion, have had an exceptional opportunity offered to them to raise funds for their relief program through the sale of flavoring extracts, a quantity having been donated by a food product manufacturer for advertising purposes.

It is believed that the housewives of Winchester will co-operate by placing orders with the Auxiliary for these extracts.

Owing to the fact that there are only a few members who will be able to assist, it has been decided to contact all housewives asking their co-operation, by telephone.

Camp Lane Visit

Last Sunday, 16 Winchester Scouts, and a group of Scout leaders, namely Dr. R. J. Clark, Edward Grosvenor, Arthur Abbott, George Manning, and one or two other Scouters, went on an expedition to Camp Lane in Burlington. Snow shoes and skiis were used by the group, and to be sure they were needed as there was about 20 inches of snow. The Scouts attending were two from Troop 1; six from Troop 3, and eight from Troop 2.

New Expedition

On Feb. 22, there will be an expedition of Scouts and Scouters of Winchester to the new camp site, Camp Lane in Burlington. It is hoped that as many as possible Scouts, Scout leaders, and Council members will journey to Camp Lane. The purpose of the expedition is for a "logging bee," to gather material while the snow is still on the ground, and for the construction of future projects. Each troop should attempt to arrange their own transportation. If all cars will assemble on Church street in front of the Congregational Church at 10:30 o'clock on Friday morning, there will doubtless be room for any who might otherwise not have transportation. We are anxius to have as many fathers of the Scouts as possible, join the party. Plan to cook your dinner out. As many as possible should bring axes and hatchets. Let's see what troop will turn out the best crowd of "loggers."

Japanese Remedy

Moxibustion still is one of the popular panaceas of Japan, being considered efficacious in all kinds of illnesses from rheumatism and eczema to headache and fainting spells. The doctor just places a pile of moxa leaves on the affected part and sets it on fire. The spot gets burned—and well!—Collier's Weekly.

Flit, Flu, Flut

A dying patient's chart, kept by a native assistant in a Japanese hospital, read thus: 11 a. m., patient in low degree; 11:30 a. m., patient in the sink; 12 noon, patient on the flit; 12:5 p. m., patient flut.

Many Years to Write Dictionary

In 1783, Noah Webster published "A Grammatical Institute of the English Language." It was written in three parts: a spelling-book, a grammar and a reader. Webster's royalty, though less than one cent a volume, still must have been pretty handsome, for the book was the first of the American best sellers, says a writer in Cosmopolitan Magazine. Before the beginning of the Civil war it was selling at the rate of more than a million copies a year. Webster began work on his famous dictionary in 1807; it was published in 1828, and contained 12,000 words, and about 30,000 definitions that had not appeared in any other dictionary.

Brown Sugar

The brown sugar of commerce is not the same as maple sugar, but is a product of the sugar cane not subjected to quite as much of the refining, clarifying and decoloring processes as white sugar.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

Described as one of the most beautiful romances to reach the screen, "Broadway Bill," opens at the Granada Theater in Malden on Saturday with Warner Baxter and Myrna Loy as the stars. "Broadway Bill" is the story of a man, at heart a roustabout, who prefers the open road and horses to a selfish, conventional wife and the smug security of an executive job held through the doubtful generosity of a financial minded father-in-law. Into this situation is thrust a girl of similar tastes. That she is the younger sister of Baxter's wife makes a complicated problem that is solved only after the three-man, wife and sister-in-law-go through an ordeal of drama, pathos and robust comedy. Warner Baxter and Myrna Loy are a new screen team and make a perfect combination. They are assisted in the picture by Walter Connolly, Helen Vinson, Claude Gillingwater, Clarence Muse, Lynne Overman and Frankie Darro.

"Enter Madame," with Elissa Landi and Cary Grant as the stars, is the second attraction on the bill starting Saturday. The plot is a highly amusing story of a man married to a beautiful opera singer and become a mere adjunct to his wife's career. "Enter Madame" takes advantage of its locale to introduce a number of scenes from three popular operas, not merely incidental scenes, but actual opera with the voices of Richard Bonelli, Metropolitan Opera star, and Nina Koshetz, famous soprano, are heard. "Enter Madame" has eye appeal, ear appeal and more than its quota of laughs.

"The Cascades Revue," 20 talented stage and night club entertainers, plus Bernie Stevens and his stage band open a seven day engagement at the Strand Theater in Malden next Monday. This is the finest all-star revue ever seen in this territory and it has been doing a record-breaking business at every stand. The company is headed by Flo Nickerson, mistress of ceremonies, who has an inimitable style of comedy and has the audience with her from the moment she steps on the stage. Eleanor and Bunny Coll, aerobatic dancers in a daring routine is one of the outstanding turns of the Revue. Al Kicker, a former musical comedy star, with a very funny dancing style and a subtle manner in getting his laughs is another of the principals. Then come the "Cascades Girls," who were at the Hotel Bradford in Boston for two years. These girls are young and beautiful, with perfect figures and beautiful costumes who do their routines and prescion numbers in a graceful and charming style. Bernie Stevens and his orchestra are well known in New England having played over WBZ for a long period. "The Cascades Revue" runs a full hour without a single dull moment and from the standpoint of talent and class nothing to approach it has been seen. Washington's Birthday Eve a special midnight show will be given with a new stage show and Richard Arlen in "Heldorado" on the screen. This same new show will be presented on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

"The County Chairman," which opens with the Revue on Monday is this famous star's newest film in which he is supported by a capable cast including Evelyn Venable, Kent Taylor, Louise Dresser and the colored comedian Stepin Fetchit. "The County Chairman" is a sure-fire vehicle for Will Rogers and he portrays a political boss who kisses babies and shakes the family skeletons of his opponents.

"Heldorado" which opens its run on the midnight show Washington's Birthday Eve has a strong cast including Dick Arlen, Madge Evans, Ralph Bellamy, James Gleason and Gertrude Short.

MYSTIC THEATRE, MALDEN ATTRACTIONS

A great picture comes to the Mystic Theater, Malden, screen on Saturday, Feb. 16. It is Louisa May Alcott's "Little Men." That it will be included in all the "Best Picture" lists this year seems certain. It revolves around quaint Plumfield School in rural New England, presided over by "Prof. Fritz Bhaer" (played with a matchless fineness by that distinguished actor, Ralph Morgan) and tender, capable "Jo" (the lovely New York stage star, Erin O'Brien-Moore. Others in the cast include Junior Durkin, Dickie Moore, Buster Phelps, Cora Sue Collins, David Darand, Frankie Darro, Phyllis Fraser, who by the way is a cousin of Ginger Rogers, and several other well known junior stars.

Gilbert K. Chesterton's famous foxy old sleuth of the magazine pages, "Father Brown, Detective," finally assumes flesh and comes to the screen in the person of Walter Connolly. The feature, produced by Paramount, comes to the Mystic Theatre as the second feature with "Little Men" starting Saturday. The role of Father Brown, a priest, is very ably played by Connolly. Despite the calm background of the character himself, the picture is full of breath-taking action, adventure and a good share of comedy. Paul Lukas gives a very deft portrayal of the gentlemanly but wily crook. The love interest is provided by Gertrude Michael, who will be remembered for her parts in "The Notorious Sophie Lang," "Monaco" and "Murder at the Vanities."

"THE LITTLE MINISTER" AT THE UNIVERSITY

Katharine Hepburn brings to the screen her most important achievement in Sir James M. Barrie's "The Little Minister" which starts Sunday. John Beal plays the role of the "Little Minister" with fine authority and lends the part a quaint pathos. Alan Hale is properly featured as Rob Dow the village ruffian. There is a quaint, rare beauty to "The Little Minister," that is somewhat akin to a trip through storied Scotland—and, as for Miss Hepburn, it is enough to say that the role is one in which she wholeheartedly can revel.

"The Silver Streak," the companion feature, presents the railroad's answer to the airplane's challenge. It is a story of stream line, Diesel-powered trains that can maintain an incredible speed with safety.

Barbara Stanwyck comes Thursday in, "The Secret Bride," which is said to be the most powerful and dynamic picture in which she has yet appeared. There is a talented cast playing in support of Miss Stanwyck, with Warren William in the leading role of her secret husband, Glenda Farrell as the wise cracking stenographer and Douglas Dumbrille as the lover.

"Rabbitt," the companion picture, is a rare comedy drama of the typical characters of any of the hundreds of medium sized towns of America. Aline MacMahon and Guy Kibbie, the film version of "Babbitt" is expected to rival in popularity the book on which it is based.

ENTERTAINED AT LUNCHEON

Mr. and Mrs. Cutler B. Downer provided the most delightful part of a socially gay week-end for many friends, when on Sunday they gave a luncheon at their home on Sheffield road. There will be novelty bowling with prizes and older members who recall the pleasure of similar parties in past years will not want to miss this latest good time.

Holiday Open House

Plans announced for the annual Washington's Birthday open house as announced this week indicate that Calumet members and their families are to enjoy a memorable party on the holiday. Festivities will of course open in the morning with the all-day bowling for men, and in the afternoon there will be an entertainment for children of club members and their friends with refreshments, commencing at 3 o'clock.

A Dutch supper will be served at 6:30, and will be followed by dancing. Walt Cunningham's popular orchestra having been engaged to furnish music. The committee, including the club president, Wallace F. Flanders, Robert A. Reynolds, Earle B. Goldsmith and C. Harold Smith, ask that all who plan to attend, send in their reservations early so that adequate provisions can be made.

THE WINCHESTER UNITARIAN PLAYERS

On Monday, Feb. 18, at 8:30 p. m. in Metcalf Hall, the Winchester Unitarian Players are to sponsor an interesting dramatic evening. The nature of the entertainment makes it advisable to guard details of the program with strictest secrecy. Although this procedure deprives the participants of their due praise for wholehearted co-operation, it insures the surprise and interest to be enjoyed by those privileged to witness the production. The committee in charge of the program believe that they are giving to a Winchester audience something decidedly different and most unusual in the line of entertainment.

This is a regular meeting of the Unitarian Players and is open without charge to members and their guests.

PARISH PLAYERS PRESENTED "UNDER COVER"

The Parish Players presented "Under Cover," a four-act melodrama by Roi Cooper Megrue, last Friday evening in the "Little Theatre Beneath a Spire," as the second of the current series of three plays to be given during this ninth season of the organization. While not capacity, a receptive audience of good size witnessed the production.

Following is the cast, in order of appearance:

James Duncan, assistant to Daniel Taylor ..... Bradford Hill
Harry Gibbs, a Custom Inspector ..... Hall Gamage
Daniel Taylor, a Deputy in the Customs ..... Clifford H. Cunningham
Sarah Peabody ..... Elizabeth Adriance
Ethel Cartwright ..... Hersilia W. Elmer
Amy Cartwright ..... Margery W. Smith
Michael Harrington ..... Kenneth F. Caldwell
Lambert, butler at the Harrington's ..... Edmund A. Merriam, Jr.
Nora Rutledge ..... Eloise Graves
Alice Harrington ..... Esther S. Caldwell
Monty Vaughn ..... Reverdy H. Smith
Steven Denby ..... Hubert N. Bernard, Jr.

The play takes place during the afternoon and evening of a day in August.

Act. 1. The office of a Deputy Surveyor of the Port of New York, in the Custom's House, New York City.
Act 2. At the Harrington's, Long Island.
Act 3. Denby's room at the Harrington's.
Act 4. Same as Act 2.

The plot of "Under Cover" is developed with sufficient skill to hold the interest and the plot is pretty much the play, though there is a certain amount of witty dialogue of the bantering sort and some of the characters are well drawn. In general, however, it is the desire to know how things are coming out that holds the audience rather than the brilliance of any particular scene in itself, the card-playing scene excepted.

The story of the play deals with the irregularities in a certain deputy in the customs, one Daniel Taylor, who is in the habit of permitting smugglers to pass his customs office undetected with a view to giving them the opportunity to buy his silence and their way out of difficulties when they are ultimately apprehended.

Deputy Taylor is especially eager to run down Steven Denby, who, his foreign agents tell him, is bringing in a necklace of price, but is checkmated by the fact that Denby is to stop after his arrival in the country at the home of Sir Michael Harrington, people of prominence, with whom the deputy does not care to be at odds and to whose society he knows he can not be admitted.

Fate sends him Ethel Cartwright and her sister, Amy, in whose home jewels have been stolen, and when Taylor forces Amy to admit she pawned the gems to pay bridge debts, her older and stronger sister accepts his proposal to become his agent to save Amy from prison.

Going to the Harrington's, who are friends of hers, she meets Denby, a Paris acquaintance, and falls in love with him, the attachment proving mutual. Despite her natural repugnance, she goes through with her bargain with Taylor, though only after the latter arrives on the scene and reminds her of her sister's fate if she goes back on her contract.

She is unable actually to get the necklace, but decoys Denby into Taylor's clutches, after the former had succeeded in overpowering the deputy on the occasion of their first meeting.

Denby then buys off the willing Taylor for $20,000, only to disclose himself as the far famed "R. J." of the United States Secret Service who has been commissioned to clean up the irregularities in Taylor's customs department. From the first, Denby had suspected Taylor, but it wasn't until he had forced the truth from Miss Cartwright that he actually knew with whom he had to deal.

Needless to say everything ended happily for "R. J." and his fair opponent, and the work of the actors was warmly applauded. The cast as a whole was better chosen than some of its predecessors and gave a satisfactory performance for those not too critical, though opinion was divided in the matter of whether the early action was not a bit too "heavy."

Mrs. Elmer's portrayal of Ethel Cartwright strengthened her position as one of the town's leading amateurs, voice and expression adding to the poise and sense of values that make her stage presence so appealing. Opposite her, Mr. Bernard, in the difficult role of Steven Denby, gave another of the satisfying performances which have long established him a favorite with local theater-goers. Both he and Mrs. Elmer richly deserved the applause that followed their dramatic scene in Denby's room, a scene that might easily have been over-played or suffered from less sure acting.

Mr. Cunningham's Daniel Taylor was one of the play's strong characters, convincingly played with a cold, sneering ruthlessness that easily became patronizingly gracious in the face of the bribe and in the end blusteringly threatening when caught in "R. J.'s" trap.

Mrs. Caldwell as Alice, head of the house of Harrington, added much to the pleasure of the performance, playing a part that called for the skillful handling of comedy lines and action with just the right amount of reserve. She too was accorded excellent support by her husband in the role of the dominated Michael, with a taste for cocktails and a clear understanding of his status in the Harrington household. It was a real relief to see an embrace upon the amateur stage without a hint of embarrasment.

No member of the cast was more deserving of praise than Mrs. Graves who assumed the part of Nora Rutledge on virtually 24 hours' notice when the death of her mother prevented Miss Lucy Fowle from appearing in that role. Mrs. Graves performance was excellent, there being nothing at all to indicate that she was a substituting player. She had no difficulty with lines and in general contributed her full part to the success of the entire production.

Mr. Smith as Monty Vaughn, the unsuspecting ally of the redoubtable "R. J.," got many a laugh as he alternately shuddered at the prospect of 20 years in jail and despaired of winning the hand of the marriage-minded "Nora." If there was a tendency to be a bit too "jittery," the audience as a whole evidently approved, at least judging by the amusement registered.

Of the lesser characters, Miss Adriance was outstanding as Sarah Peabody the psuedo-deaf and dumb adventuress. Miss Smith, for one of her years, did well with the unattractive Amy Cartwright, a part which could have taxed a much more experienced performer. Mr. Hill and Mr. Gamage as customs men and Mr. Merriam as the inevitable butler were very satisfactory.

Judged by "Little Theatre" standards, the performance was scarcely as finished as some we have seen, there being some fumbling of lines and occasional traces of hesitancy. The sets were good, as always, the lighting, excellent, and the costumes pleasing, if one is willing to overlook the coats worn by Mr. Hill and Mr. Gamage in Act 1.

As usual, coffee was served in the foyer during the wait between the acts, with Mrs. Walter Winship and Mrs. Alan Cunninghan as hostesses.

The play was directed by Alan Hay with Dorothy M. Wills as prompter and Edward W. Berry, Jr. and Clifford H. Cunningham, Jr., stage assistants. Mrs. R. H. B. Smith, Miss May Thompson and Miss Betty Tucker were in charge of properties, and Mrs. W. H. Smith of costumes. Mrs. Clarence E. Ordway was in charge of tickets and Mrs. Harold Fuller, of candy. Candy girls were Barbara Tead, Mary Jane Dickson, Evelyn McGill, Sybil Spencer and Catherine Gilbert. Joseph W. Butler was head usher.

COMRADSHIP WEEK BY METHODIST YOUNG PEOPLE

A number of speakers who are keenly interested in the program of the Youth Movement of today have been secured for the Comradship Week program, which is an annual February event of the Epworth Leagues of the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church. Beginning next Sunday and continuing through the week to the following Sunday evening, there will be socials, fireside talks, the annual banquet and meetings that will challenge the serious purposes of young people.

Next Sunday, Rev. Rolland (Nick) Carter will speak on, "Living at Its Best." Marion Bancroft will have charge. Following the meeting the newly furnished Epworth League club room in the church will be dedicated by the officers of the two leagues. The Comradship Week social will be held on Monday evening, under the direction of Phil Gray.

On Wednesday evening, Rev. Rassell D. Cole will speak on, "Contagious Living." Rev. John Nicol Mark pastor of the Unitarian Church in Arlington, will be the speaker at the annual banquet on Friday evening and Rev. J. West Thompson will be the toastmaster. The gospel team from Boston University School of Theology, which will assist the Epworth Leagues here during March, will be the guests on this occasion. On the last Sunday evening, Miss Geneve Brigham, president of the East Middlesex Circuit, will speak on, "How to Develop a Wholesome Personality." Margaret Thompson will be in charge. Following the address the annual Epworth League communion service will close the Comradeship Week. The Sunday services will be held at 6 o'clock in the social hall and the week night meetings at 7:45.

LOBSTER KETTLE

"Where shall we lunch today or dine this evening?" Familiar questions.

If you really enjoy an appetizing cocktail served with a delicious dinner let us suggest the "Lobster Kettle" to you.

George, our Chef, formerly of Munroe's in Woburn will be delighted to prepare your lunch or perhaps a Lobster, Steak or Chicken dinner.

Our Maitre de Bar, Arthur Bonin, Union bar-tender since 1911, formerly of Red Coach Grille will be ever ready to mix your favorite drinks as delightful as in the olden days.

You will enjoy the Old English atmosphere and the excellent service.

Personal management, Harry G. Barrett, proprietor.

The many friends of Dr. H. N. Bernard will be glad to learn that his condition has so far improved as to permit his return to his home on Oneida road from the hospital in Boston where he was taken after being struck by a truck, while crossing Beacon street in that city Monday, Jan. 28. He sustained no broken bones, but is suffering from a severe shock and it will be some time before he is able to get about again.

BETTER HOMES' GARDEN CLUB

Seed Catalogue Party

The open season for gardens in Winchester, for 1935, will begin Wednesday, Feb. 20, 2:30 p. m., at the Public Library.

Club members, armed with seed catalogues, (at least one copy for members necessary for admittance), garden plans, note-books and pencils, will meet to consider and prepare for the spring campaign.

February Hints for New Gardeners

Draw a plan of your garden as you remember it or expect it to be, designating trees, walls, shrubs, ledges, paths and plants now in your garden, and consider what you wish to do with the bare spots, and what is suitable. Make allowance for the roots of trees and for sun and shade where the trees are in leaf. Study your seed catalogue and check what appeals to you, but before ordering, find out, if possible, from local gardeners what their experience has been with this particular variety of seed or plant. Seed catalogues are not yet under the "code" and every new weed imported from somewhere is in the seedsman's words, the most exquisite and remarkable creation of the century—and correspondingly expensive. This hint is of course for amateur gardeners who wish to be reasonably sure of results and do not wish to waste space or efforts, or lose their interest. For those who know the game and can afford it, there is no more interesting gamble than to "try a little of this and a little of that" and be prepared for surprises.

For February: Send for seed catalogues. Then send for more catalogues. Read and compare them daily—before and after meals, giving your imagination free run—but before you send the final order, decide whether you are going to plant an acre or four square yards, and who is going to pull the weeds.

OBSERVATIONS

By the Observer

How many of Winchester's old timers remember when we had pull doorbells, consisting of a glass or crockery knob, or a plain or ornamental one of brass or iron (matching the doorknob) with a bell attached ringing in the back part of the house? Them were the happy days!

And when our Winchester grocers kept a barrel of kerosene in the back of the store and most of the groceries caught the flavor?

Some need to remember not to gouge other people while carving out their fortunes.

The Winchesterite who can tell you just how a thing ought to be done is seldom busy.

A fellow says think how romance would suffer if a false tongue came out at night as teeth do.

Ask any fellow in or out of Winchester and the average one will agree that the old home "ain't what it uster be."

More and more are the women of fair Winchester rolling up their sleeves and rolling down their stockings and taking an interest in politics.

If you want to have a good time when you go on an automobile trip, keep away from liquor. It hadn't ought to be neeessary to mention this at all, but unfortunately too many people nowadays are mixing booze with gasoline.

And by the way, the quickest way to flit away from this mundane sphere is to take a little snooze at the wheel.

We call them the good old days, but old timers here in Winchester will tell you that a fellow either had to play checkers or talk with his wife.

We know a Winchester fellow who every time has a shave and haircut in town always has a job done on his finger nails by the manicurist. He says it is worth all it costs just to have a pretty little manicurist hold his hands.

And this reminds us that a barber's remarks are sometimes more keen and cutting than his razor. (This is not a rap at any of our Winchester barbers, however.)

HEART TO HEART TALKS

By Eugene Bertram Willard

Duty has nothing to do with rewards for it is never something done for a price. For this reason many people find it hard to agree with the policy of rewarding police and firemen who distinguish themselves in some way by saving a life or preventing property damage. They are paid for that—that is their job and when they get their week's pay they have been rewarded and an additional reward is not necessary. Of course, this philosophy is in contradistinction to that held by many. A man saves a life and is rewarded with something material. But how futile such a reward must be compared with the spiritual reward, a reward that is priceless. Think of the blessed peace felt by the soul of that individual who has been true to himself and true to his duty toward his fellows.

The man who does his duty without fear is the happy man, inwardly, anyway. If he does his duty as a public official he may get in bad with certain factions or even lose his job. But regardless of that the doing of one's duty can be performed by the highest or lowliest person and the Almighty has a great reward for such a one. St. James writes: "We count them happy which endure." And St. Peter writes: "If ye suffer for righteousness' sake happy are ye."

It is only as men do their duty that they can by any possibility aspire to the life higher than any that they have known, only as they do their duty that there can be the remotest hope of human progress. Every man should strive to be worthy of himself. The ideal of duty! What greater aspiration can any man have than living by and through such an ideal?

All of us must constantly bear in mind that life is giving rather than getting as so many seem to think.

Among the many tourists who spent a day at Silver Springs, Fla., recently, viewing the unparalleled beauties of the Nation's Underwater Fairyland from electrically driven, glass bottom boats was Mr. Paul L. Costello of 3 Mason street.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The regular meeting of the Fortnightly was held Monday, Feb. 11, in Waterfield Hall. The singing of "America the Beautiful" and the pledge of allegiance to our beloved flag were brought out with such feeling one felt the audience quite mindful of the two great men whose birthmonth, February, was, and of the heroic and noble deeds of Lincoln and Washington.

The announcements of coming events showed the Fortnightly to be "a college for grown-ups," so many instructive and worthwhile activities are being carried on by its many committees. Feb. 25, the regular meeting, the Art Committee are presenting Mr. Ernest D. Jaynes who is to lecture on Oriental Art. Mr. Ernest D. Jaynes is a connoisseur of art of many kinds. An exhibition of priceless objects from Persia, India, China and Japan will be held.

Education Committee held a food sale this afternoon in conjunction with the regular meeting to help them raise extra money. This committee has been able to help three students this past year and hopes to continue their support until they finish their courses.

Friday, the 15th, a morning musical will be held at Mrs. Samuel Cole's. "Old Forms" being the theme. Mrs. Hildegard Livingstone and Mary K. Sargent are in charge.

The program of the afternoon was in charge of the Dramatic Committee, Mrs. Beatrice Budd, chairman, who presented a comedy in three acts, "The Mollusc" by Hubert Henry Davies. It deals with a woman who is in nature a mollusc. One who makes all about her do her bidding and wait upon her.

Each member of the cast did a fine piece of work. Only long hours of faithful rehearsing could have produced such effective results. Mrs. Anna Grosvenor, as Tom Baxter, made a fine looking gentleman and many of the weaker sex fell quite in love with "him," so contagious was his personality that the audience with the governess wanted to go back to Colorado with him. Mrs. Pitman as the imposed upon governess, with an old-fashioned conscience was quite charming. It was easy to see how Mr. and Mrs. Baxter felt that life would be quite impossible without her. Mrs. Winnifred Nicholas as Mr. Baxter, the mollusc's husband, was a real English gentleman, and quite won the sympathy of the audience by her clever interpretation of the long suffering husband. Mrs. Clara Reynolds was certainly a most attractive and amusing mollusc. She was quite finished in her difficult part, the action of the play really evolving around her personality. Her acting was so realistic that the audience was moved with her brother Tom, to take violent measures to cure her mollusery.

Mrs. Beatrice Budd coached the play and is to be congratulated on her splendid piece of work, deserving great credit for its effectiveness. The details were carefully worked out, the stage attractive and colorful, which helped to give atmosphere and reality. Mrs. Mary Snell did a careful, painstaking and professional piece of work on the make-up.

Music was furnished before the play and between the acts by the Helena Studzinska Sibley Trio. Musical numbers included: Waltz by Josef Hellinsky; Woodland Sketches by MacDowell; Valse Caprice by Helen Studzinska Sibley and Pierrot by Henry Hadley.

Deterioration of Pearls

It is not necessary to have real pearls worn in order to keep them from deteriorating. In fact, the acid in some persons' skins may have a deleterious effect upon pearls. Light or lack of it and temperature seem to have no effect. The only requisite for keeping pearls is to have them perfectly dry.

Stone Age Notebooks

The most numerous public monuments to be found in China are stones on which the Chinese have engraved their important records and chief historical facts during the past 1,200 years.

Air Contains Moisture

The air always contains some moisture, even though one is not conscious of it. Sun and wind are always taking up water from any source exposed to their action. Lakes and streams, moist land, and even animals and plants may be sources of atmospheric moisture, but the greatest sources are the oceans of salt water.

TOWN WARRANT OUT

Several Controversial Articles Among Forty-nine for Consideration

The Police Department commenced the work of delivering the warrants for the annual March meeting and the town reports last Saturday forenoon and by now both are in the hands of the community's electorate. The officers found the work of delivery difficult, especially those on the side hills of the town, in some places rubber boots being necessary to enable the men to reach the dwellings.

In addition to the articles dealing with the March election of town officers for the ensuing year and those of a routine nature to be taken up at the opening session of town meeting on the following Thursday, there are several which are likely to prove controversial.

Chief among these are Articles 25, dealing with the proposed return of the salary of town officers and employees reduced by the town meeting of June 8, 1932; 26, seeking to determine the town's pleasure in the matter of granting a license for motion pictures; 24, to see if the town will determine the location and secure land for a west side fire station; 38, to see if the town will accept the Sunday sports law; 32, to see if the town will purchase or take the property south of the high school building between Washington and Main streets for school purposes; 17, to see if the town will appropriate money to improve the heating of the high school addition and junior high building; and those articles dealing with the continuance of the town's unemployment relief program calling for an estimated appropriation at the time of the meeting in excess of $40,000.

There are other articles of interest such as those which call for the reconstruction of Main street from the Parkway to the Woburn line with a new bridge over the outlet to Wedge Pond and for the reconstruction of Church street in its entirety, both to be undertaken as Chapter 90 projects with the assistance of the State and County. There is likely to be some debate over the article calling for the construction by the town of a suitable building in which to house the dogs, taken and restrained by the community according to law.

ST. MARY'S TO OBSERVE 60th ANNIVERSARY

Plans are practically complete for the big reunion of members and former members of St. Mary's Church next Wednesday evening, Feb. 27, at the town hall in honor of the 60th anniversary of the parish in Winchester.

Under the direction of Rev. Fr. Joseph McGoldrick an elaborate program has been prepared which will open with an entertainment, commencing at 8 o'clock. The overture will be played by the Edson Rand Concert Orchestra of Woburn and there will be a one-act play, given by members of the Players' Guild, of which Dana J. Kelley is president; and selections by the Infant Saviour Glee Club. The Swanangles of Woburn will present a musical act and Eileen Miller of Arlington will appear with Rosa Todd of Stoneham in dancing specialties. Vocal solos will be offered by Mary Cusick McGrath of this town, Edna McNamara of Cambridge and James Fitzpatrick of Stoneham.

Refreshments will be served after the entertainment and the reunion will be concluded with general dancing, both modern and old fashioned. A souvenir booklet, history of the parish, will be distributed. P. T. Foley is chairman of the general committee in charge of arrangements.

Elizabeth Rethberg and Fritz Kreisler have been heard in these concerts before, but Giovanni Martinelli, Richard Bonelli, Kirsten Flagstad, the Swedish singer and Helen Jepson, all of the Metropolitan Opera are singers new to our programs, as are also Joseph Hoffman, pianist and Emanuel Feuermann, violin cellist, both artists of great reputation. The committee has a waiting list of new subscribers, but as there are meritable changes each year in the lists, it is suggested that anyone desiring to become a new subscriber to the concerts, should add her name to the waiting list at once. Mrs. Alfred D. Radley, committee chairman for Winchester, will be very glad to attend to this for anyone, if he or she will call Winchester 1512.

MISS AVERY SPEAKS ON CRIME AND HOUSING

Miss Avery's talk on Feb. 13, was on "Crime and Housing" and taking first the problem of crime, Miss Avery asked her audience if they realized that there was more crime in America than in any other country in the world today. And 90 per cent of this crime takes place in urban centers. Something must be done about this, but we have not been approaching it the right way, we are too emotional in our handling of the problem; we are too easily excited at first and lose interest too easily later.

We have an average of 2000 murders a year and we are awakening to the importance of the home environment in connection with this and other crimes. But we are at last coming to a consciousness that something must be done and as a result we have had the first national conference on crime ever held in this country. And Massachusetts, Illinois and a number of other states have had a state investigation of crime.

We have found that city living makes people mature earlier physically and later mentally and the gap between is what causes the trouble. Another factor in crime development is the ease with which criminals are able to get away from the scene of the crime and the different police state laws makes following a criminal very difficult. Now there are many offences for which a man can be handled federally, but until lately this was impossible.

And today the government agents are being efficiently equipped with bullet-proof vests, long range guns, etc. Of 528 men in the investigation bureau, 83 per cent are college graduates, and there are tear gas experts, machine gun experts and experts of every kind that are needed for the job.

At all the conferences we have found that public opinion must be aroused first, that judges and jurors must be improved and in many instances prison methods changed. And nine states have lately made new legislature along these lines.

Housing, Miss Avery said, is the most interesting single problem in Washington today. In the national survey of 64 cities of a population of 10,000 to 100,000, it was found that 32 per cent of the homes were in good condition, 48 per cent needed minor repairs and five per cent were unfit for habitation. We found out that the average American home is 19 years old, is made of wood, has an indoor toilet and a stove for heating.

Two-thirds of America is inadequately housed and as a nation, it is the worst-housed of any despite all the efficiency gadgets that we are manufacturing all the time. Surely it behooves us to do something about this state of affairs.

Miss Avery's next talk will be at 8 p. m., Wednesday, Feb. 27, at the Wyman School hall and will be, "Today in Congress."

CONGER—WOLFE

Miss Elizabeth Wolfe of Providence, R. I., daughter of Mrs. George Fisher Wolfe and the late Mr. Wolfe, was quietly married Thursday evening, Feb. 21, at 7:30, at the home of her brother, Dr. Chester F. Wolfe, on Jefferson road, to Harold Gates Conger of Washington, D. C., son of Mrs. James Warren Conger and the late Mr. Conger. The ceremony was performed by Rev. George Hale Reed, minister of the Unitarian Church. There were no attendants.

The bride is a graduate of Simmons College and Mr. Conger, of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He is a civil engineer and holds a government position with the Department of Aeronautics in Washington where he and his bride will make their future home.

FITZ—FLANDERS

Wearing a gown of white satin and carrying a bouquet of gardenias and valley lilies Miss Virginia Flanders was married Thursday evening, Feb. 21, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace F. Flanders on Lakeview road, to Charles Newcomb Fitz, son of Mrs. Charles N. Fitz and the late Mr. Fitz of Chatham. The ceremony was performed at 8:30 in a setting of spring flowers by Rev. George Hale Reed, minister of the Unitarian Church.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and her honor attendant was her sister, Miss Jean Flanders, who wore white lace with green hat and slippers and carried talisman roses. Miss Judith Flanders, niece of the bride, and Miss Geraldine Goldsmith, the bride's cousin, were flower girls, wearing long white organdie frocks and carrying small old fashioned bouquets. James H. Hood, Jr., of Watertown was best man.

At the reception, which followed the ceremony, the bride and bridegroom were assisted in receiving by their parents and by the maid of honor.

Upon their return from a wedding journey, Mr. Fitz and his bride will be at home, after March 1, at 71 Martin street in Cambridge. The bride is a graduate of Dana Hall in Wellesley and Mr. Fitz, of Yale; preparing for college at Phillips Academy, Exeter.

MISS McCARTNEY AT LIBRARY SATURDAY

Miss Edith McCartney, whose exhibition of paintings in the art gallery of the town's library under the auspices of the Winchester Art Association is arousing so much favorable comment, will be at the gallery on Saturday afternoon and will be happy to see her friends and prospective friends who may care to meet and talk with her.

Miss McCartney, an artist especially successful in the difficult field of child portraiture, with studios in Washington and New York, has been in Winchester visiting her mother, Mrs. Sophia McCartney of Eaton street, and her sister, Mrs. Andrew F. Anderson of Kenwin road.

A former Winchester girl, she was especially interested in the facilities for art at the new library and in the work that the Winchester Art Association is doing in town. On Monday evening she visited the art class the association is sponsoring at the library and drew for the members.

Miss McCartney expressed herself as delighted with the art class and is particularly intrigued with the possibilities in such classes for interesting the average individual in art through his own attempts at expression, in which he gradually builds a background enabling him to appreciate and better enjoy the work of professionals and masters of art. Artistic ability is not necessary to profit greatly from membership in such classes as that which the Winchester Art Association is making possible and it is Miss McCartney's hope that many more will avail themselves of the opportunity to enrol, thereby experiencing the joy that comes with the ability to truly appreciate the great art treasures now being produced, as well as those done through the ages.

WINCHESTER MAN RESPONSIBLE FOR "MARCH OF TIME?"

Many Winchester people who have seen the new "March of Time" newsreel will be interested to know that a former Winchester man, Mr. Louis C. de Rochemont is largely responsible for its inception.

Mr. de Rochemont has been in the moving picture industry for many years, more recently with Fox Movietone News. "The Cry of the World," an interesting compilation of news events from 1914 to 1933 was edited by Mr. de Rochemont and received much praise from cinema audiences and critics. Impressed by the drama and news value of "The March of Time" on the air, he made several demonstration reels and submitted them to the editors of "Time," who were enthusiastic enough to invest $100,000 in practical experimentation. Last summer more dummy reels were made and tested on audiences where they met with much success.

Mr. de Rochemont is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis L. G. de Rochemont of Cambridge, formerly of this town. He is married to the former Miss Virginia Shaler and lives in New York City.

The police were notified and Chief William H. Rogers personally investigated. He found that aside from the gold, nothing had been disturbed, articles of much more value and a sum of money having been unmolested. Chief Rogers believes that the break may have been the work of boys.

IMMACULATE CONCEPTION CHURCH DAMAGED BY FIRE

The Immaculate Conception Church on Sheridan circle was damaged by a fire that was discovered shortly before 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, the complete destruction of the building being prevented by the prompt arrival of the fire apparatus and the preventive work of the firemen.

James McGowan of Sheridan circle first saw the fire in the church while passing the building and called to Miss Dorothy O'Melia, living nearby, who notified the Fire Department, Box 45 being pulled at 4:59 o'clock.

McGowan and Peter McDonough, a nearby resident, ran into the church and attempted to put out the blaze which was sweeping the confessional on the left side of the church. Entering the sacristy they removed some vestments and candle-sticks, taking them to the home of Mr. William Grady.

The Pastor of the church, Rev. Fr. James Fitzsimons, hastened to the church when he saw the apparatus pass, but found that the firemen had the blaze well under control and it was unnecessary to remove the Host as he had planned.

Engine 3, Ladder 1 and Hose 1 of the local department answered the alarm with Engine 3 of Woburn. The men found upon arrival that the interior of the building was alive with flames. The fire, however, was not so bad as at first thought and was quickly extinguished. Apparently it had started in the confessional box, a collapsible structure with draperies, which was badly burned. A second fire started near the altar, burned a part of the missal and scorched the altar cloth and lower part of the altar. Whether this fire was started from the first one, or whether it was an independent blaze is open to conjecture, but many believe that there were two separate fires in the church and that both were set.

Members of the Fire Department believe that the fire was set, but whether the action was intentional or accidental could not at once be determined. The firemen were obliged to rip away some of the wall board to prevent the flames from spreading, and the two adjoining sides of confessional box were burned through. The roof was protected by a fire proof ceiling, and aside from that done by smoke and the intense heat, the actual damage was confined to the confessional box and a small area behind the altar.

The church building is of the one-story portable type and was built three years ago as a temporary home for the then newly created Catholic Parish, serving the south end of Woburn and the northeast of Winchester. The pastor, Rev. Fr. James Fitzsimons, believes that the estimated damage of $1000 is probably correct and told the Star that services will be held in the church as usual this Sunday morning. As a matter of fact, despite the smoke damage, the scheduled beano game took place in the church Tuesday evening.

WINCHESTER ATTORNEY APPOINTED BY GOVERNOR CURLEY

Mr. Francis R. Mullin of Main street, well known Boston attorney, was on Wednesday appointed attorney for the state in the prosecution of claims against the Federal Government by Governor James M. Curley. Attorney Mullin will bring suit for tariffs alleged to have been illegally levied against the Bay State wealth. There are approximately $18-000,000 in such claims hanging fire. Attorney Mullin will receive five per cent of all he collects besides an additional expense account of $500 per year. It is estimated that the state has claims of $18,000,000 against the United States, making Mr. Mullin's fee $2,400,000 if he is entirely successful in the prosecution of the claims. The state claims that the levies were made on manufactured and other products of the Commonwealth illegally.

Mr. Mullin and his family are prominent in Winchester, and his daughter, Miss Dorothy Mullin is secretary to the Governor's daughter, Miss Mary Curley.

WINCHESTER MAN'S CAR IN FATAL ACCIDENT

An automobile, driven by George P. Govostes of 48 Swanton street, struck and fatally injured William S. Horan, 62, of 74 Park street, Arlington, the accident occurring last Friday evening on the Mystic Valley Parkway in that town.

According to one account of the affair, Horan, a house painter, was walking home from work, accompanied by William B. Rya, 56, a laborer of 39 Park street, Arlington. The accident took place at a spot where water from melting snow had frozen, making it impossible for Govostes' car to stop quickly enough to avoid striking the men.

Horan, a widower without children, was killed, and Rya was taken to the Symmes Arlington Hospital, where it was found he had sustained a fractured skull and other injuries.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Schrafft of Arlington street have announced the engagement of their niece, Miss Helen Jaques Colby, to John Worcester, son of Rev. William L. Worcester of Cambridge. A June wedding is planned.

Miss Colby was graduated from the Brimmer School, attended Erskine Junior College and is now studying at the Boston Museum School of Fine Arts. Mr. Worcester prepared for college at Belmont Hill School and is now a senior at Bowdoin.

JOHN CHARLES KERRISON

John Charles Kerrison, automobile editor of the Boston Post and dean of all automobile editors in the United States, died Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 20, at his home, 13 Lakeview road, after a short illness. He had played a leading part in the development of the automobile and had an intimate personal acquaintance of long standing with men of world-wide fame in the industry.

Mr. Kerrison was the son of John Kerrison and was born in 1868 in Ashton-under-Lyne, England. As a boy he came to this country and began his newspaper career on the Boston Herald, which paper he served for some years as bicycle editor. Thirty years ago he joined the Boston American as automobile editor, and in February of 1923 went to the Post as head of the automobile department, the position he held at the time of his death. He literally "grew up" with the business, being identified with it at the time when there were but four automobile manufacturers in the country.

One of the outstanding events in Mr. Kerrison's life was his successful promotion of the famous Glidden tour, the first real endurance test for automobiles ever made in this country. It was at his request that the far-famed Glidden Trophy was donated for the event by the late "Charlie" Glidden, a motoring enthusiast, another to participate in the trophy being the late financier C. W. Barron. The tours were continued from 1905 to 1913.

The year that President McKinley was assassinated, Mr. Kerrison was at the head of the American Automobile Association tour that had to be called off because of the President's untimely death. Some years before Mr. Kerrison had been official timer and referee of the League of American Wheelmen, and when the American Automobile Association was formed, he was chosen secretary of the contest board under the late Augustus J. Post.

At the time when E. R. Thomas, William K. Vanderbilt, "Billy" Ward and other prominent owners of racing cars were establishing racing at Daytona Beach, Fla., Mr. Kerrison began his career as starter of automobile races. He had been an official of all the big contests since that day, including the Indianapolis classic run each Memorial Day, his final story on this great race having been written last year. He was long the president of the Chronographs Club, the first timing organization known in this country.

His duties as starter made him realize the necessity for unusual accuracy in timing and he was one of three men who first imported to this country a complete electrical timing instrument, no other timing system having been in use since that time.

Mr. Kerrison timed the first "climb to the clouds," the ascent of Mt. Washington over the carriage road in an automobile, won by a Stanley Steamer, and since that day had been official timer at all the record-breaking runs up New England's highest peak. His long association with automobiles, both industrially and in a sporting sense, together with his newspaper connections and great love of outdoor sports won him a host of friends who will feel in his death a sense of personal loss.

Mr. Kerrison came to Winchester 25 years ago and during his residence won the esteem and friendship of his fellow townsmen with whom he came in contact. He was a member of the Winchester and Belmont Country Clubs, a former member of the Calumet Club, a member of William Parkman Lodge, A. F. & A. M., Winchester Royal Arch Chapter, Aleppo Temple of the Mystic Shrine and of the Boston Newspaper Club. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Florence M. Kerrison, and by a daughter, Mrs. Albion Keith of Portland, Me.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock on Saturday afternoon at the late residence with Rev. George Hale Reed, minister of the Unitarian Church, officiating. Interment will be in Evergreen Cemetery, Portland, Me.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR

Lecture

A large and enthusiastic group of women gathered at the home of Mrs. Earl M. Wood, 121 Church street, on last Friday to hear Mrs. Frances Slattery of Boston, speak on the subject of, "Communism in the United States Today." This was the second of the series of lectures sponsored by the Winchester Chapter of the Guild. Mrs. Franklin Evans and Mrs. Thomas Hennessy were the ushers. Mrs. Slattery was introduced by the President, Mrs. Margaret Hintlian, who explained that the Rev. Father Russel Sullivan, S. J., who was engaged to speak, was unable to do so on account of illness. Mrs. Slattery's enthusiasm and determination in causes she sponsers makes her stand out among prominent women in Boston.

Communism, that red monster whose fangs are striking, not in one particular group, but in every group all over the world, has a deep root in America. It can be traced back to 1776 where it had its birth in Bavaria. It is a doctrine of hate, which has as its goal the breaking down of the home, the family, the ownership of private property, the country and the church. Since these things are the sent of order that eomes from God, surely a thing that opposes them can come only from the scheming mind of the devil himself. In 1848, a brilliant lawyer, Carl Marx took the same theory of life and government and started Socialism in Germany. This occurred at the time when organized society was tranferring from what is known as the Agricultural Age to the Machine Age. It was a most opportune time to incite class hatred, which is the basic fundamental of Socialism. Communism and Socialism are interchangeable. The present depression has been fertile soil for the "Red" agents, who have taken hold of our labor movements and are behind many of the strikes throughout the country today. Last year in these United States of America, $27,000,000 was raised for Socialistic propaganda and most of it eame from the working class. This monster has many of our higher seats of learning well in its clutches and its principles are being taught under another name in required courses.

Even our governmental officials are not immune and some have been sacred by its fiery breath. Within the last year our immigration laws have not been too stringent enough and some of the most notorious socialist have been welcomed to our shores to plant their seeds of destruction among our people.

A lovely musical program was given by Miss Margaret O'Connell of Newton, whose pleasing manner added greatly to her beautiful, full soprano voice. Miss O'Connell sang a request group of songs.

Tea was served by Mrs. H. G. Osterberg and Mrs. D. J. Kelly assisted by Mrs. R. E. Sexton and Mrs. T. J. McDonough of Medford.

The next lecture will be held at the home of Mrs. Thos. Hennessy, 12 Salisbury road. Miss Ellen Reilly, of Brockton, will give a musical talk, "Song Lure of Many Lands." Miss Reilly has appeared before many women's clubs and her work is well known here in Winchester.

WINCHESTER WON FROM STONEHAM

Winchester High closed its varsity basketball season last Friday evening, defeating Stoneham High at Stoneham, 17 to 10.

The locals did not run true to form in this game, starting fast and having a commanding lead at the half. Stoneham came back strongly after intermission, and might have won had it not been for Winchester's big early game lead. Lebonio Gaudioso, reserve center, was Winchester's high scorer with six points on three floor goals. Between the halves of the first team game, the Stoneham seconds won from the Winchester seconds, 23 to 14.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

The town experienced another snow-fall last Sunday, several inches of very wet snow falling during the day. For a time in the morning, it looked like another heavy fall, and the plows got out on the roads as early as 5 o'clock in the forenoon. Crews of men were busy about the center clearing away the snow and conditions were nearly normal on Monday though sidewalks and in some instances, roads were in bad shape around town. Those who are wondering about the playing surface of Manchester Field for spring athletics were glad to see the snow-loader dumping the snow into the river this time instead of adding it to the piles already on the playground.

Miss Rose Downes of this town was one of 100 campers who attended the annual mid-winter reunion of the Sargent Camps of Peterboro, N. H., held at the University Club in Boston Wednesday under the auspices of Boston University's Sargent School of Physical Education.

Miss Bonney Wilson spent the week visiting relatives in Gardiner, Me.

Last Sunday, a family gathering, 12 in number, assembled at the home of ex-Selectman Jonas A. Laraway, to help that gentleman celebrate his birthday anniversary.

Miss Rosamond Robb and Miss Martha Jane Roop have been selected as members of basketball teams at Centenary Junior College in Hackettstown, N. J. Miss Robb will play in the second tournament and Miss Roop in the first. The first games of the year were played this week. Miss Robb is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon H. Robb, of Lorena road. Miss Roop is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. L. Roop, of 12 Dartmouth street. Both girls are members of the freshman class at the college and are members of the Caillilogian Society.

The police were kept busy over the week-end answering complaints of boys snow-balling in various places about town. The youngsters in most instances had had a retreat before the arrival of the officers. The fear of property damage was responsible for most of the complaints.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Bowes of this town, are passing a few days at the Vanderbilt Hotel while in New York City.

Miss Mabel Tompkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Tompkins of Glengarry, has been placed on the dean's list for high scholastic standing at Wheaton College where she is president of the senior class and outstanding in athletics.

Mrs. H. P. Connell of Mystic avenue is convalescing at her home after being ill with pneumonia.

MUSIC AT THE EPIPHANY PARISH HOUSE

Many brave souls came out last Sunday in the horrible weather to hear the exceptionally fine music at the Epiphany Parish House.

Mary Ranton Witham, as director and manager of the program gave a beautiful concert opening with Bach's chorale sung by a group of eight singers, Idabelle Winship, Sophia Gardner, Jane Hill, Marion Wright, T. Parker Clarke, David Downer, John McPherson and Clifford Cunningham.

The Trio, with Helen Studzinska Sibley violinist; Vida Rohde, cellist, Mary Witham at the piano, gave several beautiful numbers.

Jane Hill sang a group of songs "Waters of Minnetonka," "Indian Dawn" and "Pale Moon," sang them to the complete satisfaction of everyone and was applauded for an encore about "Three Chestnuts."

Helen Sibley played one of her own compositions which showed her ability as a composer as well as a talented violinist. Idabelle Winship sang the soprano solo, "The Italian Street Song," from "Naughty Marietta" assisted by the men's quartet. The men's quartet sang several songs among them a "Hunting Song" with much life and expression.

The entire group sang two spirituels, "Listen to the Lamb," and "He Is the Lily of the Valley" and closed with "The Shepard's Dance." Much appreciation was shown to the entire group and Mary Witham was urged to play and a Brahm's composition was the close of a beautiful program.

A buffet supper was served later. Mrs. Marcus May and Mrs. Dwight Hadley poured coffee at the buffet table, which was lovely with spring flowers and lighted candles.

We of the Epiphany Church are greatly indebted to Mary Witham and her group for their kindness and generosity in giving us this beautiful music.

Ventilation

The problem of proper ventilation for Fortnightly Headquarters is a matter at present under the earnest consideration of the Board. We are glad not to be as cold as we used to be in the Town Hall, but in seeking warmer quarters, we seem to have overdone it a little. With the advice and help of experts, however, the perfect solution can surely be found, and the Board intends that it shall be soon.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Preservation of Antiques

Many members and out of town guests enjoyed the illustrated lecture last week on, "Old Covered Bridges" by Adelbert M. Jakeman, head of the department of English, Westfield High School. Mr. Harry Winn, president of the Rotary Club, in introducing the speaker spoke highly of his boyhood days in Winchester.

All types of covered bridges were shown, past and present, most of them in New England. Mr. Jakeman told the history of many of them, gave the present situation and related several interesting anecdotes about the old structures. The talk emphasized the romantic rather than the mechanical or engineering aspects of the bridges.

Among the slides shown were the following: bridge over Ellis River, Jackson, N. H.; bridge over Saco River, Conway, N. H.; bridge over Swift River, North Conway, N. H.; Swiss Chalet made from a covered bridge, Hanover, N. H.; covered bridge, Pownal, Vt.; covered bridge, Cherry field, Me.; covered bridge, Cornwall, Conn.; covered bridge Lucerne, Switzerland; Christmas card of railroad covered bridge; old toll bridge, Springfield, Mass.; Long Bridge, Charlemont, Mass.; Willetts Place bridge, Colrain, Mass.; bridge over railroad tracks, East Deerfield, Mass.; Hockanum bridge, South Hadley, Mass.; Horton's bridge, Westfield, Mass.; covered bridge over Nashua River, East Pepperell, Mass.; covered bridge, Cummington, Mass.

Mr. Jakeman is a frequent contributor of articles of both educational and historical interest to various New England periodicals. He has just completed a series of articles on the 27 remaining Massachusetts covered bridges for the Springfield Republican and those together with other material on the subject he is preparing for publication in book form.

The co-chairmen were Mrs. Marion Hayden and Mrs. Anna Gleason. The hospitality committee included Mrs. Gladys Wilson, Mrs. Mabel Nichols, Mrs. Nita Smith, Mrs. Ruth Hilton, Mrs. Mary Fenno, Mrs. Flora Winn and Miss Susan Richardson.

A Valentine tea was served under the capable management of Miss Louise and Eleanor Bancroft assisted by Mrs. Mary Russell, Mrs. Esther Bursley, Mrs. Beatrice Budd and Mrs. Madeline Zimmerman.

The pourers were Mrs. Nita Smith and Mrs. Blanche Reynolds. Much credit is due the chairmen and their assistants for this outstanding day.

QUESTION BOX

Mr. Rushton will conduct the monthly Question Box at the Young People's hour at the First Baptist Church on Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. Young people of high school age and over, without other church obligations at this hour, are invited. Bring your questions, and join in the discussions. Last week in spite of the bad weather, there was a good crowd out. Don't miss one of the best meetings of the month!

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Word was received here today by Fellsland Council with headquarters at Winchester, that the National Executive Board of the Boy Scouts of America has accepted the invitation of President Roosevelt to hold the first National Boy Scout Jamboree in Washington, D. C., from Aug. 21 to 30, inclusive, in connection with the 25th anniversary celebration of the Boy Scouts of America, next year.

Thirty thousand Boy Scouts and their leaders and Scout delegations from several foreign countries will assemble on Union Green in front of the Congregational Church at 10:30 o'clock on Friday morning, there will doubtless be room for any who might otherwise not have transportation. We are anxious to have as many fathers of the Scouts as possible, join the party. Plan to cook your dinner out. As many as possible should bring axes and hatchets. Let's see what troop will turn out the best crowd of "loggers."

The invitation from President Roosevelt to hold a great National Scout Jamboree came in connection with the radio address which he made to the entire membership of the Boy Scouts of America, when he invited them, on the occasion of the 24th Anniversary celebration to participate in a great national service of collecting bedding, clothing and shoes for the needy. In furtherance of the National Jamboree idea he has named a Washington Co-operating Committee to collaborate with the National Scout Jamboree Committee and officials in developing plans for the Jamboree.

The Washington Co-operating Committee consists of Commissioner George E. Allen of the District of Columbia, chairman; Oliver J. Grimes, executive assistant to the Secretary of War; Harry Slattery, personal assistant of the Secretary of the Interior and Dr. Earl N. Bressman, special advisor to the Secretary of Agriculture.

In announcing the dates of the Jamboree Dr. West explained that in point of numbers the event would exceed any gathering of youth of longer than one day's duration, ever held in this country.

There have been four Scout International Jamborees, held in London, Copenhagen, Den.; Birkenhead, England and Budapest, Hungary. The largest of these at Birkenhead, in 1929, brought together about 50,000 boys from the British Isles and more than 40 foreign countries other than the colonies and ossessions of the British Empire.

Dr. West explained that the word "Jamboree" has taken on a world-wide connotation to mean "an encampment of Boy Scouts." He continued:

"The Jamboree which will be one of the most striking events that has ever occurred in America, emphasizing the widespread interest in youth, will be one of the principal events of the forthcoming 25th Anniversary year of the Boy Scouts of America which begins on February 8 next, and continues until 1936.

"It will be held in Washington because we are anxious that the Scouts who attend it shall gain the utmost in citizenship values and experiences from their 10 days at the National capitol. It will be their first trip to Washington in many cases and the great event in their young lives.

Through the co-operation of the special committee appointed by President Roosevelt, the National Government has made available a site of nearly 100 acres at Washington along the Potomac at Columbia Island, with nearby space to be made available if required. This will provide ample area for this great boys' camp, and for their leaders, who, like the boys will be drawn from all parts of our country. For the demonstrations, events, ceremonies and joint activities, during the 10 days the Jamboree is in progress, the National Park officials will make available the grounds around the Washington Monument and in the Ellinse immediately back of the White House.

"The idea is to have every tent of the encampment in sight of the Capitol, the Washington Monument, the Lincoln Memorial and the Robert E. Lee mansion at Arlington to provide a constant reminder to these 30,000 boys of what it means to be an American. We want the Boy Scouts who attend to gain the utmost in citizenship values and experiences from their ten days' encamnment in Washington and their visits to the national shrines around the Capitol.

"The Scouts will live under canvas throughout the period of the jamboree. They will be permitted to bring their own tentage and camp equipment and the great camp will be a revelation to the hundreds of thousands of expected visitors as to methods of campaigning in various parts of the United States and, incidentally, of the ability of boys adequately to take care of themselves in the open.

"Our great task will be to limit attendance to the 30,000 Scouts and their leaders for whom it is possible to provide camping space without crowding. Membership in the Jamboree will be on the basis of one representative to each of about 30,000 Scout troops throughout the country. The hope is that by this method each Scout troop in the country will have the value that will come from attendance at the jamboree. There are already indications that applications for the opportunity to attend the jamboree will be far in excess of the capacity of the camping space available in Washington.

"An invitation will go to each of the 44 foreign countries who are members of the Boy Scout International Bureau to send a representative group if they so desire. Several of the foreign nations have already indicated their intention to participate, which will insure that the jamboree will have an international flavor.

"Arrangements are being made for the jamboree Scouts to see Washington, Arlington, Mt. Vernon and the great national points of interest in and about the capital city. I should like to emphasize again that it is our earnest hope that the occasion will be of the greatest value to the attending Scouts in stimulating a better understanding of the value of citizenship."

On the basis of one representative to each troop, Fellsland Council would be entitled to have a delegation of 32 boys. Plans for the Fellsland Council to be represented at this greatest of Scouting activities are being developed by a local jamboree committee.

New Expedition

On Feb. 22, there will be an expedition of Scouts and Scouters of Winchester to the new camp site, Camp Lane in Burlington. It is hoped that as many as possible Scouts, Scout leaders and Council members will journey to Camp Lane. The purpose of the expedition is for a "logging bee," to gather material while the snow is still on the ground, and for the construction of future projects. Each troop should attempt to arrange their own transportation. If all cars will assemble on Church street in front of the Congregational Church at 10:30 o'clock on Friday morning, there will doubtless be room for any who might otherwise not have transportation. We are anxious to have as many fathers of the Scouts as possible, join the party. Plan to cook your dinner out. As many as possible should bring axes and hatchets. Let's see what troop will turn out the best crowd of "loggers."

MRS. H. MacKNIGHT FRANCHOT TALKS TO FLORENCE CRITTENTON CIRCLE

Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 12, the members of the Winchester Florence Crittenton Circle were entertained at their February meeting in Fortnightly Hall, by Mrs. H. MacKnight Franchot of Boston, who she talked to them of "The American Woman and Her Home." Mrs. F. Patterson Smith will open her home on Cambridge street, March 24, for the next meeting. The 1935-36 nominating committee was named: Mrs. A. Fred Friend, Mrs. Carroll Hilton, Mrs. Arthur Speedie, Mrs. Benj. Hill and Mrs. J. F. Tuttle. The Circle has raised over $7000 by the various committees of the annual bazaar in Boston.

Mrs. Franchot's opinions pleased her listeners and an interesting discussion would have been prolonged had time permitted.

Mrs. Sylvester Taylor, Mrs. Guy Howe, Mrs. Alan A. Claflin and Mrs. Herbert Stone poured at the hospitable tea tables arranged by Mrs. Harris Richardson and Mrs. Ober Poole and their committee.

WINCHESTER S. P. C. A. AUXILIARY NOTES

"Be Kind to Animals' Week," will be celebrated April 8 to April 13, preceded by Humane Sunday, April 7. Plans are already under way for its observance in Winchester.

Roadside Caged Animals

The Massachusetts S. P. C. A. has introduced a bill in the state legislature of 1935, aimed to prevent the great abuse of caged animals at gas filling stations:

"All animal lovers would heartily approve the enactment of this law," said Dr. Rowley of the M. S. P. C. A., "if they realized, as we who have investigated the matter do, how wild creatures exhibited at roadside stands suffer from too close confinement and other cruel treatment in many cases.

"Our investigation of the numerous complaints we receive about roadside zoos, especially in the summer months, has revealed that the animals exhibited are seldom given proper shelter, food or care, and often are treated with great cruelty.

The proposed measure is House Bill 513, and persons interested in its enactment should write to their Senator and Representative regarding the matter.

At the Auxiliary meeting, on Feb. 14, letters were sent to Representative William E. Ramsdell of Winchester and Senator Chas. T. Daly of Medford.

Several other letters have been sent during the past month, one to our Chairman of Selectmen, regarding complaints of cruelty in town.

A very courteous response was received from Chairman Maguire.

ST. MARY'S ALUMNAE PARTY

St. Mary's High School Alumnae were hostesses at a most successful Valentine dance in the Calumet Club last week Thursday evening, there being a large attendance despite the unpleasant weather.

The club hall was gay with decorations in the Valentine colors, red and white, and music for the dancing was furnished by Truman Carew and his orchestra. The ever popular elimination dance was won by Miss Mary Travers and Mr. John Maloney of Malden.

Another pleasing novelty was the card dance, in which the young ladies drew their partners by matching cards cut from a deck. Dainty refreshments were served, adding to the pleasure of the party.

The committee in charge of arrangements was headed by the officers of the association, including Miss Esther Callahan, president; Miss Nancy Murphy, vice president; Miss Helen Carroll, treasurer; and Miss Elizabeth Halligan, secretary. Others on the committee were Miss Mary Travers, Miss Loretta Donnelly, Miss Helen Halligan and Miss Florence Fisher.

The Star has been asked by several citizens to write something about the dangerous practice of walking in the streets after dark, particularly during the recent unusually treacherous driving conditions occasioned by the big storm. It seems strange that pedestrians should take such a risk and a bit unfair to subject motorists to the danger of running into or over some one on the highway with all the trouble involved, not to mention the emotional disturbance occasioned by injuring or killing a fellow man. Under present driving conditions the most careful driver might find it impossible to avoid an accident, especially if a pedestrian was walking in his path hidden by the blinding rays of approaching headlights. That the sidewalks have been well nigh impossible in places can not be denied, and doubtless this fact has caused many to risk their lives and the welfare of motorists on the highways. It might not be a bad notion to require the individual shoveling of sidewalks after such storms as make it impossible for the town to clear them. It is done in many other places, and would provide a fine outlet for some of the energy now expended largely on winter sports. At all events, something should be done to keep people out of the streets after dark. Even if we have to have anothr law!

OPPOSES MOTION PICTURES

To the Editor of the Star:

I have been in town for almost a year, working with young people of high school age, and during that time I have come in close contact with a great many of our young people. Never have I seen a more wholesome group of high school students. Winchester can not only be proud of them but thankful also for a sane, balanced, and emotionally normal group of boys and girls. I believe that one of the biggest reasons for this is the fact that there are no movies in town. Of course these boys and girls go to the movies occasionally, but when they do, they look up the program in the theaters of surrounding towns, and choose the best picture among the various possibilities. If there were a theater in Winchester they would go here regardless of the picture. And with the present block-booking system the theater would be unable to choose to choose its pictures.

Recently I asked 125 high school students of Winchester to name their favorite recreation—and not one mentioned the movies. Over 80 per cent said baseball, skating, swimming, skiing or some other outdoor sport. In another residential town near here (in which there is a motion picture house) a similar census was taken and 70 per cent of the high school students gave the movies as their first choice as a recreation.

Motion pictures are a great invention, and a valuable addition to the educational and recreational life of the American people, but, despite the alleged reformation of the movies there are still far too many unwholesome pictures to risk the future of our young people and children by bringing a movie theater into Winchester. We would rather have our boys and girls interested in outdoor activity, with a good picture out of town as a special treat, than to have movies in town where it would be a constant reminder of an easy way to spend time. There are many people in town who have chosen Winchester as their home because there are no movies to entice their children.

Bringing the movies to Winchester, so long as the present block-booking system exists, would have an unwholesome effect on the boys and girls, would make life miserable for the parents through pressure brought to bear on them by the children to be allowed to attend movies constantly, and would help to make a movie-mad generation. Let's keep the theater out.

FAVORS ANY APPLICATION FOR MOVIE LICENSE

To the Editor of the Star:

I have read with interest the letters of townspeople, expressing their attitudes toward the current proposal of a motion picture theater in Winchester. I should like to add my support to that of others in favor of the proposal, without any consideration as to who will furnish them.

I am sure you will agree with me that the residents of Winchester, as a group, can be spoken of as an intelligent, fair minded people, who recognize the right and ability of their fellow citizens to decide what is good or bad for them without outside help. Still we have certain people in the town who, because of their prominent positions, try to dictate our every motion, and who in fact are telling us we "don't know enough to go in the house when it rains, and therefore should be kept in the house all the time" or that we don't know a good movie from a bad one, so we should be denied all movies.

I feel that it is the right of every person in the town to decide if he wants to see movies here. Many of us now do, but have to go to Boston, or other towns to see movies. We should have a theater in Winchester for those who want it. Those who don't need not patronize it. As for the risk of failure in such a venture, our prominent citizens need have no worry, since none of their money will be involved. I also feel sure that any business man who is willing to invest his money in a theater, will have interest enough in his investment to see that his patrons are given the programs of a type they want to see.

I sincerely hope that the townspeople will let their fair-mindedness and intelligences express itself by favorable action on any applications for movie license, and trat the town will cease to be a dominion of hypocrisy and dictatorship, and show its individuality in some other way, than by being the only community in the state not to have movies.

Yours truly,
Ernest C. Smith,

"TEMPEST IN A TEAPOT!"

To the Editor of the Star:

My, my, what a tempest in a teapot! After reading the last few issues of the Star, I gather that we are in grave danger of becoming morally bankrupt, esthetically hopeless, architecturally passe, inextricably tangled up in our transportation, educationally inhibited, that our children will become hysterical and utterly neglectful of school duties, that our Police force must be increased and our business will go to the dogs, that this "Athens of America" (excuse our blushes) will degenerate into a sort of "Decline and Fall," and that those of us who presume to dispute our friends the critics must join the throngs who failed to concur with the "Master, the Saviour of Mankind." And all because the movies are coming to town. Surely our friends are indulging in a bit of over-emphasis for the sake of dramatic effect—a legitimate ruse, and one evidently not confined to radio announcers.

Seriously, it seems to me that there are many pictures extant which it is as much a mark of poor taste to ignore as it is to patronize certain others. The argument that only 20 per cent are suited to children leaves me cold. It is not the function of the film producer to educate the child. That is up to the parents. In our daily papers are many items which children should not read. Suppose our libraries were pruned to that basis. To ask that films be produced primarily for the entertainment of children is to work a terrible injustice upon adults. If people who worry about the cinema were to worry, instead, about their children, possibly more would be accomplished.

The movies, as a-re, depend n-t so much upon what Hollywood thinks we should have, as what Hollywood has found out we will pay for in sufficient quantities. Not their fault, surely, that Mae West is snapped up by 98 per cent of exhibitors while George Arliss is acceptable to but 32 per cent. The movies are purely and simply a thermometer of public taste, which admittedly is low. Far from berating the producers, it is really surprising, under the circumstances, that we have as many good pictures as we do. No one yet, by tampering with the thermometer, has been able to adjust the temperature of a room.

It may be that my taste is mediocre, but, given the time and means, I am sure I should enjoy seeing from the current run of releases, Sequoia, Imitation of Life, The Mighty Barnum, Romance in Manhattan, Bright Eyes, Babes in Toyland, Babbitt, The Painted Veil, Broadway Bill, Great Expectations, David Copperfield, Man of Aran, Lives of a Bengal Lancer, Anne of Green Gables, The County Chairman, The Little Minister. Surely no institution which furnishes such splendid fare as this can be damned outright. And surely, if we had a movie house here, many of these films would be certain to be shown.

And again, with every deference to the sincerity of our good critics, it seems to me they represent almost every group except those who really enjoy pictures. There are some who boast of never attending movies themselves, but who know exactly why others should be deprived of such entertainment; others who express nothing but contempt for pictures, but nevertheless (I assume, for purposes of combat) are extremely well versed in the technicalities of "block booking," "monopolistic control," etc, and still others who may have something material to lose by the advent of the movies, while most of us ordinary folk, somewhat dazed, it is true, by this flood of oratory, invective, eulogisms, prejudices, and what have you, still hold to the simple notion that we get excellent entertainment from the movies (when we can afford to get where they are) and patiently wait for a chance to vote for the thing we like. (By the way, when do we get it?)

TOWN WARRANT

Articles 30 and 31, inserted by the Planning Board, deal with the right to appeal from the ruling of the Building Commissioner refusing a permit under section 10 of the Zoning By-Law, and with providing the Board of Appeal with the power to grant building permits under certain extenuating conditions which ordinarily would be prohibited by the Zoning and Building laws requiring minimum areas on which dwellings shall be erected. There are three articles inserted by the Building Commissioner dealing with proposed changes to the building laws, two of which relate especially to plumbing.

Article 24, inserted by the town treasurer, seeks an appropriation for the expense of foreclosing liens upon real estate acquired by the sale thereof to the town for non-payment of taxes.

In this connection the Finance Committee points out that such action is recommended by the director of accounts of the Department of Corporations and Taxations, and that if the town does not foreclose, the Commissioner of Corporations and Taxations may, charging the expense to the town.

The report of the Finance Committee, appended as usual to the town warrant, should be carefully read by every citizen of the community. The new law relative to the assessment and collection of real estate taxes, providing that local tax bills must be in the hands of taxpayers on or before June 14 of this year, makes it necessary for the assessors to determine, the tax rate in April, thus obviating the possibility of appropriating money, as in the past, at a special June meeting to be raised out of the tax levy for the current year.

As a consequence, after the fixing of the tax rate, the main sources of funds for new current expenditures are the reserve fund, the excess and deficiency fund, transfers from appropriations found to have been too large and borrowing on tax titles.

The majority of the Finance Committee recommends placing the reserve fund at $20,000, to provide a safe margin for emergencies, is of the opinion that the excess and deficiency fund should not be disturbed for several years, or until it shall have accumulated to a larger sum; the committee does not like to count upon assistance from the excess and deficiency fund and frowns upon borrowing upon tax titles in opposition to the "pay as you go" policy.

The Finance Committee is concerned with the problem of unemployment relief which it terms the most uncertain in the entire warrant because of the part in its disposition which must be played by the Federal and State Governments. The majority of the committee approves the recommendations of the Committee on Equalization of Departmental Salaries and opposes the restoration of the general 10 per cent pay cut to town employees.

In this connection the committee feels that the cut was instituted primarily to relieve the real estate tax payer and is of the opinion that the property owner's condition has not been improved sufficiently to warrant the added tax burden at present.

The committee has been to considerable trouble to prepare three tables this year showing necessary expenditures which must be made if the town is not seriously to curtail the service its citizens have enjoyed in the past; expenditures, the necessity of which is open to question; and a third, totalling those it recommends in both instances, the latter serving as a basis for the estimated tax rate of $27.70. How closely the meeting adheres to the committee's recommendations will determine the ultimate rate.

In the matter of special articles the Finance Committee has pared appropriations sharply, facing as it did the estimated increase of $6000 in state and county assessments, $8000 less revenue and an increase of some $45,000 in town budgets. The assessors anticipate a net reduction of some $400,000 in valuation.

The committee does not recommend curtailing appropriations for the proper operation and maintenance of town departments, believing such action to be false economy and costly in the long run. It does however call attention to the fact that the construction of town parks, swimming beaches, tennis courts and the new athletic field as unemployment relief measures, while doubtless desirable necessitates the appropriation of additional funds for maintenance.

In closing the committee deplores the fact that it has had insufficient time to prepare its report, that in some instances it could not make specific recommendations because motions or figures had not reached its hands before the printing of the warrant and calls attention to the fact that in some towns department heads make up their budgets immediately after the first of December, enabling their finance committees to begin on the budgets nearly a month earlier than in Winchester. The local committee feels that such a practice and the earlier closing of the warrant should be seriously considered here.

MUSICALE AND PLAY AT SECOND CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

At 7:30 p. m. on Washington's Birthday the young people of the Second Congregational Church will give a piano recital, the proceeds to be turned over to the music committee. This program will include pianists of all ages, beginning at six years. It will be interesting to note the advancement of the different participants. It is also expected that one of the deaf-blind students of Perkins will play at this time. An intermission will precede a little play, entitled "Cyrnish," in which five of the girls and one "fireman" will take part. Everyone is cordially invited to attend this entertainment for which a small admission fee is charged; but all children connected with the Sunday School are to be admitted free.

WINCHESTER DISTRICT NURSING ASSOCIATION

In 1912, the Association started the Winchester Hospital in the Governor McCall house on Washington street and until the present hospital was built and occupied in 1917, the work has steadily increased. Miss Alice Clark was the nurse on the district. The student nurses from the hospital assisted her in the work.

The Tuberculosis Clinic started by the Association, was taken over by the Board of Health, with one of our nurses in attendance. The Baby Clinic in charge of Dr. Harold Gale was held every Tuesday and showed an increasing attendance, and filled a growing need.

In 1918 the Association acquired a Ford car, the generous gift of Mr. and Mrs. William Palmer. This was the year of the influenza epidemic, and the hospital and the Visiting Nurse were taxed to their limit. Mrs. Gramley came to us at this time, and she has proved herself a blessing in our midst.

The Visiting Nurse Association has always believed in progress. It took the initiative and established the School Nurse in 1909. In 1919 it started the Public Health Nurse. Both of these proved most successful experiments, and after a year's trial were taken over by the town.

Mrs. Joshua Coit was the first president of the Association and for 13 years gave unselfish service. Mrs. Ellen Metcalf followed her. Miss Katherine Pond succeeded in the offices and carried on the work during the erection of our present hospital. Mrs. James Russell became president in 1918 and continued the work until 1932. These women and the many others who served with them are responsible for the splendid work done throughout these years.

In 1924 the organization celebrated its 25th anniversary. This was a notable year. A campaign was carried on to raise $250,000 to enlarge, equip and maintain the hospital. For weeks people worked with enthusiasm and zeal to raise that sum of money. The educational value of the campaign in bringing home to every man and woman a personal responsibility toward our hospital cannot be measured. Stoneham and Reading people helped in this effort as well as our own townspeople.

In the light of modern day equipment, transportation and efficiency, we tend to forget those early days of the district work. These women were pioneers, who had the vision of service, and who grave of their unfailing effort to make it come true. It is to them we owe our thanks for making possible our present day organization which is a service available to all in Winchester.

Architecture Is Eloquent

"The architecture of a people," says the Encyclopedic Dictionary, "is an Index of their mental and moral qualities and of the state of civilization which they have reached. It may be considered more trustworthy than language in settling the question of race."

VAGABOND CRUISE MOST SUCCESSFUL

Last Friday evening's novelty Vagabond Cruise attracted more than 250 persons to the social hall of the First Congregational Church where an evening of varied pleasure was enjoyed, commencing with the captain's dinner on board the S.S. Jollitania, of which the pastor of the church, Dr. Howard J. Chidley, was skipper.

The "passengers," including many family parties went "aboard ship" via a "sure-enough" gang-plank, being received at a cleverly constructed purser's office, the work of Mr. F. W. Howard, and in charge of Pursers, "Ed" Merriam, Jr. and "Ed" Berry, Jr.

Opposite the pursers' office was the bar, complete with brass-rail and gadgets, also Mr. Howard's work, and presided over by "Bar Keep" Bradford Hill and with Mrs. L. K. Snyder as cashier.

Supper was served at small tables, and because of the large number there, were two servings, those waiting to be seated amusing themselves with deck games in the lounge off the dining hall. Each table was decorated with the replica of a ship, and these models were afterward for sale. Decorations were realistic ship's banners, secured by Mr. W. A. Kneeland.

Kirby Thwing was chief steward for the supper and the group of stewards and stewardesses, in costume, included David Howard, Dorothy Fitts, Dorothy Bruno, Barbara Kelley, Betsy Higgins, Priscilla Blaisdell, Phyllis Lybeck, Catherine Gilbert, Chrissie Craven, Henry Hill, Richard Hull, Albert Gelsthorpe, Robert Higgins, Philip Drew, "Dick" Pierce, Bicknell Lockhart and "Jimmy" Narden. Candy was sold by Katharine Wyman, Joan Worthen and Priscilla Howard.

At the conclusion of the dinner the deck was cleared for action and a most enjoyable entertainment was put on a by a group of young people, opening with the sketch, "The Old Woman in the Shoe," in which the "old woman" was Miss Barbara Fernald; the soloist, Ishbelle H. Winship; the accompanist, Mary Ranton Witham; and the stage director, Miss Edna Hawes. The huge shoe was made by Mr. Paul Howard and was so large, it had to be constructed and taken down on the stage.

A most finished dancing act was offered by the pupils of Mrs. Cora Corthell Phelps, the young ladies performing with a grace and charm that won them enthusiastic applause. Patsy Pierson appeared in a toe dance, "The Powder-Puff," and Miss Jeanne Phelps danced an interesting Hungarian dance. Tap Dancers were, Constance Blaisdell, Jeanine Berranger, Patricia Browne, Margery Chapin, Grace Kelley, Phyllis Kelley, Eleanor Randall and Jean Tobin. Mrs. A. B. Corthell was pianist.

A sister act on the piano was the duet played by Eleanor and Frances Randall, and there were also selections played by the orchestra from the Young People's Music Group, directed by Mrs. Charles Livingstone. Vocal numbers were sung by the chorus from the same group of young people, directed by Mrs. John Carr and with Miss Alice Main as accompanist. In addition to her duties at the piano, Miss Main assisted with the arrangements for putting on the entertainment. Wallace Howard was in charge of the curtain.

After the show there was dancing until 11:30 to music by "Bud" Fitts' Orchestra, those not wishing to dance enjoying bridge or the deck games.

The committees in charge of the Cruise included:

Tickets Mrs. Florence Scales, chairman; Mrs. W. L. Palmer, Mrs. W. L. Parsons.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Thine, O Lord is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty: for all that is in the heaven and in the earth is thine; thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou are exalted as head above all. Both riches and honour come of thee, and thou reignest over all; and in thine hand is power and might; and in thine hand it is to make great, and to give strength unto all" (I Chronicles 29:11, 12).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Mind is the grand creator, and there can be no power except that which is derived from Mind. If Mind was first chronologically, is first potentially, and must be first eternally, then give to Mind the glory, honor, dominion, and power everlastingly due its holy name" (p. 143).

HEATING HINTS .. by John Barclay

MANY home owners who have steam or hot water heating systems complain that they cannot get their radiators completely hot. In the case of steam radiators this is often caused by air. Air, of course, must be entirely eliminated from the radiator before it can be filled with steam. Automatic air valves usually take care of this. If you have automatic valves and your radiators still are air-bound—try unscrewing the little plug at the top of the valve. When the cold air has all been blown out tighten up the plug again to its normal position.

If this operation does not stop the trouble, or if your steam radiators have a tendency to fill with water, I'd advise you to have an expert call and check up on the valves.

Hot water radiators may also become air-bound. This can be corrected by occasionally opening the air valve with a valve key and leaving it open until water starts to flow from it. It's a good plan to have a cup or pan ready to catch the water when you open the valve. (11)

Source of Fairy Stones

The staurolites, better known as fairy stones, are found in a field of about 50 acres on top of Bull mountain, Patrick county, Virginia. They are twinted staurolite crystals, simulating the Roman, Maltese and St. Andrew's crosses. The original staurolite mineral has changed to a compact, softer material, so that the stones can readily be prepared for the jewelry trade.

COLLEGE CLUB NEWS

The morning study group held its bi-monthly meeting on Thursday morning, Feb. 14, in the Winchester Public Library. The speaker was Miss Hettie Gonsenhoven of Belgium who has been active in the organization of the Y. W. C. A. in her country. She gave us a most interesting talk on Belgium and the status of the women in the political, industrial and artistic life there.

One of Belgium's problems has always been that she is a two language country. While a majority of her people speak French there is a strong Flemish minority with its own language, literature and folk lore. This has made education particularly difficult because the child must study two languages instead of one in the public schools. The high school girl has a long school day and when she goes home she does not find there the modern conveniences which make house-work easy. Being needed afterschool she must do her part at home, she has very little time for the oranization and social life that American girls enjoy.

University work is more difficult in Belgium too. A knowledge of six languages is required for graduation and six years of hard work for a degree at the Universities of Brussels and Ghent. When a young woman graduates she is possibly 25 years old and has had neither time nor energy for political or social clubs which girls enjoy in other countries and from which they learn to work together in an organized group for worthy causes. The necessity for the comparatively small part the Belgian women takes in national politics and in great world movements for peace will be seen.

The chief means of work open to the women are positions as sales women in stores, as nurses and secretaries, as social workers and teachers.

Much of the beautiful lace and tapestry for which Belgium is famous is made by the Flemish peasants on their farms. It is collected by women and sold in the cities. An attempt has been made to build up schools for lace makers but the young girls don't like the slow, tedious work which it requires and it looks as though the old art is gradually dying out.

One of the picturesque spots of Belgium is "La Beguinage," a haven for elderly unmarried women. In a group of little cottages built six or seven hundred years ago, surrounded by fine old trees and shrubbery, the old ladies live and do handwork. In this quaint setting some of the finest of the Belgium embroidery and lace is made.

The next meeting of the morning study group will be held on Feb. 28. The subject will be "Turkey."

HELP THE BRAVES!

Dear Baseball Fans:

Inasmuch as I have had several calls from Winchester residents in regard to the activities of the Citizens' Committee of the National League, may I explain the situation to you all.

Due to a bad season last year, the Boston Braves faced the coming season with debts which must be paid before opening day. A few loyal friends of Judge Fuchs and the Braves got together to see what could be done and discovering that the Judge was absolutely opposed to accepting contributions of any description, decided upon the plan of raising $50,000 by advance sale of tickets.

The Citizens' Committee of the National League was formed to whose weekly meetings at the Copley Plaza every baseball fan is cordially invited. We have been amazed at the response we have received both at the meetings and to our campaign. A conservative estimate for attendance on opening day, which is Judge Fuchs' Day, is 50,000 when the Braves play the New York Giants.

We are offering $5 ticket books good for five games any time during the season, tax free, thus saving 50c and reserved seats for opening day at $1. I have blocks of both at my house for your convenience. Call Win. 1895-W.

If you are interested in having a National League team remain in Boston and are anxious to see Boston have an improved team which can give the other members of the league a real fight for the pennant, we urge you to respond now to the campaign. Speed is essential in raising the needed funds. We especially appeal to the conscience of every radio listener who hears the games six days a week free of charge. Is this privilege not worth $1 to you whether you can go to opening day or not?

Come in to our meetings and meet the baseball world.

Sincerely,

Gladys N. Toye, Vice Chairman
Citizens' Committee of National League

CURLERS SAILED WEDNESDAY

S., where they will engage in a series of curling matches with the Curling Club of that city, returning to Boston Friday night and arriving Saturday morning.

The party is headed by Robert F. "Bob" Guild, former Harvard football player and coach, who is secretary of the Country Club curling committee; and the Winchester players include Richard Fenno, Geoffrey Neiley, John Joy, Charles P. LeRoyer, John P. Carr, Dr. Edward M. Fisher, A. Linde Fowler and Kenneth T. Young, with the likelihood of Stephen Neiley, Edward V. Neill and Harry Bowler being added to the local enthusiasts. The Boston Curling Club players going are, W. L. McCamman, Gardiner Jones Dr. J. T. Paul and W. D. Smith.

The second part of the program will open with the color ceremony for which Lieutenants Welsch, Rebecca Jackson, Alice Lyman Norma Godfrey and Phyllis Lybeck will act as color guard.

The following awards will be made:

During March the Bugle and Drum Corps will meet at the Universalist Church. The Corps Committee would appreciate the return of any Corps' equipment that former members may still have.

Sample packages of birdseed were sent to the various troops by the Ipswich Seed Co. in the hope of stimulating a wider interest in feeding our birds during the winter month when it is hard for them to find food.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

Eggs and butter are again somewhat cheaper but meat prices have stiffened after a temporary easing, though certain cuts offer good value. Potatoes continue to be the most economical purchase possible though several vegetables of the type called "hardier" are inexpensive—including bulk carrots, rutabagas, white turnips, parsnips, onions, old cabbage and kale. Green beans, peas and cauliflower are moderately priced.

Good Florida oranges are again available at about the same price, size for size, as navels. Apples, grapefruit and bananas are unchanged in price. Strawberries become more plentiful.

Recent weather has been favorable to salt water fishermen.

Here are three menu suggestions which are suited to three budget levels and the season:

Low Cost Dinner
Braised Lamb Shanks
Mashed Potatoes Carrots
Bread and Butter
Chocolate Pudding
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner
Boned Rolled Shoulder of Lamb
Pan-browned Potatoes Green Peas
Bread and Butter
Butterscotch Pie
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner
Consumme Julienne
Broiled Beef-steak Scalloped Potatoes
Green Beans
Apple and Celery Salad
Rolls and Butter
Banana Shortcake
Coffee Milk

WEEK-END FIRES

The Fire Department received a call at 9:53 last Friday evening, reporting an automobile on fire at the corner of Canal and Main streets. The men who answered the call found nothing at the spot indicated and it is believed that whoever had the trouble had been able to put out the fire without assistance.

Saturday afternoon at 1:57 the Fire Department was called to the home of Mrs. Bertram Bernnard on Curtis street, the cellar being full of smoke. The men corrected the trouble and there was no damage reported.

In addition to these calls the Department received a call from the Police Department, reporting that a large dog had broken through the ice in upper Mystic Lake and was in danger of drowning. The fire alarm car, driven by Walter Skerry, with Deputy Chief John J. Gorman and Fireman James J. Callahan, responded, but found upon arrival that the dog had succeeded in extricating himself and had gone to his home sea by.

STRAND THEATRE, MALDEN

"The Club Cascades," 20 night club and cabaret stars with Bernie Stevens and his stage band, have broken all previous attendance records at the Strand Theatre in Malden. For Friday, Saturday and Sunday, the Club Cascades Revue will present an entire change of program, from that offered the first of the week. Headlining this group of stars is Henri Therrian, famed radio tenor, for four years a featured member of Roxy's Gang. Mr. Therrian has one of the finest voices on the stage and will be heard in a new cycle of songs. This show moves at a very fast pace under the direction of Mistress of Ceremonies, Flo Nickerson, a comedienne of parts. Other stars units are Joan and Herald, sweethearts of the dance, and "The Three Whirlwinds," a marvelous novelty act. The Cascade Girls make a pretty picture in their colorful costumes and graceful routines, the costumes this season as they are booked solid for the next three months in the South. After seeing this Revue, it is easy to understand why they are working every week for it has everything in the way of entertainment. It fairly sparkles with mirth, music and color, with beautiful girls in special costumes enhanced by novel lighting effects. "The Cascades Club Revue" is easily the finest stage unit ever offered to the theatregoers of New England from the standpoint of talent, costuming and staging.

A complete new screen program is also offered by the Strand for Friday, Saturday and Sunday. "Helldorado" with an all-star cast including Richard Arlen, Madge Evans, Ralph Bellamy, James Gleason and Stepin Fetchit, will be the screen attraction shown in conjunction with the Cascades Revue. "Helldorado" is the story of a group of 11 stranded strangers, cut off from the world by cloudburst and flood, who find adventure and romance in an abandoned California ghost town. "Helldorado" is something new in screen attractions and combines well with the Cascades Revue to make a swell show.

"FORSAKING ALL OTHERS" AT THE UNIVERSITY

"Forsaking All Others," with the breath-taking combination of Joan Crawford, Clark Gable and Robert Montgomery in one picture, starts Sunday for four days at the University Theatre. Based on the successful play which presents the eternal triangle from a fresh and highly diverting viewpoint, the new picture was directed by W. S. Van Dyke, whose long string of successes culminated with the recent "Thin Man" and "Evelyn Prentice." Cast as a young Park avenueite who leads the procession in a mad whirl of gay living, Miss Crawford has been finally given the chance to show real comedy characterization for which her legion of admirers have long waited. Gable plays the role of a man who returns from a distant part of the world to marry Joan, only to find that she is about to face the alter with another. To Montgomery, the rival, falls the kind of part he plays to the hilt—the suave young hounder whom you should lose patience with and can't.

A large group of noted stage and screen stars enact the story of "The President Vanishes," the companion picture. A story of the sensational kidnapping of the President of the United States, the film features Arthur Byron, Edward Arnold, Peggy Conklin, Janet Beecher, Paul Kelly and Sydney Blackmer.

Re-echoing the sensational success it scored as a play on Broadway, "Wednesday's Child" which starts Thursday, brings to the screen a story highly charged with emotional tensity. This drama devotes itself to the emotional reactions of the title character, a boy, innocent victim of the institution of divorce. It provides one of the all-too-rare motion pictures that have depth of feeling, without sacrificing their entertainment qualities. Featuring Frankie Thomas, 12 year old star of the stage play, as one element of a disrupted domestic group—father, mother and child—the story reproduces faithfully those values which thrilled audiences throughout the better part of the theatrical season. The supporting cast includes Edward Arnold and Karen Morley.

"One Exciting Adventure," the companion picture starring Binnie Barnes, is one of those intriguing yarns centering about a half dozen interesting people whose tragedies and joys provide one of the most engrossing plots that has been brought to the screen.

GRANADA THEATRE, MALDEN

"The Lives of a Bengal Lancer," the current sensation in film circles, with an impressive cast including Gary Cooper, Franchot Tone, Sir Guy Standing, Richard Cromwell, Monte Blue, Kathleen Burke and C. Aubrey Smith, opens a seven day run at the Granada Theatre in Malden on Saturday. "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" is a remarkable and stirring picture of warfare and heroism in India, replete with the sounds and sights of the mysterious East. The plot concerns Gary Cooper and Franchot Tone as brother officers under a crusty, hard-boiled colonel, played by Sir Guy Standing. Cooper and Tone take Richard Cromwell, the colonel's impulsive son, when he joins the troop. When he becomes involved with a Russian girl and carried off by a neighboring chieftain, Cooper and Tone try to rescue him when the colonel refuses to allow the troop to go after him. They, too, are captured by the natives. Tortured for information on the whereabouts of a tremendous convoy of ammunition, Cromwell breaks down and blurts out the regimental secret. The chieftan captures the ammunition and prepares to lead a revolution against the British. The Lancers ride to attack even though they realize they are facing certain defeat because it is their duty to try and stem the revolution. But Cooper and Franchot Tone at the risk of their own lives blow up the arsenal and save the Lancers. "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" was months in the making but the time spent shows on the screen as it unfolds its stirring story.

"Babbitt," a screen version of Sinclair Lewis' best selling novel, with Aline MacMahon and Guy Kibbie as the stars, will be the second attraction on the bill starting Saturday. The irony, the dramatic tenseness and the humor of the novel have been retained in the screen adaption and no better choice of players to portray Mr. and Mrs. Babbitt could have been made than Kibbie and Miss MacMahon. It depicts in a colorful fashion the foibles of a fairly successful business man who is so convinced of his own shrewdness, that he falls an easy prey to a banker and scheming politician and still later is played for a sucker by a designing widow who punctures his egoism and nearly causes his ruin.

MYSTIC THEATRE, MALDEN, ATTRACTIONS

"Grand Old Girl" featuring May Robson and one of Zane Grey's stories, "Home On the Range," will be the two features at the Mystic Theatre, Malden, for a week starting Saturday, Feb. 23. Rich in humor and emotional appeal, "Grand Old Girl" comes to the screen as a thoroughly delightful picture possessing exceptional human interest qualities. This new picture centers around the story of an elderly school teacher who lives only for "her girls and boys." Under the spell of May Robson's artistry, the character of Laura Bayles, gallantly courageous principal of Avondale high school, assumes heroic proportions. As "Old Gunpowder," the fighter, she is magnificent. As the loyal public servant, faithful to her ideals of duty even at the cost of dismissal and the ignominious end of her career, she reaches right down into the heart of everybody. A glorification of the American school teacher, the story deals with Miss Bayles' courageous one-woman campaign to rid Avondale of the seemingly innocent sweets shop where Click Dade encourages drinking and gambling among the high school students. Comedy reaches a hilarious level in scenes where Miss Bayles wins a large sum of money from the gambler with his own crooked dice. Pathos has its inning when the teacher is discharged for having dared to interfere with a place secretly protected by the town's wealthiest citizen.

Grown into a tall, bronzed young man, Jackie Coogan of "The Kid" fame, returns to the screen for his first adult role in, "Home On the Range." With Evelyn Brent and Ann Sheridan providing the feminine interest, "Home On the Range," is the story of the deadly feud between a gang of crooks and the rancher-brothers, played by Coogan and Randolph Scott. There are thrilling fights and a hair-raising escape from death in a forest fire, and the climax in which Coogan rides his horse to victory in a horse race. Fuzzy Knight, well known for his comedy roles, supplies the laughs to ease the tense moments of the melodrama, while Joe Morrison of "The Last Round-Up," fame furnishes background music with his fine voice singing, "Home On the Range."

PAYING ITS WAY

A widowed mother and her daughters had a telephone, among other household conveniences. Sharply reduced income compelled a cut in the household budget, however, and the telephone was scheduled to go.

One of the daughters—an expert comptometer operator—had registered at the school for such part-time work as might be available, and GAVE HER TELEPHONE NUMBER so she might be reached quickly if wanted.

Result: Fifteen days' work during the ensuing month. The telephone stays, because, by this service alone, it has more than paid for itself.

Whether you can afford a telephone depends on its value to you. What it would cost you can be learned by calling a telephone business office. . . (No charge for such a call.) New England Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Licensing Dogs

There are as many different forms and methods of licensing dogs through out the world as there are countries. An investigation conducted by the Dog World reveals that in Spain the fee varies with the amount of rent one pays. Denmark charges so much an inch in height of the dog, with increased fees for each additional dog possessed by the owner. In Rumania you cannot own a sporting dog unless you have a hunting license. In Germany dog license fees are collected quarterly and in England the fees are similar to those in the United States.

Suppressing Emotions

All tests of emotions indicate that more women than men suppress their emotions, although, as in all traits, you find some women who are bubbling over with expressiveness, especially sorrowful emotions, declares a writer in the Detroit News. Some women are only happy when they are letting off steam about their own troubles. Some men, too. Curiously enough actresses—the one profession in which women have equaled and probably surpassed men—while expressing a thousand emotions of others are themselves usually rather introverted.

House Like Miniature Castle

Constructed along the lines of a Spanish castle, a California home has a small dungeon, cells and a magazine room, the last without the cannon balls and powder of ancient days. The miniature castle is 20 feet long and 19 feet wide, with five rooms on the first floor.

Liquids Found in Tombs

Bottles of liquids found in ancient tombs are not always completely dried out. A bottle of Roman wine, discovered in a 1,700 year old grave in Germany, was still one third liquid, and a bottle of honey, found in a 3,500 year old tomb in Egypt, was entirely in its original liquid state. "READY FOR LOVE"

HEATING HINTS .. by John Barclay

WHILE this cold weather continues, your health and comfort depend to a great extent upon the even temperature of your home. To maintain this constant, steady heat is a simple matter and one that I have frequently discussed in this paper. It will bear repeating:

To begin: Do not use the Smoke Pipe Damper (generally known as the Turn Damper) for the daily control of your heat. This damper should always remain as nearly closed as possible, without interfering with the free burning of the coal.

The regulation of the fire during the day (if you do not have a thermostat attached to your furnace) should be controlled entirely with the Check and Ashpit (flap or slide) Dampers. When more heat is needed upstairs, close the Check Damper and open the Ashpit Damper. When there is sufficient heat in your house, close the Ashpit Damper and open the Check Damper. Note that these two dampers operate simultaneously. When one is open, the other is closed.

One important consideration to bear in mind is the location of your Check Damper and Turn Damper. The Check Damper should be located between the chimney and the Turn Damper. The latter should be located between the Check Damper and the furnace itself.

If these dampers are properly placed and if they are moved as suggested, you will be able to maintain an even temperature in your home at all times without difficulty. (12)

NEW YORK PLAYERS OPEN HERE ON FEB. 22

Professional Acting Company to Present "Two Fellows and a Girl"

Winchester is to have an unusual dramatic event when the New York Players, a professional acting company, will present at the Town Hall on Friday evening, February 22, George M. Cohan's new sophisticated comedy "Two Fellows and a Girl."

Though the initial performance was planned for Thursday, Feb. 21, in order to make it a more important event, both socially and dramatically, the date has been set for Washington's birthday.

This talented company of actors has just completed a trip from Maine to Florida, giving such plays as "Men in White," "Those Eas'," "The Shine Hour," "Ah, Wilderness," "The Late Christopher Bean" and other high-type roadway smash hits, before all types of audiences and are now planning a circuit comprising the towns and cities in the Greater Boston area.

"Two Fellows and a Girl" is the work of one of America's foremost playwrights. George M. Cohan, in this instance writes of two fellows in love with one and the same girl. The girl in her dilemma flips a coin finally to determine which she will marry. Some five years of happy wedded life fly by when the second suitor returns to his home town for the first time since he was thrown into discard. There ensues the well-known triangle until— The climax and denouement make for good wholesome, humorous entertainment.

The New York Players are to return to Winchester once a week during the season and beginning on June 1 will be the resident company at the Lake Shore Theatre at Westford. Thus Winchester will have the opportunity of seeing not only the finest Broadway plays but will be the first to see the Wes Ford Players who are to present plays during the summer of 1935.

Important is the fact that the first performance will be entirely invitational. As the company is to return each week it is their desire to interest a large number of people in their presentations. Therefore the first performance, financed by the National Little Theatre Guild will be by invitation only and many of the town's prominent people are planning to be present.

Members of the cast include Winslow Barnes who played with Paul Muni last year in "Counsellor at Large," George Johnson who was associated with Conrad Nagle this past season in "There's Always Juliet," Ruth Carol Lynne, Edythe Fay, Chester Cushing, Rosalind Rouston and Donald Trattare, gifted members of the cast of "Two Fellows and a Girl."

It is the endeavor of the National Little Theater Guild to bring the native drama back to that section of the country known as "The Road" and to revive the interest in the theater as a civic and cultural need.

It has been suggested that those receiving invitations for the first performance arrive by 8 o'clock as the hall will be filled to capacity.

THE GREAT BARRIER REEF, JIG-SAW PUZZLE OF THE AUSTRALIAN COAST

Australia's Great Barrier Reef, long regarded chiefly as a menace to ships, is rich in natural resources. A recent survey of this largest coral reef in the world shows that it possesses untold wealth in pearl shell, which may be made into buttons; and but its shallow waters are rich in turtles, food fish, oysters, and sponges. Phosphates, guano and lime from coral are also possible sources of income.

If the sea went dry along the east coast of Queensland, in northeastern Australia, a thousand miles of coral "maze" would be revealed, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

The Great Barrier Reef of Australia must not be imagined as a single structure, however, like the Great Wall of China; it is formed by myriad reefs, and a map of just one section resembles a jig-saw puzzle. In addition there are the scattered isles, high and forested, of the inner zone, and the atolls and cays, which are true coral islands.

Nature and Origin Still Half-Veiled in Mystery

In all the Seven Seas there is nothing so wonderful as this vast submarine "curtain" of coral, the largest coral reef in the world, whose nature and origin remain half-veiled in mystery.

Tourists from many lands and thousands of Australians have made the voyage through "Australia's Grand Canal," the area between the mainland, with its sharpie hills, and the Outer Barrier. A calm and pleasant trip during a portion of the year, it may be perilous in the cyclone season.

Many launches and fishing craft have been wrecked on the coral, or gone down in the heart of a storm within the Barrier. But navigation is no longer the nightmare it was to the early voyagers, before the reef mazes had been mapped and routes safe for even large vessels discovered.

Where Wave and Reef Wage Battle

Majestic is the meeting of league-long rollers of the ocean and the Great Barrier. On days when the sunlit water behind the coral bastion is calm enough for a canoe, mountainous waves pound the reefs unceasingly. The surf on the Outer Barrier at high tide, when the broad reefs' crests are hidden, presents an amazing spectacle. A "long line of boiling surf, springing up in mid-ocean without any apparent cause," is the late Charles Hedley's description. That great naturalist, whose knowledge of the Barrier was unrivaled, devoted the last few years of his life to the study of its problems.

Swain Reefs, far south, mark the beginning of the Great Barrier Outer System. Farther north, the linear reefs are developed. They are some miles in length and up to half a mile across, with broad separating channels.

A lighthouse on Lady Elliot Islet marks the southern limit of coral-formed land, "a broad platform of solid coral half a mile in circumference." Then comes an archipelago, the Bunker Group, followed by the Capricorn Group, popular resort now of naturalists, and almost a picnic ground for holiday-makers from the mainland.

The Grand Canal varies in width from 20 to 80 miles. There are two regions, however. The inner one is narrow and fairly free from the perils which make the outer zone impossible for shipping. Only small craft are navigated among the reefs of the outer zone.

Japanese Pearl Seekers

Luggers are sailed along the channels, with coral fangs threatening destruction—sailed often where the reefs are unchartered, in quest for sea slugs and pearl and trochus shell. Japanese own many of these venturesome craft.

The depth of the sea outside the Great Barrier is profound, but in the zone where coastal steamers go safely it varies from about 10 fathoms to 20; the outer zone is much deeper, up to 70 fathoms (420 feet).

There is charm in the Grand Canal trip, and life is pleasant on the favored islands, where a bungalow may nestle amid tropical fruit trees and palms, with a creek singing near on its little journey to the sea. Men have lived half a lifetime on a Barrier Reef isle without desire to wander. It may be a lotus-eating life, or one of healthy work and play, as you please.

Romance among the reefs there is, and one sees relics of the old-time voyagers as recovered from the sea. But treasure seekers, imagination fired by stories of lost galleons, were better employed seeking on "pirate islands" than among the coral of the Great Barrier. Coins have been found, Spanish ones, too; yet, in these waters, it is far more profitable to go pearl-fishing than diving for "fairy gold."

First Chicago Settler

The first continuous settlement of Chicago was begun by a native of Santo Domingo named Jean Baptiste Point de Sable during the Revolution. He sold his property to a French fur trader named Le Mai, who in turn sold it to John Kinzie, who was the first American settler.

"Sunday Gentlemen"

Bankrupts were known as "Sunday Gentlemen" in England during the Middle ages because Sunday was the only day of the week when they could appear on the street in their best clothes without fear of arrest for their debts, writes Robert Dew, Barnesville, Ohio, in Collier's Weekly.

JOHN H. GILBODY CANDIDATE FOR BOARD OF SELECTMEN

John H. Gilbody, candidate for the Board of Selectmen, was born in Dorchester, Mass., in 1882, and was educated in the schools of that district. He prepared for Harvard at Ballou and Hobigand preparatory school of Boston, and entered Harvard in the class 1910.

Mr. Gilbody, who is a certified public accountant in Massachusetts and New Hampshire, a member of the bar in Massachusetts and Maine, an officer and director in many corporations, is well fitted by training and experience to perform the duties of Selectman.

Mr. Gilbody has the ability, is honest, sober and industrious and would be a credit to the Town of Winchester. He would administer his duties faithfully, without discrimination as to race, color or creed.

With the matter of moving pictures, a new fire station, restoration of pay to policemen, firemen and town employees coming up for action, the election of suitable officers is far more important than in previous years.

Mr. Gilbody is making but one promise, that is to abide by the wishes of the majority at all times, when their desires have been expressed, and in all other questions to decide in an unbiased, impartial manner, having in mind at all times the best interests of Winchester.

ENDORSE FITZGERALD

James J. Fitzgerald, Jr., a candidate for Selectman at the town election on March 4, is entirely worthy of the support of all who believe that technical education and acquaintance with town affairs are valuable assets to those who seek to serve the community in this high executive capacity.

Mr. Fitzgerald comes of a family who have been residents of Winchester for 80 years. He was born here, educated in the Winchester schools and at Tufts College, where he received his degree in civil engineering in 1929.

Since his graduation he has engaged in the contracting business in Winchester with his father, former Selectman James J. Fitzgerald, and his brother, Nicholas H. Fitzgerald. He has served as a town meeting member for Precinct 2.

Mr. Fitzgerald has the background of residence and training to make a good Selectman, he has the necessary vital interest to protect the taxpayers, and the sportsmanship, acquired through a wide participation in athletics to be both individual and community a "break."

We heartily endorse his candidacy.

"SPREAD EAGLE" THIS WEEK

Legion Play to be Given Friday and Saturday

Ever since its outstanding success with "Journey's End" four years ago, Winchester Post, 97, American Legion, has enjoyed a high reputation with the citizens of the town for the calibre of its dramatic performances. The fifth annual production of this organization, to be presented in the high school auditorium this Friday and Saturday, March 1 and 2, will in the opinion of those who have watched rehearsals add more to Legion's reputation than any play since that auspicious premiere.

In "Spread Eagle" the Post has selected a most unusual play, one that was a great hit both in New York and in London but that was never taken on the road. Winchester residents have an opportunity to see a play that has never been produced before in Boston and that at the same time is gripping, amusing and stimulating drama. By no means a problem play, this piece none the less is not all froth—it leaves an audience with something to think about.

Strangely enough, although the play was first produced in 1927 it has lost none of its sting in 1935. At a time when Italy contemplates peaceful penetration of the last independent stronghold in Africa, when the government is investigating the munitions makers, when the United States Senate due to the activities of two men defeated our entrance into the World Court, when armament competitions are beginning again, and when there is much talk of conscription of capital during war, the ideas expressed by "Spread Eagle" will strike with new force on a bewildered world.

It is quite customary to state that an amateur performance is equipped with an exceptionally able cast but so far as "Spread Eagle" is concerned this is literally true, as to types. That cast has been thoroughly drilled by Director Alan Hay. It will carry its audience through three colorful and exiting acts from Broadway to Mexico. It will be assisted by off-stage troop trains and airplanes and firing squads and the complete set of bugle calls associated with "Retreat." The many scenes include a Broadway office, a mining shack, a Broadway theater, a radio-broadcasting booth, a motion picture theater, and a warehouse in Matamoras, Mexico.

Although ticket sale has been good, it is still possible for patrons to obtain good seats for either performance and particularly for that of Friday. These may be obtained by application to any of the following: Stafford Rogers, Gerald Hills, Kingman P. Cass, Donald Waugh, Kenneth Hall, Harry Goodwin, Jack McCarthy, Frank Zaffina, Reveley Smith, to any other member of the Post, or at the box office, but obviously better seats can be obtained by early application and purchase.

"Eddie" O'Melia, a Winchester boy and former three sport star at Keith Academy in Lowell, is one of the freshmen who have survived the first cuts in the baseball squad at Holy Cross. The big boy is out for pitcher and those who saw him work last summer for "Bill" Gibbons' Immaculate Conception Club will agree that he has possibilities.

BETTER HOMES GARDEN CLUB ATTRACTING MANY NEW MEMBERS

It was very gratifying to those interested in a community garden club, in Winchester, to learn of the increase in membership, to over 100, of the Better Homes Garden Club, at the meeting held last week on Wednesday, in the library meeting room. Mrs. Lorence M. Woodside, president, presided. It was announced that Mrs. E. Philip Church, secretary, has left Winchester for Northampton following the death of Mr. Church last month, and her resignation was accepted with regret.

The meeting was a "Seed Catalogue Party." Many brought attractive catalogues and during the discussion practical information and "hints" to obtain better results after seed planting, were given by these garden lovers. Mr. Harold C. Dodds, Winchester resident and associated with the Thomas W. Emerson Company, gave an instructive talk on seeds and their proper preparation for planting. He felt that for a satisfactory and successful garden, be it large or small, the first step was a definite plan to meet the individual problem and that the soil must be ready, giving thought to drainage and he advised that fertilizer be applied often. He said one must be sure that the flower seed used was suitable for the local climate. His remarks on lawn seed and the proper method to secure and retain a strong permanent sod, were illuminating and helpful.

The March meeting is to be held Wednesday evening, the 20th, at the home of Mrs. Torr Harmer, on Everett avenue. Prof. Arnold M. Davis of State College, Amherst, will give the first of a series of three lectures on, "The Outdoor Living Room." Professor Davis will discuss plans, distinguishing between formal and informal planting and the suitability and adaption to the various plots to be developed. The second and third lectures will come the third Wednesday of April and May.

AMNESIA VICTIM FOUND IN WINCHESTER

Late Friday afternoon Police Headquarters was notified that a girl had collapsed while walking on Forest street near the residence of Mr. Robert Winton.

Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy was sent to investigate and found that the girl, apparently about 15 years of age, had been taken into the Winton home by Martin McCauley of Burke street and Albert Flaherty of Porter street, both of Woburn, who had seen her fall in the snow while walking north on Forest street.

The girl was unable to give either her name, address or any other information and seemed suffering from exhaustion and amnesia. She was removed by Sergeant Cassidy to the Winchester Hospital where she was treated by Dr. Richard W. Sheehy, who ordered her put to bed.

Meanwhile her description was broadcast and put on the teletype with the result that her father, a resident of Malden, who had previously reported his daughter as missing, came to the hospital and identified the girl. He told the local authorities that his daughter had been applying herself very closely to her studies and had been for a walk after coasting. She was found to be suffering chiefly from exhaustion.

Miss Marjorie Finger has been confined to her home on Mystic avenue by German Measles.

March 13 "Bernard of Clairvaux" (1090-1153). "This man was considered the greatest religious force of his age. Men admired his moral force and consistency of character."

March 20 "Francis of Assisi" (1181-1226). "The little poor man" has been recognized as the most Christ-like person in the history of the Church."

March 27 "Martin Luther" (1483-1546). Father of Protestantism. "Not a great scholar, an organizer or a politician, he moved men by the power of a profound religious experience, resulting in unshakable trust in God."

April 3 "John Wesley" (1703-1971). The founder of Methodism performed "the work which had largely revolutionized the religious condition of the English lower and middle classes" and greatly affected the religious thinking of American people.

April 10—"George A. Gordon" (1853-1929). "Transforming the strong, moral quality of Scottish Calvinism into a mellowed and rationalized modern faith, he stands as one of our own great interpreters of the historic message."

COLONEL CHARLES R. GOW AT MEN'S CLUB FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The Men's Club of the First Congregational Church will have as its special guest next Thursday evening, March 7, Col. Charles R. Gow of Boston. Supper will be served in the parish house at 6:30 p. m. and this will be followed by a short discussion by Mr. Raymond S. Wilkins of Winchester, on the Town Warrant and Budget for the current year. An address will then be given by Colonel Gow on "Builders and Wreckers." The club has been fortunate to obtain Colonel Gow as its guest and a most interesting evening is anticipated.

The Colonel has had an extraordinary breath of experience in business and public service. As an engineer, he was associated with the construction of the first Boston subway and later with the development of the New York subway system. As founder of the Gow Company, he was the leading authority for many years on the construction of foundations for large buildings and other structures. During recent years he has been associated with the construction of the Boulder Dam on the Colorado River and the San Francisco Bay Bridge in California, two of the largest engineering projects ever undertaken in the United States. He is now President of Warren Brothers Company, the largest roadbuilding concern in the world and is in close contact with economic and political developments in the various countries where the company is engaged in business. For a number of years he lectured on engineering matters at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Among his many other activities he saw service in both the Spanish American and World Wars and has been Postmaster of Boston, State Engineer under the Public Works Act, President of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts and a member of numerous State and Federal Commissions. He has written many articles on engineering and economic problems and has applied his philosophy as an engineer to an economic study which he terms "Builders and Wreckers." This refers to the accomplishments of the builders of our economic and political system and the destructive counteraction which has set in against them.

A large attendance is expected at the meeting, which will be open to all men in the church and their guests. Tickets for the supper will be 50c and it is suggested that reservations be sent in promptly.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Carleton of Church street have changed their residence to Alden street, Cambridge.

WINCHESTER BOY INJURED IN SKIING ACCIDENT

Harmon Hall Plunged from Newly Opened Trail

Harmon A. Hall, 19 year old Harvard freshman and son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Hall of 17 Madison avenue, was badly hurt last Sunday at East Jaffrey, N. H., while skiing with a party of Harvard and Technology students who were among the more than 900 enthusiasts who went north on the Boston & Maine's "snow train."

Hall and his friends, John A. Hoye of Cambridge, Sanborn Vincent of Brookline, both Harvard students; John Lindsay of Rochester, N. Y., and Frederick W. Reuter of Towanda, Pa., both of M. I. T., were on the new Monadnock Trail, built by a CCC labor and opened only last Friday.

It is claimed that the trail was not in condition for skiing, and this fact is blamed for the accident to the Winchester boy who plunged off the trail and landed heavily on a pile of rocks. His momentum caused him to slide along over more rocks and through a clump of trees.

When his companions reached him, he was helpless and it was found that his right hip and right forearm were broken. Cleverly strapping up his injured thigh and arm with skiis and a ski pole, Hall's friends got him onto an improvised toboggan of skiis and began the long descent of the trail while one of the party went on ahead to get aid.

At the community clubhouse at the foot of the mountain he found Dr. Frederick C. Sweeney who returned with him, meeting Hall and his friends on the trail. He found the young man had sustained an oblique fracture of the right hip and a fractured radius bone on the right forearm.

The injured skiier, accompanied by Dr. Sweeney, was dragged nearly five miles before he could be placed in an automobile and driven to the Peterboro Hospital at Peterboro, N. H. Dr. W. Russell MacAusland of Beacon street, Boston, went there to attend him and his parents went at once to his bedside.

It was at first thought that the young man was perhaps dangerously injured, but subsequent reports proved more reassuring. He is reported as much improved and a rapid recovery is looked for.

Hall's father, who is a member of the Somerville trucking firm of C. E. Hall & Sons, stated that the young man had been skiing for about three years. He is a member of the freshman fencing team at Harvard and has won prizes as a sharpshooter. At Marblehead, where he spends his summer, he is ardently interested in yachting.

RED CROSS SERVES TEA AT BEDFORD HOSPITAL

Once a month a tea is given in the receiving ward at the Bedford Hospital by various Red Cross Chapters. Winchester was assigned Feb. 13, and the Gray Ladies of the Winchester Chapter who acted as hostesses felt it fitting to make it as nearly as possible a Valentine party.

As the name, receiving ward, indicates, the men here are generally new arrivals awaiting placement in the various wards according to their disability, which sometimes requires several weeks of treatment. They may come here from their homes or from other hospitals, and in either event they are often lonesome, upset, sick and unhappy, so it is especially worth-while to have something to cheer them and it is also a good opportunity for the Gray Ladies to meet new arrivals before they are sent into the wards.

On Feb. 13, the Gray Ladies were accompanied by Mr. Peter Occhinto of this town, who, with his accordian made merry music throughout the hospital—for while he went to play for one ward only, it was decided that many others would enjoy the novelty of hearing an accordian. So with his instrument, he visited the two infirmary wards and also the auditorium. He was met everywhere with smiles and applause and as he strolled down the long halls playing as he went, stopping to play at each door of the private rooms, the boys felt they had been serenaded by a real troubador — a gay smiling minstrel who brought smiles to many a sad face. It was truly difficult to make one's feet behave and many a jig was danced to the merry strains.

After this, a number of songs were sung by Mr. Stephen Hughes, at present a patient in the hospital. Mr. Hughes has a beautiful tenor voice and has been a great stage and concert favorite, who since loosing a leg has not been inclined to use his voice but has been persuaded that he can help his "Buddies" by singing for them—so he has been willing to sing occasionally of late and it was interesting to note the members of personnel who made an excuse to visit the ward that they might hear Mr. Hughes sing.

The tea table was set as attractively as for any social event, with a bouquet of bright red carnations in a silver loving cup as a center piece.

Refreshments were then served, crackers, cookies and tea, and cigarettes were passed.

A game was played in which nearly all of the 30 patients took part. The game consisted in trying to scale red card board hearts into a basket, some 15 or more feet away. A prize was given the winner and with the singing of a number of old songs, the afternoon ended and was declared one of the happiest events of the winter, thanks being sent to the Winchester Chapter of Red Cross and to Mrs. Bowen Tufts, our chairman.

Mr. Robert F. Lybeck of Everell road recently appointed assistant manager of the lubrication department of the Standard Oil Company with headquarters in New York, was given a banquet in Copley Plaza Hotel, Boston, Monday evening by a group of 50 business associates and friends.

UNITARIAN PLAYERS IN MYSTERY DRAMA

For every one who loves a mystery story logically and interestingly unfolded, the Winchester Unitarian Players will, on March 15 and 16, provide entertainment and thrills aplenty.

The Bellamy Trial, a most successful mystery play, presents the trial of two persons, Stephen Bellamy and Susan Ives. They are accused of the murder of Margot Bellamy, Stephen's wife. In the course of the trial a varied group of witnesses take the stand, testifying to their whereabouts on the night of the murder. They range from Melanie Cordier, the smart French governess, and Orsini, the Italian gardener, to Mr. Phillips, the high school principal, and old Mrs. Ives, Susan's mother-in-law.

When Frances Noyes Hart wrote her celebrated novel "The Bellamy Trial," she awoke to find herself famous. She had struck a new vein in mystery story-writing and the novel speedily developed into a best seller. The motion picture directors were quick to realize its dramatic possibilities and its success on the screen was great.

The author, with the assistance of Frank C. Carstasphen, made a dramatic version of the book and once more the story triumphed. The Winchester Unitarian Players will present this stage triumph Friday and Saturday evenings, March 15 and 16 and you maybe assured of an interesting and clever production.

Mrs. Robert Reynolds is in charge of the play production, while Mrs. Doris Whitehouse is acting as coach.

The cast of characters is as follows:

Friday evening, March 8, is the date and from past experience, our advice is, get there early. Curtains part at 7:45.

Those of you who have attended the last two shows, know how good they were. Well, this one will be just twice as good.

OBSERVATIONS

By the Observer

It doesn't take a very bright woman to dazzle some men here in Winchester.

And this reminds us that if every man were taken at his own valuation there wouldn't be half enough halos to go around.

We know a fellow right here in fair Winchester whose judgment enables him to do some things almost as well as a woman can do them without any.

Life is always full of hope, avers a Winchester fellow. With March and April soon here and spring house cleaning in order, he says that they've got things down so fine now that a fellow don't have to stick around and beat carpets any more. This will come as good news to that prominent pol who has been a well known figure in his back yard for years as he walloped the carpets.

Believe it or not, we honestly believe that many of Winchester's stately trees have far more human attributes than some men we know.

A former energetic Winchester youth writes home that he is now in New York and expects to clean up hundreds of thousands. He is a dish washer in a lower Manhattan restaurant.

Winchester is mighty proud of its police force. We have one of the finest of any town of like size in New England. The mere presence of a policeman in a community is a symbol of a civilized community and in a community like Winchester, a policeman stands for the highest efficiency in protecting our citizens and their property against the depradations of the lawless element.

Distance prolongs the life of many friendships.

We know a man right here in Winchester who once lost out in trying to take a short cut to success.

A Winchester woman says she has great faith in her husband. Ah, that means that he is not a very proficient liar.

Envy is a weak Winchesterite's praise.

There are folk even here in Winchester who would change religion. Don't do it—let religion change you.

Happiness is what comes to a fellow while he seeks for something higher.

If a man expects to answer "when the roll is called up yonder," he ought to be on hand occasionally when the roll is called in our Winchester churches.

HEART TO HEART TALKS

By Eugene Bertram Willard

A lot of folk are in the habit of complaining that others are better off than they are. But why not pause awhile and think how much worse off others may be. The other day I saw a young girl being lifted from an automobile who had had both legs amputated at a Boston hospital. This very moment, men and women are weeping because of the loss of a loved one or for some other reason. Yet some folk have the gall to complain that they are bad off when they enjoy good health, have good jobs and plenty of friends. We meet such people occasionally and of all the down right pests they are the worst one can encounter.

Thanksgiving has gone by but we have much to be thankful for every day in the year. We have the opportunity to show our gratitude to the Almighty by our conduct. Talk is cheap and getting up in prayer meeting and telling what the Lord has done for one is all right but the thing that counts most with God is the sort of lives we live. Dropping our coins or bills into the collection basket at church won't save us although a lot of people seem to think so judging by the airs they put on when they tell how much they have given to this or that church.

Human life as many privileges and duties. How are we using this gift of precious life with its accompanying blessings? Today while many people hold good jobs and have all the good things of life they need many others are in direst poverty through long unemployment. Too many people take their daily bread as a matter of course. Have we not worked for it and earned it by the sweat of our brow—or brain? But trace the loaf back to its origin and we trace it back to the Almighty.

Back of the flour the mill;
Back of the mill is the wheat and the shower
And the sun and the Father's will."

WINCHESTER BADMINTON CLUB

The Winchester Badminton Club has completed its series of matches in the Greater Boston Suburban League. Although this is the first season in which the local club has joined in league play, its record was exceedingly creditable. The final standing of the clubs in the Winchester division was—Watertown won 27, lost 5; Tedesco won 26, lost 6; Winchester won 12, lost 20; Framingham won 11, lost 21; Waban won 1, lost 28. As will be noticed, there was nearly a tie for first and third positions as only one point separated Watertown from Tedesco and Winchester from Framingham. The two leaders were properly far in advance of the other teams in the division as they were composed of seasoned players and represent clubs who have taken the game very seriously. A further advantage of these clubs was that their facilities are open daily for team practice and the membership in both cases is large.

The Winchester Club used only six men in all but two of its matches, each team match consisting of four individual doubles matches. This made it necessary for two men to play in two matches in each contest. The players who participated in not less than three matches during the season were Harry Wood, Ray Bartlett, Larry Palmer, "Bill" Tozier, Henry Wheeler, "Jim" Cleaves and Gilman Wallace. There was a steady improvement in play by the local club throughout the season and with the present group to build upon, it is expected that the local club will be able to put a strong team in the league next year.

As the final event of the current season of the Suburban League, an informal tournament was held at the University Club Thursday evening. Entries of one team were invited from each club in the league. Harry Wood and Larry Palmer were elected to represent the Winchester club. Reports of the matches have not yet been received.

Several post season games have been arranged, both with clubs that were in the league during the past season and others who had not joined. Among the teams with whom post season games have been arranged are: Tedesco Country Club of Swampscott, the Coolidge Hill Badminton Club of Cambridge and the Young Men's Christian Association of Lynn.

During the past season there were 20 teams competing in the Suburban League and it is estimated that there was even a greater number representing clubs which had not joined. There was also a Women's League representing several suburban clubs. In the Men's League, the teams were grouped into two classes, A and B, which in turn were separated into two divisions to provide for five teams in each section. A larger number of teams in each division would require too long a period to play off the matches as they would conflict with the Boston and New England district tournaments which are scheduled to be played in March of each year. Winchester was in the first section of the B division. The A division is composed only of teams of long standing and experience such as the University Club, the Tennis and Badminton Club, the South Shore Country Club and others of similar class. These teams include among their players Raynor Hutchinson, Walter Mitchell, "Stan" Houghton and "Don" and "Phil" Richardson, who are among the leading Badminton players in the East.

The popularity of Badminton has grown very rapidly during the past few years and each season sees the establishing of many new clubs. The members of the Winchester Club are enthuinstic about the sport and anyone who is interested in trying the game will be welcome at the local courts.

JAMES McLAUGHLIN

Formerly for Many Years Winchester Merchant

James McLaughlin, a widely known resident of Burlington and formerly for many years proprietor of McLaughlin's Shoe Store in Winchester, died Saturday, Feb. 23, at his home on Center street in that town after a short illness.

Mr. McLaughlin was 77 years old and a native of Roxbee, N. B. At the age of 17 he came to the United States and for the past 30 years had made his home in Burlington, taking an active part in the civic, social and religious life of the community. During his long residence he held many town offices, more recently having served as park commissioner and as a member of the school board. For the past 16 years he had served as treasurer of the Church of Christ, the First Church of Burlington.

Previous to March 12, 1930, Mr. McLaughlin, for more than 20 years conducted a shoe business in Winchester, his shop being first in Lyceum Building at the site of the present First National Market and later on Thompson street where it is now owned by Morris L. Snyder. He was a member of William Parkman Lodge, A. F. & A. M., of this town.

Mr. McLaughlin leaves his wife, Mrs. Caroline Philbrick McLaughlin, two daughters, Mrs. Richard Tower of Wellesley Hills and Mrs. Doris Walsh of Brockton; and a son, Robert McLaughlin of Burlington.

Funeral services were held on Monday afternoon in the First Church, Burlington, with the Rev. Ernest Sterling officiating. Many former business associates and friends in this town attended. Interment was in Chestnut Hill Cemetery, Burlington.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

On Monday evening the bugle and drum corps entertained their parents and friends with an interesting program which reached its climax with the award of the Golden Eaglet to Jeanne Phelps, drum-major of the corps.

The first part of the program opened with five buglers playing "Assembly," the corps fall in and Mr. Whitney and Mr. Whitehouse put them through their class drills. Finally they executed the routine which will be used in the State competition in the Arena in May. Many of the members are entirely new to corps work and only a few of the others were in the first corps last year, so that their very good showing on Monday means faithfulness and enthusiasm with which they have taken part in the weekly drills.

The Badges and Awards' Committee arranged a most impressive second part for the program, which opened with "To Colors" played by Dorothy Glidden, followed by the color ceremony for which Lieut. Welsch, Alice Lyman, Rebecca Jackson, Norma Godfrey and Phyllis Lybeck acted as color guard.

Recruit Barbara Wright was invested by Mrs. William E. Davis.

First Class badges were awarded to Barbara Hughes, Betty Newman, Frances Glidden, Helen Rassalt, Nathalie White by Commissioner Murray.

Silva Stripes for five years of Scouting to Emily Greene, Frances Hayden, Barbara Hickey, Dorothy Joy, Jane Kimball, Faith McVeers, Virginia Munro.

A Gold Stripe for 10 years of Scouting to Capt. McElwain. Awarded by Capt. Parker.

Before the Golden Eaglet Banner held by two other Winchester Golden Eaglets, Mrs. James Kidder, former Commissioner of Arlington, conducted the very impressive Golden Eaglet ceremony of which she herself is the author. She recounted the excellent record of Scout Jeanne Phelps who was presented by Capt. Parker. In making the award, Mrs. Kidder stressed the fact that the Golden Eaglet did not merely represent the final goal of Girl Scouting, but the beginning of a wider field of service and influence for which the years of faithful Scouting had prepared.

At the end of the ceremony a good night circle was formed by all the Scouts who were present, after which Dorothy Glidden played "taps," echoed by Meredith Wagner.

During March the Bugle and Drum Corps will meet at 4 p. m. on Mondays at the Universalist Church.

Senior Troop, No. 3, will meet Tuesday, March 5, at the home of Anne Kimball in Glengarry. Two Seniors from the Chamberlain School will speak. The subject, "Interior Decorating."

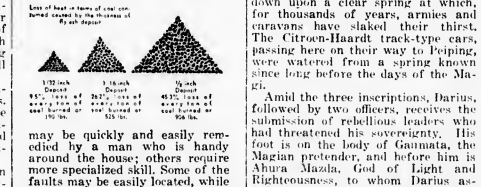

There is a demand for second hand uniforms in the larger sizes. Scouts whose uniforms have been outgrown and which they can no longer use will be benefiting other Scouts if they see that such uniforms reach Captains of troops, or Mrs. F. B. Crewen, 28 Winslow road, who has charge of distributing them.

Beginning March 1 and running on Fridays for six weeks, Mr. Paul Dempsey will give a course in Practical Gardening at Cedar Hill, 10:30 to 12 a. m. Fee 50c for the six lessons. Open to anyone interested.

HEATING HINTS .. by John Barclay

IN A recent letter a reader asks: "What is the most important thing to look for when the furnace has a good fire in it but the rooms are not warm enough?"

There is one "thing" that will always account for such a condition, but there are at least thirty "things" that may be wrong in a case like this. Some of these things may be quickly and easily remedied by a man who is handy around the house; others require more specialized skill. Some of the faults may be easily located, while others may pass unnoticed unless the man seeking them is familiar with heating systems.

Sometimes the Check Damper is in the wrong place; or the Turn Damper handle may have slipped, giving a false position of the damper; or the regulator may be improperly adjusted; or there may be an excessive amount of fly ash in the smoke-pipe or on the boiler surfaces; or the radiators may be improperly pitched; or the draft may be impeded. Perhaps a loose bolt, or rusty joint may he the cause of wasted heat. All of these things can be quickly adjusted by a competent service man. (13)

The practice of equestrians mounting from the left side is said to have started in ancient times when men carried long swords on their left side, and mounted so as to avoid the necessity of throwing the heavy weapon over the horse.

CALUMET HELD OPEN HOUSE

The Calumet Club held open house as usual on Washington's Birthday, a large number of members and friends enjoying the bowling, billiards, pool and cards during the day. In the afternoon the customary party for the children was given, moving pictures, a magician and refreshments providing an interesting program. In the evening there was dancing for the adult members and their families.

The bowling during the day was for a fine silver trophy presented by President Wallace F. Flanders, and individual prizes in various departments were presented other high scorers. The Flanders' trophy was won by Paul Forrester, Jr., for the highest three consecutive strings with handicap. Other prizes were won as follows:

High Three Selected Strings with Handicap Won by Braxton A. Flanders.
High Single String with Handicap Won by J. J. Doherty.
Second High Three Selected Strings Won by J. F. Coakley.
Middle-Single String Won by H. A. McGrath
Evens-Single String Won by R. L. Purrington.
Most Nines-Single String Won by E. L. Snow.

BEHISTUN ROCK, PERSIA'S 24-CENTURY OLD STATE "PAPER"

The latest archeological discoveries in Persia, at Persepolis, pronounced "one of the most important in the history of archeological research," have uncovered remarkable art work from the ruins of palaces built in part by Darius the Great. It was the same Darius who, by an inscription high on a Persian cliff, set the stage for the deciphering of cuneiform writing, a feat first accomplished by Western scholars less than a century ago.

The Key to Ancient Persia

The key to most that we know about ancient Persia and Babylonia, is a trilingual inscription carved 24 centuries ago high on Behistun rock near Kermanshah, says a communication to the National Geographic Society from Maynard Owen Williams, who studied and photographed the carving when he crossed Asia with the Citroen-Haardt Trans-Asia Expedition in 1931. It was deciphered after 11 years of painstaking study and superhuman detective work by a young British officer, Henry Rawlinson, who entered the service of the Shah just a century ago.

Not only did the trilingual Behistun inscription give the clue to all cuneiform writing, but it is itself one of the most remarkable of state documents, carved deep in a cliff face for all to see. In it Darius the Great shows the reasons for his greatness, records his triumphs over false claimants and rebels, proclaims truth as the essence of kingly conduct and ascribes his success to the God of Light, Ahura Mazda.

Archeologists: World's Greatest Detectives

None have been greater detectives than the archeologists. Following obscure trails which have been covered for centuries, putting two and two gether to make eight, and later proving that they were right, and naming international relationships long since forgotten, the archeologists solve mysteries such as no detective of crime could understand and by so doing have pushed back the horizon of history by thousands of years.

The two greatest aids to knowledge of ancient times were the Rosetta Stone, opening the way to a knowledge of Egyptology and the Behistun inscription of Darius, on which is founded our knowledge of all documents written with the wedge-shaped characters of cuneiform writing. Champollion and others, in deciphering the Rosetta Stone, had one known language and other data as starting points.

Sir Henry Rawlinson, who copied and deciphered the Behistun inscription, was faced by three languages, none of which anyone in the world could read—Babylonian, Susian and Old Persian—all inscribed in characters to which this inaccessible inscription formed the best clue.

Warning Against Liars

The Behistun inscription, hundreds of feet above the caravan trail between Baghdad and Tehran, looks down upon a clear spring at which, for thousands of years, armies and caravans have slaked their thirst. The Citroen-Haardt track-type cars, passing here on their way to Peiping, were watered from a spring known since long before the days of the Magi.

Amid the three inscriptions, Darius, followed by two officers, receives the submission of rebellious leaders who had threatened his sovereignty. His foot is on the body of Gaumata, the Magian pretender, and before him is Ahura Mazda, God of Light and Righteousness, to whom Darius ascribed his victories. Nine of the captives form an original Ananias Club, for Darius' accusation of each was that he lied.

The declaration of Darius is remarkable for its directness and objectivity. It is long on definite and outlines the main features of a successful reign. It ends as follows:

Thus saith Darius, "Thou who mayst be king hereafter, beware of lies; the man who is a liar, destroy him utterly. By the grace of Ahura Mazda have I always acted and I call him as witness to the truth of this inscription. I have ruled righteously. Thou shalt see this tablet and sculptures, destroy them not but preserve them. If not, may Ahura Mazda slay thee and may thy race come to naught."

Fish Protection Difficult

Fish migration makes protection difficult. Deep sea varieties often travel hundreds of miles beyond the scope of such laws and their eggs follow the currents.

An interesting feature regarding congested automobile traffic in our square is furnished during rush hours on Thompson street. Daily this important parking place, along with every other center street, is so filled with cars that drivers can find no space short of the Parkway at the Unitarian Church. The result is that cars are kept traveling over the loop —Thompson street, Waterfield road and Main street, until the passenger is through with her errands. Then the car stops in traffic, is loaded, and departs. This is a very common practice and may easily be noted daily. With Winchester's shopping center confined to the limits of these three streets, together with the usual Post Office traffic, it is very probable that some more adequate parking space must soon be provided if we are to have room for through traffic in our center.

The present violent objection being registered to the licensing of tracks for dog racing in Greater Boston is proof positive that many of the electorate do not at all know for what they are voting when they mark their ballots. It is not unlikely that many of those now heard violently in opposition to the tracks either voted in favor of dog racing or did not take the trouble to vote at all upon the matter. It is now much more difficult to prevent the licensing of the tracks than it would have been to vote down the proposal to permit the racing. Winchester has experienced such unintelligent voting or lack of voting. The late-lamented Symmes Park water tower is very much a case in point. Town Meeting is just around the corner, and there will come before the limited town meeting for decision questions which can affect the community favorably or otherwise for years to come. It will be much more difficult to undo undesirable action taken at the meeting than it will to vote right; in the first place. It is the duty of every town meeting member to inform himself upon the matters to be decided and to vote upon them. The town as a whole is denied this privilege and no precinct member has the right to throw away the collective vote vested in him by the limited town meeting act. It is also the duty of those especially interested or likely to be affected by any vote of the meeting to attend the meeting and make known their position, even though they can not vote. In other words lock the door before, and not after the horse has been taken from the barn.

The Star is glad to note that the 1935 appropriation for the town clerk's department, approved by the Finance Committee, includes funds to provide for a full time clerk in that important office. No one who is at all familiar with town affairs will question the need of such a clerk nor the desirability of having one familiar with the multitudinous details of the town clerk's department available in the event of the illness or other unavoidable absence of the regular encumbent. Miss Stinson has been carrying a heavy burden, a burden that only her efficiency, familiarity with town affairs and willingness to remain long hours at her desk have enabled her to bear. We believe the voters will be glad to give her the assistance she needs.

There is much to be said for the contention of the Finance Committee that its members should have more time to study many of the motions and proposed appropriations submitted to their consideration for recommendation in the report answered to the warrant for the annual March meeting of the town. As things now stand the committee has less than a week in which to make up its mind upon many matters of importance and draft its opinions for publication. Obviously this is too short a time to adequately cover the necessary ground and in some instances motions and even appropriations are not in the committee's hands at all in advance of the publication of its report so that any recommendation can be given. Chairmen of recent committees have come in for sharp criticism at town meeting because of their seeming lack of familiarity with certain articles and motions presented for vote. In fairness to them in most cases it should be remembered that these articles were not in sufficiently definite form in advance of town meeting or when the warrant closed to permit the committee to pass upon them and arrive at a definite decision. In the report of the current Finance Committee attention is called to the fact that in some communities departmental budgets are made up immediately after the first of December with an estimate for that month, enabling the Finance Committee to get these figures for study about a month in advance of the time alotted here. The local committee feels that consideration of this practice may well be given by our own authorities and also believes an earlier closing of the warrant might work to advantage here. At all events our Finance Committee should have sufficient time for adequate study of town finances and policies. Its excuse for existence is otherwise defeated.

CHURCHES, SCHOOLS AND MOVIES

To the Editor of the Star:

I desire to most heartily congratulate the correspondents from Mystic avenue and Lebanon streets for their excellent articles that appeared in the last issue of the Star in regard to moving pictures. I am, however, unable to concur with some folks in regard to the contemplated site. The correspondent informed some of us who were born in Winchester that the Man of Aran was an excellent picture. Thanks. I am interested. Why? Because my father and uncles were born adjacent to the Aran Islands and responded to the call of Abraham Lincoln and were with Sheridan when he rode to Winchester and Sherman when he marched to the sea. Oh, yes, and General Grant when he captured Richmond. Am I not a descendant from the man of Aran? Perhaps I am able to inform the producer where the men resided who discovered the Aran Islands in County Galway, Ireland.

Your correspondent informed some of us hicks from the sticks that we can witness the Little Minister on the screen. I desire to inquire if the minister that appears in the movies is an ordained minister, and what denomination does he represent? And remember we are all Adamites.

I am aware of the fact that the clergymen of all denominations, doctors, lawyers, barristers and attorneys, have accomplished more marvelous work for 1935 years than any group of men on this Planet.

Some of us can name the first moving picture that folks were required to pay money to witness, but none of us can ascertain the last picture that will be illuminated on a screen; but we are informed that Adam was the first man. We have no way of ascertaining who will be the last man. Perhaps if some of us rubes and hicks who never patronize movies in a theatre will attend the movies, we shall be able to ascertain the name of the last man on this earth; but who will inter him in mother earth. If Socrates, Plato and Aristotle were in the Athens of America at the present time, your correspondent would most likely excuse their blushes when they learned that some folks believed a theater was desirable less than 400 yards from a church. And to think that the movie fans are to utilize the parking spaces of the church folks.

I trust your correspondent shall not blush and remember me.

Brother, never hit a cripple with his own crutch. The correspondent informed the readers of the Star that we can see the Little Minister and the Man of Aran. He apparently blushed because he did not inform us that we could witness tanned legs on the screen. Such nonsense! I have witnessed tanned legs, bow legs, dirty legs and black legs at the Leonard Beach playground, and it did not cost me a cent, and yet I had a lot of sense.

In conclusion, if it comes to pass that the inhabitants of the Athens of America desire a theater, why not erect a theatre on the site of the old hose three fire house—the site of the old Adams schoolhouse prior to 1875, or the site of the vinegar factory, slaughter house and leather heel shop? There are four excellent sites on Swanton street for a theatre; no dangerous grade crossing, excellent parking facilities and a modern bridge that spans the Aberjona River.

Some of us know the reason the Lincoln School was erected on the Holton low land instead of on the site of the ancient Adams School. Perhaps some folks will object to a theater on Swanton street. Why? Because there is no church or school in the immediate vicinity. There is however, a gas station and a delapitated, abandoned steam roller that requires new curtains. The steam roller that is parked at the corner of Swanton and Chester streets for a number of years gasmonster on the tin lizzies and leaping leanas that are so conspicuous in various sections of the town. I assure you the iron horse is not as illuminating as the gas station near by, but the Selectmen who granted the permit for the gas station and gasmonster on Cross street do not reside in the vicinity of the gas station or the gasometer.

Now that they are ex-Selectmen, perhaps they will use their influence and have the steam roller interred in the automobile graveyard on Main street. I learned that folks who reside out of town are the owners of the steam roller.

And remember, the steam roller is located less than 300 yards from the first home in Winchester of the World War Governor, the late Honorable Samuel W. McCall, ex-Governor of Massachusetts. We were personally acquainted with Mr. McCall and were delighted to call him our friend. He walked from Myopia Hill to the depot in Wedgemere and Winchester and from the North Station up Beacon Hill and parked himself under the gilded dome and fetched us out of the wilderness in the perilous times of the World War. Apparently he did not require a body guard and ride in an expensive Cadillac automobile.

I trust Mr. Correspondent that I shall see more of you at the annual town meeting. You realize most likely that we see more of each other at town meeting in the month of March and at the seashore in the good old summer time.

Very truly yours,
Patrick H. Craughwell

REPORTS TO GOVERNOR CURLEY

Lewis Parkhurst Recommends Prison Changes

Declaring the most important prison work to be done "is to plan for a more complete and thorough segregation of our criminals into classes than is possible with our present system, with especial reference to the bad actors," Ex-Senator Lewis Parkhurst, requested by Governor Curley to make a study of the problem, has reported with a number of important recommendations.

The first is that a receiving building be erected within five miles of the State House, to accommodate 250 to 300, who would be examined by pendologists, psychiatrists, physicians and other experts. A man sentenced to be executed, the report says, should go there at once and remain the rest of his life. The equipment to carry out the death sentence should be installed there, the report says.

Mr. Parkhurst urged that either the Reformatory at Concord be equipped to house the most desperate criminals or a new prison be built for that sort of prisoners with accommodations for 600 to 800 men.

His third recommendation is that there be no more buildings erected at Norfolk for one or two years. The report says the construction going on constantly within the walls at Norfolk has made it very difficult to carry out the rehabilitative purposes for which the prison was planned.

The final recommendation is that the State Prison at Charlestown be destroyed, the 11 acres of land disposed of, and the proceeds used toward defraying the cost of new buildings elsewhere. In Mr. Parkhurst's opinion the land, now assessed at approximately $1 a foot, could be used for either business or recreational purposes and the inmates transferred to other places where the land is less valuable.

IN FAVOR OF MR. LOCATELLI

To the Editor of the Star:

Winchester has the reputation of being a conservative town, but let it not be said that Winchester is not progressive.

This question of moving pictures in our town is before us. Without dispute, the majority of people like to attend a good picture show. Therefore, why have to go to some other place for an evening's entertainment? I agree that it is a question to be considered, but after all, Mr. Locatelli's reputation will stand any investigation as to moving pictures, and dealing with the public's desire for good productions.

Why not do as our neighboring town of Arlington in regard to this? The pictures put on the screen there are first seen by their Committee of the Woman's Club, and censored. Any undersirable pictures have been eliminated, and the committee has received fine co-operation from the theater managers.

This surely could be done in Winchester.

There is a tendency to keep the young people in their own home town if they are able by providing some means of entertainment there.

You can be assured that the building itself will in no way detract from the appearance of the town—neither will the theater bring undesirable people into it.

Let us then vote in favor of moving pictures for Winchester.

PROTEST AGAINST DOG RACING

To the Citizens, Clerymen and All Organized Groups of Winchester:

"All things bright and beautiful,
All creatures great and small
All things wise and wonderful
The Lord God made them all."

It is time that every member of our community is aware of his duty as a citizen—a parent, a church member, and an ordinary human being.

We have sat by our firesides much too long, and allowed the cheap politician to railroad us into the mire. We have either become too cultured or too spineless to fight. This time the racketeer has come to our very community and we sit back and allow him to use our children's pets and friends, use them, rather maim and mutilate them for "sport."

Anyone who enjoys real sport and is a good sportsman, has read from time to time articles by Cunningham in the Boston Post. He is regarded as a fair-minded writer and a good sportsman. The picture he draws in last Sunday's Post of dog racing is revolting to the senses. Picture a rabbit with a string sewn through its back, used as a decoy and a pack of starving dogs giving chase. Writhing in pain, as the race ends, it is thrown to the dogs to be torn limb from limb and thus end its misery.

The timid rabbit, the child's pet, and man's best friend and guardian, the dog, are to be exploited at our very doors, by men who haven't a vestage of manhood and who stoop to anything low or base for money, and call it "sport."

We who pride ourselves on our advanced civilization had better pause and look back over the road.

Roman arena days are still with us —and soon instead of animals, we humans will be thrown to the political lions to appease their thirst for blood and money.

Lincoln was not too great to raise a pig from the mire, or return a fledgling to its nest.

Let us bestir ourselves and give our children's pets the protection they deserve. You who love your faithful pets, regard those animals that are in the hands of cruel hardened masters, and speak for those who serve us well, but cannot speak for themselves.

Write your Representative or as an organization go on record as being opposed to this vice masquerading under the head of Dog Racing.

ONE FROM ONE LEAVES TWO

By Ogden Nash

Higgledy piggledy, my black hen,
She lays eggs for gentlemen.
Gentlemen come every day
To count what my black hen doth lay.
If perchance she lays too many,
They fine my hen a pretty penny;
If perchance she fails to lay,
The gentlemen a bonus pay.

Mumbledy pumbledy, my red cow,
She's cooperating now.
At first she didn't understand
That milk production must be planned;
She didn't understand at first
She either had to plan or burst;
But now the government reports
She's giving pints instead of quarts.

Fiddle-de-dee, my next-door neighbors,
They are giggling at their labors.
First they plant the tiny seed,
Then they water, then they weed,
They they hoe and prune and lop,
Then they raise a record crop.
Then they laugh their sides asunder,
And plow the whole kaboodle under.

Abracadabra, thus we learn
The more you create, the less you earn.
The less you earn, the more you're driven.
The less you lend, the more you're driven.
The more destroyed, the more they feed,
The more you pay, the more they need.
The more you earn, the less you keep,
And now I lay me down to sleep.

TO HOLD HEARING ON DOG-RACING REPEAL

Bills seeking to repeal the licensing of dog racing will be heard before the Committee on Legal Affairs in Gardner Auditorium at the State House on Tuesday, March 5, at 10:30 a. m. Winchester's Representative, William E. Ramsdell, is a member of the committee before which the bills will be heard and suggests that all interested should attend the hearing. Bills to be presented includes those seeking the abolition of both dog and horse racing.

The town's chairman of Selectmen, Henry J. Maguire, was one of the heads of governing bodies of cities and towns in Metropolitan Boston contacted in connection with the present agitation to repeal the dog racing law. In a brief statement he is quoted as follows: "Winchester is unqualifiedly against dog racing. The best interests of the State would be served by repeal of the law. We will fight against it here."

At the State Election last fall, Winchester rejected dog racing, 3029 to 1827, but accepted horse racing, 2792 to 2361.

WINCHESTER BOY INJURED

Thomas Harkins, 17-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Harkins of 19 Eaton street, was painfully injured Monday evening about 6 o'clock while walking north on Washington street in front of the residence of Mr. John O'Leary, when he was struck by a Ford coupe, also headed north and driven by James E. Moylan of 645 Addison street, Chicago, Ill., who is at present living in Winchester at 550 Washington street.

According to notice, Harkins, who is well known to many Winchester householders as a messenger at the local Western Union office, had been on an errand for his parents, accompanied by a friend, when the accident occurred. The impact threw him onto the front of Moylan's machine and then to the ground.

He was picked up by Moylan and taken to Police Headquarters, subsequently being taken home by his mother and treated by Dr. Robert L. Emery for injuries to his legs and the back of his head. One of the headlights, the hood and windshield of the car were damaged.

POLICE HAD WANTED MAN

Escaped After Minor Traffic Violation

A man wanted for breaking and entering and the larceny of an automobile in Framingham was in the hands of the local police for a short time Thursday night, escaping as he was being escorted into Police Headquarters to straighten out a violation of the motor vehicle laws. After eluding the local authorities the fugitive is thought to have broken into a house on Norwood street and later to have made good his escape in an automobile stolen from a Church street home.

Shortly before 10:30, Patrolman Clarence Dunbury noticed an automobile come from Wildwood street extension across Cambridge street into Wildwood street and Salisbury road, stopping opposite the new house owned by Mr. Charles Underwood. Upon being questioned, the operator was found to have neither license nor registration and was ordered by Officer Dunbury to drive to Headquarters for a check-up. The motorist offered no objection and as the offense was one of a most minor nature the policeman was not justified in using restraining measures of any kind.

As the machine pulled up at the Station house and the driver and Officer Dunbury got out, the former suddenly made a dash down Winchester place and into Converse place. Officer Dunbury gave chase, but the driver was without an overcoat and distanced him in a chase that led through Winchester place and across Main street into Thompson street, where the fugitive disappeared in Purrington place.

George Osborne of Clematis street notified Headquarters of the chase and both patrol cars were sent out in an attempt to round up the wanted man. Meanwhile a checkup of the car he was driving disclosed the fact that it had been stolen in Framingham where the thief was also held responsible for five breaks, including houses and stores. The owner of the machine and the owner of one of the houses entered came to local Headquarters on the holiday forenoon to report and claim the machine.

The cruising cars were unable to locate the fugitive, though near the Playstead playground in West Medford, a taxi man told the police that he had seen a man answering the description of the motorist walking near the West Medford station.

Later, however, the local authorities learned that the residence of Mrs. Florence Furlong at 11 Norwood street had been entered during the night and some canned food in the cellar eaten. Nothing else was missing and it is Chief Rogers' opinion that the fugitive remained there in hiding for a time, afterwards going to the home of Dr. Allan R. Conningham nearby, where he stole $20 from a pocketbook, some keys, the Doctor's overcoat and a Ford sedan, in which he drove out of town. The Ford was later recovered by the police of Station 2 in Boston.

WINCHESTER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The cost of getting out and mailing the booklet "Know Winchester" was in the vicinity of $200. We mailed 2000 of them and in each of these booklets was a letter asking for contributions of $5 for membership. Thus far the response to our plea has been far below what we hoped and expected, and the payment of these bills has left our treasury and reserve sadly depleted.

We hope that many of those who have not already responded will send us their check for $5 for membership or for such amount as you think our efforts are worth.

The Golden Text is: "As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him: For in him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily" (Colossians 2:6, 9).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Then cried Jesus in the temple as he taught, saying, Ye both know me, and ye know whence I am: and I am not come of myself, but he that sent me is true, whom ye know not. But I know him: for I am from him, and he hath sent me" (John 7:28, 29).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus taught the way of Life by demonstration, that we may understand how this divine Principle heals the sick, casts out error, and triumphs over death. Jesus presented the ideal of God better than could any man whose mission was less spiritual. By his obedience to God, he demonstrated more spiritually than all others the Principle of being. Hence the force of his admonition, 'If ye love me, keep my commandments'" (p. 25).

Magazines, Please

The Red Cross has dispatched to the Veterans' Hospital at Bedford, 176 packs of playing cards and 43 jig-saw puzzles. Much credit should be given to the members of Room 35 for their gratifying response to our appeal. We hope their parents have one complete pack for the next contract foursome.

During March we shall make our annual collection of magazines for the Veterans' Hospital and the Boston Seamen's Friend Society. We understand from Dave Grosvenor's visit to Bedford that tales of adventures and detective stories are preferred by the veterans, but we know every sort of magazine is gratefully received by the Seamen's Society.

HIGH SCHOOL HIGHLIGHTS

$60,000 of Thrift Funds

The gold clause may be only of academic interest to Highlight readers but members of the High School Thrift Association have more than academic interest in currency inflation and safety of the banks. At least they are part owners of a considerable cash fortune which is on deposit in the Winchester Savings Bank to the credit of the weekly depositors in the school savings account. The present amount of this fortune is $60,324.

There are 2560 girls and boys throughout the eight Winchester schools who contribute every week to the school savings fund. Over 600 are high school students. That many of the individual accounts are small goes without saying but since the savings accounts bear no interest until they amount to three dollars, it is interesting to record that almost $2000 of interest will be credited to the depositors during this school year. In as much as the larger accounts are naturally possessed by High School depositors who have been accumulating in most cases since they began school in the grades, we think Highlight readers should feel pretty good about their financial situation in this time of depression.

During the present school year there have been 18 bank days. Students of the High School have banked in that period a total of $2641. Those statistically minded will be interested in the fact that this sum represents 11,102 individual deposits averaging 23.8 cents each. The average total deposited each bank day has been $146.75 —surely a goodly sum for high school students to set aside regularly as savings.

At no time during the present school year has the school average of depositors been below 91 per cent of attendance while the running average has been 95 per cent. There should be about 15 more bank days before school closes in June so it is likely that some $2200 will be added to the present total. This excellent showing will be due largely to the enthusiasm and energy of the officers of the high school thrift association and the co-operation of the home room representatives.

Richard Elliott, president of the association, reports that a majority of the home rooms co-operate splendidly in an effort to have their weekly record at 100 per cent. On Feb. 12, the last bank day, 10 rooms were 100 percenters and only eight failed to attain that distinction of which the lowest had 85 per cent. His ambition is to see all the rooms on the 100 per cent honor roll before the year ends.

Gretchen Cleaves, secretary of the association, is right on the job every Tuesday to collect the room reports and to prepare the general summary and school average. She refuses to say so but we know it is a lot of hard work. She enjoys seeing the percentage climb and would certainly be proud to be able to post a perfect score. She realizes the important part she is playing in helping to develop the habit of systematic saving among her school mates.

No small share of the credit is due to the home room representatives of the thrift association who shoulder the responsibility of handling the individual deposits and accounting for them accurately in the banking procedure. This they do with very little supervision from the home room teachers and we think they have done a fine job this year.

The freshman first team won again last week when they triumphed over the senior girls, 16—8. Manning scored the most points. The second team were defeated, however by the Senior seconds, who won 12—2.

The sophomore first, with Captain LeRoy starring, defeated the junior first team 11 to 5. In the close second

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

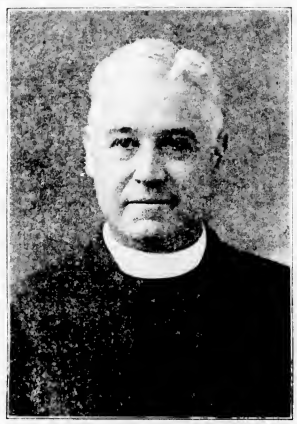

The Winchester schools reopened Monday of this week after the regular mid-term vacation. With conditions for winter sports so generally excellent many of the youngsters went out of town, especially over the holiday.

Mrs. Kenneth B. Toye of Bonad road is a real baseball fan who is apparently "in the known" as far as the Boston Braves are concerned. Mrs. Toye phoned the Star that "Babe" Ruth had joined the Tribe early Tuesday afternoon, about the time the Boston papers were getting the big news.

Mrs. Charles Hadley Watkins of Ridgefield road was painfully injured yesterday afternoon when she slipped and fell on an icy place in front of the residence of Mr. Samuel S. Symmes on Sanborn street. She succeeded in dragging herself to Mr. Symmes door and was assisted into the house. Dr. Richard W. Sheehy gave her first aid and she was removed in the police ambulance to the Winchester Hospital where she was attended by Dr. Sheehy and Dr. Torr W. Harmer. Her right leg was found to be broken in three places below the knee. She was reported this morning as resting as comfortably as can be expected, and is expected to return home from the hospital shortly.

OBSERVED 60th ANNIVERSARY

St. Mary's Parishoners Celebrate With Reunion

Parishoners, and former parishioners, with their families and friends, taxed the town hall to its utmost capacity Wednesday evening when they gathered to observe and celebrate the 60th anniversary of the institution of St. Mary's Church in Winchester.

An excellent entertainment program opened the evening's festivities, the stage being attractively decorated with palms and potted plants. Edson Kimball's concert orchestra of Woburn played a medley of popular and classic Irish music as an overture.

Mrs. Mary Cusick McGrath, a favorite Winchester soprano, followed the orchestra and her solo number, the ever popular "Killarney," was enthusiastically applauded, Mrs. McGrath being obliged to respond to an encore. An excellent playlet, "Fore" was presented by the Guild Players, parts being taken by Miss Norris Chevalier, Miss Lillian Day, Mr. Dana J. Kelley, the Guild president; and Mr. Spencer O'Leary.

Especially popular were the selections sung by the Infant Saviour Glee Club, of which Mrs. Thomas Hennessey is chairman and Miss Edna McNamara, director. The entire club of mixed voices sang the hit song, "Sympathy" from Rudolph Friml's popular comedy opera, "The Firefly," and in serious vein, Mozart's stately "Ave Verum." (The Voice of Praise). As a specialty number the Glee Club's male chorus sang Frederick Field Bullard's swingingly melodious "Winter Song," a number especially appropos in view of weather conditions Wednesday evening. The personnel of the club includes Mesdames Chauncy Shaw, William Dolan, Joseph Burke, Misses Mae Cullen, Ruth Mathews, Lucia MacKenzie, Mary Dwyer, Lillian Day, Mary Day, Ruth Cleary and Messrs. James Fitzpatrick, Francis Felt, Dana Kelley, Herbert Masse, Anthony LeBlanc, Frederick Dooling, Spencer O'Leary.

The club's director, Miss McNamara, sang Toelli's beautiful "Serenade," and Mr. James Fitzpatrick of Stoneham sang the popular Irish ballad, "I'll Take You Home, Kathleen." Both vocalists were forced to respond to encores.

Concluding the entertainment were the Musical Cavanaughs of Woburn who presented a high grade novelty act, including "Mother," in xylophone and piano selections, "Dad," trumpeter and pianist; "Joan," in vocal solos; and "Bobby," xylophone, sax and traps.

Just preceding the Cavanaughs, the pastor of St. Mary's, Rev. Fr. Aloysius F. Malone appeared upon the stage to speak briefly, welcoming his parishioners and former parishioners and expressing his appreciation of the splendid co-operation shown by the members of the committee and friends of the parish in making the reunion so uniformly successful.

At the conclusion of the entertainment the hall was cleared for dancing, both modern and old fashioned step dancing being indulged in to the music of Jack Hennessey's Orchestra. Refreshments were served during the evening at booths in the small town hall and an atmosphere of friendliness and good fellowship was everywhere apparent.

Rev. Fr. Joseph E. McGoldrick exercised a general supervision over the entire reunion P. T. Foley acting as chairman of the general committee in charge of arrangements and Edmund L. Dunn as master of ceremonies. The committees, patrons and patronnesses follow:

DISCUSSED HEALTH INSTRUCTION IN HIGH SCHOOL

Superintendent of Schools James J. Quinn held a meeting in his office Wednesday afternoon, at which the problem of how best to introduce a definite course of public health instruction in the high school was considered and discussed. Those present were Principal Wade L. Grimille, Faculty Director of Athletics Wendell D. Mansfield, who is also director of physical education and boys' coach; Miss Adele Loysen, director of physical education and coach of girls; the school's two teachers of Biology, Mr. Otis Alley and Miss Lenna Peabody, Miss Gladys Niven, teacher of Foods and Clothing; and Miss Ethel Savage, the school nurse.

The speaker at the meeting was Dr. Frederika Moore of the State Department of Health a former practising physician in Winchester, who now conducts the physical examinations of the town's adolescent school girls.

ROTARY CLUB

Seven members were absent from the meeting of Feb. 28, one of whom has already made up attendance.

Once again the club is active in making a survey of classifications and instituting a campaign for new members. Present members should bear in mind that they render very important service when they suggest to the Board of Directors available methods of strengthening the personnel of the club. Though it is freely conceded that in this respect our present status is excellent, it must be remembered that vigilance is required in order to maintain our standards and where ever possible improve them. And in this matter, as always, your Board of Directors is at your service.

The "Pullman City" to be provided for the accommodation of Rotarians traveling by rail to the June Convention at Mexico City will establish a new record for such enterprise. It will utilize the full capacity of the Buena Vista Railroad Station and will consist of 275 pullman units, including 40 dining cars and 30 baggage cars. To those who plan to go to Mexico by automobile the following supplementary warnings have been issued, viz.—Portions of the new International Highway to Mexico City, now under construction and the only available route, have been closed to traffic by Government order. It is doubtful if this highway will be open before the convention assembles. Adventurous automobile tourists who attempt this trip should provide themselves with folding cots for each member of the party, bottled water to drink and canned food stuffs and an elementary knowledge of Spanish to make their wants known. They should be prepared to make their own automobile repairs if possible. Insurance policies should be adjusted to cover driving over this highway. Special policies can be purchased at the border. No extra pullman car service has been provided for those who plan to drive to the border and continue the trip by rail.

The entertainment hour at this meeting of our club was assigned to Mr. William Smith of Belmont, inventor of the "Smith Electric Eye," which device he explained to us in an illustrated lecture which was indeed entertaining. The "Electric Eye" is a motion picture camera designed to protect banks and other establishments handling large sums of money from criminal "hold-ups." This camera is located in a remote and securely protected part of the room under its protection, with controls situated at points where the money itself, or its guardians are stationed. It is argued that criminals sufficiently expert to be engaged in the practice of such robberies fear nothing so much as photographs which have been taken while they were engaged in this pursuit. Therefore they will carefully avoid buildings protected as described above and so posted. Mr. Smith's invention has been endorsed and installed by various important financial and business establishments in this vicinity.

Let us resolve and carry out the resolve, to improve our attendance record as we begin the month of March. Percentage of attendance, Feb. 21—86.21 per cent.

DARTMOUTH HOLDS ITS 25TH "JOTUNHEIM ISKARNEVAL"

Because the old Norse gods are reputed to have been fond of hearty outdoor sports, the 25th annual celebration of the Winter Carnival which the Outing Club of Dartmouth College held Feb. 8 and 9, in the snow-covered granite hills of New Hampshire, might be called a "Jotunheim Iskarneval." Jotunheim was the home of the Norse dieties.

Climate and geography mold the sports of colleges as well as of nations, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Climate Favors Winter Sports

Dartmouth College is situated in the remote town of Hanover, among the foothills of the White Mountains, where the hand of winter lies heavy on the land during a large part of the scholastic year. This factor is largely responsible for the organization of an athletic body unique in the annals of student life in America.

Unlike football, baseball, and basketball teams, each of which enlists the active efforts at play of a limited number of athletes, the Dartmouth Outing Club comprises more than two-thirds of the entire student body.

The long months of cold and deep snows that serve to isolate this college community have, through the Outing Club, been converted into an asset rather than a liability, and Dartmouth has been a pioneer in the movement to enlist the entire student body in healthful sport, instead of offering the college "letter" only to those whose physical prowess has been proved on the playing field—although Dartmouth also awards team letters.

Cabins for Overnight Jaunts

Beginning modestly, with 60 members a few years ago, the Club confined its excursions to Saturday afternoon jaunts on skis and snowshoes. Toward the end of the afternoon a halt would be called and coffee made over a crackling fire, under the shelter of snow-laden trees. The trips and the size of the parties grew in number. Saturday afternoon hikes were expanded into week-end journeys; the radius of the excursions from a few miles to tens of miles.

The camp-fire of crackling twigs under the trees has been superseded by the cheerful glow of logs in the open fireplaces of a chain of sturdy cabins along winter trails from Mount Cardigan to Mount Washington. Outing Club hikes, as described in the college publications, remind one of the heroic tales which Napoleon wrote in the face of the Alps.

The Dartmouth Outing Club has been a nursery for real explorers. One of the members of the National Geographic Society Yukon Expedition which, under the leadership of Bradford Washburn, will explore and map unknown territory in the Yukon this spring, is Hartness Boardsley, undergraduate of Dartmouth and a member of the Dartmouth Outing Club. Byrd, Beebe, and other explorers have drawn upon the club's membership to aid them in daring explorations in many parts of the world.

The Winter Carnival, which the Outing Club sponsors annually, is the most important social and athletic event of the college year. Beginning modestly in 1910, it was the first carnival of its type successfully attempted in the United States. To the Dartmouth Outing Club, too, belongs a large measure of credit for the popularization of many Swiss and Scandinavian winter sports among colleges and universities throughout northern United States.

The Winter Carnival is not exclusively for the student body. Fraternities have "house parties" and there are dances, dinners, and other celebrations. A "Queen" is selected from among the fair visitors, to rule with a Dartmouth "King" from a carved ice throne. During this "Madri Gras of the North" there is a succession of spirited races—ski and snowshoe sprints, cross-country ski races, and obstacle events—as well as ice hockey and tobogganing.

The crowning event of the Carnival, however, is the ski-jumping contest, which is to the occasion what the chariot race of the Olympic Games was to the ancients. The approach to the ski-jump is down a steep 300-foot pathway cut through a pine forest. Not even aviation can provide more thrilling sport than that afforded by the expert on skiis.

These contests do not take place among the students of Dartmouth only. Canadian, as well as other American schools, often send teams of jumpers to the Carnival, when the struggle for supremacy assumes an international as well as an intercollegiate flavor.

LIONS' CLUB DINNER AND ENTERTAINMENT

Members of the Winchester Lions Club and their guests, including Lions from Melrose and Lynn, the latter headed by Fred Asceltne of this town, filled the capacity of the Calumet Club hall to the utmost Monday evening at the Dutch supper and entertainment under the direction of John Coakley, Jr. Fred H. Scholl, Calumet steward and a member of the Lions, served an excellent supper and Alderman Gerald Seminatore of Woburn, also a member of the Winchester club, acted as master of ceremonies.

During the dinner, violin and accordian selections were played respectively by Miss Evelyn Lewis and Miss Ruth Tingley with Miss Elsie Gross at the piano.

Miss Lewis served as mistress of ceremonies for the entertainment which followed the dinner, displaying her versatility by singing herself before introducing Miss Ethel St. Clair, dancer; Miss Virginia Jordan and Miss Ruth Collins, in vocal solos, Miss Tingley in accordian solos and Miss Queenie Dunedin in comedy chatter and dance specialties. The girls were all enthusiastically received and their efforts warmly applauded.

WALTER R. HICKS

Walter R. Hicks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hicks of Miller place, Woburn, died Saturday, Feb. 23, at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Amede Cyr, 52 Salem street, after a long illness. He had made his home in Winchester for several years. Besides his parents, there are surviving several brothers and sisters living in Woburn.

The funeral was held Tuesday morning from the home of an aunt, Mrs. Joseph Lynch, 230 Cross street, with high mass of requiem celebrated in St. Charles Church, Woburn. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

FORMER WINCHESTER MAN PREACHER AT TREMONT TEMPLE

Many in Winchester will be interested to learn that the preacher at both the morning and evening services in Tremont Temple, Boston, last Sunday, Rev. William Ward Ayer, is a former Winchester boy who at one time was employed in the Star composing room.

Rev. Mr. Ayer, now pastor of Philpott Tabernacle in Hamilton, Ont., as a boy and young man lived on Hemingway street. For a time he worked in the Star composing room, later working at the publishing house of Ginn & Co. in Cambridge, before entering Moody Bible Institute in Chicago to study for the ministry. His morning sermon text was, "Who Is Jesus Christ?" and in the evening his subject was, "The Locked Out Christ." He proved a vigorous and arresting speaker.

HEART TO HEART TALKS

By Eugene Bittram Willard

Within recent weeks the Star has recorded the passing from earth of a number of Winchester's citizens, men and women whose passing is hard owing to the good lives they lived and the concern they felt for the town's welfare. It is hard to see a useful citizen die but death has to come to everybody sooner or later. And speaking of death we often hear people express a fear of it. True, dying may be an unpleasant process and it certainly is an unpleasant experience for the dear ones left behind but why any person should have actual fear of death is hard to comprehend.

On the other hand it would be folly for men to want to die. It is not common sense to want to die, to look on death as anything else but a tragedy since human life is sweet to all of us. In the case of the maimed and those suffering from incurable diseases we can appreciate how much they wish for release from their sufferings but the longer they suffer here the happier will be their lot in the life to come.

"Do you wish to live forever?" said a brave soldier who headed a forlorn hope. We know that we are not to live forever in the flesh, so why should we think it a hardship that we are not permitted to do so? The only duty imposed on us is one of living brave, pure and loving lives. We are bidden to despise wealth except as something to be given away prodigally in the service of our fellowmen. What we all need, almost more than anything else, is a sense of values, especially in relation to life beyond the grave. Men cannot take their money with them to the next world, and our earthly hates and treasons will be our only condemnation. The readiness to die is all, and the individual who lives as he ought to live is prepared for death at all times. And the man who is prepared for death can have no fear of death. God—if we believe in the Almighty—calls us to death, as well as to life. Both come in the natural order, and it is through death that we are ushered into the truest and noblest life—that life which is meant to be crown of all earthly struggle and endeavor.

Many folk are so nervously anxious about their own health and well-being as to give the impression that they in very truth do expect to live forever, and think it very hard that they are not permitted to do so. Many of us have to die in the midst of important labors and this is hard. In my own case I have on my desk two book manuscripts which I am working on and to be called by death tonight or next week or next month would mean leaving this world without having comnleted what I have set out to complete. But many thousands have gone through just such an experience—the scientist in his laboratory, the educator in his school work and the writer dealing with some learned theme requiring deep study and devotion to the labor in hand.

CONGO YOUNG PEOPLE'S TO PLAY HOST TO ARLINGTON VISITORS

Come to the Congo Young People's meeting Sunday. A very fine program has been arranged with Herbert McKeel of Swampscott as guest speaker. In addition to this, the Dunbar Negro Male Quartet will be there to sing some of the famous negro spirituals. These excellent singers appear on the radio and therefore should present an interesting program.

Last fall the society visited the Arlington young people at one of their meetings. Sunday this group will come here for a return visit.

After the meeting refreshments will be served in the social hall and everyone will join in singing spirituals.

Don't forget this meeting. You'll enjoy every minute of it. Is it a date? Six o'clock is the time, the Congregational Church parish house, the place.

NOTICE OF PROPOSALS TO CHANGE THE ZONING BY-LAW AND NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING THEREON

Notice is hereby given of proposals to change the Zoning By-Law under articles 30 and 31 of the warrant for the annual town meeting to be held on March 14, 1935, as follows:

Article 30. To see if the town will amend section 12 of the Zoning By-Law, relating to appeals, by striking out sub-section A and inserting in place thereof a new subsection substantially as follows:

The Board of Appeal established by the Building Laws shall be the Board of Appeal (or Board of Appeals) for the purposes of this by-law.

Any person aggrieved by the refusal of a permit under the provisions of section 10 may appeal to the Board of Appeals by filing a claim of appeal in writing in the office of the Town Clerk within ten days from the date of the order of the Commissioner relating thereto, and it shall be the duty of the Town Clerk forthwith to send copies thereof to the members of the board; or will otherwise amend said subsection with respect to appeals.

Article 31. To see if the town will amend section 8A of the Zoning By-Law, inserted by amendment adopted at the annual town meeting held in 1934, by striking out the last paragraph and inserting in place thereof a new paragraph substantially as follows:

The lboard of Appeals may make special exceptions to the provisions of this section by authorizing, upon apeal, the granting of permits for the erection or placing of dwelling houses on lots of land containing less area than is hereby prescribed or, upon the written request of the owner of a parcel of land, by authorizing the Building Commissioner to grant permits from time to time for the erection or placing of dwelling houses upon subdivisions or any or all of the lots thereof, although containing less area than is hereby prescribed, subject to such limitations of time and other conditions as it may impose, whenever, after a public hearing, it shall find that—(1) adjoining areas have been previously developed by the construction of houses on lots generally smaller than is prescribed by this section and the standard of the neighborhood so established does not reasonably require a subdivision of the applicant's land into lots as large as is hereby prescribed; or (2) lots as large as is hereby prescribed would not be readily salable and could not be economically or advantageously used for building purposes because of the proximity of the land to through ways bearing heavy traffic or to a railroad or because of other physical conditions or characteristics affecting it but not affecting generally the zoning district.

The Planning Board shall on request of the Board of Appeals make a report, with recommendations, to it on the question of granting any application for special exceptions hereunder; or will otherwise amend said paragraph with respect to the making of special exceptions to the provisions of said section 8A.

The Planning Board will hold a public hearing on the subject matter of the foregoing articles in the Park Commissioners' Room, second floor, in the TOWN HALL on Monday, March 4, 1935, at 7:45 o'clock P. M. All persons interested are invited to be present.

SEVERAL CONTESTS ON BALLOT

Nine Candidates for Selectmen—Contests for Assessor, Constables and School Committee

The ballot which the town's electorate will have presented for its consideration at the polls in the Town Hall on Monday, March 4, has contests among the candidates for only four offices, Assessor, Constable, School Committee and Selectman. The pre-election activity has not been anywhere near as intense as is usual when there is a contest for school committee, and this despite the fact that not for years has the contest for Selectman been so wide open as this year. There seems little general interest in the contests for Assessor and Constable.

Local politicians admit the difficulty of naming the personnel of the new Board of Selectmen, there being nine candidates for the five offices to be filled. Three of the present Board are candidates for re-election, they being William N. Beggs, Harold V. Farnsworth and Franklin J. Lane. Of these, Mr. Farnsworth is a veteran, Messrs. Beggs and Lane having been elected for the first time last year. Of the others, E. Felt, James J. Fitzgerald, Jr., John H. Gilbody, Arthur L. Rondina, W. Allan Wilde and Raymond S. Wilkins, only Mr. Wilkins and Mr. Wilde have been active politically, the former having served as chairman of the Finance Committee in the current year while Mr. Wilde has appeared often enough on the floor of town meeting to make him familiar to those who habitually attend these sessions. Mr. Fitzgerald has served as town meeting member, but is, aside from that a newcomer to the local political arena with Messrs. Felt, Gilbody and Rondina. Seldom has the fight for places on the new board been more keen.

The contest for Assessor is among James A. Cullen, Frank H. Enman and Joseph E. Kelley, Mr. Enman, a candidate for re-election with several years' service being opposed by the other two.

Police Chief William H. Rogers, Edward F. Maguire and Michael J. Foley, all candidates for re-election to the office of Constable, have opposition this year in the candidacy of Gleason W. Ryerson.

There are three candidates for the two vacancies existing in the membership of the School Committee. Kenneth F. Caldwell, Robert A. Reynolds and Nita A. Smith are all widely known and this contest is sure to be watched with considerable interest, in spite of the fact that there has been little pre-election activity in support of the individual candidates than usual.

Little interest is manifest in the election of town meeting members, there being contests in only Precincts 3 and 6. The contest in Precinct 3 is among candidates for the three year term, but in Precinct 6, there are contests among the three year candidates and between John F. Kelley and Edward P. McKenzie for the two year term. In Precincts 1, 4 and 5, just the right number of candidates appear upon the ballot and in Precinct 2 not enough candidates could be secured.

There are no questions to be decided by the electorate appearing upon this year's ballot. The polls are to be open from 7 o'clock in the morning until 6:30 in the evening.

DEMOCRATS ATTEND COUNTY DINNER

At a gala occasion held in the Hotel Continental, Cambridge, on Saturday evening, the Middlesex County Democratic League celebrated its third anniversary with appropriate ceremony.

Congressman Arthur D. Healey, one of the founders of the League, came on from Washington to act as toastmaster at the banquet which followed the annual meeting and many prominent Democrats from the state and county responded to the toasts.

The Sixth Senatorial District was represented by Senator Charles T. Daly who made a constructive speech on state legislation. The Democrats of Winchester were represented by William E. McDonald, Jr., chairman of the local Democratic Town Committee. During the evening, telegrams of congratulation were read from President Roosevelt and Senators Walsh and Coolidge.

WINCHESTER AMATEUR PLAYERS AT WOBURN

"Daddy Long Legs," a four-act comedy, will be presented by the Winchester Amateur Players at the Woburn Methodist Episcopal Church, Monday, March 4, at 8 p. m., under the auspices of the Young Men's Club of that church.

The first act takes place in an orphan asylum on visiting day, and the trustees are there for their regular monthly visit. One of the trustees admires the pluck and courage of a young girl called Judy and decides to send her to college. Judy does not meet her new benefactor but sees his shadow on the wall and names him her "Daddy Long Legs."

The second act shows Judy in college and one of her room mates proves to be "Daddy Long Legs" niece. The brother of the other girl rooming with them becomes infatuated with the little orphan girl.

The third act finds Jervis Pendleton ("Daddy Long Legs") becoming seriously interested in Judy. He declares his love, is refused and leaves under the impression that Judy loves Jimmy.

The final act takes lace in Jervis Pendleton's study where he discovers that Judy, in a letter to "Daddy Long Legs," confesses her love for a certain man whom he recognizes as himself. Judy comes to take the matter over with "Daddy Long Legs" and discovers that he and the man she loves are the same.

TOWN HAD LIQUOR PROBLEM IN 1870

Winchester had its "liquor problem" back in 1870 when the Selectmen, in their report, defended their action in not spending a sum of $500, appropriated at Town Meeting for "suppressing the sale of intoxicating liquor in town." The town fathers at that time definitely felt that the employment of spies to locate places where liquor was being sold should not be tolerated and had contented themselves with appointing three policemen to "inforce the law." It was the board's opinion in 1870 that more drunkards could be "reclaimed by kindness than by force" and in the matter of the sale of liquor, believed that "More good can be accomplished by not too much law, but a firm enforcement against open violators."

MALDEN STRAND THEATER

"Murder in the Clouds," with Ann Dvorak, Lyle Talbot and Gordon Wescott as the featured players will top the double bill opening at the Strand Theatre in Malden on Saturday. It is an exciting melodrama of the air and concerns a plot of international conspirators to steal a secret formula for high explosives from the U. S. Government. There is also stirring romance in which two air pilots battle for the love of a girl. Her kidnapping by the conspirators involves more exciting incidents that wind up in a crashing climax. Lyle Talbot and Gordon Wescott are the two aviators who battle for the love of an air hostess, a part played by Ann Dvorak.

With a great comedy cast including Glenda Farrell, Margaret Lindsay, Guy Kibbie, Frank McHugh, Ruth Donnolly, Roscoe Ates, Donald Woods and Hobart Cavanaugh, "The Merry Wives of Reno" will be the second attraction on the bill starting Saturday. "Merry Wives of Reno" shows the screamingly funny domestic relations of three families who fall in an out of martial difficulties which lead them into the meshes of the Reno divorce racket. In addition to its humorous side, the story carries a delightful romance, the course of which leads Margaret Lindsay and Donald Woods playing their parts straight, one as the suspicious bride and the other as a wrongly accused husband who has been tangled in a net of compromising circumstances by the flirtatious Miss Farrell.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

"The Gilded Lily," starring Claudette Colbert who has become one of the screens greatest favorites since her work in "It Happened One Night" and "Imitation of Life," will open a seven day run at the Granada Theater in Malden on Saturday. The plot of "The Gilded Lily" concerns a pair of amiable people whose principal diversion consists of sitting on a park bench and munching pop corn. Then Ray Milland, an English noble, in this country incognito, meets Miss Colbert and wins her away from Fred MacMurray. When Milland walks out on Miss Colbert, MacMurray, who is a star reporter, turns press agent and bills Miss Colbert into an overnight stage sensation as the girl who jilted a duke. In time, Miss Colbert and Milland come together again in London. She has never completely recovered from her love for him, but his treatment finally opens her eyes. She realizes, suddenly, that she has been in love with MacMurray all the time and hurries back to the United States. The support includes C. Aubrey Smith, Luis Alberni and Tom Dugan.

"Maybe Its Love," with Gloria Stuart and Ross Alexander as the stars, is the second feature on the bill starting Saturday. Miss Stuart has the role of a pert and pretty stenographer, very much in love with a vivacious youth employed in an importing house, a part played by Ross Alexander. He is in love with her, but afraid to propose. Then the boss's son begins to pay attention to her, and tries to get his rival out of the way by having his father send him to another branch. The thought of separation make the two birds get married. Then the girl's entire family camps on their doorstep and the young husband gets sore. They finally drift apart and then the boss's son renews his attentions to the young wife which results in a rousing and most unusual climax.

"BROADWAY BILL" AT THE UNIVERSITY

Frank Capra's newest picture, "Broadway Bill" comes to the University Theatre for four days starting Sunday, with Warner Baxter and Myrna Loy co-starred. It is a romantic story with the masterful blending of drama and comedy for which Capra is noted. It is the story of a nomad who throws over the luxury and wealth of his wife's family for the love of a horse and a girl who, in her way, is imbued with the same spirit of freedom. An excellent cast appears in support of Warner Baxter and Myrna Loy, including Walter Connolly, Helen Vinson, Raymond Walburn, Lynne Overman, Clarence Muse, Margaret Hamilton and many others.

"Maybe It's Love," based on the rollicking comedy drama by the famous playwright, Maxwell Anderson, is the companion feature. Gloria Stuart and Ross Alexander head the cast.

"The County Chairman," which starts Thursday, is a fine and atmospheric screen version of the famous George Ade comedy of the same name, which 30 years ago made the name and fame of Maclyn Arbuckle as a stage star. It's present producers have been wise enough to retain both the original local, a small Wyoming town, and the original date, the year 1902, a fact which permits the use of the colorful types and background of those days, when political campaigns were fierce and frenzied—and not just talks by radio. Will Rogers appears as the fire-eating boss of a small town, who kisses all the babies, captures all the votes and brings together two estranged young lovers. In a scrap, however, he's too hot to handle!

Elissa Landi and Cary Grant are co-featured in the leading roles of "Enter Madame," the companion feature, a comedy of the life and loves of a temperamental opera star.

The Varsity Players will open the second season of "The Passion Play" on the first Sunday in Lent, March 10 at the Winchester Town Hall at 8:15 p. m. Subsequent performances will be given in Stoughton, Danvers, Waltham, Brockton, Hopkington, Bedford, Newton and Manchester, N. H.

The drama has been re-written and revised this year and very effective scenery and lighting effects have been designed to accompany it.

Among the characters repeating their roles of last season's production are: Jerome Lynch, James O'Donnell, Edward McKittrick, John McMillan, Joseph Kilbride, Joseph Gill, Richard Shearer, Ethel Queen and Edward Gill. Those advanced to higher roles include: Martin McCauley, Walter Foley, George McMillan, Ruth Corry, William Kelley and Ragna Hagen. A feature of this year's production is an interpretative dance, "The Temple Bells," portrayed by Miss Alice Foley, directed by Miss Priscilla Sawyer. Soloists will include Miss Gertrude McLaughlin and Mr. Joseph Kilbride, accompanied by Miss Ruth Marshall.

MYSTIC THEATRE, MALDEN

In what will probable be recorded in picture annals as one of the greatest performances of his long and distinguished career, Mr. George Arliss brings Wellington, victor of Waterloo, to life again as the pre-eminent figure of the historical drama, "The Iron Duke," at the Mystic Theater, Malden, for a week starting Saturday, March 2. This magnificent Arliss vehicle comes to local picture fans following its initial remarkable ovation in London where it had its world premiere, and its later successful American debut at the Radio City Hall.

The second feature next week at the Mystic Theater, will be "Uncertain Lady," a hilarious comedy featuring Edward Everett Horton and Genevieve Tobin. The story concerns Mr. Horton, whose affections have wandered from his wife, Miss Tobin, from whom he asks a divorce. Miss Tobin is willing providing he supplies her with another husband. Horton was never funnier and Miss Tobin never more attractive than in "Uncertain Lady."

ST. MARY'S PLAYERS

The St. Mary's Players of Winchester has chosen for their annual presentation, "Stop Thief," a farce in three acts to be given on Tuesday evening, March 19.

These players have been together for some time, and, in other performances, have been well received. This year, under the able guidance and direction of Mr. Charles J. Harrold, they have exceeded their past efforts and venture to guarantee a splendid evening's entertainment.

Such entertainments under the sponsorship of any local organization show that very frequently good times may be enjoyed right at home. For this reason they deserve every bit of support accorded them. A more friendly intimate feeling is encouraged by them and often the social life of a community, thought to be so lacking in such things, is rich in their possession.

The cast consists of young people of the community, sons and daughters of parents many of whom were boys and girls here themselves. The only reward these young people gain is a heart-warming satisfaction in knowing their efforts are well received year after year and they strive to make each presentation more perfect than those that have gone before.

All who are able should set aside the evening of March 19 and plan to be at the Town Hall. This date in the engagement book should be marked, "Reserved for my own enjoyment."

PING PONG TOURNAMENT DRAWS MANY ENTRIES

Although Winchester's second annual Ping Pong tournament is still two weeks in the future, a number of players have already filed their entries for the several divisions.

Nearly 400 blanks have been mailed to prospective entrants in the town, but there are undoubtedly a number of players who have only recently taken up the game, and it is these new-comers that the Winchester Ping Pong Club is anxious to have participate in this unique event. Almost everyone who played in the 1934 tourney will make an effort to take part in the present tournament, and in view of the limited number of entries which can be accepted in each of the several divisions, all players who have not yet received entry blanks are urged to telephone Winchester 0823-M, 0182-W or 0309 as soon as possible.

Newfoundland

Newfoundland is a separate self-governing dominion, having the same relation to the British empire that Canada has. In creating the Dominion of Canada in 1867 provision was made for the entrance of Newfoundland into the federation, but such an arrengement has never been made.

The Human Body

The human body has been built like a machine, but has been given the organization of an army.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Literature Meeting

The Literature Group will meet, as usual, on the first Monday of the month, March 4, at 2:30. All Fortnightly members are welcome. The committee of the day has made a special study of short imaginary conversations and they will present some with criticisms. Oscar Wilde said that it was much more difficult to talk about a thing than to do it. If that is true, many club members will submit entries for the contest which closes on March 4. Any imaginary conversation not exceeding 500 words with the name of the writer in a sealed envelope, may be given to a member of the committee.

At the meeting on April 1, a book will be awarded for the conversation judged to have greatest literary value. The pudges will be Mrs. Eleazar Cate of Belmont and Mrs. Robert M. Keeney and Mr. William S. Tacker of Winchester.

Mr. Ralph Warren Burnham of Ipswich, will give an exhibition and lecture on, "The Romance of Hooked Rugs." For many years, Mr. Burnham has collected old hooked rugs. It has been a work of absorbing interest, a work most fruitful of results. In his collection, which members several thousand, are many very rare specimens which savor of great age. Some of these have a foundation of homespun linen, and are wrought in quaint and curious designs. He will show us some of these American primitives, following them along in chronological order up to rugs made within the month of January, 1935. Assisting on exhibition, Mrs. Edith Harris.

Custodians, Mrs. Ida MacDonald and Mrs. Harriett Linscott. Tea chairmen, Mrs. Ruth Hilton, assisted by Mrs. Marjorie Dyer, Mrs. Dorah Hadley, Mrs. Edna Messenger, Mrs. Marian Gilbert and Mrs. Beatrice Campbell. This is the last program of the Antiques Committee for the club year and we urge the members to take advantage of this unusual opportunity of hearing one of New England's leading authorities on the subject of "Hooked Rugs."

Members wishing to exhibit their hooked rugs (old or new), call Mrs. Harris, Win. 2193-W or Mrs. Andrews, Win. 0017 before March 6.

Regular Meeting Feb. 25

The speaker of the afternoon was Mr. E. Dudley James, well known art connoisseur of Gloucester and Boston, who gave a most interesting and instructive talk on "Oriental Art."

Mr. James explained the real difference between Oriental and Occidental Art as simply a matter of perspective. The Oriental artist has no model, he sits before a subject, lives with it, and absorbs it before attempting to portray his reactions. His ability as an artist is judged by his brush strokes.

Many of the paintings are mounted on a white background as most walls are of white plaster. The Oriental changes his paintings with the season and on anniversaries.

The earliest date of Chinese Ceramic Art was given as from 1125-458 B. C. The work was most expensive and a pair of antique flower pots was valued at $50,000. Mr. James explained the significance of various objects used by artists. The bat, a favorite subject, representing happiness, the peach, crane and pine symbolized longevity. Flowers designated the four seasons. Although Orientals have a great love for birds, and animals, they never accurately proportion them.

Among interesting pieces displayed from Mr. James' rare collection were a magnificent Persian jar, a red marriage box, a rose bowl which was passed at a feast and used similarly to our finger bowls.

There were beautiful Persian textiles and an exquisite piece of Chinese needlepoint with the five clan dragons, representing Imperialism.

One of the pleasantest features of the afternoon was the dancing of Miss Margaret Littell. Miss Littell's first interpretation was that of a Burmese maiden. Perhaps because of the beauty and the costume of garnet and gold, the Hindu dance was most enjoyed. Miss Littell graciously showed the manner in which a Hindu woman wraps her Sari. The Nautch Dance brought the entertainment to a close. Miss Littell was accompanied by Jane Holland, who played familiar strains of Oriental music.

Junior Club Organized

There were 42 girls present at the organization meeting of the Junior Club on Monday evening, Feb. 25. It was a delightful occasion, with interest and enthusiasm abundantly manifest. Mrs. Willson, State Chairman of Junior Membership, and Mrs. Yorke, her assistant chairman, both were present and gave interesting accounts of what the junior clubs are doing and may do. Following these talks, there was a social hour with an opportunity for informal discussion and for increasing acquaintance. Ice cream and cake were served by a committee from the Senior Club. Then the business meeting was again called to order, and a committee appointed to draw up a constitution for the new club.

Miss Mercedes Speedie was appointed secretary pro tem and kept the minutes of the meeting.

We now have about 75 men working and hope to have 100, to help put this drive over in one week.

OBSERVATIONS

(By the Spectator)

Some people here in Winchester use a gallon of words to express a teaspoonful of thought.

Star reader wants to know how does it come to pass that the homeliest man so often succeeds in winning the prettiest girl?

We know a fellow here in fair Winchester who is always on the ragged edge of doing something wonderful —and that is as far as he ever gets.

Most of a man's troubles are due to the fact that he does not keep enough of his thoughts to himself.

One man may teach another to speak, but he cannot teach another to hold his peace.

It is better to pass a danger once than to be always in fear.

Few people in or out of Winchester like to be reminded of the little sins they like to commit.

Yes, right here in our own beloved Winchester pity is too often given as a substitute for charity.

The passing of George Harrington removes an outstanding figure, a citizen of high ideals. But he left with the people of Winchester that which time nor his passing can ever take from us, the remembrance of an honorable true-hearted man who brought good alone to those who knew him and one who has left behind him only pleasant and happy memories.

Roger Doane Newell is made of the stuff of which come our leading executives. In the Boston offices of the Pacific Mills young Newell is going to climb high.

It keeps some women here in Winchester so busy trying to preserve their charms that they haven't a great deal of time for anything else.

LOST CURLING MATCHES BUT HAD GREAT TIME

Local Curlers Loud in Praise of Yarmouth Hosts

A little group of curlers, representing the Winchester Country Club and the Boston Curling Club, landed from one of the Eastern Steamship liners in Boston last Saturday morning, tired after a pair of over-night boat trips and two days of strenuous competition in Yarmouth, N. S., as guests of the Yarmouth Curling Club.

While the local enthusiasts fared badly in the curling, winning only two of the nine matches played, the members of the party were enthusiastic over the trip and especially pleased with the hospitality extended them by the Yarmouth curlers and the city as a whole.

The matches were played at the Yarmouth Club's indoor rink, a big building with an ice surface about the size of the Winchester Town Hall floor and large enough for four rinks. The ice, known as "pebble ice" was a surface with which the local curlers were not familiar, and without in any way attempting to alibi their showing members of the Winchester team feel that had Harold Farnsworth and "Ted" Neill been able to make the trip to the Provinces, their game would have been materially strengthened.

Linde Fowler of the Transcript sports staff and "Ken" Young, who filled in for Farnsworth and Neill, did well, the former especially showing to advantage in the matches on the second day when the local curlers were able to win two of the three contested. It fell to the lot of "Bob" Guild, former Harvard football player who was largely instrumental in consumating the trip to the Provinces, to lose the only match won by the final trio by the close score of 12 to 10. As a balm for his disappointment, "Bob" made one of the most spectacular shots of the entire competition on his last stone and was literally lifted off the ice by the enthusiastic Yarmouthers in recognition of his feat.

"Shorty" Carr was the trip's only casualty, slipping on the ice during Thursday's matches and injuring a wrist which prevented his participation in Friday's play.

Following are summaries of the matches on Thursday and Friday:

Thursday

Yarmouth—E. Trask, Hubert Cann, F. Allen, F. Allen, J. R. Comeau, skip—16.
Winchester—A. L. Fowler, R. F. Fenno, G. C. Neiley, E. P. Neiley, C. P. LeRoyer, skip—9

Yarmouth—A. Patten, J. A. Craig, C. E. Dyke, G. D. Raymond, skip—17.
Boston—K. T. Young, D. W. Smith, G. I. Jones, Dr. J. T. Paul, skip—7.

Yarmouth—W. B. Bailey, A. E. Rogers, W. Stewart, A. H. Hood, skip—22.
Winchester—E. M. Fisher, J. P. Carr, J. H. Joy, R. F. Guild, skip—7.

Friday

Winchester—A. L. Fowler, R. F. Fenno, G. C. Neiley, C. P. LeRoyer, skip—13.
Yarmouth—Rev. E. G. Ross, W. N. Allen, C. L. Anderson, C. D. Cann, skip—9.

Boston—J. P. Carr, W. D. Smith, G. I. Jones, Dr. J. T. Paul, skip—10.
Yarmouth—Russ Judge, Hush Cann, Dr. A. B. Anthony, Dr. T. A. Mason, skip—9.

Yarmouth—M. Trefry, A. W. Taylor, Dr. H. G. Hardy, E. O. Crosby, skip—12.
Winchester—John N. Joy, E. M. Fisher, K. T. Young, R. F. Guild, skip—10.

The Winchester and Boston curlers arrived in Yarmouth after an eventful boat ride, it being reported by several of the local party that no one was actually sick. The arrival of the curlers from "the States" was an event in Yarmouth which is a hot bed of curling interest, every one from the youngsters to men in the seventies participating in the sport.

The American curlers were met at the boat by a reception committee, headed by "Don" Raymond, president of the Yarmouth Curling Club, and given the key to the city in no uncertain terms. Business was suspended for the matches, largely because many of the city business men were curling on the Yarmouth teams. The minister, the jeweler, the head of the steamship company, the radio dealer and the dry goods merchant were all too busy with their "stones" to worry about trade, and the one big thing the local curlers brought back with them was the good fellowship and hospitality extended them by this group of representative Yarmouth men.

Matches were held at the indoor rink which was decorated outside and in with British and American flags. The gallery was filled with spectators who rooted enthusiastically and followed the "stones" with expert eyes.

After the matches on Thursday the local curlers were tendered a banquet at the Grand Hotel, where they were quartered, city and government officials as well as business and sports' leaders sitting down at the banquet tables with their guests. Hon. L. C. Gardiner, speaker of the Nova Scotia House, spoke for the city in the unavoidable absence of the mayor.

President "Don" Raymond of the Yarmouth Curling Club in the course of his remarks stated that this year's visit of the Winchester and Boston curlers must not be an incident, but must become an annual event, a sentiment enthusiastically welcomed by members of the local party. "Charlo" LeRoyer, president of the Winchester Country Club's curling committee, and "Bob" Guild, its secretary, spoke for the Americans. The health of both the British King and the President of the United States was drunk, curling fashion, with one foot on the chair and the other on the table

The Yarmouth Curling Club has a membership of nearly 100 and a fine indoor rink which makes daily curling possible. The showing of the local group, not the strongest that could have been assembled at that, against the seasoned Yarmouth talent was creditable and both Winchester and Boston curlers are now engaged with the problem of how to repay the hospitality extended them in the Nova Scotia city. A curling match here is out of the question without an indoor rink, but the local group feels that something must be done to return the good time shown them in Yarmouth.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

Green vegetables are again plentiful and most of them fairly cheap. Green beans and peas and lima beans are attractively priced and excellent in quality. Two old standbys, cabbage and onions, have gone up considerably.

Strawberries are not only cheap but also flavorful and sweet. Old-fashioned Winesap apples which are an all-purpose variety are specially attractive in price this week. Grapefruit and oranges are also inexpensive.

Butter prices are unchanged, but eggs are a little cheaper than last week. Meat prices are practically the same as last week.

Here are three menus made up of seasonable foods adapted to different budget levels.

Low Cost Dinner

Pork Chops Creamed Potatoes
Stewed Tomatoes
Bread and Butter Apple Pie
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

Chicken Fricassee with Dumplings
Mashed Potatoes Buttered Carrots
Bread and Butter
Floating Island
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner

Grapefruit
Roast Beef New Potatoes
Green Beans Waldorf Salad
Rolls and Butter
Chocolate Ice Cream Wafers
Coffee Milk

LOTS OF FUN

"Until last summer, my friends hardly ever invited me to their parties," Elsie R told her cousin. "But then Dad put in our telephone and it's been wonderful ever since. I'm not left out any more."

"Most of these parties, I've learned, are got together in a hurry, and so they rely on the telephone. It's lots of fun . . . I don't know how we ever got along without a telephone." And the whole family enjoys it.

This is only one of the many reasons why people value their telephones. A telephone offers you protection, security, convenience, and peace of mind, as well as friendships . . . and often it helps to hold jobs or to get work.

To share these benefits, call your local business office. New England Telephone and Telegraph Company.

BIAS BAY, LAIR OF PRESENT-DAY PIRATES

The odd pirate "industry" of Bias Bay, China, where 70 children were spectacularly rescued recently by British warships and airplanes, after they had been held by pirates for two and a half days, is described in a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

For many years the district around Bias Bay has had an unsavory reputation as the headquarters of pirate gangs who infest the China coast, says the bulletin. Outwardly the 10,000 people of the Bias Bay region are peaceful farmers, but agriculture merely masks more sinister activities. Bias Bay residents are always ready to land booty from captured ships and to dispose of its through regular receivers of stolen goods.

How Sailing Ships Were Boarded

During the old sailing days these freebooters usually stopped passing ships by the simple method of stretching a cable between two junks; then, as the rope was caught by the victim's bows, the junks could be swung alongside, so that the boarding of a vessel was an easy matter.

With the coming of steamships, their technique changed to boarding the steamers as passengers and, at the right moment, taking possession, then forcing its officers to sail the ship into Bias Bay for looting. When riding a Chinese coastal steamer today, one is comparatively safe from these piratical attacks, but he has the feeling of being in a floating jail or prison ship, because the first-class quarters and the bridge are usually separated from the rest of the ship by heavy iron grills, and all the ship's officers are armed like policemen.

Many thrilling tales are told of pirate raids on coastal shipping, featured by unusual bravery against heavy odds. Officers sometimes use deep-sea leads and other ready weapons in pacifying pirates, and British judges at Hong Kong and Shanghai deal quick justice to captured outlaws. Death is the penalty for cut-throat leaders.

In these South China waters, too, are other pirate groups, some led by women, who specialize on fishing fleets and lighterage junks. They are disguised as fisherfolk, and, if they do not loot their victims, they exact a heavy toll for "protection."

North of the Bias Bay region, and directly astride the Tropic of Cancer, is the important seaport of Swatow, long closed to all foreigners, but now a busy shipping point for linen embroidery and laces. Nearly all of Swatow's exports go to American markets.

GOLD MINES OF CROESUS UNEARTHED IN TURKEY

Turkey reports the discovery of the gold mines of Croesus, millionaire king of Lydia in the sixth century, B. C. The richest finds are at Sart, close under the ruins of Sardes, capital of the Lydian empire, in western Asia Minor.

Croesus is reputed to have gathered his fabulous wealth from the golden sands of the Pactolus, a stream which flows through Sardes and into the Hermus (Gediz) River, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Midas, king of Phrygia, bathed in the Pactolus, according to legend, to rid himself of the cursed golden touch. The cure worked—and Croesus gained a fortune.

First Commercial Inns

Under Croesus Lydia grew from a kingdom to a powerful empire ruling all Asia Minor. The Lydians were supposedly the first people to coin money and establish a system of currency. Archeologists have found some of the electrum coins stuck off in Croesus' mint. Electrum (white gold) a native alloy of gold and silver, was mined on the banks of the Pactolus.

Direct exchange of goods restricted commerce greatly; trade was largely a matter of local barter and theft. But with a facile method of exchange the Lydians developed an extensive foreign trade. Other innovations flowed from the invention of coins. The first commercial inns in the world were established in Lydia; and appropriately enough the Lydians also are credited with the invention of dice.

Geography as well as gold made Lydia a great commercial power, for Asia Minor is the land bridge between East and West. Sardes, the capital city, owed a threefold debt to geography. Its location on a high spur of Mount Tmolus made it a natural fortress. Lying some 60 miles northeast of Smyrna (Izmir), it was on the main trade route inland from the Mediterranean. Below the city stretched the wide valley of Hermus, fertile granary of the ancient kingdom.

When Croesus asked Solon who the happiest man in the world was, he expected only one answer, Solon, however, mentioned some humble citizens of Athens instead of the wealthy king of Lydia. Events soon proved his wisdom. The rising power of Persia disturbed Croesus, so he determined to make war upon Cyrus.

Delphic Oracle "Straddles Fence"

The Delphic oracle, ambiguous as usual, declared that the expedition would bring destruction to a great empire. Croesus construed this in a favorable light and lost an empire through his mistake. Cyrus captured Sardes in 546 B. C. Seven years later Babylon fell and Persia was master of the Near East.

Progress in Turkey during the last decade draws a close parallel to the history of ancient Lydia. The modern nation aspires to commercial greatness. Her geographic location is just as favorable as it was 2500 years ago. The river valleys are still fertile. Tobacco, wool, cotton, dried fruits, and nuts head the list of exports. Imports of manufactured products are being reduced by the development of local industries.

Gold oiled the wheels of Lydian commerce, but Turkey is helping trade by concentrating on better transportation. New railroads, highways and bridges are appearing rapidly on the map of Anatolia.

Turco-Persian relations are not modeled after the policies of Croesus and Cyrus. Under today's leadership the two countries have buried the ancient hatchet, and now there is even talk of a through-railway from Ankara to Tehran.

WAKE ISLAND: PROPOSED TRANS-PACIFIC AIR STATION

Aviation brings another out-of-the-way place, Wake Island, into the news headlines. Recently it was announced that Wake, lonely island possession of the United States, will be developed as a mid-ocean station if a proposed trans-Pacific air route comes into existence.

Wake is the largest of three mere specks clustered in the vast Pacific about 2200 miles from Honolulu on a direct line to Manila, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. It is less than two square miles in area and its two neighbors Wilkes and Peale have a combined area of nearly three-quarters of a mile.

Verdant But Without Fresh Water

Although discovered by the British in 1796, Wake has never attracted permanent settlers; in fact few people have ever set foot on its shores and remained to explore it. To students of geography, the island has been hardly more than a name on a list of the United States possessions; to readers of travel tales, it is known only as one of the land spots glimpsed from the rail of an occasional passing vessel; to navigators of passenger ships plying between the Hawaiian Islands and Guam, it is merely one of those "very dangerous spots" which they are warned to avoid.

Yet Wake, although without fresh water, is not as forbidding as was Midway Island, westernmost of the Hawaiian group about 1500 miles to the northeast, before it became a cable station. Wake is clad in heavy brush, and umbrella and hardwood trees, while Midway was a barren sandy spot until coarth was shipped there so that the handful of residents, employees of a cable company, might survive. The nearest neighbors of the Wake group are the Pokaakku (Taongi) Islands 450 miles to the south-southeast within the Japanese mandated portion of Micronesia.

Charles Wilkes, commander of the United States Exploring Expedition of 1841, was probably the first person to make more than a cursory visit to the island. He thought the island so unimportant that he did not chart it. In his report he said: "Wake's Island is on low coral one of triangular form and eight feet above the surface. It has a large lagoon in the center which was well filled with fish of a variety of species; among these were some fine mullet. From appearance, the island must be at times, submerged, or the sea makes a complete breach over it; the appearance of the coral blocks and of all the vegetation leads to this conclusion for they have a very decided inclination to the eastward, showing also that the violent winds rush of water, when the island is covered, are from the westward."

The island has been in possession of the United States since 1899 when it was visited by the U. S. S. Bennington under the command of Captain E. H. Taussig. The last official visit to Wake was in 1922 when the U. S. S. Beaver was dispatched there merely to note if any changes were taking place. There is now no anchorage for large vessels near the island. Small boats may enter the lagoon between Wilkes and Wake Islands at high tide.

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC EXPEDITION TO EXPORE IN YUKON TERRITORY, CANADA

Exploration and mapping of an unknown region in the extreme southwest corner of Yukon Territory, Canada, will be the objective this spring of the National Geographic Society's Yukon Expedition conducted by Bradford Washburn, conqueror of Alaska's Mt. Crillon, it was announced here today by Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the Society.

The Canadian Government is interested in the work of the expedition and has extended its whole-hearted co-operation to the National Geographic Society and Mr. Washburn. Mr. Washburn plans to sail from Seattle, Washington, Feb. 20, to meet other members of the party at Skagway, Alaska, two days later.

Near Highest North American Peaks

The region to be explored is surrounded by a group of several of the highest peaks on the North American continent, including Mt. Hubbard, Mt. St. Elias, and Mt. Lucania. This area will be explored, photographed, and mapped by the party from the air and from the ground.

The expedition will consist of Mr. Washburn of Cambridge, Mass.; Robert H. Bates of Philadelphia; Adams Carter of Boston, a Harvard undergraduate; Hartness Boardsley, undergraduate of Dartmouth and member of the Dartmouth Outing Club; "Andy" Taylor, "sourdough" guide and snow expert, of Alaska, who has traversed many of the Territory's little-known areas and climbed a number of its high peaks; and Anne Heller of Seattle, an experienced skier and climber.

From Skagway, equipment will be taken by rail over famous White Pass of gold rush days to Carcross near White Horse. From Carcross Canadian plane equipped with radio and ski landing gear will carry the party and its supplies 150 miles west to the untraversed region that extends westward from Lake Kluane. Seven or eight flights will be required.

After two weeks of photographic work by plane from its base camp on the ice camp between Mt. Hubbard and Mr. Vancouver, the expedition will do ground mapping for several weeks until the days become long enough to permit high altitude work. Because snow will be off large areas around Lake Kluane by the time the party completes its explorations, it probably will be impossible for Mr. Washburn and his companions to be taken out by plane. Traveling light, they will make their way back the 150 miles to the railway on foot.

Miss Jeannette Smith of Mystic Valley Parkway, who has been working for the past eight months in a New York bank was at home for over Washington's Birthday.

WINCHESTER CAST LARGE VOTE IN TOWN ELECTION

Spirited Contest for Selectmen—Fitzgerald High Man

Two of the three old members of the Board of Selectmen, running for re-election, were successful at the polls in the Town Hall Monday, but the honor of receiving the high vote in the contest went to James J. Fitzgerald, Jr., a candidate newly entering the political arena, who led all contestants in Precincts 1, 2 and 6, and did better than many thought he would in 3, 4 and 5, where much of the strength of the old board members was located.

JAMES J. FITZGERALD, JR.
Elected Selectman with High Vote

Mr. Fitzgerald's vote in 6 was the largest any of the candidates got in any precinct and was largely instrumental in raising him from fifth place in which he ran rather consistently through the earlier balloting, to first in the final count. Old time politicians were unable to recall when a new candidate had led the Selectman's field in previous years.

HAROLD V. FARNSWORTH
Re-elected Selectman

The veteran, Harold V. Farnsworth, ran second to Mr. Fitzgerald with a well distributed strength which sagged a bit in 6. William N. Beggs of the old board, of whose defeat many of the town's so-called politicians were confident, slipped into third place with a margin over but votes more than the total of W. Allan Wilde, former Legion Commander, whose defeat had been conceded before the vote in 6 had been announced.

Mr. Wilde ran second to Mr. Fitzgerald in this precinct, his total hitting him over Raymond S. Wilkins and Franklin J. Lane, the latter running for re-election. Mr. Lane looked good to return to the Board until the returns from precincts 1 and 6 came in. In these wards his showing was poor and Mr. Wilkins, chairman of the Finance Committee, got a sufficiently higher total to permit him to edge Mr. Lane by 15 votes.

Mr. Lane's defeat was one of the election's upsets, but his totals in precincts 3, 4, and 5, where his greatest strength was known to be, were insufficient to offset his weaknesses in 1 and 6.

WILLIAM N. BEGGS
Re-elected Selectman

Mr. Wilkins' relatively low vote can be somewhat charged off to the Finance Committee's failure to recommend the return of the wage cut of town employees, a thing in view of large votes polled in 1, 2 and 6. Of the other candidates John H. Gilbody, Francis E. Felt and Arthur L. Rondina, the first named, polled the largest vote and his total for one of his short residence is considered good.

W. ALLAN WILDE
Elected Selectman

The honor of leading the entire ballot went to Miss Nellie M. Sullivan, running unopposed for the Board of Public Welfare. Miss Sullivan's 2913 votes exceeded the total polled by William A. Kneeland, running unopposed for the Board of Health, by a single vote.

RAYMOND S. WILKINS
Elected Selectman

The three cornered fight for the two vacancies on the school committee resulted in the election of Kenneth F. Caldwell and Nita A. Smith over Rob-

HOUSE-BREAKER INTERRUPTED IN PARKWAY HOME

The return of Mrs. Arthur T. Smith to her home at 235 Mystic Valley Parkway last Sunday evening shortly before 9 o'clock resulted in the discovery that the house had been broken into, the burglar being surprised by Mrs. Smith as she turned on the lights after entering the back door.

Mrs. Smith had been visiting at the home of a neighbor when it was discovered that there was a light in her home. The light immediately went out and thinking that her husband had arrived home and gone out again, Mrs. Smith decided to go home herself.

She entered the house by the rear door and in the kitchen switched on the light. As she did so a man came from a small room between the kitchen and living room, vanishing in the cellar.

Mrs. Smith returned to her neighbor's house and called the police, Sergt. Edward W. O'Connell responding with Patrolmen John Hanlon, Joseph Derro and Winthrop Palmer. Metropolitan Officers were also soon on the scene and a thorough search of the house and neighborhood made.

It was discovered that the thief had gained access to the house by tearing a screen from a cellar window, breaking the glass and undoing the catch, then dropping to the floor of the basement. The door leading from the basement to the first floor was unlocked and he had no difficulty in getting upstairs. A sum of money was missing from Mrs. Smith's pocketbook and the burglar had cut the cord of the telephone.

The search of the neighborhood failed to disclose any suspicious person, but not long after the break Metropolitan Officers Arthur S. Hollis and Harold Cook took a man into custody on Border road near Whittemore Brook road in Medford. He was taken to the Smith home, but Mrs. Smith was unable to identify him as the man who had been in her house nor that individual had the lower part of his face covered with a white cloth.

At Headquarters the man was locked up as a suspicious person, this charge being later changed to having burglars' tools in his possession. He gave his name as Roger Clayton and his address as Green street, Phoenix, Ariz. His local address was given as 62 Craigie street in Somerville, a fictitious address.

On him the authorities found a large dirk knife and a knife which also combined several tools, including a saw with a blade slightly less than three inches long. He also had a flashlight and a waterproof match box with a compass and magnifying glass.

In court Monday morning Chief William H. Rogers asked for a continuance until Thursday for a more complete check up. As the result of his findings he says his prisoner is Wendell Ellis, a native of Nova Scotia, who escaped from an insane hospital in Dartmouth, N. S., crossed the American border, came to Arlington and later worked on a farm in Billerica, from where he disappeared. He was later captured trying to get to South America and was deported from Tucson, Ariz., to Canada.

After securing a discharge from the insane hospital from which he had previously escaped Chief Rogers alleges "Clayton" entered this country illegally about 18 months ago. The young man is said to admit that he is a professional hobo.

Monday morning the authorities discovered that an attempt had been made to break into the home of Mrs. Henrietta Corey at 226 Mystic Valley Parkway. A section of wood, roughly six by four inches, had been sawed completely out of a storm door, but the would-be intruder had found the inside door proof against his attempts to enter. The piece of wood removed was found in the rear of the Smith home and it is the police opinion that the man who entered the Smith house had previously attempted to get into Mrs. Corey's home.

Meanwhile word has been received that the so-called "Clayton" had a room at the Y. M. C. A. in Charlestown. Officers from Station 15 in Charlestown found it to contain a quantity of material used to set fire to buildings and an attempt is being made to link the prisoner with several fires in that district.

Chief Rogers has been in communication with Immigration officers in connection with the case, but was awaiting the action of the court before taking his next step. Clayton was held in $1000 by Justice Jesse W. Morton.

Father Daley is to give a course of interesting and vital lectures during the Lenten season, speaking each Wednesday evening, excepting in Holy Week when his address will take place on Good Friday.

His subject next Wednesday is to be, "An Attempt to Make Worthwhile Prayer Without Christ."

WINTON CLUB MEETING

The Winton Club held its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Charles Farnsworth on Monday with a large attendance showing much interest in the report of Mrs. Vincent Farnsworth, Jr., the chairman of the recent cabaret. The members were pleased to learn that the popular annual event, which is the only money-raising activity attempted by the club, had been an outstanding financial success this year.

CRITICALLY INJURED AS CAR COLLIDED WITH TRUCK

Miss Mary Burke of 193 Brookview road, Medford, was critically injured shortly after 6:30 Monday evening when the automobile in which she was riding with George W. Stevens of 8 Westley street collided with the rear of a Mack truck, owned by Vulcan Smelting Works of 105 Fifth street, Chelsea and parked at the side of Main street north of the Medford line.

Miss Burke, who is employed as a chocolate dipper at Randall's and well known to many about the square, was on her way home and having missed the Medford bus, had accepted a ride with Mr. Stevens, to whom she was introduced by a mutual friend.

Mr. Stevens told the police he did not see any light on the truck and came upon the big machine too quickly to avoid striking it. His car was badly damaged and had to be towed away.

The driver of the truck, John R. Howard of 23 Harold street, Roxbury, was at the front of the machine with his helper, Radcliffe Stevens of 62 Ruggles street, Roxbury. Neither was injured and the truck was not damaged.

Miss Burke was taken to the Winchester Hospital by Edward Carroll of 187 Salem street, Woburn, and treated by Dr. Philip McManus. She was found to be seriously injured, having sustained a compound fracture of the nose, a broken jaw, bad lacerations over both eyes, compound fractures of both legs, a broken knee-cap and multiple cuts and body bruises. Her condition was somewhat improved Wednesday night and Dr. McManus stated that no internal injuries had been found. Her condition up to that time had prevented the taking of X-rays for a possible fracture of the skull and it will be several days before the full extent of her injuries can be definitely determined.

SIX ARRESTED FOR DRUNKENNESS

Over the past week-end six persons were arrested in town for drunkenness, and Traffic Officer James Noonan, with four arrests on Saturday, is thought to have created some sort of record for this particular offense.

Shortly before 6 o'clock Friday evening, Headquarters was notified that a drunken man had been put off the train at Winchester Station. Patrolman Henry P. Dempsey and John J. Hogan went to the Station and took into custody a man who was turned over to them by Lieutenant Bradley of the Railroad Police.

At the Station, the man gave his name as Thomas Smith of 17 Dover street, Lowell, who was charged with drunkenness and disturbing the peace, in the scuffle which ensued when he was put off the train he sustained a bad cut over one eye which was treated at Headquarters by Dr. Philip J. McManus, a stitch being necessary to close the wound while the eye was badly swollen.

In court Saturday morning, Justice Jesse W. Morton gave Smith a months sentence to the House of Correction, suspended for three months.

The other five men arrested for drunkenness were released. Two of them arrested Saturday noon by Traffic Officer Noonan, were engaged in an altercation in front of the Mystic Beauty Shoppe on Thompson street.

SERGEANT DEMPSEY PROMOTED

John H. Dempsey, a Winchester boy who has been for some years a member of the State Constabulary and whose rise in the force has been rapid, has again been promoted, this time to the rank of Lieutenant-Detective and assigned permanently under Civil Service to the detective bureau of the State Police under Captain Stokes.

In his new field, Lieutenant Dempsey's duties will be largely confined to the investigating of cases referred to the bureau. He entered the State Constabulary as a trooper and after a short service, resigned to enter the Winchester Police Department.

He did not long remain on the local force, returning to the Constabulary where his rise was rapid. He was assigned to duty on the Cape and after figuring prominently in the prosecution of several important cases there, was made, first a Corporal and then a Sergeant.

Lieutenant Dempsey is the son of Mr. Patrick J. Dempsey of Main street and brother of Patrolman Henry P. Dempsey of the Winchester Police.

MRS. SPENCER NEW SCHOOL COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN

Mrs. Henry K. Spencer has been elected chairman of the School Committee to succeed Arthur S. Harris, whose term expired this year and who did not seek reelection.

Mrs. Spencer is commencing her sixth year as a member of the committee and is highly esteemed by her colleagues and all those closely associated with the schools. She is a graduate of Winchester High School where her record was one of all around achievement which included participation in athletics. She is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Smith and is gifted as a writer, having been largely responsible for the plot and words of the last two highly successful Winton Club shows.

At the State House yesterday it was reported that few women have as yet served as chairmen of School Committees in Massachusetts and no case could be recalled of a woman serving in this capacity in Metropolitan Boston. Mrs. Spencer is the first woman chairman of the committee in Winchester, it is believed.

ATTEMPTED BURGLARY FOILED BY LIGHTING

The value of floodlighting as a home protection was never better illustrated than during an attempted break on March 1 at the residence of Leavitt L. Edgar 1415 Commonwealth avenue, West Newton. Mr. Edgar, who is a vice-president of the Edison Company of Boston, had a simple floodlighting installation made six years ago when he took the residence, which, although not isolated, is set back from the road amid trees and shrubbery.

A nearby residence had five oriental rugs valued at several thousand dollars, stolen the same night of the attempted break at the Edgar home. Members of the Edgar household were awakened by the marauders attempts to force an entrance by jimmying a rear door.

The floodlighting consisting of four 100-watt units installed to reflect on all four corners of the house and adjacent grounds, was immediately switched on from an upstairs chamber, scaring the intruders away.

The lighting is controlled from three locations—garage, downstairs hall and second floor bedroom. Thus, in addition to its protective value in warding off buglars, it is used to light the grounds and driveways for members of the household and guests approaching or leaving via automobile; also a decoy attraction for pestiferous insects during the season when terrace sitting is popular.

According to Mr. Edgar the utility of such lighting invites widespread consideration on the part of home owners because of the low installation and operating costs, factors which he considers negligible in comparison to possible loss from burglary.

WINCHESTER S. P. C. A. AUXILIARY MEETING

At the next regular meeting of the Winchester S. P. C. A. Auxiliary, the speaker will be Mr. Guy S. Richardson, secretary of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

He will bring a timely message to his audience on several important subjects in which thinking people are now interested. All members of the auxiliary and any other persons interested in the society's work, especially those who wish to know the truth regarding the evils of dog racing and horse racing which now threaten our State, should hear Mr. Richardson at this time.

For many years, as editor of the magazine "Our Dumb Animals," he has exerted a powerful influence in arousing public opinion on many questions where the well being of animals was at stake. He is a man of broad education and is a convincing speaker.

The meeting will be held on Thursday, March 14, at the home of Mrs. R. S. Taylor, 137 Mt. Vernon street at 2:30 p. m.

POPULAR RADIO BARITONE HERE SUNDAY

John Herrick in Joint Recital with J. Albert Wilson

Popular interest in the appearance in Winchester of that admirable radio baritone, John Herrick, indicates that a large gathering will attend the Lenten vesper Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the First Congregational Church where he will be heard in a joint program with the church organist and choirmaster, J. Albert Wilson.

Mr. Herrick's virile voice is heard weekly on Saturday evenings over the NBC Network and has long been a favorite on the programs sponsored by I. J. Fox and Father John's Medicine. He has a wide concert experience and has appeared as soloist with the Apollo Club, Boston's fine male chorus. Among the selections he will sing Sunday is the great aria, "It Is Enough" from Mendelssohn's oratorio "Elijah."

Mr. Wilson's mastery of the organ is well known to Winchester music lovers who will welcome the opportunity to hear him again. He has chosen an interesting program which will close with his own composition, "Festival March." The pastor of the church, Dr. Howard J. Chidley, will conduct the service.

Following is the program:

WATER COLOR EXHIBITION

Beautiful Pictures at the Public Library Gallery

The Winchester Art Association has now on show at the Public Library gallery the annual exhibition of the Boston Society of Water Color Painters. There are nearly 50 pictures in the collection, including the work of all the most distinguished artists of Boston and its vicinity. Woodward, Benson, Murphy, O'Hara, Klan, Kaula and many others. The Association presented this annual exhibition last spring as art-lovers will remember, and it was recognized as the most brilliant and interesting item in the year's program. The present collection is equally remarkable, and no one who appreciates fine paintings can afford to miss it. The pictures will remain at the gallery through the month.

Mrs. Harold G. Bates of Oxford street returned Saturday from her trip to the South.

Roger Clayton of Pheonix, Ariz., who the police say is Wendell Ellis from Dartmouth, N. S., was held in $1000 for the Grand Jury by Justice Jesse W. Morton yesterday morning when he appeared in the Woburn District Court, charged by the local authorities with having burglar's tools in his possession.

Clayton was picked up by the Metropolitan Police on Border road shortly after a burglar had been discovered in the home of Mr. Arthur T. Smith on Mystic Valley Parkway. He was locked up at Headquarters, charged with having burglar's tools after Mrs. Smith had been unable to identify him as the man she had seen in her home. Upon the request of Chief Rogers of the local police his case was continued from Monday morning until yesterday. After Justice Morton had bound him for appearance before Grand Jury he was remanded to jail at East Cambridge.

Donald Rockwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Rockwell of 11 New Meadows road, was slightly injured about 6:30 last Saturday evening when he was struck while walking with another boy on Cambridge street opposite Gustin's gasoline station by a Franklin sedan, headed toward Arlington and driven by Albert J. LeFebre of 84 Rice street, North Cambridge.

LeFebre took the boy to the office of Dr. Allan Cunningham on Church street. The doctor treated him for bruises and abrasions and a cut on the head, but found him not seriously hurt. He was later taken home by his father.

Synopsis of Scenes

Act 1 Martin Henderson's office at 120 Broadway, New York; a June morning.

Act 2 Scene 1. Interior of office shack of Spread Eagle Mining Company in Mercedes, Mexico. Six months later.

Scene 2 A Broadway Theatre. Two weeks later.

Scene 3 Broadcasting Studio of Radio Station WBZ. Later the same night.

Scene 4 A motion picture theatre. Six weeks later.

Act 3 Interior of Warehouse assigned for the use of Martin Henderson, chairman of the National Defense Council, at Matamoras, Mexico.

On neither of the evenings the show was produced was the audience near capacity, which was especially unfortunate in view of the expense and pains to which the Post had been in its effort to give the town's followers of amateur theatricals a play, not only unusual and little known but also especially difficult to stage.

The plot deals with the scheming of Martin Henderson, big business man and war profiteer, and his lieutenant, "Joe" Cobb, to bring about United States intervention in Mexico to ensure the safe and profitable working of the "Spread Eagle" Mine, one of Henderson's multitudinous enterprises, hitherto in the red because of a total lack of protection extended by the ever changing Mexican government.

He has arranged with a Mexican General, Ramon Angel De Castro, to carry out the revolution and overthrow the government when fate and his daughter, Lois, bring to him, Charles Parkman, son of a former President of the United States and now out of college looking for a job.

Henderson's bookkeeper at the "Spread Eagle" mine has been killed by the Mexicans and the industrialist hits upon the plan of sending Parkman to the mine in Mercedes, Mexico, knowing that in the event he should be murdered, his death would so arouse the country that United States intervention would be assured.

Young Parkman is delighted with the prospect of going to Mexico, scoffs at the cleverly veiled references to the danger involved and leaves for the mine after exacting a promise from Lois that she will not marry during the year he is to be away.

At the mine things go badly, the defacto troops of General DeCastro defeat the government soldiers at Mercedes, come to the mine and despite the efforts of the Catholic priest, shoot Parkman and Rosalie Kent, the widow of the former bookkeeper, who is afraid because of her health to flee from the mine with the foreman, Mike Riordan.

Parkman is saddling horses for the flight when the troops arrive, shooting him where they found him in the stable and dragging the bookkeeper's widow out of the mining shack to face a firing squad when she taunts De Castro with having been bought by Martin Henderson.

The news of Parkman's murder arouses the entire land and armed intervention becomes a reality, a punitive expedition being dispatched into Mexico under the command of Brigadier-General Wagner. With the troops goes Henderson, as chairman of the National Defense Council, who resorts to sophistries in defense of the killing of Parkman when reproached by the remorseful Cobb.

Miraculously, however, Parkman is found to have escaped death and is picked up by the Americans suffering from hunger and exposure and in a mental state bordering insanity.

Face to face with Henderson and Cobb, he threatens them with exposure back home only to find his guns effectively spiked when Cobb reminds him that he was found apparently getting ready to flee and leave Mrs. Kent to her fate. The death of the latter makes it impossible for Parkman to disprove Cobb's fictitious story and he is forced to remain silent.

Retribution catches up with Henderson, however, when he sees his daughter engage herself to the man he tried to murder and as an added thrust, his lieutenant, Cobb, quits his employ for the army after bitterly arraigning him.

The development of the plot follows the usual channels until the middle of the second act when the audience suddenly becomes the audience in a Broadway theater and hears the manager request from the stage all officers and enlisted men in the house to report to their respective commands at once. Uniformed Legionnaires rose and left the hall, and the audience was next transported to a radio broadcasting station where an announcer breaks in on a general broadcast to tell of the declaration of war. Returning to a movie house, news reels of war pictures are shown, depicting mobilization of troops and fleet manouvers as fore-runners of the war with Mexico.

Opinions are bound to differ as to the value of these particular interludes, obviously intended to produce atmosphere. It is this writer's belief that only the radio announcement was helpful and that the motion pictures were entirely superfluous, an unwarranted delaying of the consumation of the plot which had already moved too slowly.

The Legion faced a difficult task in producing "Spread Eagle," a play which an experienced professional company might well find taxing, alike to actors and production staff. In view of this fact the Post's production was most commendable, the general smoothness bespeaking hard work and careful attention to detail.

Especially were Mr. Goodwin and his stage crew happy in the solution of the many problems presented by the limited stage facilities of the hall, and their efforts scored heavily in the ultimate success of the play. The sets and properties were excellent, costumes adequate, and both makeup and lighting all that could be asked.

It is not surprising that few amateur companies have cared to attempt "Spread Eagle." The opening act is uninteresting and at the tempo taken by the Legion had a noticeable drag. That the subsequent acts revived the flagging interest is entirely to the credit of the Post's cast which was generally well chosen.

Of the principals, Mr. Graves and Mrs. Goodwin were outstanding, and it is fortunate that the production had the benefit of the former's portrayal of Joe Cobb during the first act. We have seen Mr. Graves do some excellent acting upon the local stage, but nothing approaching his work in "Spread Eagle." His portrayal of Henderson's capable, hard-boiled lieutenant was vitally convincing and a complete submergence of self in the character played.

Mrs. Goodwin, always a satisfactory performer, handled the difficult part of Rosalie Kent with a nice discrimination which in no way detracted from the emotional value of the role. Her acting during her scene with De Castro which preceded her execution was admirably realistic without being overdone.

Mr. Cunningham's Charles Parkman increased in strength as the play progressed and he employed some clever pantomime in his portrayal of the broken, disillusioned refugee in the final act. His denunciation of Henderson and subsequent domination by Cobb were gripping and exceeded in intensity only by the scene in which Father Estrella kneels in prayer, clasping his crucifix, while awaiting the execution of Rosalie.

This was perhaps the emotional high-light of the show and Mr. Caldwell as the priest faced a difficult task in securing the intended atmosphere in a scene that could easily have been a major calamity. There were few in the audience who were not touched by his poignant appeal for Divine pity upon the soul of the dying woman.

Mr. Burchard's Martin Henderson had the virtue of absolute consistency though it was hard to escape the feeling that he was not happily cast. He played the unscrupulous capitalist in a suave, temperate manner, so wholly lacking in strength and purpose as to be a bit unconvincing and at times, irritating. He was at his best at the very close of the play when he succeeded admirably in making the audience feel something of his own bewildered self-pity as his well-laid plans collapsed about him. His tottering rise to his feet at Cobb's sharp command when the band played the National Anthem and his attitude of near-collapse as he stood by the table after the departure of his daughter and Parkman were very well done.

Miss Parker in the role of Lois Henderson had the benefit of professional training in the field of elocution and her clear enunciation made her every line audible in all parts of the hall. She was especially effective in her scene with Cobb in Henderson's Mexican Headquarters.

Mr. Cole's De Castro was very satisfactory and the lesser parts were all well taken.

Especially commendable was the work of Mrs. Cameron as Henderson's secretary and Mr. Kerrigan as the rough-and-ready mine "super." Mr. Samoiloff's Manuel was a sinister figure whose attitude of veiled hostility was in sharp contrast to the open defiance of Mr. Migliaccio as the peon, though both were of equal excellence. No member of the entire cast did a better bit of acting than Mr. von Rosenvinge in the brief role of the sentry, and a professional could hardly have exceeded the pleasure he gave. We shall not soon forget his nonchallant smoke rings and Mr. Migliaccio's sweeping bow at the finale.

The play was directed by Alan Hay of Brookline, and Wade L. Grindle was the commentator during the motion pictures which were shown by Ross Whynot. The sequence was written by Donald Waugh, who as general chairman of the show was indefatigable and deserving of a major share of credit for the success of the performance.

Music both nights was by the Viochepi Trio, of which Miss Doris Eaton of this town is pianist-manager. Past Commander William E. Ramsdell was bend usher and was assisted by Commander John H. McCarthy, Past Commander W. Allan Wilde, Past Commander Arthur S. Harris, Past Commander Vincent P. Clarke, Raymond S. Wilkins, Lee Mellett, Cecil G. Literature Group Monday, March 4

After a winter's reading of much conversation written to picture persons or ages, to teach lessons, to build up theories, or to accomplish other useful ends, this day was given to the enjoyment of talk created for pure pleasure. Mrs. Barnard discussed such uses of the form, from the romantic early days giving many delightful illustration from Reynard the Fox down to Alice in Wonderland with the Queen of Sheba, fairies and angels all inviting us to share their views. Mrs. Nicholas and Mrs. Murphy read one of Walter Savage Landor's Imaginary Conversations which after 100 years have just come out in a new edition. Mrs. Nicolas read one of Kipling's Just So Stories and a children's conversation from Maeterlink's Blue Bird and she and Mrs. Murphy read several short poems which could be enjoyed in the measure in which one could enter into the lives of the personified creatures or of the child-like characters.

Without quite bringing the audience back to a practical world, Mrs. Barnard's wise words about the true bits of philosophy to be found in these flights of imagination brought the formal meeting to a close.

Community Service

The last of the Community Service get acquainted meetings was held Friday, March 1. Mrs. Mabel Nichols, chairman welcomed the members and gave a brief resume of the previous meetings as follows: Nov. 2, Mr. George Davidson, chairman of the Park Board, reviewed the history of Winchester and the waterways up to the time the ERA took up this work at Judkins Pond.

Mr. Earle E. Andrews, ERA administrator of Winchester and chairman of the Board of Public Welfare, described the work of the ERA, while Mrs. George Soar explained the work of the women under the ERA.

Jan. 4. Mr. James Quinn, superintendent of schools discussed the work of the FERA in education and the ERA in recreation. Mrs. Ruth Hilton, secretary of Red Cross, reviewed all the activities of the Red Cross, while Mrs. Ellen Wilson explained the Home Service work of this chapter. David Grosvenor from the High School, Margaret Hall from Junior High and Howard Grant from the Elementary School related the activities of the Junior Red Cross.

March 1, the last of the programs, Mrs. Benjamin Snyder read an article concerning the wonderful work of the Winchester District Nursing Association. At the close of Mrs. Snyder's talk, Mrs. Nichols told of our close connection with this association and how in 1885 Mrs. Anne Winsor, first president of the Fortnightly, and wife of the village doctor, felt there was great need of some facility to care for the sick. At that time the Fortnightly numbered less than 100, with 50 cents for dues. The club was too young to undertake work of that kind but four years later Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Houghton, both charter members of the club called a meeting at the home of Mrs. Thompson where the Winchester Visiting Nurse Association was formed. Some years later it was incorporated. Two years ago the name was changed to Winchester District Nursing Association.

Mr. Frank Crawford, president of the Winchester Hospital, told of the great work carried on by that institution. To this worthy cause the Fortnightly have been generous in their share of contributions each year. Mr. Crawford paid a tribute to our Winchester doctors for their generous services at the Home of the Aged and mentioned the many contributions made to the Home by a number of our citizens.

Mrs. E. Adele Emery, chairman of Education, spoke of our scholarship fund and how much it means to our worthy boys and girls.

At the close Mrs. Nichols thanked the members who had so generously contributed clothing to our Community Chest. This clothing has all been placed with the needy.

Tea has been served by the committee at all the meetings and a social hour enjoyed.

The club is deeply indebted to Mrs. Nichols and her committee for their splendid work. No hostess entertaining in her own home could be more thoughtful for the comfort and pleasure of her guests or more gacious in her welcome to all.

These meetings have done much to acquaint our members with Community activities, as well as being successful in creating an atmosphere of friendliness.

WYMAN SCHOOL NEWS

On Friday, March 1, over 350 copies of "The Wyman Messenger" were issued. On this, its second appearance the school magazine had a bright blue cover with a patriot's design drawn by Howard Grant of the sixth grade. Its five double-columned pages held stories written by children in the second through the sixth grade. There was news of the activities in each classroom and on every page, clever illustrations by the children.

Just before vacation week, Miss Chapman's fifth grade presented for their assembly, scenes from the life of Lincoln. These were given with a vivid admiration and finished acting which would have delighted a mature audience as well as ours.

On the Tuesday following vacation Miss Hackett's first grade showed, as their assembly play, the story of "The Shoemaker and the Elves." The diligent shoemaker and all the helping elves were cunningly costumed.

HIGH SCHOOL HOOPSTERS HAD FAIR SEASON

Winchester High School's recently completed basketball season, while not the best that could have been hoped for nor by any means the best that the ability of the club could warrant, was on the whole fairly successful, the boys finishing in second place in the Middlesex League and losing one more game than they won in 15 contests.

The locals had a disasterous early season record, dropping six of its first eight games including the annual alumni battle. Rallying against Milton Winchester won five of its last seven and at the end of the Middlesex season was as good as any club on the circuit. elmont's 18 to 14 win in its second game with Winchester might easily have been a local victory, had the Red and Black outclassed the opposition after the half.

It was just this tendency to dally about in the early-game stages that kept Winchester's winning string at a minimum. In nearly all of its games the Red and Black outclassed the opposition after the intermission that they showed in the second half.

Capt. Frank Provinzano and John Hanlon were the only veterans on this year's team and the former was easily the outstanding performer on the club, winning high scoring honors in the Middlesex League and holding his own with the best outside the circuit ranks.

Hanlon at center was one of the club's mainstays and especially during the early season was one of the club's best scorers.

Teaming with Provinzano at the forward berths was Daniel Coss, who came very fast toward the end of the year and was placed among the first ten leading scorers in the league. "Slicker" will lead next year's club and should run with the best another season.

Walter Josephson, towering football end, and David Grosvenor played the guard positions throughout the season, though Josephson, who was quite a scoring threat in streaks, also took an occasional shot at center.

While failing to play in sufficient games to win his letter, Lebonio Gaudioso, played both varsity center and guard when occasion demanded and made an excellent showing for a freshman.

Only five men and manager John Doherty received letters this year, something of a record for Mansfield coached teams. The veteran instructor unqualifiedly believes his team as it was going at the end of the year was the equal of any club on the Middlesex circuit.

The local second team enjoyed a successful season, winning nine and losing six contests. Harris Richardson has been elected captain of this group, the members of which were N. Clarke, L. Gaudioso, W. Gray, R. Donaghey, J. Farley, J. Eshbach, A. Smith, A. Kendrick, J. Harris and G. Abbott, manager.

CHEVROLET ON ECONOMY TEST

A new Chevrolet coach left the salesrooms of the Winchester Square Chevrolet early Tuesday afternoon to engage in an economy test, going day and night from 1:20 on that day until approximately 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon when the number of miles covered will be computed and a careful check of gasoline consumption, made.

The machine is running around Winchester exclusively and is being driven by a single driver, "Doc" Morse. Manager "Ted" Baker of the Winchester Chevrolet stated that there would be no attempt to make speed as he started the driver away. The mileage was taken and speedometer sealed by "Jim" Penaligan of the Winchester Star.

In connection with the run a guessing contest is being held for the number of miles covered. Winners will be announced as soon as possible after the completion of the run.

MRS. WARREN C. WHITMAN TO BE GUEST OF CONGO YOUNG PEOPLE

Once more Sunday evening brings the Congo Young People's meeting at the Congregational Church. And once more the society brings you a fine program that you certainly won't want to miss.

The guest of the evening is Mrs. Warren C. Whitman of Winchester. She is going to give a one act play called, "The Dust of the Road," by Kenneth Goodman. All those who are interested in plays will certainly enjoy this.

Another idea which is in the bud for young dramatists is the Congo Work Shop, which is a new club for high school young people. As soon as there are enough to start work, this junior dramatic society will start producing plays. You don't have to be an experienced actor or actress. In fact, you may never have acted before, but would like to. Here is your chance to join an informal, happy group who are acting for their own enjoyment. Kirby Thwing will take the names of those interested.

Don't forget the meeting Sunday. We know you'll love it, so come down and prove that we're right. Activities start at 6 o'clock.

PILATE'S DAUGHTER AGAIN DRAWS GREAT CROWDS

America's oldest passion play is again being staged at the Mission Church in Roxbury. This famous Lenten drama starts its 33rd season. Today it still exercises the same ennobling influence that characterized its production years ago. A gifted cast, composed of young people of the Mission Hill district, will present 27 performances during Lent, from March 6 to April 17. These performances take place on every Sunday afternoon and every Wednesday and Thursday evening. The spacious St. Alphonsus Hall connected with the Mission Church in Roxbury has been renovated to accommodate additional crowds this season. Last year over 2000 were turned away.

Tickets for the play may be procured by mail to Pilate's Daughter Ticket Office, Mission Church, Roxbury, or by phone, Highlands 4500.

HEART TO HEART TALKS

By Eugene Bertram Willard

One of the enormous values of belief in the immortality of the soul is that it makes men better here on earth. Remove belief in life beyond the grave and what a wild lot men would be! Crime would be far more rampant than it is and the story of man's inhumanity to man would be too dreadful to think of. So it comes that life beyond the grave has a great deal to do with how we live while here on earth, makes the most of us far better than we would be otherwise.

We cannot forget these lines of Matthew Arnold:

"We live no more when we have done our span.
'Well, then, for Christ,' thou answereth, 'Who can care?'
From sin, which heaven records not, why forbear?
Live we like brutes our lives without a plan!"
So answereth thou! but why not rather say:
'Hath man no second life?—Pitch this one high.'

We can hardly find cause to quarrel with the lofty principle embodied in Arnold's lines, but for most of us it is a counsel of perfection. For man does think of the consequences of his acts, and he is controlled more or less in his conduct by the thought. If he believes that whatever he does has, or may have eternal consequences, he is likely to be mighty careful about the manner of life he lives here. That is the reason we find belief in a life beyond the grave having such a direct, and such a terribly important influence on human conduct.

The man who believes in the immortality of the soul has a tremendous advantage over the man who does not take any stock in it. But that advantage imposes a great responsibility, and a responsibility of the weightiest character. For as a recent theological writer says "if a man knows that righteousness in this life will bring a happy life hereafter, and still chooses to live as a beast, he will be more severely judged than the man who lives as a beast, but who has no conception whatever of a life beyond the grave."

EPWORTH LEAGUES TO HAVE GOSPEL TEAM

Following the very successful Comradship Week of the Epworth Leagues of the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church the young people are to have a gospel team from Boston University School of Theology to lead them in their worship and their work during the month of March. "Are Ye Able" will be the theme of the month and all the meetings, in keeping with the spirit of the Lenten season, will stress the higher values of life and character to those who are willing to seek them.

The team consists of five young men under the leadership of Jens J. Vander Graff, of Hydro, Oklahoma. The other men are Kendell Scouter, Buffalo, N. Y., Harold Blakley, Woodward, Oklahoma, Howard Busching, Ann Arbor Mich.; and Albert Wiederhold, Helmstedt, Germany. Each of these young men has had experience in young people's work, especially in Epworth League institutes and summer conferences. Mr. Wiederhold has been in this country only one year and a half and will have many interesting things to say to the young people as he compares the life of young people and their religious endeavors in Boston with Germany. The first meeting with the team will be held next Sunday evening at 6 o'clock. A comradship hour will follow the regular meeting.

FASHION SHOW AND TEA

The Mothers' Association of the Wyman School gave a fashion show and tea last Friday for the benefit of its welfare and scholarship fund. A large audience showed an eager and feminine interest in a complete display of clothes for the littlest girl and boy to the smartest young matron, furnished by Filene's, the Sporting Tailors, Inc. and Charlotte Phillips Inc. Shoes were furnished by McLaughlin's.

In the absence of Mrs. Erastus B. Badger, who is chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, Mrs. John H. Joy had the assistance of Mrs. Clarence P. Whorf, Mrs. Edwin R. Rooney, Mrs. H. Newell Squires and Mrs. Horace Butler on arranging the show; Mrs. Earle Spencer had charge of tickets; Mrs. F. Stewart Newton and her committee served a delicious tea in the kindergarten room afterward. Mrs. T. Price Wilson arranged the hall which was colorful with a profusion of spring plants from the Winchester Conservatories. The high runway which is such an effective means of displaying gowns was generously lent by the En Ka Society.

PAST NOBLE GRAND SERVICE CLUB

The Past Noble Grands Service Club of Victoria Rebekah Lodge, 178, I. O. O. F. held their monthly meeting Tuesday evening with Sister Mildred Winters, P.N.G., at her home on Wedge Pond road. At this meeting plans were underway for the club's visit to the I. O. O. F. Home in Worcester in May, at which time the club will present a short sketch for the old folks. Their play, "No Men Admitted," which caused such hearty applause and comment will be repeated on March 23, in Association Building, Vine street. On this day the Winchester ladies will be hostesses for Eastern Middlesex P. N. G.'s Association on their annual guest day. Sister Ella Good, P. N. G. of the Winchester Lodge is president of the Association.

Rebekah Assembly Officers and officers of every P. N. G. Association throughout the State will be present for the meeting banquet and entertainment.

A beano party was held after the meeting and the hostesses served a delicious lunch. The next meeting will be election and installation of officers.

PARENTS AND TEACHERS MEET

College Entrance Requirements Subject of Conference

On Tuesday evening, March 5, in the high school auditorium, the College section of the High School Parent-Teacher organization participated in a highly instructive conference on the subject of College entrance conditions. The significance of the topic was emphasized by several practical demonstrations of existing conditions.

The meeting was divided into three units. The first part was devoted to student demonstrations of the work now being done in school. This was introduced by Miss Palmer, who explained how the study of Mathematics has changed during the past generation. Her talk was illustrated by two senior boys and four junior girls who spoke on the subjects of trigonometry and geometry respectively.

The work in physics was ably demonstrated by Richard Leghorn, who performed the interesting chemic luminescence experiment.

Nancy Jackson effectively explained the methods of study of history today.

The major topic of the evening, "College Entrance Units" was presented by Mr. Grindle. He outlined the general problem clearly and explained many perplexing details.

The remainder of the evening was given over to personal conferences between parents and teachers.

HOWARD WALKER

Howard Walker, widely known in business circles and particularly to the textile industry, died suddenly Saturday afternoon, March 2, at his home, 4 Lakeview terrace, of a heart attack which followed a day's illness.

Mr. Walker was 55 years old and a native of Chelsea, the son of James and Adelaide Walker. He was educated in the Chelsea schools and had been for many years identified with the textile business, at the time of his death being president of the Walker Dyeing and Bleaching Company of Chelsea. He was a prominent Mason, a member of Star of Bethlehem Lodge, Royal Arch Chapter of Shekina, Napthali Council, Palestine Commandery, of which he was past commander; Scottish Rites bodies and Aleppo Temple of the Mystic Shrine. He was widely known and esteemed in Chelsea where he was past president of the Rotary. He had made his home in Winchester since 1917.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Wyla Walker, and a brother, Chester S. Walker of Cambridge, with whom he was associated in business.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon at the late residence with Rev. George Hale Reed, minister of the Unitarian Church, officiating. Interment was in Forest Hills Cemetery.

GOOD COMPANY

Mrs. L W, who put her telephone in for protection when she was ill, discovered it has an every-day value even greater:

"You can't imagine how much I've enjoyed being able to talk to my friends whenever anything happens, or if I feel lonesome. You can say all you want to about how the telephone protects a person, or saves steps or is convenient. That's all very true, but what counts most with me is the human companionship it always provides."

Telephone service adapts itself amazingly to your personal demands . . . for some people "keeping in touch" . . . for others "protecting" . . . for others—well, write your own ticket. The telephone responds to your wishes.

TELEPHONE NUMBER 0029

A recent candidate for election to town office was amazed at the number of friends he encountered who did not even know Winchester was electing its officers! He states that he came in contact with many residents who were ignorant of our election. In these days of codes and New Deals, with money flowing like water and billions bandied about like pennies, it is typical of the time. Our money is spent by anyone and everyone, and only those who have none are interested in selecting the spenders. The point is amusingly illustrated in the case of one voter who was asked if she was not going down to vote for the new candidates. She replied, "no, I think not. I am satisfied with Mr. Lochman as Postmaster!"

With the resignation of the "Grand Old Man of the NRA," Gen. Johnson, and now the resignation of S. Clay Williams of the administrative board that succeeded him, our contention that this feature of the New Deal was one of the contributing causes of the present depression and a hinderance to business seems to be recognized. We now read that tentative plans are underway to abandon about 80 per cent of the codes, retaining only about 20 per cent of the "big business" codes. Since the start of this ill-advised and ill-timed adventure there has been practically no recognition of codes and likewise no enforcement as applied to small business. It has been responsible for the failure of many small firms and the profit of many chiseling individuals. It is a pity that it has taken all this time to come to a realization of its depressing influence, and its abandonment does not help those who endeavored to follow its rulings and contributed ill-spared funds for its maintenance.

The agitation is on again to extend the Woburn Parkway through the finest residential section of Winchester again. The scheme has been defeated in previous attempts, but crops up again periodically along with moving pictures, someone evidently being determined to "put it over." Winchester should take heed and not delay in presenting its opposition to the scheme, as the legislative bill has already had its first reading. After the last defeat of this project it looked as though a satisfactory solution could be obtained by carrying the Winchester end of this parkway through to Cambridge street and beyond the Boat Club, where it would meet the Mystic Valley Parkway at the easterly end of the causeway between the Mystic Lakes. Unless Winchester takes active steps, a part of its most attractive residential section is going into the discard. Along with this parkway agitation, it is reported that plans are already prepared to abolish our railroad crossing by erecting a wall through the valley, this dividing the town into two parts and giving every resident opportunity to hear the roar of trains. Both schemes are harmful and should be opposed by the Town.

PROBLEMS IN COLLEGE PREPARATION

March 6, 1935

To the Editor of the Star:

The parents of high school students who failed to attend the meeting at the high school on the evening of March 5 missed a rare opportunity. While the entire program was of high grade, the outstanding feature of the evening was the principal's exposition of the college entrance situation. From the standpoint of one familiar with schools and school problems, I think I can say without reservation that it was one of the most logical and clear-cut statements of the case which I have had the good fortune to hear.

Mr. Grindle, however, with becoming modesty did not avail himself of the opportunity of enumerating many of the difficulties which arise, in connection with entrance to college, entirely beyond his control. One may be termed "change of pace." Everyone familiar with athletics knows that this is often very disconcerting. College examinations have a disquieting way of changing pace. Sometimes they are so "stiff" that they are passed with the greatest difficulty, if at all, and all the good opinion of the community, built up through years of efficient college preparation by the school, unjustly disappears like dew before the morning sun.

Then, too, the inertia of the college versus the constant pressure upon the public secondary school for introduction of an up-to-date program of education to which the taxpaying public is entitled, throws things out of bound. Old, worn-out subject matter is kept in the curriculum because of the college requirements which to the modern child has no interest and little value in the 20th century enviornment, etc.

The whole upshot of the matter is that we ought to treat problems in college preparation with the greatest consideration, realizing that our high school faculty in connection therewith are constantly meeting obstacles over which they have no control.

Yours very truly,
Clinton E. Farnham

CONGRATULATES VOTERS

To the Editor of the Star:

I desire to most heartily congratulate through the columns of the Star the electorate of the Town of Winchester for the marvelous intelligence that they displayed last Monday when they elected two lawyers and an engineer to become members of the honorable Board of Selectmen. I believe that the late Calvin Coolidge's economy will be manifested. Why? Because lawyers make one suit last for several years.

Very truly yours,
Patrick H. Craughwell

CONGRATULATES WINNERS

John H. Gilbody wishes to thank his loyal supporters, and extends his sincere and grateful appreciation for the many votes he received. Congratulations and good luck to the newly elected Selectmen!

Charles S. Jacobs, 8 Winslow road was drawn as juror to serve at the Lowell session of the Superior Civil Court, to appear April 1, 1935.

Charles H. Brown, Precinct 2; Mary H. McMillan, Precinct 5 and Ada J. Davidson, Precinct 1, were appointed to serve as election officers in their respective precincts in place of the regular appointees who were unable to serve at this election.

Michael J. Foley has been granted a license as Auctioneer.

WEST SIDE BOULEVARD AGAIN

The Star is informed that the bill to widen the Woburn Parkway has had its first reading in the Legislature. This fact should interest Winchester since the widening of the Woburn Parkway is believed to be the first step in reviving the scheme, so strongly opposed here when previously proposed, to extend the Parkway through Winchester, substantially through Dartmouth street and Wedgemere avenue, across Church street, through the Witherell property and across Glen road and Everett avenue to the strip of land owned by the State which borders Mystic Lake. A bridge will be erected at the so-called aqueduct, joining the New Parkway with the old, by way of Sandy Beach.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

Much enthusiasm is prevailing within the limits of all branches of the Massachusetts Catholic Women's Guild for the success of the matinee bridge and style show to be conducted at the Copley Plaza Hotel on Saturday afernoon, April 13. Proceeds from the affair are to be contributed to the Holy Ghost Hospital.

The regular meeting for March will be held March 14, at the home of the regent, Mrs. M. C. Ambrose. Tables may be reserved for the bridge by calling Win. 0075 or Win. 0565.

ert A. Reynolds. All were new candidates and none waged a particularly aggressive campaign.

In the contest for Assessor, Frank N. Enman, running for re-election, was easily successful, defeating candidates James A. Cullen and Joseph E. Kelley by substantial margins.

Gleason W. Ryerson was unsuccessful in his attempt to break into the present trio of Constables, Police Chief William H. Rogers, Edward F. Maguire and Michael J. Foley being re-elected.

Aside from those whose names were printed on the ballot James W. Russell and William H. Stinson each got votes for Selectman; Samuel E. Perkins was named for the School Committee; F. Manley Ives, for Moderator; and Daniel Kelley, for Constable.

The total number of votes cast, 3994, exceeded last year's total, 3163, but was smaller than the vote cast two years ago. The last precinct totals were in at 9:30, and the first total received, that from Precinct 5, of which Fred H. Schell is warden, came in ten minutes after the polls closed.

ROTARY CLUB NOTES

Three members were absent from the meeting of March 7. Here is a splendid opportunity for that 100 per cent. meeting which has long been overdue. Forget-us-not!

Since our last gathering there has been a municipal election in our town. It particularly concerns our club to this extent—four of our members have been re-elected to their respective offices, viz: "Billy" Beggs to the Board of Selectmen; George Davidson to the Park Commission as chairman; Frank Enman to the Board of Assessors, and Chief "Bill" Rogers as Constable. Six other members of this club hold public office by virtue of the suffrages of our citizens. These two groups comprise approximately 34 per cent of our membership. And so it is that the Rotary Club of Winchester is a service club in more than one respect. We shall strive to maintain it as a service organization in every sense of the word.

Advices from Irving Symmes who is wintering in Florida, tell us that he is enjoying himself and is improved in health, thanks to the genial sunshine of the southland. And there is an equally warm welcome awaiting him when he returns to our midst.

Two members, Harry Winn, president, and "Nat" Nichols, charioteer, represented our club last night at the charter night ceremonies of the Rotary Club of Attleboro. We extend our heartiest welcome to the latest accession to the 31st District and are confident that the position and influence of the district will be greatly strengthened by the work of this splendid groun of Rotarians.

At this meeting "Jim" Quinn spoke. Which words are few in number but mighty in significance. The genial director of Winchester's Department of Public Schools insists on referring to himself as "Your Schoolmaster." And this designation is doubtless sufficiently correct provided the two last syllables of the term are strongly emphasized. For we, his fellow club members, know that "Jim" speaks entertainingly and clearly that his ideas are constructive and whenever controversial are presented without offense to any of his listeners; and furthermore that he rarely comes before his audience without leaving in the minds of his listeners thoughts which they should ponder deeply. And so when he tells us that the Boy Scouts are in need of assistance we know that this is so, and can confidently bring this statement to the attention of all good citizens and commend them to effective action forthwith. The address closed wih an effective presentation of today's trends in common school education and several valuable suggestions for achieving better results from the time, effort and money expended in the school training of our youth.

We announce at this time and shall again announce next week that our District Governor, Daniel Aldrich, will visit this club on Thursday, March 21, and will bring prominent guests with him. We must, if humanly possible, have a 100 per cent meeting on that date. If any member has a short memory we suggest that he wear a scarlet neck-tie until—March 21.

A FLATTERING PICTURE OF WINCHESTER'S ANIMAL SHELTER

Partly made of corrugated metal, attracting the sun's rays and making it very hot in summer. No chimney for heat in winter. Dirty windows, half wood and shuttered, ill kept surroundings.

N. R. A. sign on door should mean "Now Remember Animals."

Winchester needs a comfortable and sanitary shelter where lost and sick animals can have proper care. Such a building would also provide for animals during the summer in the absence of their owners.

COMMENDS OFFICER MURRAY

March 1, 1935

To the Editor of the Star:

I take this opportunity to write you, and would like to have this recommendation published to show my appreciation of the kindness and courtesy extended me by Officer Murray, when my car was struck by a truck on Washington street, Monday morning, Feb. 25, 1935.

The citizens of Winchester can well be proud of a police officer of this type.

Sincerely yours,
Helen E. Barry,

WHO IS VOTING

Town Meeting Members on the Job

It is reported that the town meeting members, elected officers of the various precincts representing the voters of the town at the limited town meeting, will be checked up this year. In times past some of these representatives of the people have been more or less lax in their attendance, and voters who have been seriously interested in various questions decided have felt that they should have a better representation.

A check-up of town meeting members who voted in the recent town election shows a very good representation, all but 16 out of a total of 229 appearing at the polls and casting their vote.

Of course, while this is an interesting factor, it is not near so important as the attendance at town meeting, and the Star expects to publish these figures also this year.

The number not voting at the town election from the various precincts were as follows:

Precinct 1	2
Precinct 2	1
Precinct 3	3
Precinct 4	4
Precinct 5	2
Precinct 6	3
At Large	1

Government potatoes, cheese and rice will be distributed this afternoon at the Town Hall by the Board of Public Welfare under the direction of Miss Nellie Sullivan.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Hear, O my son, and receive my sayings; and the years of thy life shall be many. . . . My son, attend to my words; incline thine ear unto my sayings. . . . For they are life unto those that find them, and health to all their flesh" (Proverbs 4:10, 20, 22).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Man, governed by immortal Mind, is always beautiful and grand. Each succeeding year unfolds wisdom, beauty, and holiness. Life is eternal. We should find this out, and begin the demonstration thereof. Life and goodness are immortal. Let us then shape our views of existence into loveliness, freshness, and continuity, rather than into age and blight" (p. 246).

Materials Used for Pipes

The principal materials used in making pipes are Algerian briar, meerschaum and amber. The selection of each of these materials requires a practiced eye. Meerschaum is a distinct material found only in Asia Minor and is dug from natural deposits. It is not petrified sea foam, as the name indicates.

MALDEN STRAND THEATER

"Jealousy," with a fine cast including Nancy Carroll, Donald Cook, Inez Courtney, George Murphy, Arthur Hohl and Raymond Walburn, will head the double feature bill opening at the Strand Theater in Malden on Saturday. The film revolves about the experiences of George Murphy as a boxing championship contender who enters the ring for his most important battle distracted by an argument with his fiancee. But that isn't all—the surprise climax is one of the most unusual dramatic tricks ever injected into a motion picture.

"The Merry Frinks" with a prize combed cast including Guy Kibbie, Aline MacMahon, Allen Jenkins, Hugh Herbert, Frankie Darro and Helen Lowell, is the second feature on the bill. This picture is all laughs and concerns the zany antics of the Frink family.

Earle Nelson's Radio Auditions which are held on the stage of the Strand each Tuesday evening is an increasingly popular attraction at this house. Any talented person is eligible to enter these contests by registering at the Strand. The winner of each week's contest is given an opportunity to broadcast over Station WEEI. Singers, dancers, musicians, hill-billies and talent of every description are to be found in these Radio Auditions and many of them are surprisingly good.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

Myrna Loy and Cary Grant in "Wings in the Day," and "Carnival" starring Lee Tracy and Sally Eilers, will be the double feature program opening at the palatial Granada Theater in Malden on Saturday. In "Wings in the Dark," Myrna Loy is cast as a head-line hunting, thrill seeking aviatrix, while Grant acts in the role of a scientist of the air. The two are first brought together when Miss Loy's brazen attempt to cash in on the publicity of Grant's trans-Atlantic flight forces his withdrawal from the project.

"Carnival" concerns the adventures of Lee Tracy after the death of his wife. He has a child and the grandparents attempt to obtain custody of parents attept to obtain custody of the youngster. Tracy runs a traveling carnival with Sally Eilers as his piano player and Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante as his handy man. Tracy, ably abetted by Miss Eilers and Durante keep one step ahead of the welfare workers.

MYSTIC THEATER, MALDEN, ATTRACTIONS

"Upper World," based on the smashing story of "how the other half lives" is scheduled as the feature attraction at the Mystic Theater, Malden, starting Saturday, March 9. Hecht has shown in this story that the two worlds ("Underworld" and "Upper World"), are not so far separated and adventure, philandering, bloodshed and crime are as likely to be found in high society as in the world of crooks and gangsters. The strong cast is headed by Warren William in the role of a multi-millionaire who longs for the society of his beautiful wife, played by Mary Astor, who neglects him to foster her social career. This neglect leads him into an affair with a chorus girl enacted by the popular Ginger Rogers. Andy Devine, the husky-voiced comedian, lends a laughable touch to the otherwise thrilling drama. Little Dickie Moore, Robert Barrat and other favorite character actors complete the cast.

The screen version of the stage success "Evergreen" will be the second feature at the Mystic Theater next week. The star of the picture, the beautiful and talented Jessie Matthews. She has a beautiful voice and dances with an amazing grace.

"THE LIVES OF A BENGAL LANCER" AT THE UNIVERSITY

"The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" starts Sunday for four days at the University Theater. Featuring Gary Cooper, Franchot Tone, Richard Cromwell and Sir Guy Standing in the principal roles, "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" is a stirring, colorful and action-crammed story of the exploits and adventures of England's Colonial soldiers in India.

In the title role of "Father Brown, Detective," the companion picture, Walter Connolly brings to the screen the amiable, loveable and eccentric amateur detective, made familiar to millions of readers by the G. K. Chesterton stories which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post.

Hailed as one of the great dramatic and historical screen presentations of the age, "The Iron Duke," starring George Arliss as Wellington, and dealing with the Hundred Days Cycle of Bonaparte, Napoleon's fall from power and his final defeat on the plains of Waterloo, comes Thursday. Mr. George Arliss is said to consider the role of Wellington one of his finest contributions to the screen.

"The Gilded Lily," the companion picture starring Claudette Colbert, is a romantic and frothy comedy. Assisted by Fred MacMurray and Ray Milland in the principal supporting roles, Miss Colbert is cast as a pretty stenographer who is dead set against marrying a millionaire.

TO PARENTS AND FRIENDS OF SCOUTS

Winchester Scouting needs support. Scouting should mean a great deal to your boy. If you would apply an active interest in this field, it might mean even more to your boy. If you wish information regarding Scouting, or if you would be willing to volunteer some of your time in an advisory capacity or as a leader, we would welcome your assistance, and urge you to get in touch with Dr. Richard J. Clark, Chairman of the Winchester District Committee, or your own boys' Scoutmaster.

The amount paid by each boy per week does not cover the cost of Scout camp for him. The running of Scouting during the year is in no way cared for by the yearly 50 cent registration, which goes to the National organization. If you possibly can, will you pay the costs for your own boy which is about $10 a year? It is well worth it.

To friends, there are many boys whose families cannot pay the costs for their boys, or send them to camp. These boys often need it the most. Will you adopt one or more boys for the year? It will be worth while for you.

Contributions may be mailed to Mr. John Terry, Treasurer, Winchester Boy Scouts, 12 Euclid avenue, Winchester.

PARISH PLAYERS GIVE DANCE

On Tuesday evening a very successful dance was held in the parish hall of the First Congregational Church under the auspices of the Parish Players.

The hall was tastefully decorated with Japanese lanterns and flags of many nations and these, together with the palms and flowers and the tables with their bright covers, made a very attractive setting for the dancers.

For those who did not wish to dance there were tables of bridge in the foyer.

Coffee and sandwiches were served during the evening by most attractive young ladies in Italian peasant costume.

Blake's Orchestra furnished some of the best dance music heard in Winchester for some time. Dancing continued until 1 o'clock and even then it was with reluctance that the party broke up.

There were several dinner parties preceding the dance. Among those who entertained were: Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Caldwell, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. B. Smith, Dr. and Mrs. F. Milne Blanchard, Dr. and Mrs. Howard J. Chidley, Dr. and Mrs. Wm. Gilpatric, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Symmes.

The Players wish to thank the Winchester Conservatories for the palms and flowers and the Mouradian Rug Company for the rugs used in decoration.

Once again the Parish Players have scored a hit, this time off the stage.

OPEN HOUSE FOR THE BATES COLLEGE CLUB OF BOSTON

On Saturday, March 2, Mrs. Warren C. Whitman held open house, at her new home on Prospect street, for the Bates Alumnae Club of Boston. A desert luncheon was served and after a short business meeting, presided over by Mrs. E. V. Lovely of Andover, the president, an musicale followed.

The artiste of the afternoon, Mary Ranton Witham, whose splendid academic record which gave her a Cum Laude from Radcliffe, in addition to a Cum Laude in music from Harvard (an honor received by a woman only once in 25 years) received from an audience fully aware of the significance of these honors, the utmost admiration and appreciation. Her touch, now masterly and vibrant, now delicate and gentle, appealed to both heart and intellect. Her music was eloquent of charm and courage, of fire and gaiety, of solace and tenderness. Its warmth of color and tone, its depth and sincerity of feeling swept her audience into a realm of enchantment.

Mrs. Witham's program was as follows: a group of Waltzes by Brahms; Prelude by MacDowell; Song Without Words by Mendelssohn.

An original composition by Mrs. Witham was enthusiastically applauded. Encores were most generously given.

In response to requests from her guests, Mrs. Witham sang a number of spring songs and a group of humorous poems.

OVIDE LAFLEUR

Ovide Lafleur of 270 Washington street, a widely known resident of Winchester for the past 50 years, died Friday afternoon, March 1, in the Winchester Hospital after a week's illness.

Mr. LaFleur was born 71 years ago in St. Gilliaume, Canada. He received his education and spent his early life there coming directly from that place to Winchester a half century ago.

During his active life he was employed by the Whitney Machine Company, retiring when the business left Winchester. His long residence and pleasing personality made him many friends throughout the town and he was well known in fraternal circles, being a member of Winchester Lodge, 1415, B. P. O. E.; and Cambridge Council, 74 Knights of Columbus.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Frances A. (Rhode) Lafleur, a daughter, Mrs. Josephine Dimcwell of Winchester; four sisters, Sister St. Gilliaume of St. Regis Academy, Berlin, N. H., Mrs. Elise Burke of Worcester, Mrs. Alphonsine Taillon of Bristol, Conn.; and Mrs. Marie Fontaine of St. Gilbaume, Canada; also four brothers, Onasime and Leo of Holyoke, George of Worcester; and Napoleon Lafleur of New York City.

Elks' funeral services were held at the late residence on Sunday evening and were conducted by the officers of Winchester Lodge under the direction of Exalted Ruler Arthur J. Darty. A requiem funeral mass was celebrated Monday morning in St. Mary's Church by Rev. Fr. Conrad J. Quirbach. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

First School of Politics Well Attended—Henry Cabot Lodge, Raymond S. Wilkins, Mrs. Stephen Perkins Hurd, Francis Russell and Joseph E. Warner Discuss Important Issues

The first all day meeting or School of Politics held by the Winchester Women's Republican Club was indeed interesting and well attended on Wednesday of this week in Waterfield Hall.. The Education Committee, Mrs. Ashley K. Hayden, acting chairman, gave to club members and guests a program from 10:30 a. m. until 4:30 p. m.

The president, Mrs. C. Harold Smith, opened the meeting with the singing of one verse of "My Country 'Tis of Thee" and the salute to the flag. Mrs. Smith extended cordial greetings to the large audience and stressed emphatically the need for women to be well informed on current issues. She turned the meeting over to Mrs. Hayden, who introduced Mr. Raymond S. Wilkins, chairman of the Finance Committee of Winchester and Selectman-elect. Mr. Wilkins gave a most interesting and comprehensive talk on Town Finance. It was gratifying to the audience to hear details regarding how money is spent, collected and disbursed in this town. Mr. Wilkins' talk was excellent for its clarity, while his wit and humor gave even the subject of finance a humane aspect.

Following Mr. Wilkins, Mrs. Hayden introduced the next speaker, the well informed and popular Rep. Henry Cabot Lodge. Mr. Lodge spoke in praise of Rep. William E. Ramsdell of Winchester, whose outstanding ability and untiring effort are fully appreciated in the Legislature. Mr. Lodge chose as his subject "The Preservation of Peace." He said that the most important event, from the point of view of world peace, in the past few months was the withdrawal of Japan from the naval treaty. After the World War foreign nations, exhausted by war, were anxious for limitation of naval armaments lest the United States outstrip them. The Washington and then the London Conference fixed the ratio 10—10—6 between Great Britain, United States and Japan. By 1930 Great Britain and Japan had built their navies up to the limit but the United States had not. Japan now wants equality in tonnage with the United States. His brilliant discussion, interspersed with interesting personal experience and a pleasing delivery, made Henry Cabot Lodge's presentation of this problem one of the high lights of the morning session.

The morning session closed with a stirring talk by Mrs. Stephen Perkins Hurd of Worcester, chairman of the Activities Committee of the Massachusetts Women's Republican Club. Mrs. Hurd presented in her "Current Thought on Major Problems" the expressions of opinions of three people prominent in the news of the day. Mrs. Hurd is a forceful speaker and she strongly urged at the close of her talk a revival of faith and belief in the principles for which the Republican Party stands and a firm course of resistance to what we can not endorse and believe.

The hall was attractively decorated with spring plants on the stage and lovely boquets of spring flowers on the luncheon tables at the rear. The dainty luncheon, served by the Social Committee, Mrs. F. W. Aseltine, chairman, assisted by members of the Education Committee, was a delightful part of the day. During luncheon the Winchester Trio played many lovely selections and added greatly to the enjoyment of this part of the program.

Luncheon speakers included Mr. Harris Richardson, chairman of the Republican Town Committee, who spoke briefly on the splendid work, which this club had done, on the importance of getting voters registered and the need for organization, especially the need to get the youth of the town organized. He introduced Mr. Marr, chairman of the Republican State Committee, who told something of the work of this body. Mrs. Clara Snyder, a member of the State Committee, was the next speaker. She called the attention of club members to a bill coming before the Legislature Section 30A regarding the requirement that all persons applying for teaching positions must swear allegiance to the United States, honor its flag and uphold the laws of state and nation. Mrs. Snyder spoke with clarity and vision of the problems facing us and explained what we must do to solve our problems. Mrs. Wilma Johnson and Miss Esther Bailey, presidents of the Medford and Arlington Women's Republican Clubs, respectively, brought greetings and spoke briefly of the work of these clubs.

The business meeting began a: 2:30 p. m. and was followed by a musical program, presented by the popular Winchester Trio, consisting of Mary Ranton Witham, pianist: Helena Sibley, violinist and Vida Rhode, cellist, who rendered their selections with a skilled artistry and finished technique. The trio numbers included "Berceuse" from Nonre Anita by Ijinsky and Macdowell's "To a Wild Rose" and "In Autumn." The hearty applause told how greatly the audience enjoyed these artists. The four-handed piano numbers "Fascinating Maniken" and "Polly" by Helena Sibley and Vida Rhode with their gay and lilting airs seemed especially pleasing.

Mrs. Hayden introduced as first speaker of the afternoon session Mr. Francis H. Russell, popular University Extension Lecturer and member of the board of directors of the League of Nations Association, whose topic was "International Affairs." Mr. Russell opened his discussion by saying that the most important happening of today, which will be noticed in the years to come, is the part the United States will play in world affairs.

The last speaker of the afternoon was Joseph E. Warner, former attorney general of Massachusetts, who had for his topic "The Crime Situation." Mr. Warner defined crime as any anti-social act and said the question was what we were going to do about it and how we were going to do it. There are five aspects to the crime problem—the prevention of crime, the detection of crime, the apprehension of the criminal, the prosecution of the criminal and the correction of the criminal.

The club is indebted to Mrs. Hayden, acting chairman of the Education Committee, to the Education and Social Committees and to our president, Mrs. C. Harold Smith, whose untiring efforts made possible a program of such outstanding excellence. It was indeed a splendid opportunity for the residents of Winchester to hear so clearly and efficiently discussed by speakers of note town, national and international problems in which we are vitally interested.

DOG DROWNED IN MYSTIC LAKE

An English bull terrier was drowned in Mystic Lake last Friday afternoon when he became exhausted from struggling to free himself from the water after breaking through the ice about 100 feet from the Parkway shore near the so-called aqueduct about opposite Niles lane.

Police Headquarters was notified shortly before 4:30 by Mrs. Rosamond Bowes of Niles lane that she could hear a dog barking near the aqueduct and was afraid some one had broken through the ice. Patrolmen Henry Dempsey and John Hogan went to investigate and upon their arrival found Mr. Bowes and Frank Porter attempting to reach the struggling animal with the aid of a ladder.

Porter went out on the ladder, but the ice broke under him and he was obliged to return. The dog was nearly exhausted when the police arrived, and the ice was not thick enough to permit any of the rescuers to get near enough to reach him.

The officers threw out a life preserver and attempted to pull him from the hole but the dog was too tired to cling to the preserver and slipping from it, disappeared from sight. The police notified its owner, Mr. Clifford Roberts, 21 Sheffield west.

WHY 'blue coal' IS EASIEST TO USE

DOESN'T FLARE UP ONE MINUTE-DIE DOWN THE NEXT

REASON NO. 24

'blue coal' is not a flashy type of fuel that burns fiercely for a few minutes and then dies down completely. Nor does it require a lot of coaxing and pampering. 'blue coal' is a square fracture, medium free burning anthracite—neither too hard nor too soft. It starts up fast with little draft—burns steadily and evenly for hours and hours with very little attention. But you won't appreciate this convenience—this ease of control until you've actually burned 'blue coal'. So order a supply today. We'll deliver it right when you want it.

Streets Are Skidless

Rome has some streets that are practically skidless. They are paved with tiles that are baked hard and are three-cornered in shape with projections on the upper surface.

EARLY SCROLLS LINK CHINESE AREA WITH BABYLON

In Central Asia, scientists agree, many "missing chapters" in the story of mankind await explorers who are courageous, or lucky enough to escape the bandit hordes, earthquakes and pestilence that render the area less accessible to the foreigner than the far away Antarctic.

A cable dispatch from Lanchow, in western China, reports that hundreds of rolls of Buddhist classics, musty with age, were recently dug up in the wind-swept courtyard of a monastery that flourished more than 1500 years ago. The scrolls, written in both Sanskrit and Chinese, mention a far away city, believed to have been Babylon; but, more important, bits of pottery, strikingly similar to the earthenware then in use in Mesopotamia, were found near the scrolls.

The ruins of this monastery were discovered accidentally by a Taoist monk about 30 years ago. Struggling through the sand dunes of the Tung Huang district, he came upon what appeared to be a brass table top. Later excavation revealed it to be the crown of a huge statue of Buddha, with the monastery and sacred caves near-by.

Findings of a Geographic Expedition

During its tractor-car crossing of Asia along the trail of Marco Polo in 1932, the Citroen-Haardt Expedition studied another of Central Asia's most interesting ancient sites—Bazaklik, in Sinkiang (Chinese Turkestan), a few hundred miles west of the scene of the recent Lanchow discoveries.

Dr. Maynard Owen Williams, National Geographic Society representative with the Citroen-Haardt Expedition, describes the experiences of an archeological group which spent more than a week studying and reproducing strange frescoes and cave temples of this hidden corner of the world.

We spent eight busy days in the vicinity of Bazaklik, Dr. Williams writes, while Jacovleff, the expedition artist, with a gasoline heater keeping his color palette from freezing, copied frescoes and the rest of us shivered in dark, dusty caverns behind our motion picture and natural color cameras.

In Bazaklik we found that excavated grottoes bearing Uigur inscriptions had been taken over by the Buddhists, who roofed them with mud bricks, forming new arched ceilings. One fresco was evidently Manichean—an escetic religion, founded by a Babylonian, which spread to Rome, China and India. Mani taught that light and goodness fought against darkness and evil in the souls of men.

Original Fresco Badly Damaged

As copied by Jacovleff, the Manichean frescoe has something of the delicacy and charm of a back drop from some graceful scene of oriental life but the faded original was dark and badly damaged and the writing indistinct.

How long a time elapsed between the Manichean and the Buddhist frescoes is still a mystery, as is much of Central Asia's story, but there is enough Buddhist art remaining to indicate relationships reaching far to the west and south. Chinese art seems the west and south. Chinese are seems not to have influenced the Bazaklik frescoes.

A celestial jazz band, a Mona Lisa smile, a bull-riding Siva, and a red-bearded barbarian were clear enough to have popular interest. These blue-eyed barbarians held up their soft boots by suspenders, fastened to their belts. So did the Scythians and others whose graves mark a route from Crimea, on the Black Sea, to Mongolia. Here history may not hang by a thread, but these boot-suspenders offer another clue to since-forgotten Indo-European relations and commerce with Cathay.

Not only commerce, but art and religion, politics and wood block type (one of the rudiments of printing), moved along the age-old Silk Routes between East and West, recalled today only by neglected ruins and lost monasteries and shrines.

OBSERVATIONS

(By the Observer)

We know a certain narrow-minded fellow here in Winchester who is never jolted so much as he is when he is forced to admit that he is in the wrong.

How many remember the old days when the women used to make quite a job of climbing into the buggy?

We hate like the very dickens to have to say it but we know a woman in this town whose long tongue is often responsible for her shortness of breath.

Most of the things that are to be had for the asking benefit the giver more than the receiver.

"There go two members of the Winchester fast set," whispered a suspicious woman to another as two of our young folk walked through Winchester square.

Fame frequently costs more than it is worth.

The Star hates to receive anonymous letters with no identifying marks. All newspapers get them now and then. The newspaper belongs to all the people of Winchester but be sure and sign your name to your letters and the name will be withheld from publication if so requested.

With her upright piano a certain girl here in Winchester is having a downright good time—but the neighbors can't.

A Winchester woman agreed with her husband on one thing. When he made a mistake and apologized she agreed that he was wrong, as usual.

During these days of fast living, fast motoring and fast love making, it is refreshing to meet one of Winchester's old-fashioned, sweet-tempered women who are in no hurry. And this town is blessed with a number of such dear souls.

A scientist now tells us that sleep talking is a dangerous practice. Dangerous is right. Ask any married man in Winchester or out of it.

An expert says there are no perfect eyes. Piffle! He should come to fair Winchester and see our high school girls as they wend their way to an fro in town.

A Winchesterite is foolish to borrow trouble if he can find a fellow townsman foolish enough to lend him money.

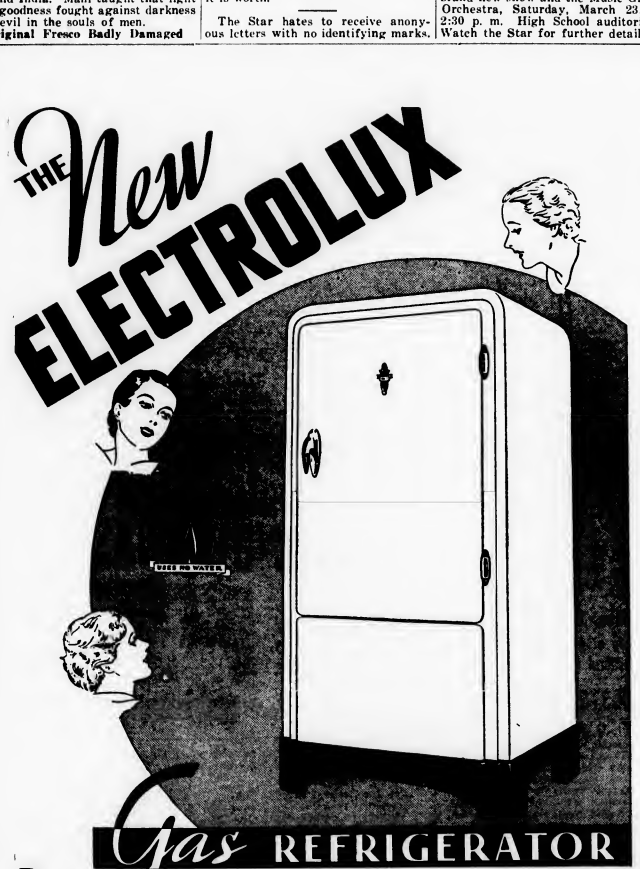

Some people here in Winchester who are in love imagine that they fool other people.

ANNUAL HIGH SCHOOL VAUDEVILL SHOW TONIGHT IN AUDITORIUM

Tonight is a big night for about 75 high school students who are connected with the annual A. A. Vaudeville Show. Tonight is a bigger night for everyone who plans to be in the auditorium as the curtains part on an evening of fine entertainment. This show will be bigger and better than any of the previous ones, primarily because there has been such an abundance of clever talent—so much, in fact, that many acts could not be used. Secondly, the A. A. executives, Miss Loysen and Mr. Mansfield, have concentrated all their energies on the successful production of this show, and we feel, without a doubt, that their hopes will be realized.

Wednesday, a preview of what is coming was presented before the school and was most enthusiastically received. Harriet Pilkington and Betty Jennings gave a short exhibition of tap dancing. The four freshmen Hill-billies sang "We Like Mountain Music" to the delight of the audience. John Plumer gave a brief foretaste of his take-offs, and he all but brought the roof down. Norris Chevalier gave one of her famous and popular monologues for which she has a talent all her own. Lester Gustin was master-of-ceremonies and introduced these and many other fleeting glimpses of tonight's show.

You're coming to this event in high school activities, aren't you? It is to benefit the W. H. S. Athletic Association, but more than that, it helps the students in giving them a chance to exercise their talents. If someone you know is to be in it, come and give him some moral support; if not, come and see what amateur performers can do to produce an almost professional show. Anyway, come. The time is 7:45, tickets sell for 50 cents to adults and 25 cents to students. The date is tonight in the High School Auditorium.

Science Club

Friday afternoon, March 1, a large private bus departed from the high school bearing 34 light-hearted members of the serious Science Club. The trip terminated at the Hood's Charlestown Dairy Plant, where, under the guidance of three experts, each member not only learned how milk and milk products are prepared in a modern milk plant, but also found, by means of samples which were generous, how these products taste.

Coach Mansfield Defines a Square Shooter

Coach Mansfield, who appeared as guest speaker at the meeting of the Metcalf Union, last Sunday evening, proved one of the most entertaining, yet worth while speakers of the year.

In speaking of sports as character builders, he pointed out that a man who learns to play fairly on the diamond, field, or court, learns to be a square shooter in everyday life.

Election of Captain

On last Friday the members of the first team elected Daniel "Slicker" Coss as captain of next year's basketball team. "Slicker" is a sophomore and also plays football and baseball. He has played varsity basketball for the past two years. He was the 10th highest scorer in the Middlesex League this past season. "Slicker" is not only popular with the members of the basketball squad but also with the student body.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR

Spring Bridge and Fashion Show

Each year in the spring a young man's fancy may turn to love but a woman's fancy turns to her second love, clothes. Fortunate, indeed, were the 200 women who filled the ball room of the Winchester Country Club on last Friday afternoon, to see the unusual parade of 1935 styles offered by Dame Fashion. Every spring the Winchester Chapter of the Guild of the Infant Savior have a bridge and fashion show to help finance their many charities and this year's affair proved to be outstanding in its success.

At noon a delicious luncheon was served to 68, among them many hostesses who were entertaining out-of-town guests. Mrs. Michael Hintlian, president of Winchester Chapter, had several officers of the Boston Guild at her table. Mrs. Virgil Ghirardini had as her guests Mrs. Hartley Rowe and daughter, Miss Margaret of Newton Center. Also, with Mrs. Ghirardini was her sister, Mrs. Trygue Miller of Milton. Mrs. James Gaffney and daughter, Collette, had several guests from Everett and Revere. Mrs. J. Edward Downes, Mrs. Louis Chevalier, Miss Mary Lyons, Miss Mary Beler, Mrs. Thomas Hennessy, Mrs. Franklin Evans, Mrs. Patrick Walsh and others were among the many hostesses.

Preceding the bridge games a word of greeting was extended to all present by the president. She also thanked all who, by hearty co-operation had made the day such a success.

At each table was an attractively celophane wrapped prize which later proved to be a candy jar filled with home made candied orange and grapefruit peel.

A beautiful oil painting donated by Gertrude Martin Tousberg, whose work has been accepted by the Worcester Art Association was exhibited and won by Mrs. Walter A. Cott of Lakeview road.

At 3:45 refreshments were served and at 4 o'clock the fashion show commenced. Through the untiring work of Miss Mary Lyons, who so efficiently selected her models and made all arrangements pertaining to this event, this afternoon's array of styles was the most attractive ever displayed. Mrs. McGee, assistant manager of Wethern's presented the smartest and latest in wearing apparel. Sixty lovely models were shown, sports wear, afternoon dresses, cocktail and bridge ensembles and evening dresses and wraps.

The bridal party was the most beautiful. While the Edson L. Kimball orchestra played the wedding march, Miss Patricia Croughwell as maid-of-honor in a blue net gown finished with tiers of ruffles and wearing a leghorn hat trimmed with forget-me-nots, started the wedding procession. Following her came Ruth Loftus and Barbara Hickey, attired alike in pink net and wearing huge leghorn hats trimmed in dainty pink flowers. The second pair of brides-maids were Norris Chevalier and Rita Moffett, in blue, following the same style of net with ruffles and leghorn hats. The bride, Miss Rose Cecelia Hennessy, was most attractive with her titian hair, in her white satin gown and tulle veil. She carried calla lilies while the attendants all carried pink roses. Mrs. Theodore Dissel as the bride's mother was gowned in black lace with ecru lace bodice and Mrs. Herbert N. Dawes among the guests was stunning in black with coin size gold dot, with a wide red sash which ended with the train. Mrs. Daniel J. Kelley, also, represented one of the guests and was gowned in a fuscia and white blocked material with a fuscia lined sash. Miss Eileen O'Leary was unusually attractive in jade green with a gold thread worked in the material and buttoned to the neck with gold buttons. Quite charming and sophisticated was Nan Scully in an Aqua blue bridge gown with matching jacket and wearing a huge pink hat. Mrs. James Gaffney was so fetching in a white knit suit with red hat, bag and slippers and her daughter Colette modeled a distinguished cocktail dress of bright red crepe having a tight jacket of the same material. Mrs. A. H. L. DeMorris was most lovely in a white satin gown with large black figures, with a slight train. A soft color was added by an unusual pair of blue ear rings. This gown also had a matching coat. Mrs. Nora McCarthy in a blue lace dinner gown was most nonchalant. Mrs. Leslie M. Cox in a trim sport ensemble "gracing the deck" gave us all ideas about what the well-dressed vacationist will wear.

Regular Meeting

The next regular meeting will be held on Tuesday, March 12 at 2:30 at Lyceum Hall. Mrs. Francis Mullin will be program chairman for the afternoon. Miss Mary Dacy from the Leland-Powers School will entertain with readings and Mrs. George Arthur White of Cambridge, soprano, will furnish the musical program.

Lecture

Miss Ellen Reilly, who will give her musicale talk, "Song Lure of Many Nations" on Friday morning at the home of Mrs. Thomas Hennessy, 12 Salisbury road, needs no introduction to Winchester. Aside from the wonderful educational value of Miss Reilly's program it is most entertaining. To promote her work along this line Miss Reilly spends many hours in the homes of foreign born, studying their folk songs first hand. This personal research work and study is bringing Miss Reilly into recognition as an authority on folk songs.

Coffee will be served one half hour preceding the lecture, which will begin promptly at 10:30.

JUNIOR C. D. OF A. DRAMATICS

On Friday evening, March 1, the Dramatic Club of the Junior C. D. of A. presented its first entertainment to an enthusiastic audience in Association Hall on Vine street. The three act comedy, "Breezy Point" proved a most successful vehicle for these young ladies, who scored a decided hit. Each girl performed her part exceptionally well, but Miss Mary Humphrey as "Ashrael" deserves special mention for a fine characterization and Miss Marguerite Shea also made her part as "Edith" very real and delightful. The twins, "Sophia" and "Bethia" played by Polly Kenton and Christine Flaherty also came in for a good share applause.

The scene of Acts 1 and 3 was in Aunt Debby's living room and Act 2 out of doors at camp.

Cast of characters were:

Ashrael	Mary Humphrey
Aunt Debby	Elizabeth Grant
Fantine	Rosalie Cyr
Eleanor	Katherine Hanley
Old Gypsy Clem	Margaret King
Bernice	Genevieve Shea
Laura	Irene Kenton
Edith	Marguerite Shea
Clarice	Rita Moffett
Mehitable	Victoria Johnson
Mrs. Hardscratch	Marguerite Costello
Sophia	Polly Kenton
Bethia	Christine Flaherty

Music

Piano—Bernice Connell
Dancer—Dorothy Rowen
Voices—Ethel Kerrigan, Margaret McNally, Alice Kerrigan, Peggy Shinnack.

Entertainment between the acts was furnished by Miss Dorothy Rowen in clever variations of the tap dance and Miss Genevieve Shea, who has a sweet and pleasing voice, sang several solos. Miss Bernice Connell of Stoneham assisted at the piano.

The credit for the success of the entire affair goes to the clever little coach, Mrs. Genevieve Elwell, whose untiring efforts and attention to detail resulted in a very finished production.

Following the entertainment, general dancing was enjoyed by young and old, and the guests departed at a late hour, anticipating with pleasure future entertainment by the Junior Court C. D. of A.

HISTORY OF ST. MARY'S PARISH

(The following sketch will prove of interest in view of the 50th Anniversary Celebration of the Parish this week)

When, in 1850, Winchester was incorporated as a town, there was no Catholic Church in this vicinity. The people of Winchester attended services in St. Charles' Church, Woburn. Up to 1867 this had been a mission of St. Peter's in Cambridge.

In 1867 when St. Charles was set apart as a separate parish, the Rev. Father McCarthy was appointed its first resident pastor. A few months later he was succeeded by the Rev. John Quealy. In 1874 a small frame chapel was erected in Winchester on the site of its present Winchester. On Christmas Day, 1875, Mass was celebrated here for the first time by the Rev. Edward F. McClure, at that time assistant to Father Quealy.

In 1876, the Rev. Cornelius O'Connor was appointed first resident pastor of St. Mary's, Winchester, and took up his residence at the corner of Bridge and Washington streets. His first assistant was the Rev. John D. Colbert.

During his pastorate, Fr. O'Connor built St. Joseph's Church in Montvale and attended it as a mission. In 1906 it became a separate parish with the Rev. Patrick T. Higgins as its first pastor.

The Rev. Patrick J. Daly became the second pastor of St. Mary's in 1882 and purchased the estate on the corner of Eaton and Washington streets, as a new parochial residence. He also enlarged the church by extending its sanctuary and adding to the seating capacity of the auditorium to meet the demands of the growing parish.

In 1888 Father Daly was appointed to St. Francis de Sales Church, Roxbury, and the Rev. William O'Brien came as pastor to Winchester. Father O'Brien purchased a small parcel of land on the corner of Dunham and Washington streets, where St. Mary's Parochial School now stands. He died in 1893 and was succeeded by the Rev. Henry J. Madden. During Father Madden's time as pastor, the church was renovated, and the frame structure encased in brick. He also erected the small brick building adjoining the church which now serves as the Parochial School library, and also as conference rooms for the St. Vincent de Paul Society. Father Madden purchased the entire Judkins' estate on Washington street and used the old mansion as the parochial residence.

Father Madden was succeeded in 1906 by the Rev. Dr. Daniel J. Keleher. Father Keleher made alterations in the lower church, rebuilt the church tower which had been struck by lightning in 1906, and placed in it a bell, the gift of a parishioner.

In 1909, the Rev. Dr. Keleher, who recently was made a Monsignor, was transferred to St. Peter's Church, Lowell. He was succeeded by the Rev. Nathaniel J. Merritt as pastor of St. Mary's. Father Merritt set about at once renovating the church, installing new stations of the cross and new electrical equipment. Later a parochial residence was erected on the elevation of what had been the Judkins estate, directly opposite St. Mary's Church. Ground was broken for this in May 1911, and in January 1912 the new rectory was finished.

In December 1913, work was begun on the school. On Sept. 9, it opened with a class of 84 children of the first and second grades, under the direction of the Sisters of St. Joseph. The cornerstone of the school was laid Oct. 4, of the same year by His Eminence William Cardinal O'Connell.

To provide a home for the Sisters, the old Judkins' estate was remodeled, a pleasing feature being the addition of a devotional chapel.

In 1922, St. Mary's High School was built. In 1929-30 the generosity of a parishioner made possible the building of a playground called St. Mary's Campus. In St. Mary's School today there are 326 pupils under the guidance of 15 Sisters.

On Sept. 15, 1931 the parish lines were changed, so that the northern portion of St. Mary's parish was set off and included with the southern portion of St. Charles' Parish, Woburn, in the newly established parish of the Immaculate Conception. This was placed in charge of the Rev. James F. Fitzsimons, as the first resident pastor.

Gradually, Father Merritt's health began to fail, until after a lingering illness, which was borne with Christian fortitude, he died Feb. 5, 1934 and was succeeded by the Rev. Aloysius S. Malone, formerly pastor of St. Catherine's Church, Granitville. Father Merritt had in mind several necessary changes, the most important of which were the renovation of the church, and when conditions permitted, the erection of a new convent to replace what is spoken of as one of the oldest residences of Winchester. Unfortunately his health in recent years prevented his carrying out these plans. To their fulfillment, his successor, Father Malone, has dedicated himself, and is greatly encouraged at the co-operation accorded him thus far by the parishioners.

One week Father Malone saw the need of soon after he took charge,—the establishment of a St. Vincent de Paul Conference to look after the poor of the parish. In the fall of 1934, he called together 12 representative men of the parish, and under the guidance and inspiration of Mr. James McMurray, the president of the Massachusetts Branch of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, the society was organized, and in the short time that has since elapsed, it has done a very creditable work, which augers well for the future. Father Malone's assistants are Rev. Conrad Quirbach and Rev. Joseph McGoldrick, both of whom have entered whole heartedly into his plans for parochial improvements, and are giving him invaluable assistance in carrying out these plans.

"Conquest of Civilization" says that the introduction of the Egyptian calendar, devised in 4241, B. C., is the earliest dated event in history.

FURTHER FIGURES ON THE DEPRESSION

To the Editor of the Star:

Last spring the "Star" published figures to show the cost of the depression in Winchester during 1932 and 1933.

The attached tables give the corresponding figures for 1934, and indicate where the money came from and where it was spent.

In most cities and towns the entire expenditure is made from the Welfare appropriation and the Federal contribution, but in Winchester so many different funds and departments are involved that it is impossible for the ordinary citizen to pick out the whole story from the Town Reports for himself.

It is probable that few of the taxpayers realize that in the last three years there has been spent in Winchester $671,000 for aid and unemployment relief. Of this total, an average of $130,000 a year was met out of the tax-levy, and this sum represents about $4 in the tax rate for each of those years. We are further taxed indirectly for the Federal, State and County expenditures.

BOULDER DAM: COLOSSAL CONCRETE BARRIER OF THE COLORADO

The closing of one of the 50-foot tunnels by which the Colorado River has been diverted around the site of Boulder Dam for the past two years recently marked one of the final phases of the great irrigation, flood-control, and power project in Black Canyon. Slowly the water is now creating a lake above the dam—two years ahead of the time promised by the builders.

Boulder Dam is not the longest dam ever built, but in nearly all other respects it has not even a close competitor, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Man has never constructed a higher water barrier. The impounded water in the lake will form the largest artificial reservoir in existence. The largest generators ever built will occupy the world's largest power house and produce more than twice the electric power that is produced by the Dneprostroy plant in Soviet Russia, at present the greatest power producer.

Cement Enough for Nation-Spanning Highway

When workmen finished the excavations for the dam's foundations, a ten-story building could have been placed in the cavity and the roof of the building would not have shown above the old Colorado River bed. When the last batch of concrete for the dam and power plant is poured in June of this year, these units will contain nearly enough material to build a standard, 16-foot concrete highway from Miami, Florida, to Seattle, Washington.

Chemical heat given off by the drying cement is dissipated by cold water pumped through 300 miles of one-inch pipe imbedded in the concrete. The dam is 105 feet thicker at the base than the height of the Washington Monument. If the famous obelisk were placed beside the barrier, pedestrians on the highway which will occupy the dam's crest, would look down on its aluminium cap, about 30 feet below.

Lake Will Be 115 Miles Long

It will take more than two years to fill the lake. When the water becomes 585 feet deep at the dam, the lake will be 115 miles long. Most of the lake will be within the canyon, spreading in some places as much as eight miles. About 20 miles above the dam, the Virgin River Valley breaks the Nevada side of the canyon. A portion of this valley will be inundated and the lake there will be about 30 miles wide. Filled to its capacity, the vast reservoir will contain about 80,000 gallons of water for every person in the United States. Only a small proportion of land inundated by the lake was privately owned.

The power house below the dam is a building shaped like a squared letter U. Half lies in Nevada and half in Arizona. The building is a quarter-mile long from the end of one leg to the end of the other, and is as high as a 20-story office building. Light and power for cities and industries many miles distant will be produced by 15 large and two small generators.

Although the Boulder Dam project is for flood control and irrigation as well as for power production, contracts for the power and domestic water supply already signed, will, in a 50-year period, pay the cost of the dam, and all appurtenances, their maintenance and operation; and at the end of the period it is estimated that there will be a surplus of $166,000,000.

The All-American Canal, a part of the project, will be the third largest canal in the United States—232 feet wide and 20 feet deep. The main canal which branches off from the Colorado River above Yuma and extends into the Coachella Valley will be 130 miles long. A branch to Imperial Valley will be 8 miles long. Irrigable land equal to nearly half the area of New Jersey can be reached by the waters of Boulder Lake.

As Boulder Dam progresses, another group of engineers is building an aqueduct that will remake the geography of the Southwest. It will carry virtually an enclosed river—a billion gallons of water a day—through mountains and across deserts of southern California, from the Colorado River to Los Angeles and neighboring cities on the Pacific coast. This huge aqueduct when completed will traverse 46 tunnels, aggregating 85 miles, and will make use of nine storage and regulating reservoirs. It will be buried concrete conduit while 75 miles will be concrete lined canal. Much of the project has already been completed.

Before Boulder Dam was conceived, the neighborhood of the dam site was described by a visiting government official as "a hideous desert." Las Vegas, 25 miles west of the canyon, was the nearest town. When government men and contractors planned to begin construction on the dam in 1931, they saw the need of a city nearer the site than Las Vegas. Almost overnight Boulder City, six miles from the dam site, sprang into being. Houses and barracks rose and macadam roads were laid down. Then came theaters, schools, hotels, and shops. The town soon had 5000 inhabitants, thus becoming Nevada's third largest community.

FOR UNIFORM TRAFFIC LAWS

Shocked at the staggering total of fatalities during the year 1934, due to traffic fatalities, Congressman Edith Nourse Rogers introduced a bill in Congress last week directing the Secretary of Agriculture to make a study and research of traffic conditions and measures for their improvement.

In speaking before the House of Representatives, she urged Congress to give this important subject first consideration, to the exclusion of all other legislation. Citing from figures recently compiled, Mrs. Rogers pointed out that traffic deaths have increased rapidly each year since 1913, when the total number of fatalities was 4227, or 4.4 per cent per 100,000 population, to 1934, when deaths totaled nearly 36,000, at a rate of 28.1 per cent per 100,000 population.

"This horrible record," she stated, "is due partly to a lack of uniformity in traffic regulations. Many of our states have uniform, up-to-date and reasonable traffic laws and regulations. Others have not. Twenty-two states, up to 1930, had no drivers' license laws. A few have since adopted regulatory measures. Think of it! Anyone, regardless of age, mentality, physical or other ability, could drive a car in these states without examination.

"Hardly one of us but has had some friend or relative the victim of this confusion and bedlam of regulation or lack of regulation. What are we going to do about it? The toll of pain and misery is increasing even as we deliberate. What can be done to stop it? We cannot go to each of the states and say you must adopt this or that code of laws. Nor do we want to do that. Co-operation and suggestion will produce the desired results. Coertion will not."

The bill, which is numbered H. R. 6200, also directs the Secretary of Agriculture to report to Congress within three months the results of the study and the status of uniform motor vehicle laws throughout the country, with his recommendations for legislation to promote the necessary uniformity of such laws.

HEATING HINTS
.. by John Barclay

DO NOT neglect the ashpit of your furnace. It serves three very important purposes:

1. It is a space provided under the grate to receive the ashes which are shaken through.

2. It removes the air from the cellar and helps to distribute it uniformly to all parts of the fuel bed.

3. It acts as a chamber in which the incoming cool air from the cellar is heated.

If ashes are allowed to accumulate in the ashpit, the air supply will be cut off and the even and complete combustion of the fuel will be hampered. Not only that . . . if the ashpit becomes choked up with ashes the grates are very apt to become overheated and warp or break. And it costs money to replace grates. Take my advice, therefore, and keep the ashpit cleaned out. (14)

WINCHESTER VISITING NURSE ASSOCIATION

In concluding this history of the Winchester Visiting Nurse Association let us review some of its accomplishments through the year 1931. In March of that year the Association completed 25 years of service as an incorporated organization although it was actually 32 years old. At that time it had a membership of about 600 men and women who undoubtedly were interested in the welfare of the community. It had assets of approximately $545,000 in land, buildings, equipment and funds. It owned a completely equipped 74 bed hospital which was approved as a Class A institution by the American College of Surgeons and it also owned and operated a nurses' training school. It quietly but efficiently and economically cared for the sick of Winchester irrespective of race, creed or wealth and at the same time co-operated in every possible way with the town and state health organizations. Its activities were managed by a group of 38 interested directors who gave much of their time, effort and energy and who were continually striving to uphold the excellent reputation which the Association enjoyed.

In 1933 the training school at the hospital was closed and the Association lost the services of a pupil nurse. This necessitated engaging another regular part time nurse and securing a volunteer for the weekly children's clinic.

Perhaps the greatest change of any since the founding of the Association was the separation of the District Nursing branch of the Winchester Visiting Nurse Association from the hospital which it had conceived and built. A brief summary of the reasons for this separation may be of interest to you.

Although theoretically the Winchester Visiting Nurse Association had always been one organization, practically during the last few years there were two separate units. One, the hospital and the other the District Nursing committee. The President of the organization was actively head of the hospital, interested in its management and heading its board of directors. The Vice President was, ex-officio, chairman of the Visiting Nurse committee, interested mainly in its welfare and heading its own group of directors, who knew nothing of hospital work.

The most congenial relationship has always existed between the two branches, both working for the same ideal, but it was foreseen that at some future time under the prevailing system, friction might develop. The directors of one unit knew absolutely nothing of the workings of the other; and voting money under such circumstances might become confusing, though fortunately such an occasion never arose. The question of bequests too might at some possible date make a legal tie-up and funds become involved.

For these reasons the idea of separation took form and on April 28, 1933 the Winchester District Nursing Association was legally incorporated and a new corporation was formed, the Winchester Hospital.

After 36 years of existence the Association may well point with pride to its achievements and it is certainly a charity worthy of the full support of the citizens of Winchester.

COLLEGE CLUB NEWS

It was our good fortune on last Thursday to have as our speaker, Miss Mihan Inay, one of the enthusiastic young students of the vigorous new Republic of Turkey in this country. She gave us an account of the wonderful revolution that has taken place in her country in the last 12 years—since the republic was declared in 1923—a story almost as remarkable as one from the Arabian Nights.

In order to have us understand the remarkable changes that have taken place, Miss Inay gave us a picture of the Turkey of 12 years ago. There were few schools in those days and most of the women of lower classes were illiterate. The daughters of the rich had special teachers brought to their homes where they were taught the Koran, ethics, literature, history and etiquette. The girl at 13 began wearing the veil and spent most of her time behind latticed windows. When she ventured out to visit a friend she was accompanied by an elderly woman attendant who would not leave the girls alone together for fear that they would talk about something unsuitable for girls to discuss. At 15 she was usually married to a husband of her family's choosing, a stranger to her until that moment. She went to live with her husband's people where she received the responsibility of housekeeping from her mother-in-law and where she had to remember at all times that she had to serve her husband and his people.

One of the changes that establishment of the Republic brought about was that the women were made free. In 1925 they were allowed to leave off the veil. With the establishment of the new marriage, divorce and inheritance laws the women were given the same rights as the men. Under the old regime a man could divorce his wife by the simple device of calling in a friend as a witness and saying, "With the permission of God I divorce this woman." The old laws gave three-fourths of a man's property at his death to his male relatives and only one-fourth to the girls and his wife. Now the wife inherits one-half of a man's property and a half is divided among his children.

Under Ataturk Kemel's leadership a fine system of schools has been established all over the country. They are open to both sexes and are educating an enthusiastic and patriotic youth to carry on the good work which has been begun in Turkey. Miss Inay, an alumnae of the American College of Istanbul, is a graduate student in Biology, at Wellesley. A position is waiting for her on her return to Turkey in the Biological Laboratories of Angora, which are connected with the national department of health. There are three other brilliant young women students in this country and many in French and Italian Universities preparing themselves to take up work for their country on their return.

Almost all fields of endeavor are open to the women of Turkey. We find them as teachers, doctors, lawyers and judges, in the factories and banks and in literature and politics. Many of the towns have women as mayors and in 1935 a law was passed allowing women to be elected to the House of Parliament. Behind the latter 12 years ago and now in Parliament.

The prime minister of Turkey in one of his recent speeches said: "The Turkish woman has amply earned the rights she has acquired; she has fought beside her fellow man, she has worked in the field to help her mate. It is her rightful privilege now to help direct the policies of her country. Turkish women carried bombs on their backs to help break the barriers of their country's liberty during the war. They should always have in mind the responsibility that they bear toward their nation and that they as individual citizens should help it to progress in every field—economic, scientific and social."

At the next meeting on March 14, Kuang J. Mei, the wife of one of the Harvard professors, will speak on, "The Women of China."

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

The best news possible for the opening of Lent is that salt water fish is plentiful and moderately priced. Eggs too, are popular substitutes for meat and their price has declined ten cents a dozen in the past week. The third most popular Lenten food is cheese—and its price is low in proportion to its excellent nourishing qualities.

Meat prices continue to rise with no hope of lower prices for from six months to a year. Regardless of religious practice fish, eggs and cheese are good foods to choose because they are among the cheaper foods at present.

Oranges, grapefruit and strawberries offer the best fresh fruit values; and green peas, beans and cauliflower the best green vegetable values for this week.

Here are three menus made up of seasonable foods adapted to different budget levels:

Low Cost Dinner
Braised Lamb Shanks
Boiled Potatoes Carrots
Bread and Butter
Lemon Snow Soft Custard
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner
Roast Fresh Pork Shoulder
Apple Sauce
Browned Potatoes Creamed Onions
Bread and Butter
Jellied Fruits
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner
Fruit Cup
Roast Lamb New Potatoes
Green Peas
Shredded Lettuce French Dressing
Rolls and Butter
Strawberries Cake

GENERAL ELECTRIC DISHWASHER

Dishwashing Time Cut to Less Than 5 Minutes. Chipping and Breakage Eliminated. Dishes Hygienically Cleaned by General Electric's Newest Contribution to Modern Living

General Electric has perfected the electric dishwasher. The new G-E washes all the dishes—china, glassware, silverware, and the pots and pans, too—in less than 5 minutes. It also washes and dries itself. Human hands do not even touch dishwater.

Soiled dishes are placed in soft, resilient rubber trays—as quickly and easily as stacking on a table—the cover is closed, a magic control is turned, and in 3 to 5 minutes the job is done. Dishes remain stationary and the breakage and chipping and handwashing and drying is eliminated.

Dishes—Dishes—Dishes!

In the average lifetime a woman washes and dries tons and tons of dishes—72 stacks, each pile as high as the Empire State Building. Many a golden hour has been drowned in the murky depths of a dishpan. The charm of lovely hands, the bouyant energy of youth have been sacrificed too long to this thankless task.

Now the General Electric Dishwasher frees your kitchen forever from this distasteful, monotonous drudgery. No more cluttering confusion of stacks of dirty dishes. As fast as the soiled dishes accumulate they are tucked away in the G-E Dishwasher.

Your kitchen is neat, clean and orderly at all times with never a dirty dish in sight. An hour or more time is saved each day for other things—an hour that is valuable and precious to you or to your maid.

There is a size and model General Electric Dishwasher for every kitchen. Terms as low as

$10 PER MONTH

Your dishes are cleaner, too—hygienically clean!

Dishes are a major carrier of disease germs. In the G-E Dishwasher a spray of scalding water, hotter than human hands can touch is forced over every dish. Dishes are hygienically cleaned, protecting the health of your family from the dangers of careless or hurried hand dishwashing.

Modernize your kitchen with this new contribution to the freedom of American womanhood. Savings in time, the elimination of breakage, the economies in soap, laundry and water heating actually pay for this newest electric home servant.

"Wild as a March Hare"

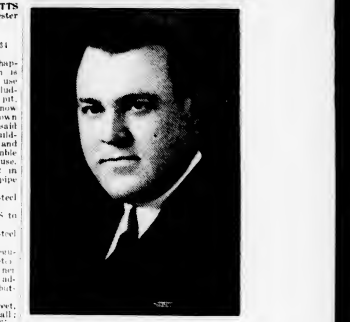

Many lexicographers erroneously explain that this expression is an allusion to the antics of hares during the month of March, which is their breeding season. But for the true origin of the expression, notes G. R. Turner in Kansas City Times, we must revert to Erasmus, the great Renaissance scholar of the Sixteenth century. Erasmus frequently used the comparison "wild as a marsh hare." Once, when asked for an explanation, he wrote: "Hares are wilder in marshes, because of the absence of hedges and cover." It is quite evident, therefore, that "March" is in this case merely a corruption of "marsh."

Developing Into a Personality

In the main there are two ways in which the mere person develops into a personality. The one is by some isolated trait of character, or some remarkable gift that distinguishes him from his fellow men. The other is by an unusual continuity and concentration through which again his life becomes something distinctive.—Kansas City Star.

Fear of Tibet

The unwillingness of Tibetans to allow strangers to approach Mount Everest is traced to the fear that their most precious possession, their religion, will be stolen from them.

HENRY J. MAGUIRE

RETIRING HEAD OF SELECTMEN SURPRISED AT DINNER

Retiring Chairman of Selectmen, Henry J. Maguire was pleasantly surprised Monday evening when he was presented with a handsome silver serving tray by his associates on the Board at the dinner he gave his fellow Selectmen and their wives in the General Committee room of the Town Hall at the conclusion of the regular weekly meeting. Other invited guests were the heads of the departments under the Board, the Town Counsel, town engineer, police and fire chiefs, building commissioner, soldier's relief investigator, the clerk of the Board, the secretary, representatives of the press and Harris S. Richardson, who was Mr. Maguire's personal guest.

Selectman Harold V. Farnsworth presented the Board's gift to Mr. Maguire, who was greatly surprised and both pleased and touched by the evidence of his colleagues' affection and esteem.

The entire affair was delightful, no detail being overlooked from the beautiful roses decorating the long table at which the guests were seated to the apropos place cards.

Mr. and Mrs. Maguire were seated at the head of the table, flanked on either side by the other members of the Board and their wives. A delicious catered supper was served by Randall, and at its conclusion Mr. Maguire, in his inimitably witty manner, called upon each one present to respond to toasts.

During his own remarks the retiring Chairman paid high tribute to the members of his Board and spoke of the pleasure that had been his during the time he had been working with them. The remarks of his associates left no doubt of their regard for their chairman.

In serious vein Mr. Magnire spoke of the present enviable financial condition of the town and stressed the Board's feeling with regard to future financial policy.

Election returns were received from the Town Clerk's office as fast as they came in and Mr. Lane's sportsmanship in the face of his failure to be re-elected won him the admiration of all present.

Humorous high-lights were the presentations to retiring Selectman Edward H. Merrill of a small live black and white "bunny" and a model of the proposed new dog-pound to Selectman Farnsworth. Mr. Merrill's gift was in recognition of his activity in appraising losses of rabbits due to dogs, but the significance of Mr. Farnsworth's gift was not apparent to the layman. The model was the work of Lawrence Thompson of the Engineering Department and a true replica of the proposed pound, complete to doors and windows.

The evening passed rapidly and pleasantly, the only regret expressed being that occasioned by the positive refusal of the soldier's investigator to sing!

Three Judges of Hades

BOY SCOUT NOTES

Winchester Scout Drive

This week the annual Scout drive in Winchester is underway. The following are some of the important reasons why Winchester should and must raise $2000 this year:

1.—Scout Camp

The Fellsland Council summer camp at Amesbury is one of the finest Scout camps in this part of the country. Its facilities and programs compare very favorably with the best private boys' camps. Here, at a nominal fee, it is possible for boys from Winchester who might otherwise not be able to get away for any vacation, to spend a period in happy, healthful surroundings, learning things which will make for better and more useful citizens of the future. The life and success of the camp depends largely upon its leadership and we firmly feel that in this field the best only is good enough. The best for our boys costs money.

2.—Executive Leadership

To obtain the best for our boys in the way of leadership, volunteers of the highest type must be sought out. For them there must be training direction, and able suggestions. These come from the Council Scout Executive a man who has been specially trained and schooled in this work. It is he who organizes Scoutmasters Training Courses and the like. Without these facilities we cannot offer the best to our boys and Winchester wants only the best. A new full-time executive is now being engaged. His is a most important position and he must be well paid.

3.—Headquarters and Secretarial Service

In organizing and carrying on the work for the several hundred boys in the Council, in keeping the books and records for a boy's camp of 70 odd, secretarial service is imperative to smooth and efficient organization. The men who volunteer their time in this work, and there ar some 50 of these in Winchester, need this help. This again costs money. There must be a headquarters from which to work with light, heat and telephone, these cost money.

4—Winchester Must Carry On

The Fellsland Council, through careful managing and curtailment, and through the co-operation of the other towns in the Council, is now free of debt for the first time in several years. To obtain this free slate we have had to go on for the past several months without an executive and some troops are already suffering therefrom. We cannot afford to let Scouting for Winchester boys slip in any way. We must start out now, this spring with a new executive and carry ahead. The Council will not place itself in debt. We must have the funds to carry on.

5.—The Community Needs Scouting

Scouting is needed for all. One Professor at Tufts remarked that he is deeply interested in the Boy Scouts, not because he is a father of boys, but because he has three daughters. Jurists have remarked that they are deeply interested in Scouting because in the juvenile courts, the cases of delinquency have decreased with the increase in Scouting. Scouting for boys today, means better citizenship for the future. Boys are boys and they are not supposed to be angels. Scouting instills a sense of better values for the finer things in life and offers a worthwhile occupation of play and learning, combined for the boys at an age when they most need it. We can afford to offer only the best for our boys in Winchester.

OPINIONS ON MOVIES

What Prominent People Have to Say About a Theatre in Winchester

In order to give its readers and the town at large an idea of the opinion of prominent civic leaders on the advisability of erecting a motion picture theatre in Winchester, the Star has sent a question to the town's clergymen and heads of the various educational and civic societies. Answers to this question are being received by each mail and will be presented through the Star for consideration of its readers until such time as this question is acted upon at town meeting.

These letters represent individual opinion, and are not a vote of the group which the writer represents.

The following letters have been received in reply to this question:

DO YOU BELIEVE A MOTION PICTURE THEATRE IN WINCHESTER WILL BE FOR THE BEST INTERESTS OF THE TOWN AT THIS TIME?

Editor of the Star:

March 6, 1935

In reply to your letter of the 4th would say that I do not believe a motion picture theatre in Winchester will be for the best interests of the Town.

I feel that the type of pictures being shown are not suitable for children and have a serious effect, both mentally and morally. In my opinion, a large percentage of our crimes are caused by the influence of movies on the younger generation.

The limited parking facilities around the center would prove a very important obstacle, especially in the event of a fire.

It has been my experience that a theatre quite frequently attracts persons of questionable character and reputation, as it offers an opportunity to ply their trade more successfully than on the outside.

Trusting that the above statements will prove of assistance to you, I remain

Yours very truly,
William H. Rogers,
Chief of Police

March 12, 1935

Editor of the Star:

I am first presenting a few facts concerning the moving picture industry.

1. The number attending weekly in 1934 was, approximately, 70 millions.

2. Taking the average over a wide area, it has been estimated that 36 per cent of the attendance is of young people under 21 years of age, 16 per cent under 14.

3. It is one of the big industries of the country ranking, I understand, third.

4. The average cost of the feature length film is $250,000, or more.

5. The industry is here to stay.

6. Moving pictures have very great possibilities in education and in wholesome entertainment.

7. Some excellent and great pictures have been produced.

I have much sympathy for those who desire a moving picture theatre in their own Community, because it would mean less inconvenience and less expense.

I very definitely, however, take the position with those who are opposed to a moving picture theatre in our town. Although other factors are involved, I am not in favor of the moving picture theatre, primarily, because I am convinced that on the whole, it would be, as practically all moving picture theatres have shown themselves to be, a harmful influence upon children. This belief is supported, not only from my own observation, but from research studies which have been made.

Sex, crime, or violence of some sort have been, and still are, pictured way out of proportion to normal living. With such pictures in preponderance and children, on the average, throughout the United States, attending moving pictures once a week, there can be no doubt in my mind what the resultant effect would be upon our children's imagination, health, emotions, attitudes, thoughts, and conduct. Much, therefore, as I do sympathize with these adults who desire a moving picture theatre, I must take the position that I do not believe a motion picture theatre in Winchester will be for the best interests of the Town at this time.

James J. Quinn,
Superintendent of Schools

March 7, 1935

Editor of the Star:

Although I feel that a good motion picture theatre would be a financial asset to Winchester and a convenience to the citizens who would save both time and expense, the following points should receive careful consideration before any license is granted: location, size, architecture, parking space, traffic congestion, proper policing and enforcement of the sixteen year law, Sunday representations, rejection of improper films, and the ability to show desirable pictures which are, at present, not included on the presentation lists of most suburban chain theatres.

Very truly yours,
Louise Vandivert Bernnard,
President Ladies' Friendly Society of Unitarian Church

Editor of the Star:

In my opinion, a motion picture theatre would not be for the best interests of the town at this time or anytime until blind buying and block booking are abolished and responsible persons are able to determine what pictures shall be exhibited. Winchester's reputation is an enviable one now, not because it is perhaps the only town in the state without movies, but that it puts the interests and protection of its children first.

Very truly yours,
Pauline P. Hall,
(Mrs. Kenneth S. Hall)
President of Mystic School Parent-Teacher Association

March 10, 1935

12 Park road,
March 11, 1935

Editor of the Star:

The question of "movies" seems to come up periodically in our town. Thus far we have successfully kept them out. Why should we have them?

It is true that the past year has seen the production of a few very good pictures, but they are still decidedly in the minority, considering the whole output. A motion picture theatre with its flagrant ads, and its noisy waiting lines does not fit in to the peaceful and orderly atmosphere of our center. In fact, the tone of our whole town would be changed. Do we have to support every commercial interest that wants to come here? We all know that the sole motive of the motion picture industry is to make money, not to provide wholesome entertainment.

No, instead of a motion picture house, if we feel the need of a place to spend our leisure time, let's put our heads together and work out some kind of a community house, with say, a swimming pool, game rooms, equipment for the showing of an occasional really good picture, a place where everyone could find fun and recreation under proper supervision.

Winchester has always been a town whose people have had high ideals and high aspirations, especially, for its young folks. Let's dare to be different! Let's keep out the movies!

Anna M. Swanson
President, Junior High School
Parent-Teacher Association

March 12, 1935

Editor of the Star:

Winchester has not suffered any loss, to date, by not having a motion picture theatre.

I can not believe one would help business to any great extent. The surrounding cities and towns have theirs. Is Winchester large enough to support a good one successfully? I doubt it.

Children who now play out of doors, contentedly, or spend their time in worth while entertainment will give these up.

Parents will have a problem to solve, with difficulty, from a health and financial standpoint.

Many will continue to go to Boston, Cambridge and Arlington to see the "big pictures," not being willing to wait for them to come here.

Let us wait a few years, at least, before we admit motion pictures to Winchester in a permanent theatre, and derive the benefit of the work now being done to raise the standard of motion pictures and control the releases.

Sincerely yours,
Lucy W. Joy,
President Wyman School
Mothers' Association

Editor of the Star:

Within two weeks after I arrived in Winchester, 20 years ago, I was thrust into the forefront of the discussion on motion pictures, due to the fact that I had served as chairman of the Mayor's Committee of Censors in East Orange, N. J. My experience in East Orange taught me that no local community can censor its movies adequately.

My interest in the movie situation in Winchester has been wholly that of children and youth. Every church in town is trying to teach the children of its parish decency, honesty, respect for law and order, and cleanmindedness. The movies undermine every one of these standards. The question naturally arises, why spend thousands of dollars for Sunday Schools in Winchester and then allow the movies to undercut their influence?

Quite beside the moral issue, is the danger to the lives of children involved in the proposed site. We all know the traffic jam there at present. If a movie theatre were built there the conditions would be unthinkable. Some child would be killed, as sure as shooting. I'm not willing to sign his death warrant with my vote.

I'm opposed to the present proposition. It is one of the worst that has been suggested to the town.

OPENING SESSION OF TOWN MEETING HELD

Action on Return of Town Wage Cut Indefinitely Postponed

Collector Denied Increase

Action on the restoration of the ten per cent wage cut to town officers and employees was indemnitely postponed as 193 of the town's 228 precinct members gathered for the opening session of the annual Town Meeting last night. No motion at all was introduced under the article dealing with this question, supposed in advance of the meeting to be one of the most controversial in the entire warrant. The article was taken up out of order, at the request of the chairman of the Finance Committee, Mr. Wilkins who so acted because of vital bearing any action which might be taken by the meeting would have upon appropriations for the various town departments. There was virtually no debate upon the matter and a motion introduced by Mr. Larned to reconsider was lost.

In general the meeting moved smoothly along the lines indicated by the Finance Committee, ably represented by Mr. Wilkins. The reports of committees were received as printed and placed on file. $100,000 was appropriated for the payment of town bonds and the routine articles authorizing the Treasurer to borrow money in anticipation of revenue were passed without debate. The sum of $9,966.01 was appropriated as an emergency measure to meet obligatory expenses to the town as its part of the cost of the Middlesex County Tuberculosis Hospital. The sum of $33 was appropriated to pay the caretakers of the Legion quarters a month's wages unpaid in 1934.

Article 25, referring to the restoration of the town employees' pay cut was considered before Article 7, the long article dealing with departmental expenditures. There was no debate until the appropriation for the Collector of Taxes department was reached when Mr. Laraway moved to amend the original figures by striking out the sum of $450 additional salary for the collector. Mr. Wilkins explained that the increase was granted to make the collector's salary equal to that of the treasurer as had been the case in the past. The amendment, however, was carried 95—90, after which Mr. Elwell moved to reconsider, paying tribute to Tax Collector Nichols and questioning the way in which the amendment was put. His motion was lost 85 to 46.

Considerable debate was occasioned by the proposal to purchase a new piece of fire apparatus to replace the old Knox Combination purchased in 1912. Messrs. McDonald, Laraway and Frederick Fitzgerald opposed the purchase of a new pump and Mr. Carter moved an amendment to the original appropriation, striking out $6000 to be spent for the new piece. Mr. Fay, Mr. Farnsworth and Mr. Sanderson championed the original appropriation which was finally carried. Mr. Carter's amendment being lost.

Before the consideration of the item, Highways and Bridges, it was voted to take up articles 12 and 13, dealing with the reconstruction of upper Main street at the bridge over the outlet to Wedge Pond and with the reconstruction of Church street. This was done because action under these articles had a vital bearing upon appropriations to be made under Highways and Bridges.

A motion made by Mr. Nelson, that it be the sense of the meeting that all laborers shall be paid a minimum of 50c per hour, that preference shall be given men over 30 years of age and that men should get a rest period, was lost 81 to 61.

Under Article 12, Mr. Wilkins explained that the construction of a new bridge at the outlet of Wedge Pond would be undertaken as a chapter 90 project, the town's share of the $30,000 cost to be $10,000, with the State and County paying the balance. The sum of $10,000 was voted almost without debate.

Under Article 13, dealing with the reconstruction of Church street, things did not move so smoothly. Mr. Wilkins explained that this too is a chapter 90 project, the town's share to be $20,000 of the estimated $60,000 cost. Of the town's $20,000, $10,000 is to be taken from the excess and deficiency fund and $10,000 is to be raised by taxation, the latter to be taken from the appropriation originally asked for Highways. It was further explained that the Edison Company is to place its wires underground from the center to Rangely and that the surface drainage nuisance at Wildwood and Church streets is to be eliminated. Mr. Rush felt that the entire article should be stricken out and that the town should first restore the pay cut to its employees before doing unnecessary things. Mr. Larned felt the motion did not specifically provide for the reconstruction of Church street and Mr. Murphy moved to amend the original motion to substitute reconstruction for "further construction or specific repairs." Mr. Farnsworth asked that the voters have confidence in the Selectmen and pass the necessary original motion. Mr. Murphy's amendment was lost and a subsequent amendment, introduced by Mr. Stevenson, providing that all men doing the same work should get the same pay was also voted down. The original motion providing the $20,000 was then passed without a show of hands.

Returning to article 7, the original amount $67,875, under Highways and Bridges, general, was reduced to $57,875. There were no other changes in the figures as recommended by the

MRS. MABEL LOUISE HUDSON

Mrs. Mabel Louise Hudson, wife of George S. Hudson, a former member of the Boston Herald editorial staff, died Saturday morning, March 9, at her home, 39 Prospect street, after a long illness.

Mrs. Hudson was born July 28, 1866, in Harvard, the daughter of Luther and Ellen Ruth (Dudley) Willard. She was a descendant of Major Simon Willard, and the 17th Century house, in which she was born was the principal building upon what in Colonial days was known as "Major Simon Willard's Still River Fframe inn ye Greate Ffiended Ffielde." Originally the farm was of some 5000 acres which extended through the towns of Lancaster, Harvard, Boxboro, Acton, Concord, Groton and Ayer, and its owner, Major Willard, was one of the founders of Concord, Lancaster, Groton and Harvard. In the crypt of Canterbury Cathedral is a tablet in memoriam, "to Major Simon Willard, born 1604 died, 1676. . . . He was made commander-in-chief of the British Forces against the hostile Indian Tribes . . . . He was distinguished in military, legislative and judicial service of the American Commonwealth to his death. . . ."

It is of interest that the house in which Mrs. Hudson was born and of which she was a part owner at the time of her death, has never passed out of the ownership of her family.

Mrs. Hudson was educated at Bromfield Academy in Harvard, where she met Mr. Hudson, whom she married Sept. 15, 1887. In 1899 she came to Winchester and had since made her home here, being held in esteem by all who knew her.

Although a member of numerous organizations, Mrs. Hudson's chief interest was her home. She attended few meetings, excepting in some of the clubs of which her husband and daughter were also members.

Among the organizations with which she was affiliated were the Unitarian Church, The Daughters of Founders and Patriots, the Daughters of Colonial Wars, Boston Tea Party Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, National Geographic Society, Early American Industries Association, National Early American Glass Club, Rushlight Club, China Students' Club, Republican Club, Florence Cuttenton Circle, Fortnightly Women's Club, Ladies' Friendly Society, Fortnightly Preservation of Antiques Committee, Winchester Historical Society, Winchester Theatre Group, the Dustin Family Association and the Willard Family Association.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Hudson is survived by a daughter, Miss Eleanor Hudson, and a son, Willard Hudson, both of Winchester.

The Fortnightly, of which she had been a member for 36 years, held very impressive special tribute services to Mrs. Hudson, in charge of the president, Mrs. Gladys R. Wilson, at the same hour Monday afternoon that services were being conducted in the home, Rev. George Hale Reed, minister of the Unitarian Church, officiated at the latter services and the bearers, all personal friends, included Charles R. Main of Charles T. Main, Inc., Mill Engineers; Earle R. Andrews, president of the Rushlight Club, Charles Hadley Watkins, president of the National Early American Glass Club; Rev. Laurence L. Barber, president of the Clock Club; Frank H. Dillaby, contractor; and Samuel S. Symmes, representing the Winchester Historical Society.

In charge of flowers were Mrs. Charles R. Main, Mrs. Frank H. Dillahy, president of the China Students' Club; Mrs. Lucy Marshall, founder and corresponding secretary of the National Early American Glass Club; and Mrs. Earle E. Andrews, chairman of the Fortnightly Preservation of Antiques Committee. The body was placed in the vault at Wildwood Cemetery and committal services, conducted by Mr. Reed, will take place at Belleview Cemetery, Harvard, in the spring.

KAY SNOW'S MARIONETTES

On Saturday afternoon, March 23, 2:30 p. m., High School auditorium, the Junior High Parent Teachers' Association is sponsoring Kay Snow's Marionettes in a brand new show, "The Further Adventures of the Three Little Pigs" and "Rumpel Stiltskin."

The Misses Katherine Snow, Ella Armstrong and Dorothy Bruno, sophomores at the Winchester High School have gained fame as Marionette makers. Their shows are in great demand all over Greater Boston. The costumes for this new show have been designed and made by Mrs. Frederick Hamerstrom of 5 Lagrange street.

The Music Group Orchestra under the direction of Mrs. Hildegard Livingstone will furnish the music. The program promises to be a real treat for grown-ups as well as children.

HELD IN THEFT FROM WINCHESTER CAR

Charles W. Quinn, 23, of the Roxbury District of Boston and Joseph W. Hughes of Boston, who faced charges in District Court at Lawrence Wednesday of stealing Oriental rugs valued at $850, were held for the Grand Jury in bonds of $1000 each.

The pair was accused by the Lawrence police of having followed the automobile of Abraham S. Boyadjian of Dunster lane from Winchester to Lawrence on March 4 and of stealing the rugs from it after it had been parked almost within sight of a police station.

PING PONG TOURNAMENT OPENS TONIGHT

Tonight sees the opening of Winchester's second annual ping pong tournament at the high school gymnasium, with a well-filled draw sheet in each of the four divisions. Over 80 players having definitely entered a week ago, there is no doubt that every bracket will be filled when the men's singles and doubles start tonight and the ladies' singles and mixed doubles events open on Saturday afternoon.

Top seeded in the men's singles are Carol Hilton, winner of the 1934 tournament and Richard Leghorn, runner-up in last year's tournament and high scorer in the 1934-35 league. Among the other seeded players in this contest are Messrs. Robert Blackler, Hector Cyr, A. Pistorino, Raymond Hayward and Paul Eaton.

Mrs. Lawrence Sibley and Miss Barbara Marchant are included in the seeded players in the ladies' singles. Others entered in this division are Mrs. Emerson Priest, Mrs. Robert Blackler, Mrs. Leon Hughes, Mrs. Daniel Barnard and Miss June Eaton.

The men's doubles and the popular mixed doubles events promise to offer plenty of competition with the results being in doubt to the last point. In fact, in all of the contests there are many factors which may upset the advance predictions, and completely change the results anticipated by the fans.

To those who have never witnessed a ping pong tournament, the spectacle of match following match on each of the six tables during the preliminary rounds will indeed be a novelty, but the followers of the sport will make it a point to be present on Saturday evening when the finals in all four matches will be played off on a single table.

CAPT. EUGENE STEPHEN FLAHERTY

Capt. Eugene Stephen Flaherty, senior captain in the Winchester Fire Department and a resident of Winchester for the past 50 years, died early this morning at his home, 11 Richardson street, after an illness of only a few hours with heart disease. His death came as a severe shock to his family, associates at the Central Fire Station and many friends for he had been in his usual health during the day and had been present at town meeting only a few hours before he was stricken.

Captain Flaherty was born 57 years ago in Somerville, the son of Patrick and Mary (O'Flaherty) Flaherty. He came to Winchester as a boy in 1885, was educated at the Wadleigh Grammar School and for several years was employed at the office of the Winchester Star, leaving to enter the employ of Kelley & Hawes Co.

He first became associated with the Fire Department as a call man in 1897, resigning after a short service to take up residence in Roxbury where he was employed by Parker's West Roxbury Express.

Returning to Winchester, he was again appointed a call man on the ladder truck in 1907 and call lieutenant two years later. In 1912 he was appointed a permanent member of the Fire Department and in 1919 was made senior captain of the department, a position he held at the time of his death. Flags on the Fire Station, Sur Building and Common were at half staff in his honor.

Captain Flaherty was a valuable member of the Fire Department and vitally interested in the department and town. He was for some time in charge of the fire alarm system at the central station and kept the records of the department. He was for many years treasurer of the Winchester Fireman's Relief Association.

April 27, 1902, he married Elizabeth M. Michaud who died in 1924. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Philip Gange of Winchester, Mrs. Edward Kenneally of Malden, and Mrs. Edmund Leahy of Medford; a son, Joseph Flaherty of this town, a student at Montpelier Academy; a sister Miss Mary Flaherty of Stoneham; and four grandchildren.

Arrangements for the funeral had not been completed when the Star went to press.

TRUCK SIDESWIPED CAR

On Monday evening shortly before 6:30, Sergt. Edward W. O'Connell of the Police Department was notified by Mosely M. Rowe of 10 Centenial avenue, Revere, that his Buick sedan, while parked on upper Main street, had been sideswiped and damaged by a truck, headed north.

The driver of the truck did not stop, but from witnesses of the accident, Sergeant O'Connell learned that the machine was the property of the Taylor Express Company of 28 Salem street, Woburn.

Later at Woburn Headquarters he learned that Thomas F. Metrano of 236 Main street, Woburn, whom the Woburn police say was driving the truck at the time of the accident, had been arrested. Metrano appeared in the District Court at Woburn Tuesday morning when his case was continued until next Tuesday.

The next regular meeting of the club will be March 25 at 2:30 p. m. Alice Lindbergh will present "A Spanish Festival," and a short monologue. Mrs. Mary Ranton Witham will play during the change of costume.

The club each year chooses two of its outstanding days to be public meetings, when we welcome our friends. Branson De Cou and his dream pictures are one of our favorite forms of entertainment. "Around the Mediterranean" was the subject for the day and it proved a beautiful and fascinating cruise. These travel pictures, beautiful in color and photography, with the delightful accompanying music are a rare treat.

Mr. De Cou took us first to Funchal in the Maderia Islands, where beautiful lace is made and where are glorious and brilliant tropical flowers—then to Gibraltar, one of the best shipping places of the trip, and on to Spain—where we visited the gem of Moorish Art,—the Alhambra. From there, we sailed into the busiest port in Italy—Genoa, where Columbus was born and where one of the largest cemeteries in the world is located. Quickly, we went on to Naples and the charm of the Italian Riviera—"See Naples and die"—because of the dirt, is no longer true, and now Naples has a new splendor. On we go through Pompeii to the alluring Isle of Capri, (so popular just now) and the beautiful Blue Grotto. We see most unusual painted carts carrying olive oil in Taormerica in Sicily, and from there arrive right at Jerusalem. An amazing contrast between the old and new Jerusalem is seen. There is a marvelous and million dollar Y. M. C. A. there and the splendid King David Hotel. The Zionist movement is responsible for this Renaissance of the Holy Land. We can stop but a moment and hurry on to Cairo, the Paris of North Africa, to see the supreme treasures of Tutankh-amen in the Cairo Museum.

This is one of the high spots of the cruise when we remember the amazing work of Howard Carter in spending 16 years looking for this tomb and 10 more years in preparing for the display of its marvelous treasures, sealed for 3000 years.

We hasten on to the Island of Rhodes, through the Dardanelles to Istanbul, formerly Constantinople. We see the new Turkish regime, and its effect on the people; Sanda Sophia, the world's most magnificent mosque, now a museum; and the Blue Mosque, with its unbelievable treasury of beautiful and precious stones.

Coming through the Bosphorus to the Black Sea, we call on Soviet Russia and see something of the Russian Riviera. All the famous palaces and buildings have been turned into sanitoriums and rest houses under the Soviet rule as Mr. De Cou delightfully puts it, "Before the Soviet rule, there were two classes in Russia—the very rich and the very poor. Now there is only the very poor." In Odessa, chief port of the Black Sea, with 160,000,000 people we see no private automobiles. Contrary to popular opinion, Russia has not "forhidden" religion, and some 2000 of the churches carry on in spite of heavy taxes and great scorn and contempt.

Modern Athens surprises us. We visit the new museums and also see the "classic glory of the Acropolis, which has been the inspiration of more modern buildings than any other building in the world.

And so on we sail to the Dalmatian Coast with its quaint peasant costumes, to Venice with its charm and beauty. We cannot pause and continue to Nice and the French Riviera. We see the $2,000,000 Casino built by Frank Gould, the immense and lovely war memorial at Nice. Monte Carlo with its French Gardens, beautifully illuminated at night, the beaches, and at last lovely Mentone. And finally we quite lose ourselves in the last dream picture of enchanting landscapes of the French Riviera with beautiful music played on a muted violin.

"The Romance of Hooked Rugs"

Once again the Antiques Committee, Mrs. Alice R. Andrews, chairman, gave the Fortnightly and their guests an afternoon of rare quality.

Mr. Ralph W. Burnham of Ipswich gave a most interesting talk on "The Hooked Rug" showing some very beautiful examples from his collection. These rugs were exquisite in workmanship, remarkable as to preservation, as well as subdued and mellowed by Time's influence. Mr. Burnham assured us that the Hooked Rug stands without a successful rival as a covering for the floor of a New England home. If properly made, and of the best material, with coloring truly artistic, they grow increasingly beautiful, as time mellows and blends the differing shades into exquisite harmony. He also stated that there is a wide difference of opinion as to the date of the origin of the hooked rug. Some prominent writers contend that hooked rugs antedate the American Revolution. Numerous opinions have been quoted that hooked rugs did not make their initial appearance until the early part of the 19th century. The fact is, that the date of origin cannot be fixed upon with any degree of certainty. Mr. Burnham's opinion based upon rare specimens he has discovered in his search throughout New England and the Maritime Provinces is, that the hooked rug was made at a much earlier date than many suppose.

Among the many rugs shown were several having a foundation of homespun linen. One rug made in 1780 had the old blue and buff Continental coloring. Another Mr. Burnham called American Primitive of 1820. Other rugs shown included Jack Sprat and his wife, 1860; cabbage rose design, 1840; transcendant hooked rug, 1780; a geometrical rug, 1870.

It was during 1870 that a Mr. Frost of Biddeford, Me. conceived the idea of selling rug patterns along with tinware and found it very successful. Mr. Burnham showed several rugs of the famous Frost pattern, "The Poll Parrott" and "The Four Sister Rose Rugs."

Homespun linsey-woolsey, cloth made of linen and wool mixed and dyed was the most satisfactory material used in the early days. Today we have a white cotton flannel cut in the desired lengths and home dyed. This material makes excellent firm rugs. Old hooked rugs are now becoming very scarce and good ones hard to find. Mr. Burnham's niece sang a group of three songs accompanied by Mrs. Idabelle Winship.

In closing Mr. Burnham displayed a very beautiful needle-point design of the shield of the American Republic, worked on heavy white silk and while it was being shown we sang America.

There were many fine displays of hooked rugs by members of the club and Mr. Burnham made a definite statement to the effect that he considered the display on the stage one of the finest he had ever seen.

Among the exhibitors were Mrs. Clara Robb, Mrs. Valerie O'Connor, Mrs. Annie Eaton, Mrs. Grace Whitten, Miss Barbara Fernald and Mrs. Alice R. Andrews.

Mrs. George Garfield of West Concord exhibited an interesting antique rug, while Mrs. Beatrice Early of South Groveland displayed one made during 1934; a view of Rockport, Me. The original, an antique, was hooked and clipped by a Mrs. B. F. Coburn, and was at one time in the collection of J. Fenimore Cooper, Esq., Albany, N. Y., now in the Langhorne collection, Richmond, Va. This rug is shown in Mr. William W. Kent's book "The Hooked Rug."

Flowers were presented by the Antiques Committee to Mrs. Gladys Wilson, president of the club, Mrs. Jane Robinson, secretary and Mrs. Alice Andrews, chairman of Antiques.

Tea was served by Mrs. Ruth Hilton and her committee. The tea table with its decorations of orchid, yellow and green was most effective. Music was furnished during the social hour by Miss Tucci and Mrs. Genevieve Elwell, piano and Mr. Norman Harrold, accordian.

The committee serving with Mrs. Andrews were as follows: assisting on Exhibition, Mrs. Edith Harris; Custodians, Mrs. Ida MacDonald and Mrs. Harriett Linscott. Hospitality included Mrs. Idabelle Winship, Mrs. Clara Reynolds, Mrs. Gertrude Scammon, Mrs. E. Adele Emery, Mrs. Anna Lochman, Mrs. Christine Clarke and Mrs. Mary Gilbody. Tea chairman, Mrs. Ruth Hilton, assisted by Mrs. Marjorie Dyer, Mrs. Dorah Hadley, Mrs. Edna Messenger, Mrs. Marion Gilbert and Mrs. Beatrice Campbell. The pourers were Mrs. Anna Gleason and Mrs. Marion Hayden. All hail to the Antiques chairman and her committee. She has given us a year full of a variety of programs, all educational, artistic and full of culture.

The pilgrimage to Cambridge April 5, Mrs. Elizabeth Hall, chairman, has been changed to Friday, April 26. Watch the Star for further notice.

WINCHESTER DISTRICT NURSING ASSOCIATION

Here is a case story of the Winchester District Nursing Association showing how very important their work is and what it means to a community to have such an efficient organization as Winchester has.

In the fall an emergency call was received by the district nurse who, with one of her assistants, went immediately to the home, where they found a young mother in a very critical condition. She was practically pulseless. First aid was given and one of the nurses stayed to take care of her while the other went to locate her doctor who lived out of town. He was finally reached and gave some instructions to be followed until he arrived. When he reached the house he did all he could for her but felt that her chances for recovery were very slight.

There was no food in the house that could be used for nourishment so a hurried trip was made by one of the nurses and a supply secured.

A nurse was left in charge who did everything possible under the doctors orders and at 1 p. m. the patient rallied. In the latter part of the afternoon she had responded to care so well that a member of her family from out of town came to take charge of the house. With the district nurse doing the daily nursing and a kind neighbor helping out with food the patient soon recovered.

This is just one of the many emergency calls which the Winchester district nurse is receiving all the time and in many cases her prompt response and efficient care are the important factors in saving a life.

FARNHAM—MERRILL

Miss Amy Corinne Merrill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heber Merrill of Oxford street, was married to Frank Henshaw Farnham, son of Mrs. Frank A. Farnham of Brookline, on Saturday evening, March 9, at a simple home ceremony.

TO DISCUSS THE GERMAN YOUTH

Mr. Albert Wiederhold, of Helmstadt, Germany, will speak at an informal meeting of young people at the close of the Epworth League service next Sunday evening on the "Youth Movement in Germany." Mr. Wiederhold is the son of an official in the present Hitler government. He is a graduate of the Seminar Neandertal in Germany and is in the United States to do graduate work in Theology at Boston University. Like many German students, he speaks French fluently and has an excellent command of English.

He has been in this country about a year and a half, a sufficient time to have formed some impressions of American people, customs, and life, and yet not so long as to have forgotten the keen difference he first noticed upon his arrival between what he had left and what he here found. He will describe the customs, home life, social life and religious activities of the German youth, comparing them with what he has seen in this country.

This meeting will take place at 7 o'clock and any who are interested are cordially invited.

Wheaton College Scholarship

Wheaton College is celebrating its 100th commencement at Norton, this year. In connection with this centennial anniversary, two scholarships are being offered of $500 each for each of four years of college. Three factors are included in determining the awarding of these scholarships. These are the need, the scholastic attainment and the personal qualities of the applicants.

The purpose of these awards is to make it possible for students of unusual promise, who could not without substantial aid, meet the cost of education at Wheaton. Winchester is fortunate in being included among the schools to which this scholarship has been offered.

If anyone is at all interested in this offer, he should see Mr. Grindle, who will gladly discuss the requirements with them.

Junior Red Cross in Magazine Drive

The March project which the Red Cross is working on is going splendidly. Miss Bronson says there are about 400 magazines now and with the number of days still left, this month in which to bring more, the total should reach a splendid height. If you haven't brought any yet, please do so and say you've done your share for the Red Cross.

Personality Class Gives Assembly

This morning, Miss Niven and her "personality girls" presented an assembly to show the school just what this much-talked of course takes up. All this was explained to the students in an introductory talk which was followed by three illustrative episodes.

The first was, "How Not to Get a Job." This was a typical scene of girls applying for a job and brought out the little things which must be watched in order to make a good first impression.

The second was, "Take a Look in Your Mirror." This was a type of style show bringing out certain objects which must be kept in mind when dressing appropriately and in good taste.

The last was the "Dinner Date," and by the use of two tables, the contrast between good manners and bad was emphasized, not too much, but just enough to show the pleasing effect charming manners have on our neighbor.

Almost all of the students of this subject had some part in the production of this assembly, while for the sake of good illustration, some boys were borrowed.

"Call me up when you hear anything," Henry L told all his friends when his good job folded up three years ago.

In the following months nothing resulted except a few makeshift jobs, but patiently he kept his ear open. Then this call came.

"I'm Mr. S of the S & T Company. We need a good man for our New England factory. Bill Jones tells me that you have the stuff we want. If fifty a week to start would interest you, come down Saturday and let's talk turkey."

The value of one such call exceeds a lifetime's cost of service. If you are still searching for a real job, it's good advice to "keep your ears open"! New England Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Right you are, Mr. Moffett!

"For the past few years, American women have knuckled down and have managed to weather a depression by making old things do. That fact does not prove that American home life from now on should be meagre and threadbare."*

Certainly, one of the first steps in modernizing the home is modernizing the kitchen. And modernizing the kitchen means—first and foremost — modern cooking equipment. It's joy to have one of these modern gas ranges in your kitchen. Easy to have one in your kitchen—just phone us to send a representative to tell you about our easy payment plan.

AVIATION CLUB HAS FIRST MEETING

The newly formed aviation club of Winchester had its first meeting Wednesday night in the Winchester Square Chevrolet showrooms on Main street. Some of those attending were "Doc" Blackler, "Ted" Baker, Maj. Charles A. Woolley, Hall Gamage, Lieut. Wilfred Ashworth, Ted Elliott and Mr. McPeake, vice president of the Lexington Aviation Club, of which Miss Margaret Kimball of Lexington is president.

The purpose of the club will be a purely social group of both men and women, who will get together at regular intervals for "ground flying" bridge, dances and on occasions, for lectures on interesting subjects.

On Wednesday, March 27 at 7:30 p. m. there will be another meeting at the Winchester Square Chevrolet showrooms, at which anyone in Winchester over 21 years of age will be welcome. It is not necessary that a person be in any way connected with the aviation industry in order to qualify for membership, but an interest in aviation is desirable.

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL MEN TO START MONDAY

With the encouraging report that the tops of the benches are beginning to show through the snow and ice piled high on Manchester Field during the past winter, Coach Wendell Mansfield has decided to start preliminary work with his Winchester High School baseball candidates on Monday. Only light limbering up work will be indulged in for a while, and it is a very moot question how soon the diamond will permit of any outdoor practice even should the weather become warm enough for the boys to get outside. It will take plenty of cleaning up after the snow is gone to get the field into proper condition for use.

Winchester had a good, if not a fortunate nine, a year ago, coming within the proverbial ace of copping the Middlesex League gonfalon and being when right, as good as any club on the circuit.

Lack of consistency hurt the Red and Black a year ago, though the loss of several key players through ineligibility undoubtedly prevented a much better showing for the season.

The locals are not too badly off for veteran material to start the present campaign, having a veteran hurler, three infielders, one outfielder and a catcher available for the opening gong.

Capt. "Tom" Donaghey, shortstop; "Joe" Dinneen, "Sandy" MacKenzie and "Slicker" Coss, infielders; and "Albie" MacDonnell, outfielder, are the veterans aside from the battery where Fred Kendrick, right hander and "Frankie" Provinzano, catcher and football captain-elect, give the club needed balance.

"Red" Noble, pitcher-outfielder, "Junie" Davidson and "Moose" Caprino, outfielders, and "Sam" Murphy, cocky third-sacker, are members of last year's team who will be missed this season.

During the past two weeks Coach Mansfield has been working on basketball for next year, attempting to sort from a large list of candidates who will be available likely boys for first team duty another season. Provinzano and Captain-elect "Slicker" Coss will be the only letter men available but there is a wealth of experienced material and the fight for berths should be keen in 1935.

Looking ahead to next fall, Coach Mansfield has been doing some work with football during the past week, the graduation of those co-captain blocking halfbacks, Hanlon and Gaffney and the loss of all three ends, Josephson, Bairstow and Millyan, making it necessary to build a new offense to function with the material available.

UNITARIAN MEN'S CLUB TO HEAR MR. W. D. SULLIVAN

The Unitarian Men's Club, keen to be informed of current affairs, is to learn from no less an authority than Mr. W. D. Sullivan, "Something About Newspapers."

The Club realizes that Mr. Sullivan, were it not for his modesty, might well have called his subject, "Everything from Newsgathering to Five Star Final." The members and their guests will, by their presence, pay tribute to a fellow townsman whose standing in his chosen field is of the highest.

After Mr. Sullivan's talk, refreshments will be served.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Morse (Priscilla Laraway) are the parents of a daughter, Marjorie, born Monday, March 11, at the Winchester Hospital.

POLICE AND FIREMEN RECEIVE LIFE SAVING INSTRUCTION

Capt. Irving D. Appleby of the New England Life Guard Association and veteran swimming instructor, visited Winchester Wednesday afternoon under the auspices of the Red Cross to give instruction in the prone method of resuscitation to members of the police and fire departments.

Captain Appleby, who during the past summer was manager of Magazine Beach in Cambridge and who previously has had abundant experience in reviving persons suffering from paralysis of the diaphragm, went into the subject of resuscitation thoroughly, listing first the more common causes of this deadly malady before attempting any practical demonstration of the remedy to be applied.

Immersion, exposure to heavy smoke, gas poisoning, shock and concussion are the more common causes of paralysis of the diaphragm, with which police and firemen are likely to come in contact and these Captain Appleby covered carefully, giving several illustrations from his long experience to show how such cases can be treated to save life and even induce artificial breathing after the victim was apparently dead.

Captain Appleby believes absolutely in the efficacy of the prone method of resuscitation and he urged both police and firemen to disregard cases of which they might know in which it had not succeeded in reviving the victim, stating that particularly in cases of so-called drowning, many persons have died of heart failure, rather than of drowing, in which case the prone method is of course ineffective.

In explaining how paralysis of the diaphram causes death, Captain Appleby said that the red corpsucles going to the lungs for oxygen are unable to secure it, due to the failure of the lungs to function, and as a consequence get instead deadly carbon dioxide which they pour into the blood stream, soon inducing a toxic condition that will prove fatal.

In explaining the benefits of the prone method Captain Appleby also stressed the value of massage, especially of the throat to prevent the swelling of the large glands pressing against the windpipe and also of the limbs to force the congealing blood back to the heart. He urged both police and firemen to persist with their efforts no matter how discouraging the case, citing several examples where people have been returned to life and health after being in the water for more than half an hour.

At the conclusion of his address he first demonstrated the proper and improper way of applying the prone method and then put both the police and firemen through their paces, directing, criticizing and encouraging.

After the demonstrations the Captain answered any questions asked him by the men. He told the Star that he was much pleased with the way the members of both the police and fire departments grasped his instructions. He was especially impressed with the youth and interest of the police here by contrast with the indifference shown by the older officers in some of the other places he had visited.

LADIES' FRIENDLY NOTES

There was a Prayer Service held in the Meyer Chapel last Friday, March 8. The day had been set one side as a world wide day of prayer by the Federated Protestant and Liberal Churches. Mrs. Bertram Bernnard led the meeting which was composed of people from the many Protestant churches of our community. Bessie Hunt Earle sang a group of negro spirituals with deep feeling. Mrs. McDonald of the Baptist Church was at the organ. After the service Mr. Francis Russell made a short address upon "What the United Churches can do to promote Peace and there was forum discussion.

The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Friendly Society was held in the Unitarian Church on Tuesday, March 12, at 2:30 o'clock.

The meeting was opened by Miss Nancy Carr at the piano, playing three selections. She played first, the Chopin minute waltz and then two Dubussy numbers. Clare deLune and "The Collwog's Cake Walk." She played this delightful group with ease and grace.

A short business meeting with regular reports from various committees followed the music. Announcement of two gifts to the Society, an electric hot plate from Mrs. Kelley and an electric tea kettle from Mrs. Downer, was made and gratefully acknowledged as both articles were much needed.

The speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. Hope Spencer, the chairman of Religious Education in the General Alliance. She took "Religious Education" for her topic and it was one of the finest lectures of the year's program.

Mrs. Spencer, whose voice and diction were a delight, brought a message of courage and hope to all who desire to bring religion into the lives of ourselves and our young people. Her plea was that after "definitely closing the doors of intolerance and indifference" we think things through. Her talk was nothing less than a graceful and earnest sermon.

After the speaker, tea was served by Mrs. Wade Grindle and her committee in the ladies' parlor.

There will be the annual Ladies' Friendly Supper on Tuesday, March 26, at 6:45 in Metcalf Hall. There will be music and a talk by Mrs. Rees.

VACATIONISTS

Damon, who are at Palm Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Petts, at Miami; and Mrs Ellen A. Homer and her daughter, Miss Adelaide Homer, at Southern Pines, N. C.

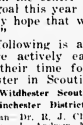

DEMPSEY—DUNN

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Dunn of 221 Metropolitan avenue, Roslindale, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Dorothy Conger Dunn, to Lieutenant-Detective John Francis Dempsey of the State Police Department, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Dempsey of 907 Main street, Winchester.

The ceremony was performed on March 3 and the bride and bridegroom were attended by Miss Mary Braddick, a classmate of the bride at Regis College; and City Solicitor James H. McLaughlin of Woburn. A wedding supper was served the bridal party at the Hotel Somerset in Boston.

The bride is the daughter of the city editor of the Boston Post and is a graduate of Regis College, class of 1933. She has been actively engaged as a social worker and is socially prominent in and around Boston.

Lieutenant Dempsey was recently promoted to his present rank in the State Police and assigned to duty at the State House. He has made a distinguished record in the Constabulary and is widely known for his work as an investigator while attached to one of the barracks on the Cape. With his bride he is to make his future home in Brookline.

EMBLEM CLUB NOTES

Initiation for all waiting candidates was held on Wednesday evening. Refreshments were served and a very pleasant social hour followed.

The next regular meeting will be held on Wednesday evening, March 27, at which time, election of officers for the ensuing year will take place. Plans for the installation of officers, scheduled for May 8, will be considered. Let's hope winter is over by that date or we'll have to stage our affair in the hospital. Sister Gracie L. Coakley is in Florida for the remainder of the winter— and maybe we all don't envy her.

On next Monday afternoon, from 2 till 5 o'clock, Vice-President Minnie A. O'Neill will entertain club members and their friends at her home, 9 Alben street. The genial hostess is hoping she will have a houseful.

The merry season of Supreme visitations is now on and Supreme Marshal Emily A. Scholl will have her time-card filled trying to keep up with them. Invitations have been received from Everett Emblem Club for March 27, and from Winthrop Emblem Club for March 31. Further particulars may be obtained from the local club's president or secretary.

MORTGAGE INTEREST

There are some things the members of the Legislature who are in favor of restricting mortgage interest to five per cent ought to consider.

In the first place, the Federal Government allows, as fair and reasonable, a basic interest charge of five per cent, plus one-half of one per cent for expenses, and also additional charges for notifying delinquents on mortgages which are insured against loss of principal or interest by the banks. On some types of government insured mortgages the return to the bank is six per cent.

If a savings bank or a co-operative bank can net five and one-half per cent or least on mortgages which are absolutely safe, why should they lend at five per cent on mortgages on which they risk their money?

Every savings bank and every co-operative bank has suffered heavily from defaulted mortgages in the past few years. They have been obliged to take large losses.

But they cannot takes losses on a five per cent basis. If they hope to attract deposits, they must assure their depositors a fair return. The five per cent charge allows little or no margin for losses. Therefore, any house owner who gets a mortgage at five per cent must present a gilt-edged investment proposition before a careful bank official will be justified in loaning the money.

If it is the intention to dry up the mortgage market, this five per cent limitation will do it effectively. Also, the banks will cease to be interested in further deposits, to the great harm of those who wish to save a little money.

During the past 12 months the co-operative banks of the State have loaned nearly $25,000,000 to 15,000 home owners. Business is increasing. The outlook for this year is promising. Interest rates have been reduced to five and one-half per cent. Why destroy this present budding little boom in building, so sorely needed, by such burdensome restrictions on the banks?

Consider the depositors in co-operative banks. There are four to every borrower. Is not the man who puts away a little bit out of his pay envelope for a rainy day entitled to as much consideration as the man who puts his money in a house? Why take away from the four and give to the one?

Five per cent interest means three and one-half per cent dividends, as against five and one-half and six per cent dividends in past years.

The earnings of savings banks and co-operative banks go to the depositors, persons with small savings. There are no stockholders and highly paid officials, no rich investors to participate in the profits.

A man with a $5000 co-operative bank mortgage may think he saves $25 a year by a reduction to five per cent from five and one-half per cent. But actually the saving is a bit less than $10 a year if the whole period of the loan is considered.

There are few house owners who will not have to pay considerably more than $10 extra in taxes in the coming years. Legislators would do well to lighten the home owners' tax burden, ut they never consider that.

Mr. Goodwin built the house on Wildwood street later occupied by E. Arthur Tutein, and made his home in Winchester for some years until 1906. He was engaged in the plumbing supply business, was prominently identified with the Calumet Club, of which he was an officer, and was a member of William Parkman Lodge of Masons.

Pity the poor tax collector! All work; no play, no cash, and not a friend in town!

One hundred yards from the high school, about the same distance from the Unitarian Church, one hundred feet from the postoffice, within a minute's walk of the Junior High School, in the most congested part of our expensively beautified civic center! And that's where we want movies? Is this what we have been spending our money for?

There has already been a hearing on House Bill No. 1748 which if passed, will require counties and cities to purchase supplies through the State purchasing agent. While nothing is said specifically about towns, it is not unlikely that such a ruling will apply also to them. The consequences are not difficult to predict, and surely Winchester wants no part of such a system. We should imagine few other cities and towns will acquiesce. Our town, at least, hasn't reached the place where it needs any State purchasing agent to do its buying. Of what next will the politicians think?

The Star is printing this week a series of letters received in response to a question on movies in Winchester. These letters received from various heads of educational and civic organizations, express the opinion of the individual writer. No attempt has been made to secure an organization vote in any instance, nor was any asked for. While some letters have been received wherein the writer has not held any opinion he has been willing to express, every reply with one exception has been in opposition to movies in Winchester! Notwithstanding the contention of those interested advocates of movies who claim to have the town back of them, the fact that these people who represent the town through the appointment to the position which they hold, and who have no personal interest in the question other than that affecting the welfare of the town, are almost universally opposed to movies here, should give Star readers a true and correct insight into the town's sentiment on the question.

Winchester residents who may be affected by the proposed link of the Woburn Parkway to the Mystic Valley Parkway, should follow with interest the bill now before the Legislature to widen the first named boulevard. A hearing on this widening is to be held before the Committee on Metropolitan Affairs on March 20. While the bill applies only to the Woburn Parkway in that city, and as such would normally have no interest to Winchester, it is seen as an entering wedge in extending this parkway through our west side to the detriment of some of our finest residential property. It has been felt in some quarters that the widening and extension should go together, for once the Woburn boulevard is widened and starts throwing an increased traffic into our west side, the extension is bound to come. It is now reported that Woburn is willing to reconsider the original form of the bill and accept a compromise giving a direct route to Boston by a new parkway through waste land and running from Horn Pond to Main street in this town at a point above Wedge Pond. Plans for this parkway are already prepared, it is said. By this compromise plan the present parkway in Woburn would not be widened, and the new parkway would start at a point equivalent to where the present parkway ends.

Many are finding the weekly radio broadcasts by high school choral and instrumental clubs not only interesting and entertaining but surprising in the quality of music produced. The evident enjoyment of the young people in playing and singing worth while compositions is reflected in the enthusiasm of their performance, and there is no better way in which to gain the appreciation of music than by producing it oneself. There is nothing that can bring more lasting enjoyment or satisfaction than the appreciation of good music and no better time to lay the foundation for such appreciation than during youth. Winchester's school budget has been large and especially during the past few depression years has not included funds for things which, however, desirable, have not been considered essential by the school authorities. Perhaps for this reason the town has lagged behind many, if not most of its neighbors in musical instruction in the schools, particularly in the specialized instruction being offered in many other high schools. Winchester was well on the way to building an especially healthy interest in music some years ago at the time when Mr. Richard Grant was supervisor and there is now among high school students a real demand for instruction in glee club, orchestra and the more technical musical studies such as harmony and appreciation. The intense enthusiasm being manifest by the present high school pupils for chorus bespeaks a real musical interest which might well be intensified by broadening the scope of instruction offered. Winchester ought to be able to do what other towns are doing in this field.

March 8, 1935

Editor of the Star:

In reply to your question "Do you believe a motion picture theatre in Winchester will be for the best interests of the town at this time?" I would say NO, for the following reasons:

The proposed site is in an already too congested area, entirely unsuited for parking and unsafe for pedestrians.

Persons entering Winchester from the Parkway or south Main street would be greeted by a storage-warehouse type of blank wall detrimental to the present beauty of the locality;

Lack of censorship;

Compulsory block booking;

Liable to lead to Sunday shows, which would be out of keeping with the type of town Winchester is reputed to be, and which reputation we hope to maintain.

Very truly yours,
Anna M. Dunning,
President Ladies' Aid, Crawford Memorial Methodist Church

March 4, 1935

Editor of the Star:

In reply to your letter of March 4, 1935, the Winchester Branch, Massachusetts Catholic Women's Guild does not favor Motion Picture Theatre in Winchester.

Mary A. Hanlon,
Recording Secretary
Winchester Branch, Massachusetts Catholic Women's Guild

March 12, 1935

Editor of the Star:

I am one of the group who feels that, at the present time, a motion picture theatre in Winchester would not be for the best interests of the town. So long as the present block-booking system continues, I doubt very much if any producer would be able to consistently show only pictures of a wholesome type. Better no movies than poor movies.

Esther S. Caldwell,
(Mrs. K. F. Caldwell)
President Washington-Highland Parent-Teachers' Association

March 12, 1935

Editor of the Star:

My answer is No. Recent participation in litigation involving a theatre and producer-distributors proves the evils of block booking and blind buying are decisive.

For children, most movies are bad; some because of crime or loose morals portrayed; many because of inducing extreme emotional excitement. They will not in fact restrict attendance to present limits.

For adolescent youth, many movies are similarly bad, and also constantly suggesting false business and social standards. They should not be made easier of access.

The welfare of our young people is paramount.

The proposed location is undesirable.

Yours truly,
Charles F. Dutch,
President Unitarian Men's Club

Editor of the Star:

I am certain that a moving picture theatre in Winchester will have a bad effect on the physical development of our children and young people.

In every locality where there are moving pictures literally hundreds of children fill the theatres, not only on stormy afternoons, but on fine afternoons as well. On beautiful Saturday afternoons in the Autumn or in the Spring when children should be playing in the open air they line up outside the theatre waiting for it to open, or they are in the lobby crowding and pushing one another about, in some cases as I have observed, barely escaping being crushed to death.

The young people of Winchester are an unusually fine group. This is due, I think, to our excellent schools, our wise emphasis on skillfully directed out-of-door sports, our modern recreation fields and our bathing beaches. Let a moving picture theatre be opened in Winchester and the temptation to spend two hours witnessing a moving picture entertainment will be so great that out-of-door, health-building activities will be largely discarded. I am therefore, strongly opposed to having a moving picture theatre in Winchester.

Dwight W. Hadley,
Rector of the Church of the Epiphany

Editor of the Star:

As one vitally interested in the youth of Winchester, I hope that the proposed plan for a motion picture house in Winchester will not become a reality. I enjoy good motion pictures, and believe in their great recreational and educational value; but I cannot see that the proposed plan will, with any certainty, give us the best. The suggested location will, I believe make the building a blot upon a lovely civic center, and a possible traffic menace. When we can have selected pictures in the right place, I am for them.

George Hale Reed,
Pastor Winchester Unitarian Church

Editor of the Star:

Replying to your recent inquiry as to my attitude toward the current question concerning the advent of moving pictures in Winchester—

I am opposed to moving pictures in our town for I feel we are lacking in any assurance that they would not be presented under the present block booking system thus requiring many objectionable pictures to be shown.

Further, I question the advisability of movies in Winchester on the ground that I fear a success could not be made of the venture with such greatly patronized houses in all our surrounding towns and an unsuccessful business venture in our midst is not to be desired.

Yours truly,
Nora A. Ambrose,
(Mrs. M. C.)
Regent Winchester Branch Catholic Women's Guild

March 14, 1935

Editor of the Star:

While I frankly admit that there are two sides to the question of a motion picture theatre in Winchester, and that every citizen of the town has a right to his or her opinion, I shall personally have to be counted against the project at this time. The following are some of my reasons:

1. The large number of Winchester residents who are supported by public welfare;

2. The large number of taxpayers who have had, or are facing mortgage or tax foreclosure;

3. The large number of parents who are struggling hard to pay for necessities for themselves and their children.

To all included in these groups, the incensed demands for "money for the movies" would mean a constant problem as well as an added burden.

The unsettled question of the railroad tracks and possible future treatment of the center, would make it unwise to encourage the construction of any building of importance, at this time, in the area which may be affected.

Lorence M. Woodside,
President, Winchester Better Homes Garden Club

196 Cross street,
March 8, 1935

Editor of the Star:

I appreciate the opportunity to voice my sentiment in regard to the motion picture theatre. I believe that a motion picture theatre would be beneficial to the town. Both young and old like to see a clean, wholesome or instructive pictures. There are theatres in the cities and towns on all four sides of us, these theatres are patronized by a large number of Winchester people.

Why not spend our money in our own town, save the cost of transportation. As to the parking space, it might be said, "No parking space—do not shop in this town."

Mrs. Fred A. Saunders,
President Bethany Society of Second Congregational Church

SHOULD VOTES BE COUNTED BEFORE POLLS CLOSE

March 11, 1935

To the Editor of the Star:

In your very careful and interesting write-up of the results of our recent Town Meeting, I noted this statement:

"The last Precinct totals were in at 9:30, and the first total received (that from Precinct 5) came in ten minutes after the polls closed, or at 6:40."

In order to do this, I assume that it was permitted to take the ballots from the ballot box at more or less frequent intervals during the day, as there were east in Precinct 5, six hundred and twenty-eight votes.

I would like to raise the question whether or not counting the votes before the polls closed is not contrary to the spirit and intent of the Australian Ballot Law which was enacted in order to enable a voter to have no one know how he voted on any question at issue, or any candidate for office.

If the votes can be taken out at the will of the counters, it is not impossible, by close watching a small group, to calculate how this or that one voted; and again, late in the day word can be passed out as to how this or that man is running in this Precinct or that, and a general hustle can be inaugurated to bring in votes to help out the low man.

I do not say that either of these customs has prevailed in Winchester, but it is not impossible that they may have; herefore, to remove the temptation, I should favor keeping all the votes in the ballot boxes until the polls are closed.

Sincerely yours,
Lewis Parkhurst

WONDERS ABOUT NOBLE EXPERIMENT

To the Editor of the Star:

In scrutinizing the columns of the last issue of the Star I was amazed when I observed the following few words, namely: "a flattering picture of Winchester's animal shelter, partly made of corrugated metal and attracting the sun's rays and making it very hot in summer, no chimney for heat in winter, dirty windows, half wood and shuttered, ill-kept surroundings, N. R. A. sign on door should mean Now Remember Animals. Winchester needs a comfortable and sanitary shelter where lost and sick animals can have proper care. Such a building would also provide for animals during the summer in the absence of their owners. —Observant Citizen."

Now Mr. Editor, may I please ascertain what is the reason the stove was removed from the shelter; what is the cause of the ill kept surroundings and the dirty windows? Surely there is an abundance of water in Horn Pond Brook! I can recall when it turned the wheels of the ancient saw mill on Main street. As for the ill kept surroundings, I confess there is an abandoned tin lizzie adjacent to the dog shelter, but that will not hurt the dog's appetite. Why? Because a delapitated, abandoned steam roller does not hurt a human being's appetite.

There is a door on the east and west side of the shelter to ventilate and windows galore to admit air and yet it is very hot in summer time. Poor little oggie git along, git along. N. R. A. sign on door should mean "no room airedales."

Now Mr Editor, I believe the taxpayers owe a debt of gratitude to our alert Finance Committee. Why? Because they refused to recommend an expenditure of $800 for a new dog shelter on the west side of Horn Pond Brook less than 300 feet from the present shelter on the east side of Horn Pond Brook, or in other words, the new shelter would be less than 75 feet from a taxpayer's dining room. Is that a fair deal or a new deal? I am unable to answer because I never shuffle cards.

The Observant Citizen informs us that a new building would provide for animals during the summer in the absence of their owners. That suggests, I believe that the taxpayer who does not own a dog is compelled to pay his part of the upkeep of the other fellow's dog. Now listen; during the World War there was a pig pen and several pigs on the contemplated site of the new dog shelter. Folks were urged to raise hogs and help win the war. We are now urged by Uncle Sam not to raise hogs. Why? Because he will pay for the pigs, shoats and hogs that are not raised and help fetch back prosperity. I wonder if that is a noble experiment?

Very truly yours,
Patrick H. Croughwell

"Substance" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 17. The Golden Text is: "Whatsoever God doeth it shall be for ever" (Ecclesiastes 3:14).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. . . . Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear" (Hebrews 11:1,3).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Substance is that which is eternal and incapable of discord and decay. 'Truth, Life, and Love are substance, as the Scriptures use this word in Hebrews: 'The substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen.' . . . As God is substance and man is the divine image and likeness, man should wish for, and in reality has, only the substance of good, the substance of Spirit, not matter" (pp. 468, 501).

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

"Clive of India" starring Ronald Colman and Loretta Young and "Rumba" with George Raft and Carole Lombard as the featured players is the great double bill opening at the Granada theater in Malden on Saturday. "Clive of India" is one of the season's most important films with Ronald Colman cast as Robert Clive, who by his own audacity rose from a $25 a year clerk in the East India Company to become the conqueror of an Empire at 26, and become England's greatest hero. In addition to Ronald Colman and Loretta Young, 70 other principals including Colin Clive, C. Aubrey Smith, Montagu Love, Caesar Romero, Doris Lloyd and Wyndham Standing.

In "Rumba," George Raft is cast as a Broadway hoofer exiled to Havana because he incurred the enmity of a gangster. He becomes a star in Havana with Margo as his partner. Then he meets Carole Lombard a society girl, and falls in love with her. She snubs him at first but gradually falls for him. Then the girl's parents hear about it and summon her to New York. Chief in the support are Margo, who gives promise of developing into a star, Lynne Overman who supplies the laughs as a wise-cracking press agent, also Monroe Owsley, Gail Patrick and Iris Adrian.

MALDEN STRAND THEATER

George Brent and Josephine Hutchinson in "The Right to Live" and "White Lies" with Victor Jory, Fay Wray and Walter Connolly as the stars, is the attractive double bill opening at the Strand Theater in Malden on Saturday. "The Right to Live" deals with a daring and unusual theme in which a beautiful young woman is confronted by the problem of whether she has the right to live her own life, to love and be happy, or to remain with her hopelessly crippled husband. Joschine Hutchinson is the wife, Colin Clive the husband, and George Brent is the brother. Other featured players are Peggy Wood, Henrietta Crossman and C. Aubrey Smith.

In "White Lies," Walter Connolly is cast as a newspaper editor who drives a man to murder ruining his reputation in a series of sensational articles. His daughter, Fay Wray feels sorry for the man and his wife and attempts to help them. Victor Jory is cast as a police officer who arrests Leslie Fenton, an embezzler. It is during the trial that Fenton grabs a gun from one of the guards, shoots Jory, and escapes. Fay Wray goes to the apartment of Fenton's wife and while there Fenton breaks in and in a rage shoots the girl's escort, Robert Allen.

"CLIVE OF INDIA" AT THE UNIVERSITY

"This is the picture—and this is the character—by which I should like the public to remember me," Ronald Colman made this official statement upon completion of "Clive of India," his new starring vehicle which comes to the University Theater on Sunday for four days. The story covers the life of Robert Clive, who by his own audacity rose from a $25 a year clerk in the East India Company to become the conqueror of an Empire at 26, and become England's greatest hero. Stressing the beautiful romance between Clive and the lovely Margaret Maskylene, to whom he proposed by letter after seeing her picture in her brother's locket, the drama shows how the man's private life influenced his public life, and how his star fell when the woman who loved him drifted from his side. Loretta Young plays the lovely Margaret.

"The Night Is Young," the companion feature co-starring Ramon Novarro and Evelyn Laye, is a glamorous story with haunting music, dealing with the Imperial Ballet in Vienna, and the love of a young archduke and a ballet dancer.

"The Woman In Red," Barbara Stanwyck's latest starring vehicle, is scheduled as the feature attraction starting Thursday. The picture is based on Wallace Irwin's popular novel, "North Shore," which is a glamorous romance with intensely dramatic scenes and replete with thrills. The story deals with the romance of a young aristocratic Kentucky girl, portrayed by Miss Stanwyck, who through family financial reverses, becomes a professional rider at society horse shows.

"Sequoia," the companion feature starring Jean Parker, was adapted from the novel, "Malibu," by Vance Joseph Hoyt. The picture, filmed in the Sequoia National Park, deals with a friendship between a deer and a mountain lion, two of natures most deadly enemies.

The coaching and directing has been in the very capable hands of Mr. Charles J. Harrold, which definitely assures everyone attending the performance of an evening of good clean entertainment.

MYSTIC THEATRE, MALDEN, ATTRACTIONS

Starting Saturday, March 16, the Mystic Theater in Malden, is presenting the picture which has just completed a nine weeks' engagement in Boston, "Man of Aran," the saga of a man who only master was the sea. "Man of Aran" was selected by the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures as the best picture of the year. The picture is a simple story of Irish people on the Aran Isles, and their nearly primitive struggle for subsistence on their nearly barren rock of an island.

The second feature at the Mystic Theater next week will be, "Red Hot Tires," a drama of the automobile race tracks. The picture is filled with breath-taking action and death-defying stunts which are performed by a score of nationally famous racing drivers, although several of the cast participate in the races. Lyle Talbot and Mary Astor head the cast of players in the romantic leads. Roscoe Karns adds a comedy touch to the otherwise melodramatic scenes as the loyal but somewhat dumb pal of Talbot, while Frankie Darro lends a novel touch to the picture in a midget auto racing sequence.

Every Wednesday morning, patrons of the Mystic play Tango (similar to beano) free. Many beautiful and valuable prizes are given to the winners every Wednesday. The game of tango is conducted as part of the regular performance and is something quite new and entertaining.

SKI CHAMPIONS MEET AT OSLO

March 3 is Holmenkollen Day in Oslo, when ski-jumpers from many countries of the world meet in the Norwegian capital to vie for the King's cup on famous Holmenkollen Hill above the city.

Oslo was founded by a royal skier, King Harald Haardraa, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Fires and wars have destroyed most of the town he built. In 1624 it was rebuilt by Christian IV of Denmark and named Christiania; 300 years later, however, the old name was resumed and Christiania is Oslo on all modern maps.

Main Street Named for Foreign Ruler

Oslo Fjord winds northward from the Skagerrak between low, rolling hills. Sheltered coves behind these hills were Viking strongholds in the days when Knut of England invaded Norway. Today the harbor towns of Tonsberg and Sandefjord, on Oslo Fjord, are home ports for the great whaling fleets that have pushed Norwegian industry far into Antarctic waters. Eighty miles inland the fjord widens into an island-dotted lake on whose northern shore is Oslo, set in a curve of steep, wooded hills.

Save for an old church or two and the 13th century fortress, Akershus, that guards the harbor, there is little in modern Oslo to remind one of the past. Among the principal buildings are the royal Palace, Storting (Parliament), University, and National Theater, all reached by Karl Johansgate. Rather curiously, this main street of Norway's capital was named for a foreign ruler—Napoleon's general, Bernadotte, who became Charles XIV of Norway and Sweden.

"Corkscrew Hill" Has Toboggan Slide

On Bygdoy, a shady peninsula, Island west of Oslo, is the famous Norwegian Folk Museum. Here, under open skies or set in birch woods, are preserved the homes of past centuries, Norway's wooden architecture, the product of her great forests, is characteristic of the country. Design, decoration, and even furniture are determined by structure. In the low, dim interiors, tables, benches, and beds are built into the rooms as solidly as rafters and walls.

From December to April the snow covered hills near Oslo are traced with ski tracks and toboggan runs. Korketrakkeren, alias Corkscrew Hill, is best for tobagganing. On Sundays and holidays thousands pack the trains for Holmenkollen, their skiis stacked in racks outside the cars. Two cross-country ski races are held during the winter sports week that precedes Holmenkollen Day. Contestants in the jumping events must first qualify in these. One race is over a ten mile course, the other covers a distance of 31 miles and is one of the most difficult tests known to skiers.

Oslo's skating rinks are worthy of the city of Sonja Henie, who has held the world figure skating championship since 1927. International skating competitions are another feature of sports week.

Nansen, who crossed Greenland on skis, trained first on the hills about Oslo. Amundsen, following the same trails, developed the skill and endurance that carried him to the South Pole and back. At Frogner, a park above Holmenkollen, is a Ski Museum, with every known type of ski, and also relics of the great Norwegian polar expeditions.

At Easter time, when the snow in the lowlands has begun to melt, skiing conditions in the mountains are perfect. Then Oslo declares a holiday and young and old crowd the snow trains bound north. Norway reaches well above the Arctic Circle, and in higher altitudes the skiing lasts through May, despite lengthening days and hot spring sunshine.

Europeans Growing Taller

A partial elimination of diseases affecting young children has increased the stature of Europeans an average of two inches, while it has added two and one-half to three inches to the height of men and women in this country.

Burma Women Independent

Women in Burma are as independent as any of their sisters in the world. When a girl marries she does not change her name, she wears no sign of marriage, such as a ring. Marriage does not confer on a husband any right to his wife's property. She keeps hers, he keeps his.

TAHITI: FRANCE'S SOUTH SEAS PARADISE

S. O. S. signals from an American sailing ship in distress near the Society Islands recently directed attention to this lonely mid-Pacific archipelago, whose best known inhabited island is Tahiti.

Tahiti lies far from the feverish activities of modern industrial life, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. It is more than 3000 miles from Australia, 5000 miles from San Francisco, 4500 miles from the Panama Canal, 6000 miles from Asia. By old trade routes—via the Suez Canal and Australia—it is nearly as far from New York as all these distances combined, but the Panama Canal reduces this to 6500 nautical miles, a saving of 10,000 miles.

Ever since its discovery in 1607, Tahiti has been famed as an isolated jewel, rich in verdure, blest with a pleasant, healthful climate, and inhabited by friendly people of handsome physique.

Green Gem Set in Coral Ring

Tahiti is an extraordinary work of creation—a fertile cinder from volcanic pits, perhaps, or a fragment of a sunken continent. It is indeed a steepled gem of wondrous green within a teeming coral ring. Here the eye is delighted by leafy luxuriance, stretching from palm-fringed beach to loftiest mountain crest; by the brilliant colors of land and sea; by the high physical standards of the native, both men and women. The ear is soothed by the wash of an inner sea; by the flow of gentle streams.

Overshadowing all are the mountains. Mighty slabs rise high above a valley. A peak with a triangular summit shoots thousands of feet upward. Beyond, lofty columns, hundreds of feet thick, stand in solitary grandeur; another turn and a shaft cuts the sky with an edge like an enormous knife—an edge to which tree, shrub, fern, and vine cling.

Tahiti is not an abode of savages. It still has primitive life, but of barbarism it has none. Life and property are safe; compulsory education quickens the mind of the youthful and the church, the religious press, and contact with the Caucasian broaden, in a limited way, the intellect of the adults.

Small Craft Meet Liners

Sloping up gradually from the capital, Papeete, evergreen hills, scarred here and there by barren red and gray clay, extend miles inland, where they overlook the Fautaua and Punaruu valleys. They are broken into almost innumerable canyons and gullies all over their surface.

As the steamer draws near the shore many small craft—the picturesque outrigger canoe, the broad-beamed fruit-boat, and the noisy gasoline schooner—lie at anchor or move about the lakelike harbor.

At the copra-scented dock hundreds of Tahitians and scattered pairs and groups of Americans and Europeans are on hand. It is a mixed throng. There are as many colors and shades of complexion as there are of dress, and some of the native women move with queenly grace. Their dark hair, crowned in some cases with a wreath of Te tiare, the flower of love and friendship, hangs low on their backs.

The most animated moment of the town's daily life begins shortly after its 7061 inhabitants awaken. The site of this activity is the market square. Sunday is the chief market day of the week. At that time neatly dressed men and women from many parts of Tahiti assemble at the market half an hour before the opening bell clangs its signal.

On the previous day and night, boat loads of feis (a type of banana) and oranges are laid outside the market building in preparation for the morning rush, and in the Sabhath dawn strings of fish, and wagons, filled with farm products, are hurried to the stands. The scene is enlivening; the crowd is friendly and gay. There meet comrades and relatives who have long been separated; there white and brown elbow each other in neighborly fashion.

Within 30 minutes after the first customer is served the fish benches are stripped, and the butchers, bakers, and vegetable men have parted with more than half their stock. In an hour the market is sold out and almost deserted.

WANTED—AN ETHIOPIAN-ITALIAN SOMALILAND BOUNDARY LINE

An indefinite boundary line is causing Ethiopia and Italian Somaliland no little trouble these days. In 1897 Ethiopia and Italy agreed that the frontier was to be maintained about 180 miles from the coast. Tribesmen of eastern Ethiopia in recent years, have been tempted to wander across so vague a line, and the Italians have pushed road building into questionable territory. The discovery of oil in the region has not helped matters. Efforts are being made to patch up the affair by the establishment of a neutral zone between the two countries.

Ethiopia is surrounded by European influences, says a bulletin from the Washinton, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. On the west and south are Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Uganda, and Kenya; on the southeast, Italian Somaliland; and on the northeast British Somaliland, French Somaliland, and the Italian colony of Eritrea.

King Descended from Solomon

Trouble with Italy has arisen before. Forty years ago the Italian kingdom, then new, tried to establish a protectorate over the African empire; but the invading army was defeated and Italy was forced to sign a convention with King Menelik recognizing Ethiopian independence.

Ethiopia is one of the oldest Christian nations in the world. The church, which is closely allied to the Coptic Church of Egypt, traces its history to the fourth century. A. D. Haile Selassie I, who was crowned emperor in 1930, is 134th in a line of Christian rulers. He also claims direct descent from the first King Menelik, who according to legend, was a son of Solomon and the Queen of Sheba. In fact one of his many imperial titles is "Conquering Lion of the Tribe of Judah."

Races of Africa and Asia mingle in Ethiopia. True Ethiopians are not Negroes, but a Hamitic-Semitic type. This is the ruling class, and comprises perhaps one-third of the total population. The other two-thirds is predominantly Moslem and Negro.

French Port Is Chief Gateway to Empire

Ethiopia has not always been an inland empire. At one time her power extended across the Red Sea to the Arabian province of Yemen, and at another period there was an Ethiopian dynasty in Egypt. For many centuries now geography has isolated her from the rest of the world. There is only one important entrance to the country—along the railroad that runs from the port of Djibouti, French Somaliland to Addis Ahaba, the capital of Ethiopia. The railroad, completed in 1917, runs two trains a week, covering the 486 miles in three days. In dry weather there is sometimes an "express" which makes the trip in 36 hours.

The total road mileage in this country of 350,000 square miles is only about 2500 miles, of which 65 are paved, 1150 earth and gravel, and the rest dirt trails. Transport is chiefly by mule, pack horse, donkey, and camel.

Coffee, ivory, and leopard skins head the list of exports. Ethiopia is the home of coffee. Arab travelers found it growing in the province of Kafa and transplanted it to Arabia. Later it was reintroduced in cultivated form in the Harar district. Vast forests of the wild variety still grow unused in the province which gave it its name.

Ninety per cent of Ethiopia lies 6000 feet above sea level. Over a vast plateau rise huge mountain ranges with peaks that reach 14,000 and 15,000 feet. Fringing the hibhland that are the real Ethiopia is a circle of low hot borderland—the Somali Desert in the east where the trouble with Italy has occurred, the malarial jungles of the upper Nile on the west, the swamps of Danakil to the north, and in the south a chain of salty lakes that drain into Lake Rudolf. It is in the high country that Ethiopia's wealth is hidden—unexplored mineral resources, endless rich plains where the finest quality of grain and live stock may be raised, cool mountain air hot sun and abundant rains.

The rains, which last from June to September, have carved the topography of the country and enriched Egypt in the process. The mighty rivers of the empire, flooded by rain, have cut for themselves great channels thousands of feet deep. Through one of these gorges the Blue Nile, which rises in Lake Tana, flows first east, then south, then west to join the White Nile at Khartoum. In flood time it carries away mountains of soil to build fields in Egypt.

The other great river is the Awash which rises near Addis Ahaba, and flows northeast through the wild, unknown country of the Danakil tribes. For years the fate of the Awash has been a mystery, for it never reaches the sea, and explorers have not dared to trace it in Danakil territory. Recently, however, an Englishman reported that he had tracked it to the French Somaliland border where it disappears in salty Lake Abhebad.

NEWEST NATIONAL MONUMENT, AN ABANDONED FORT ON DRY TORTUGAS

Fort Jefferson an abandoned fortress on one of the tiny Dry Tortugas isles off Florida, recently turned over by the U. S. Navy to the National Park Service, has a history that is by turns glamorous, tragic, and futile, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

The Dry Tortugas lie some 60 miles to the west of Key West, like an afterthought to the main Florida Keys, continues the bulletin. These isolated isles are nothing more than seven low bars of wind-swept shell and coral sand, sparsely covered with small bay cedars and palms, encircled by dangerous reefs and uninhabited—except for a few faithful lighthouse keepers and thousands upon thousands of nesting sooty and noddy terns.

An Almost Forgetten Stronghold

The fully bastioned brick and stone walls of Fort Jefferson, on Garden Key, once earned for it the nickname "Gibraltar of America." Long obsolete as a means of defense, the hoary stronghold now has become a National Monument by Presidential order.

Despite its resounding nickname, however, the dismantled and decaying Fort Jefferson has played a futile part in military history. Built in 1846, it was supposed to guard the ship lanes between Cuba and Florida, but even before it was completed the vast citadel was agreed to be a military mistake. It was garrisoned, however, early during the Civil War and held by Federal forces throughout the conflict, serving as a prison after 1863.

No enemy gun ever poured shot and shell into its barracks. A Confederate gunboat sailed cautiously within gunboat sailed cautiously within range in 1861, but it was frightened away when the commander of the fort trained upon the warship his full complement of guns—scarcely a dozen of which were loaded!

When Horror and Death Reigned Within Its Walls

Although it never figured in a military action, the grim old stronghold is no stranger to horror and death. Within its moated walls yellow fever suddenly appeared in August, 1867. Both ways it spread from the hed of the first patient. The whole side of the fort in which it broke out was evacuated by the terrified garrison, and closed off from the remainder by partitions.

But right and left of the abandoned gallery the men nearest the partitions next fell ill, and the plague renewed its march. Hospital facilities were overtaxed; deaths occurred daily and immediate burials followed without ceremony.

All officers, including the surgeon, died, and for a time direction of medical affairs rested with a prisoner. This was the unfortunate Dr. Samuel A. Mudd, who had been imprisoned at the island fort because, when awakened in the dead of night, at his Maryland home below Washington, he had set the broken leg of a stranger who turned out to be John Wilkes Booth, assassin of President Lincoln. Dr. Mudd courageously tended the sick and dying until he, too, was taken ill. He recovered, and, because of his heroic efforts, was granted a full pardon.

Reoccupied During War with Spain

Fort Jefferson was finally abandoned in 1873, although it was temporarily reoccupied by American troops during the Spanish-American War. Since 1900 it has been a ward of the Navy Department. As a National Monument it will be open to visitors. Already a force of relief workers has cleaned up part of the courtyard and is installing quarters for those who come by boat or plane and wish to remain overnight. Fort Jefferson is one of the least-known bits of American domain, because under Navy rule it was closed to all visitors, and not even airplanes were permitted to fly over it.

The Dry Tortugas possess a great many attractions for fishermen and naturalists. More than 600 varieties of fish abound in the clear waters off its enveloping reefs, and Bird Key has long been a national bird and turtle refuge.

Science remembers the Dry Tortugas as the first place that natural-color photographs of fish were ever made beneath the surface of the sea. A National Geographic Society expedition led by Dr. W. H. Longley, of Goucher College, and Charles Martin, chief of the photographic laboratories of the National Geographic Society, succeeded in obtaining many realistic pictures of parrot fish, porgies, hogfish, French grunts, grey snappers, etc., in their natural feeding grounds among the reefs.

The Dry Tortugas owe the last part of their name to Ponce de Leon, who discovered the islands in June, 1513. Tortugas is Spanish for turtle. The famous explorer captured 170 of the reptiles there to replenish the larder of his ship. In 1556 that sturdy Elizabethan, Captain John Hawkins, homeward bound from a profitable voyage in forbidden Spanish waters, visited the islands. He loaded his pinnace with birds of species that still breed there by thousands, took the flesh and eggs of great sea turtles, and set down in his log notes that read like a page from Robinson Crusoe.

Earliest Industry in U. S.

The first industrial enterprise was a glass bottle factory erected in the Virginia colony soon after 1607. The works were about one mile from Jamestown. The second glass house was erected in 1622 for the manufacture of glass beads for trading with the Indians.

Penguins Travel Extensively

Penguins may give the appearance of staid stay-at-homes, but actually they travel extensively—at least, the Adelie and Emperor penguins of the Antarctic do. Stones found in the stomachs of these birds indicate migrations of 250 to 400 miles.

Hypocrisy

"Hypocrisy often makes a great show of happiness," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "in the hope of luring sincerity to sharing its discomforts."

SQUARING ONE'S SELF WITH THE ALMIGHTY

Going to Church on Sunday When the Weather Is Fine and Dropping a Coin or Two on the Collection Plate Helps Pay Expenses But in No Manner Fits a Person for Entrance Into the Next World—God Dislikes Fakirs and We Do Have a Lot of Them in the Church

There is a class of persons in every community who, though not what one would call intellectual marvels and not in the habit of pondering great issues, yet who cherish a sincere respect for the church, and who abhor all insincerity and hypocrisy. Sincere and honest themselves they have the idea that those connected with the church as leaders are equally destitute of treachery to God. Not long ago I was talking with a man who has been a member of the Official Board of one of our Everett churches for a long time and he very frankly agreed with me that a lot of people go to church more as a matter of form than for permanent good in their relations with their fellows. God doesn't want the money of a fakir whether he is a big business man or just a plain pew sitter. A good priest friend of mine once "bawled out" his people from the altar and told certain ones plainly that he didn't want a penny of any money derived from liquor selling or crap shooting. The gall of some folk in making money by some sinful occupation or sport and then dropping some of it on the church plate is hard to understand. Maybe they think that by so doing they can square themselves with the Almighty but God doesn't do business that way.

A young man here in Everett was about to enter the ministry but gave up the idea and became a cog in the minor machinery of a large banking institution. His explanation was that he felt too many church folk were not sincere and that anything he would be able to say from the pulpit wouldn't help matters much. And so it seems. But not all church folk are insincere although the large number who are certainly make a lot of non-church goers have less faith in religion. Every person not actually feebleminded knows that the Almighty objects to us so far as trying to do right is concerned. The church cannot save us, cannot save a single soul, some fine living men and women never enter a church at all and in the judgment day it is a safe bet that God will reward them as surely as He will the few in the churches whose lives are the real thing even though they may be poor in the world's goods. They are rich in spiritual values and that is what counts.

In the final analysis it comes down to a question of loyalty, not only loyalty to the church but loyalty to God. Dropping a certain number of coins onto the church plate each week is one way of showing one's loyalty but material loyalty isn't everything. The Almighty isn't interested in receiving money from a single person who has the idea that the money consideration and the fact of his or her attendance at church is going to result in their eternal happiness in the next world. What God wants are lives consecrated to Him. And this isn't as simple as it sounds if one is going to try to be a real dyed in the wool Christian. There was not a soldier in the armies of Napoleon—at least when those soldiers were all Frenchmen—who would not gladly and proudly have died for the emperor. But many people who go to church or those who call themselves Christians feel that they have done a great thing, and discharge their full duty to God and man, if they go to church once a week, weather permitting. I recall as a boy a woman employed in my home as a domestic who each morning at 5 left for her prayers at church—she was the most sincere woman I have ever known and that was a long time ago. Imagine a person getting up at 5 and going to church on a wintry morning as she did 365 mornings in the year and as some do today in the Catholic Church. But unfortunately there are fakirs in the Catholic Church just as we have them in the Jewish and Protestant Churches. It matters not where one goes to church or even if one does not go to church at all as long as that person is on the level with God and man. Going to church will never save anybody and neither can anybody buy his way into the next world. Money is a pretty convenient thing to have as those who have little well realize, but when it comes to religion, money is of little use. Salvation is free just like the air we breathe.

It seems almost blasphemous to speak of the pathos of our Lord's life since it was a life of triumph. But it was a life of triumph because it was a life of suffering and sacrifice. Its power and beauty were revealed in the Cross, and everything. He said or did pointed to the Cross—Christ's ideal for man is, "But I say unto you, love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you." Imagine certain people in our churches, it is immaterial which creed is involved, doing all these things! Most church people know about as much about the 100 per cent execution of Christ's idea as they do about extracting gold from the water of the Malden River!

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

Enjoy a feast of oranges this week. Both Florida Valencias and California navels are at their cheapest and best. Serve them at each and every meal, eat them between meals and at bedtime. They'll help cure that attack of spring fever.

Apples, too, and grapefruit are attractively priced. Lemons are much cheaper than they are in summer.

Vegetables with few exceptions are low in price. Green and wax beans, summer squash, green peas, and spinach invite the careful shoppers's attention. Asparagus is getting within the reach of ordinary pocketbooks. Bunch carrots are particularly attractive.

Meals made up of vegetables served with eggs, fish or cheese are attractive and nourishing. Meats are even higher than last week, with beef highest and lamb and poultry offering fairly good values.

Here are three menus made up of seasonable foods adapted to different budget levels.

Low Cost Dinner
Macaroni and Cheese
Buttered Carrots
Spinach with Hard-cooked Egg
Bread and Butter
Orange Shortcake
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

Flower of the Lily

The French call the iris the fleur de lis (flower of the lily), since medieval times they have used the fleur de lis as an emblem for heraldry.

Affect the Lungs

Thirteen different fungi which may affect the lungs and produce symptoms like those of tuberculosis have been described.

THE WANTON CLUB CABARET

One reason for the continued success of the Winton Club Cabaret each year is the amount of effort, usually unrewarded, that is contributed by those long-suffering persons, the husbands of the members, who so willingly turn out during the weeks of preparation to be hammers, step-ladders and paint and give freely of their Terpsichorean and acrobatic talents in the sweet name of charity.

Tired of hiding their lights under bushels, they got together a few weeks ago, formed "The Wanton Club" and proceeded to see what they could do without the aid of feminine help or advice. The result was a dinner, entertainment and dance at the Winchester Country Club last Saturday evening which answered the question, "Could the men give a party without the help of their consorts, or couldn't they?" The answer is, one hundred and eighty million times, Yes!

At the Country Club entrance flashed a sign of promising nature in proper night club style. Promptness seemed to be in order and each person wore a name ticket, which was very helpful to many. The dance hall was memory-provoking with colorful decorations from past cabarets, the long banquet tables were provided with amusing menus and programs, strewn with flowers and serviced by a well-trained force of "waiters."

The entertainment after dinner quite fulfilled the expectations of long-curious club members, from whom the entire arrangements had been kept secret. It consisted of songs by two popular cabaret performers in their own particular style and songs by a quartette and trio. Nothing is funnier than men in women's clothes and the meeting of the "Wanton Club" with its officers reports, club chatter, the "women" busily sewing and knitting was a hilarious bit of burlesque and sly humor. Following came a "take-off" on dance numbers seen in the recent cabaret, in costumes that were different, to say the least, the performance reducing the audience to a helpless state of mirth. Even the drawing for a free trip was repeated, the lucky winner receiving, to her surprise, a free trip ticket from Winchester to Wedgemere with a travel booklet for her enjoyment. On the whole, the entertainment was a compelling revelation of the hitherto concealed mental and physical endowments of the male auxiliary.

It would be impossible to name all of the loyal husbands who joined forces within the bonds of "Wanton Club" to give such a successful and unique party. Every smallest detail was attended to, every accessory for a good time was available, yet it is reported that no one on the committee is "a perfect wreck" after the Wanton Club Cabaret.

MEN INVITED TO BETTER HOMES GARDEN CLUB EVENING MEETING

An evening meeting, to which men interested in gardening are invited, will be held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Torr Wagner Harmen, 14 Everett avenue, March 20, 7:45 o'clock. The speaker will be Prof. Arnold M. Davis of Massachusetts State College, who will give the first of a series of three lectures on, "The Out Door Living Room." There will be practical suggestions for planning the garden, together with a discussion of "formal" and "informal" gardens and their suitability to different locations. Questions will be freely answered.

As an extra attraction, the club is privileged to show Mr. Bowen Tufts tinted photographs and water color pictures of Winchester gardens. Mr. Tufts delightful hobby will probably inspire other men to find interesting occupation or relaxation for leisure hours.

The meeting is free, but to enable the club to make adequate arrangements for rapidly increasing numbers, those who plan to attend will please telephone Win. 0371, 0118, or 1705-W.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR

The regular meeting was held at Lyceum Hall on Tuesday afternoon. A short business meeting was held, after which the program was turned over to Mrs. Frances R. Mullin chairman for the afternoon. Mrs. Mullen had as her artists, Miss Mary Dacy from the Leland-Powers School and Mrs. George Arthur White of Cambridge.

Mrs. White opened the program with a group of songs, "Little Gray Home in the West," "I Love You Truly" and "The Lilac Tree." The quality and range of Mrs. White's voice was enjoyed by all. Mrs. White was accompanied by Mrs. Mullen. For her second group the artist chose three more favorites: "Macushla," "Rose in the Bud" and "A Love Song."

Miss Dacy has a very pleasing stage presence and her audience soon was in a very gay mood. Her first group of readings included, "Bridge," "Their Only Child" and "Teddy Bear." The program closed with Miss Dacy's last group, "Selecting Wall Paper," "I Bought a Bed" and "At a Revoir."

Tea was served by the hostesses who were: Mrs. Mary F. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Julia C. Hurley, Mrs. Coren Hintlian, Mrs. Mary L. Gorman and Mrs. Genevieve Elwell.

POINSETTIA, AMERICA'S CHRISTMAS FLOWER

Because its red and green are Christmas colors, and because it generally blossoms around Christmastime, the poinsettia has come to be accepted as America's Christmas flower, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Christmas greeting-card makers use the poinsettia as freely in their color schemes as they do holly. Christmas trees, or Biblical scenes, continues the bulletin. Along with holly wreaths and evergreen trees, the potted poinsettia adds its bithesome note to northern florist shops and market stalls about the middle of December. When Christmas is over the poinsettia disappears as suddenly as it came.

Northumers who think of the poinsettia always as a potted plant are generally surprised to find it blossoming profusely in the open in many tropical countries. Even in such subtropical regions as Florida, Texas, and southern California, the poinsettia is as common a garden flower as the tulip or the iris of northern climes.

Discovered in Mexico

As a recognized flower, the poinsettia has a relatively brief history. It first came to the attention of the scientific world in 1828, when Joel Robert Poinsett, American Minister to Mexico from 1825-29, noticed the striking beauty of its scarlet and green head, and the fact that it usually came into blossom about Christmastime.

Poinsett, who was a botanist as well as a diplomat, brought several specimens back with him to this country, and fellow scientists soon learned that the flower would thrive in sub-tropical parts of the United States. Poinsett, a South Carolinian, collected many natural history specimens during his travels and work in foreign countries, presenting most of them to scientific societies in the United States, and enriching the flora of his own colorful South Carolina. Today, however, he is remembered chiefly for this Christmas flower which bears his name.

The poinsettia, which grows so freely in Mexico that it might almost be considered a national flower, is not confined to that country, but is found also in many parts of South America, Central America, the West Indies, and, more recently as a garden plant, in Bermuda, Texas, Florida, and southern California. Nurseries and scientists have extended the range of the poinsettia to such distant places as the Madeira Islands, the Philippines, and Singapore. It is also grown in greenhouses in our northern States and even as far north as Edinburgh, Scotland.

Has Many Other Names

Although the flower is known officially to botanists as poinsettia pulcherina, and to the American public at large as poinsettia, it has a number of less familiar aliases, such as: painted leaf, fire plant, flor de Santa Catarina, pano holandes, and Flor de Pascua. The last three are names by which the flower is known in Mexico.

Florists and government scientists in the United States, appreciating the ornamental value of the poinsettia as a Yuletide plant, have studied its growth and needs, and greatly enhanced its beauty, size and hardiness. Poinsettias grow easily from cuttings, and it was found that if the slips were planted during April or May in a sandy soil, later repotted in a richer soil, and kept at a temperature of about 65 degrees F., the plants would bloom late in December.

At first poinsettias were grown in "stoves," built and heated for this purpose; later, with the development of the greenhouse, the plants were placed under glass and grown on a large commercial scale. Care must be taken to produce as nearly perfect plants as possible. The temperature in the hothouse must be kept constant and there must be no jarring to disturb the roots, or the leaves will turn yellow. In order to keep the leaves a dark green, soot is often added to the top soil in which the poinsettia is planted.

Poinsettia Comes from Large Family

The poinsettia is a shrub of the genus Euphorbia—a botanical family which has about 750 relatives or species. Tradition links its family name to that Euphorbus, who was a physician of King Juba, of Numidia. In Great Britain and temperate North America the Euphorbia is represented by the spurge family.

Although the red poinsettia is the most common type in the United States, there are also white and pink varieties in other countries. The bushy plant, as we know it, grows to a height of from three to six feet. Its red leaves are not the real flowers of the plant, but are called the bracts—that is, leaves from whose center or axil the flowers grow. The actual flowers of the poinsettia are small, yellow involucres at the center of the plant.

To us the poinsettia is a decorative Christmas ornament, almost as necessary as tinsel and mistletoe; but to other countries it has had a more practical value. The red leaves were once used by Mexican Indians to make a scarlet dye and as poultices in the treatment of skin infections. The milky white substance, found in the stem of the plant, was also made by them into a soothing medicine.

Average Is Certain

"It 'pears like human nature was boun' to strike an average," said Uncle Eben. "Some of de folks dat kin talk de wisest kin also act de foolishest."

An Idea of Size

From actual experiment it has been proven that the shell of an average ostrich egg will hold 18 ordinary hens' eggs.

HIGH SCHOOL VAUDEVILLE SHOW PLAYS TO PACKED HOUSE—SCORES WILLINGLY STAND

Several New Acts Feature Stellar Performance by Large Cast

After putting on a dress rehearsal before 600 enthusiastic grade school students last Friday afternoon, the high school vaudeville show cast presented their third annual performance in the high school auditorium on Friday evening to an equally enthusiastic audience which filled every available seat in the hall and packed the back of the auditorium with dozens of standees, who preferred to stand through the long entertainment rather than miss it.

From the first moments of the entertainment, during which Lucius Smith cleverly presented his program sellers to the good-natured crowd, to the finale at the close of the two-hour program the atmosphere was one of whole-hearted enjoyment. Every act was applauded, some more than others, to be sure, but the audience signified early and often that they were present to be entertained and that they were being entertained.

If one were to select the outstanding numbers from the program of 20 acts, possibly the following would demand recognition: the Four Hill Billies with their Mountain Music in the course of which Rufus Clark, freshman midget, brought the house down; the Gymnasts, 12 lithe, clever athletes who performed an interesting number of spectacular acts on the mats and on the spring-board, and whose extremely fine calculations of distance and timing brough many a gasp from an anxious parent or sweetheart; Harriett Pilkington's solo interpretation of "a one-sided flirtation," an exquisite dance number perfectly adapted to Miss Pilkington's charming personality; and John Plumer's original impersonations of various members of the high school faculty, during which even those who were being impersonated were threatened with collapse from spasm after spasm of laughter.

While these four numbers deserve to be placed at the top of the program because of their originality and their quality of excellence, it would be difficult to rate many of the other acts below them in popularity and entertainment.

The show opened with one of the most colorful and popular numbers of the program, the White Parade, in which a cleverly trained pony ballet consisting of Katherine Gilbert, Gertrude Harwood, Rebecca Jackson, Sybil Spencer, Jeanne Phelps, Evelyn McGill, Phyllis Lydock, Barbara Hickey, Mary Alice Mason and Barbara Corwin delighted the audience with a fascinating dance number. The girls wore attractive costumes of short white silk skirts and bodices with black rosettes in their hair. The group was coached by Mrs. Cora Corthell Phelps. Mrs. A. B. Corthell accompanied the dance at the piano.

Following this dance number came a short humorous skit in which Harrison Lyman and Russell Bliss, two butter and egg men, principally egg men, demonstrated that eggs can be funny as well as fresh, concluding their dialogue with a rather startling climax as they hurled egg after egg at the dodging and laughing audience. No one was hurt.

The Tap Dancers Ballet followed with five dancers appearing in a variety of clever and delightful dances. The popularity not only of tap dancing but of the dancers themselves with the audience was revealed by the applause they received after concluding several fine solo and duet dances with a group parade across the stage. The tapsters were really good. Their dances were varied. And their costumes were very attractive. They were Elizabeth Jennings, George Billman, Harriet Pilkington, Ida Cuculo, Betty Kendrick and Charlotte Gile.

Then came the Hill Billies mentioned above, whose singing and banjo act was so vociferously received that it was necessary for the master of ceremonies to announce that no encores were possible because of the length of the program. Diminutive Rufus Clark, with his clear and penetrating soprano-tenor voice and split-reed cackle, was well supported by Harold Fuller, Jack Tead and Thomas Worthen. These boys have a future before them as well as an enviable past.

One of the most unusual and spectacular acts of the show followed on the heels of the Hill Billies when Ivor Olson, with the assistance of Lucius Smith, demonstrated a surprising bit of eastern magic by placing Lucius in a coffin-like box in full view of the audience and then thrusting two real swords again and again through the box in such a manner that it seemed impossible for the imprisoned Lucius to avoid being spitted unmercifully. Yet at the end of the short vivid act the box was opened again and Lucius appeared untouched by either sword even if somewhat pale around the gills.

The next number on the program was a picturesque representation of an old-fashioned barn dance in which under the directions of Frank Porter who called the numbers in his inimitable "hick style" Phyllis Hartwell, Roger Downs, Nancy Hall, Evelyn Corey, Arthur Bowler, Dexter Derby, Barbara Berry and Robert Cushman, all dressed in character performed the popular Lady of the Lake and the Portland Fancy to the accompaniment of the piano and "Dick" Offut's banjo.

Two clever monologues were the next number, contributed by Geraldine Moulton and Norris Chevalier. Both of these girls gave humorous interpretations of human nature at its funniest. Miss Moulton's interpretation of a young married housewife shopping and Miss Chevalier's visit to an art gallery were both enthusiastically received by the audience.

With Doris Miley at the piano, Betty Carey followed this number with an all-too-short number on the Xylophone. Before the number was half over, the audience was humming in tune to the catchy rhythm of the music.

The last number before the short intermission was a burlesque skit composed by Frank Porter in which a number of laugh-provoking complications suddenly developed at a country hotel, with Frank playing the part of the hotel clerk, George Billman as the mailman, Donald Tead as the "dumb" carpenter, "Dick" Leghorn and Graham Peterson as two yeggmen with "pansy characteristics," Kenneth Leghorn as a Southern gentleman, William Burt as an old maid, Richard Elliott as a detective, and Robert Howe as a phantom voice.

After the intermission came a short but cleverly executed Indian Club Drill in which nine boys in white ducks and white shirts performed some rhythmic and difficult manouvers with the clubs. Led by Richard Sexton, the following boys made this number a success: Douglas Edwards, Herbert Wood, Albert Matthews, John Sexton, Kenneth Gurney, Max LeRoyer, George Dotten and Ernest Thompson.

"Bob" Friery's acrobats next put on their fine exhibition of high and lofty tumbling. These boys had been practicing and perfecting their act for weeks in advance and gave a finished performance which proved as stated above, to be one of the highlights of the show. After watching their work, one felt that this group might well put on a complete show of their own and fill the auditorium. Those who participated in this number were Douglas Edwards, Richard Offutt, Addison Garner, Fred Bates, Donald Howard, Kenneth Gurney, Richard Sexton, John Sexton, Alfred Matthews, Herbert Wood, Ernest Thompson and Max LeRoyer. They were good.

One of the few solo numbers of the show came next in which J. Dello Iaconno sang a charming solo with accompaniment. Miss Iaconno's voice was true and sweet and her singing was thoroughly enjoyed.

Clever dancing and impersonations feature the act in which Winona Boardley and Lillian Reynolds appeared with "Pat" Gardner. Miss Corinne Howe was at the piano. Miss Boardley and Miss Reynolds proved clever dancers and were attractively costumed, their performance being warmly applauded. The inimitable "Pat" impersonated one of the country's popular night club directors in a manner that caught the fancy of his audience, voice, gestures and costume contributing to an excellent bit of work.

The next number was a new departure from former programs. It consisted of a fragmentary minstrel show with "Bob" Dotten as interlocutor and his semi-circle of blackface comedians. Their original jokes at the expense of members of the high shool faculty and their moaning songs were received with enthusiastic applause. Clifford Cunningham as end man was well supported by Richard Hull, Graham Peterson, Charles Armstrong, Elliott Blaisdell, Pat Gardner, John Doherty, Arthur Bowler and D. Carleton, and their own mothers wouldn't have known them when they appeared on the stage. Before we forget it, we should mention Arnold Morse as one of the cast of this act which was ably coached by Mr. Totten of the faculty.

Jack Benny had his innings next in a little skit over an imaginary radio broadasting set in which Clifford Cunningham, Priscilla Danforth, Muriel Little, Arthur Bowler, Gerald Peterson and D. Carleton presented an amusing skit of country and city contrasts.

Harriet Pilkington's solo dance, which we have already enthused over, was the next number on the program. And she was followed by John Plumer. It would be a mistake to say anything more about these two artists. Represcnting quite opposite types of entertainment they were both supreme in ther interpretations and were applauded again and again by the enthusiastic audience.

One of the most unique and entertaining features of the program followed when a group of six Mickey Mouses appeared in a clever tap dancing number. In the afternoon performance this act brought down the house of several hundred shouting youngsters, and was equally appreciated by the grown-ups in the evening.

Led and coached by Betty Jennings, were the following Mickey Mice: Barbara Moulton, Betty Carey, B. Blanchard, A. Kimball and S. Rogers.

"Dick" Offutt, Jane Offutt and Ernest Thompson followed the Mice with an attractive musical number with three stringed instruments and vocal numbers by "Dick" and Jane. This was really one of the best acts of the show. It was catchy and extremely popular. All three of the musicians are real artists and they gave a highly finished performance.

The final number of the show consisted of a surprise burlesque dance by a group of eight policemen. At least they were dressed in policemen's helmets and brass-buttoned coats and each one of them swung a dangerous looking billy as they danced through their hilarious steps to the accompaniment of the piano. Rushing from the back of the hall to the aid of Lester Gustin, who appeared in front of the curtain calling for help, they sweat the hapless Lester from their path and swung into one of the most fantastic and laughable dance numbers ever witnessed on this or any other stage. The "cops" were Jerry Gaffney, Frank Provinzano, "Ken" Munroe, "Jack" Hanlon, Albert Gaum, Walter Josephson, Lawrence Bairstow and "Dave" Grosvenor, all in person.

Before closing this review of the show itself, it is necessary to speak of the surprise number which appeared about the middle of the show when the master of ceremonies, Lester Gustin, was harshly interrupted in his remarks by the rattling of the radiator in the front of the hall where "Dan," the popular janitor of the school, was apparently trying to make a necessary adjustment to the said radiator. Eventually Lester induced "Dan" to step upon the platform and to the delight of the audience "Dan" in his overalls and blue shirt, with a grin, wiped his mouth and told the audience one of his characteristic Scotch stories. "Dan" has the makings of a successful vaudeville artist and is wasting his time monkeying with radiators.

And speaking of Lester Gustin. Lester performed in a masterly fashion as the master of ceremonies, introducing each act with clever and appropriate remarks and keeping the show moving from start to finish.

The show was a success in every way and most of the real credit should be given to Miss Adele Loysen and to Mr. Wendell Mansfield, co-chairmen of the project. Both of them put in long hours planning and rehearsing the acts and both were highly pleased with the results.

HEART TO HEART TALKS

By Eugene Bertram Willard

The chance to serve others is the really big thing in life. This was the sentiment voiced by young McLaughlin who, in the crisis of the tragic Iroquois Theater fire in Chicago, years ago, carried 28 women and children to safety, but in so doing inhaled the flames himself. Later as he lay dying at the hospital he said: "I ask no sympathy or pity; some men get their chance at 50, some at 40, some at 30, I got mine at 20, and am happy to die."

The chance to serve others! How many in and out of Winchester pass up some opportunity every day to show the world how strongly they believe in the principles of Christian stewardship. It is very discouraging at times to see folk so careless in their relations with their fellows, how little they are interested in their material and spiritual progress. Apart from serving others by some direct service to them which assures them a livelihood all of us may serve others in a small way which costs nothing more than a personal call at a sick home or a letter to some person in trouble of some kind. Take the case of dear little Alyce Jane McHenry at the Truesdale Memorial Hospital in Fall River. Thousands of persons in all stations of life have paused long enough to write her a letter of encouragement and all of us may do something of the kind in the case of a friend who is ill at Winchester Hospital or in some out of town hospital or on a sick bed at home. A shut-in, especially one who is suffering much, loves to get a cherry letter now and then—such missives speed up recovery.

All of us have a chance to do a good deed every day. It may be holding the door for some other person, answering the query of a stranger with a smile, helping in a thousand ways others in need of help. All of us can be Christian stewards and if we belong to some church society and fail to step out those in need of friendly help we are failing to render a proper Christian stewardship. A pleasant word, a friendly letter or substantial help where it is needed and we can afford it; we are only here on earth a short while and while here let us make the most of our opportunities for real stewardship. So when we come to die others will say, "He was a real fellow!"

OBSERVATIONS

(By the Observer)

It is the man with the invisible means of support that causes the neighborhood gossip.

We hate to say it in such a conservative paper as the Star but a certain fair one here in fair Winchester who is living off the alimony evidently thinks marriage a good investment.

It won't be long now before the housewives of Winchester are doing their spring cleaning.

For patience, Job wasn't in it with a fellow here in Winchester who recently spent an hour and a half trying to get rid of a mustard plaster.

A Winchester man says he has spent a lot of time engaging in difficult feats, but he has yet to dodge a cross-eyed man driving a motor car.

Sound advice that every man and woman in fair Winchester will do well to heed: Ask for nothing but what is right and submit to nothing that is wrong.

The self-made Winchesterite is as proud of the outcome as he is of his income.

Heard a woman in Winchester talking about the "time when she was a girl." Ah, a woman is never really old until she begins to talk about her girlhood. Be careful, ladies!

How many Winchesterites remember when they went to church in the old days how the parson took three hours to deliver his sermon and how the members of the congregation discussed its salient points when they met down town later in the week?

The bath tubs of Winchester are bare necessities.

In the Winchester of a by-gone period the children played hop, skip and jump. Now every pedestrian plays it.

Just our luck three or four months hence. There will be no snow and ice when the thermometer reaches 90 in the shade.

The happiest moments in one old maid's life are spent in visioning the time she reached the age of "sweet sixteen."

A true man scorns pleasures that give others pain.

A mass meeting of parishioners of St. Jerome's Parish, the new Arlington-Belmont parish of the Boston Roman Catholic Archdiocese, was held on last Sunday afternoon in the Menotomy Club rooms in Arlington to commemorate the achievements of the first six months of the parish. The pastor, Rev. Fr. Joseph M. Fitzgibbons, formerly assistant at St. Mary's in Winchester, thanked his parishioners for their hearty support of his efforts since he was assigned to St. Jerome's by Cardinal O'Connell, and stated that despite the unfortunate weather conditions, he expects to hold services in the new church building on Easter Sunday.

Last Saturday forenoon a lady parked her car in the center at the Common opposite the National Bank. The brakes not being set up, the car started to roll and went down across the street to the corner at Knight's Pharmacy, where it mounted the curb and ended up against light pole. As the curb was high at this point the car's speed was checked sufficiently for the pole to hold it without damage to either. Although many persons were about the center and in the vicinity, the fact the car was not occupied was unnoticed until it reached the corner, passing traffic obscuring it. It was very fortunate that no car appeared at Knight's corner during its run. After considerable delay, the owner appeared and claimed the car, taking the ticket attached to it to the police station.

TRICKS OF WAYWARD RIVERS

Residents of north and central New Mexico received a jolt recently when the Rio Grande, source of water for their crops, suddenly left them in the lurch by drying up completely into a path of sand.

Dwellers near the peaceful Potomac or steady Hudson, accustomed to relying on rivers as dependable landmarks, flowing in routine way from source to mouth, are in for disillusionment, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. No feature of Nature is more capricious than some rivers.

Rivers Changeable as Chameleons

This sudden drying up is an old trick of the Rio Grande, which, with only one large tributary, the River Pecos, tries to flow from the Rocky Mountains over 1900 miles to the sea across open valleys and arid desert. In winter and spring, melted snows swell this United States boundary stream until in places it leaves its banks; but in summer, in many sections, it evaporates in its sandy bed or, benefiting by one of the old habits of the eccentric Rio Grande, it swinging in great curves over low flood plains, it often changes its course, shifting land between Mexico and Texas.

Another perverse river is the changeable Hwang Ho, which has shifted its course through China many times. Its mouth on the Yellow Sea, once south of the Shantung Peninsula, now lies north of that promontory, 250 miles from its former outlet.

Undoubted windings of a river add numerous miles to its course. Although an airplane trip direct from the source of the Seine to its mouth covers only 250 miles, the river, because of its meanderings, actually traverses 482 miles.

River Swords Cut Slices Through Land

Broad swingings of a river form wide curves, so-called "oxbow loops." In flood time, a swollen stream will sometimes cut across the neck of one of these loops, and flowing in a new channel, shorten its course by as much as 15 miles. Early colonists at Jamestown, Va., originally settled on a peninsula jutting out into the James River, but the wandering river finally sliced the site off from the land, converting it into an island.

Rivers erode their banks unevenly. Often one bank remains many times higher than the other. The Volga's right bank in its lower portion is cliff-like, while the left bank is low and subject to floods. For this reason, the Volga's lower course shows over 30 towns built on the high right bank to a mere handful on the low left bank.

Although the sea's deposits on coasts sometimes cause rivers to seek new outlets, many rivers, on the other hand, push their lines and into the sea, linking islands to the land with sediment.

Streams that Disappear

A stream eccentric in its flow is the Garonne, a river of southwestern France, formed by two torrents. One of them rises like any other river, flows along normally like an ordinary stream, and then drops mysteriously into the earth to flow underground for two and a half miles before emerging. Kentucky's Mammoth Cave and Virginia's Natural Bridge are thought to be the result of like subterranean tunneling. In Greece, rivers quite commonly disappear into caverns and reappear miles distant. Collapse of the roof of one of these caverns causes the formation of a sink hole, or pond with no visible outlet. Several sink holes are found in Kansas and Indiana.

Rivers vary not only their length but their volume. Broken dams and levees, raging waters dotted with roofs of drowned houses tell the tragedy of floods on the Mississippi and other rivers. The Hwang Ho is nicknamed "China's Sorrow," because of its frequent inundations which drown thousands of peasants crowding its low basin. Many Siberian rivers are unusual in that they flow to the north which means that the snows near their sources melt while their mouths, being farther north, remain ice bound. The released torrents, halted by this ice barricade, spread out over the land in floods.

Nile Has Tangled Carpet of Vegetation

Tidal rivers possess interesting phenomena in tidal waves, or "bores," which sweep in periodically from the sea. As those waves ascend the narrowing channel of a river, they form a steep wall of water towering many feet high. The Wye and the Severn in England, and the Seine in France, have small bores. The Hangchow bore on the Tsientang River, China, is one of the most famous of the river bores.

Vegetation sometimes accounts for extraordinary appearances of rivers. The Rio Negro, (Black River), a tributary of the Uruguay River, is so called because decaying sarsparilla roots, lining its banks, discolor its waters.

The Upper Nile, between Khartum and Gondokoro is sometimes blocked-aded with floating vegetation called Sudd, from an Arabic word meaning "block." In flood times, additional sediment often causes the mass to grow 25 miles long. Its interwoven reeds, vines, and bamboos form a great carpet so strong that elephants and rhinoceroses can walk across the Nile on it.

If and When

"When de food ain' comin' along so reg'lar," said Uncle Eben, "I corrects my superstition and admits dat a rabbit's foot ain' nearr as lucky as a pig's foot."

Then as Now

At the time of the Trojan war, the new was expressed that the world was too densely populated.

Room to Crowd More

Kansas could hold the population of the United States. The people of England and Wales could be comfortably housed in the greater London area in 10 houses to the acre.

CHANGES TO GREET WASHINGTON'S CHERRY BLOSSOM SIGHTSEERS

Thousands of school students, tourists, artists, photographers and others who make pilgrimages to Washington when the Japanese cherry trees are in bloom, will this month find a vastly-transformed national capital as well, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

An active building and beautification program that dates back more than a decade has begun to take form in huge new government structures, libraries, scientific society headquarters, boulevards and parks. From Capitol Hill to the Lincoln Memorial, and from the Potomac to the Cathedral, visitors will miss many old landmarks, and will find many new edifices and cleared areas in their places.

Much Construction in Progress

In contrast with the rest of the country, too, Washington is still a city where the rattle of riveting machines, the rumble of concrete mixers and the whistles of hoisting engines are still heard as new buildings take form from structural steel and stone.

In the neighborhood of the Capitol the dazzling white marble walls of the incomplete Supreme Court Building, new Bank the Library of Congress on the east side of the Plaza. The Library, itself, has a new wing under construction; while back of it is the Folger Library, a marble structure housing the nation's finest collection of Shakespeariana. On the south side of the Plaza rises a second House Office Building, while the U-shaped Senate Office Building has been made into an approximate square.

All the district between the Capitol and the Union Station has been cleared of unsightly war-time buildings, and in their stead is a beautifully landscaped park, with a fountain and terrace. Hidden beneath the park lies a large garage which line helped to solve the parking problem in the area.

A New Parade Street

Pennsylvania Avenue, the street of parades, has a new rival in Constitution Avenue, formed by widening B Street and by cutting through several blocks of houses and buildings. Constitution Avenue runs directly from the north side of the Capitol to the Potomac River near the Lincoln Memorial. Along it are the new Justice, Interstate Commerce, Labor and Department of Commerce, Internal Revenue and Public Health Buildings.

The last three are completed and the others are in various stages of construction, as is also the National Archives Building near the site of the old Center Market. On Pennsylvania Avenue, beside the tower of the old Post Office Department Building, a new structure to house the activities of this branch of the government is being finished.

Across the Mall from this group rises the new Department of Agriculture administration building, with huge auxiliary structures running down toward the railroad district along the Potomac. Here is being constructed also a central heating plant for government offices in this part of the city.

The huge Department of Commerce building was finished last year. Visitors will find in its basement a unique aquarium that contains living specimens of many important food fishes and also various types of tropical and gold fishes raised in home aquariums.

The Cathedral Adds a Transept

On Sixteenth Street, three blocks above the White House, are the recently-enlarged headquarters of the National Geographic Society, and, a little farther north along this thoroughfare, the cascades of Meridian Hill Park. Norway and Japan have joined the new "embassy district" on upper Massachusetts Avenue with handsome buildings housing their staffs. A new transept has been added to the Washington Cathedral, where Woodrow Wilson and Admiral Dewey are buried.

Potomac Park, where 21 years ago the first Japanese cherry trees were planted by Mrs. William Howard Taft, wife of the President, has been extended by a new riverside drive from the Lincoln Memorial to Georgetown. This drive faces former Analostan Island, now Theodore Roosevelt Island, in the Potomac, which was presented to the government last year by the Roosevelt Memorial Association to become a shrine to the late President. Rock Creek Park, which cuts a green swath through the comital, is being enlarged so that it will be possible to drive from the Potomac River to the Maryland line entirely in parked areas.

During the past year, too, the Arlington Memorial Bridge across the Potomac was opened to traffic. This beautifully arched span now links the Lincoln Memorial circle with a new approach to Arlington Memorial Cemetery, and with the Mount Vernon Boulevard to Alexandria and the home of the first President.

The Rain Tree

The rain tree, one of the wonders of Peru, is the country's source in times of drouth. Its huge umbrella-like leaves condense the moisture of the atmosphere and precipitate from 10 to 15 gallons of water a day.

Each Hair Tiny Tube

Each hair is really a tiny tube covered with infinitesimal scales. Some hair contains more coloring matter; in other cases, the scales are harder or more numerous. All these factors play their part in settling the hair problem —to curl or not to curl.

Clothing Absorbs Sound

Government tests have shown that actors or speakers in a hall should speak louder in cold weather, because the heavy clothing of the audience absorbs more sound.

MRS. MARY E. FELCH

Mrs. Mary E. Felch, widow of Melbourne Felch and one of Winchester's oldest residents, died Saturday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Clifford C. Ramsdell, 117 Mt. Vernon street, after a long illness. She was in her 99th year, and had been in excellent health until she sustained a broken hip in a fall at her home about ten weeks ago. Her death resulted from that injury.

Mrs. Felch was the daughter of Hennon and Lydia (Crosby) Dennis and was born in Rockville, Yarmouth County, N. S. Her early life was spent in Rockville, and she was married there, coming to Boston shortly after her marriage.

For many years she made her home in Boston where her husband was engaged in the contracting business. Later she lived in Milton before coming to make her home with her daughter in Winchester 16 years ago.

Besides Mrs. Ramsdell, she is survived by three daughters, Miss Mary Maude Felch of Winchester, Mrs. Wilton M. Howatt of Jamaica Plain and Mrs. William Atkins of Los Angeles, Calif.; two sisters, Mrs. Lucy Dennis and Mrs. Lorenzo Dow Wetmore, both of Yarmouth, N. S.; a granddaughter, Mrs. Donald Holt of Jamaica Plain; a grand-son, Representative William E. Ramsdell of Winchester; and four great grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at the late residence Tuesday afternoon with Rev. J. West Thompson, pastor of the Crawford Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church, officiating. T. Parker Clarke sung two favorite hymns. Interment was in the family lot at Forest Hills Cemetery.

MRS. GRACE M. BATES

Mrs. Grace M. Bates, wife of Frank M. Bates of 12 Park avenue, died at her home early Wednesday morning, March 20, after a long illness. She was 64 years old.

Mrs. Bates was the daughter of George W., and Sarah (Brawn) Fillebrown, and was a native of Skowhegan, Me. Her early life was spent in Maine, and before coming to Winchester 14 years ago she made her home in Dorchester. She was a member of the Massachusetts Maine Daughters and of the Committee of Safety Chapter of the D. A. R.

Mrs. Bates was married in 1893. Besides her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Pearl Bates Morton; a son, F. Donald Bates; both of Winchester; by a sister, Mrs. Luella Runnells of Waterville, Me.; and a brother, George W. Fillebrown of Lewiston, Me.

Funeral services will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Ripley Chapel of the First Congregational Church with the pastor, Rev. Howard J. Chidley, officiating. Interment will be in Wildwood Cemetery.

CRIME NIGHT

Men's Club, First Congregational Church

Prof. Sam Bass Warner of the Harvard Law School and Judge Frederic A. Crafts of Boston will be the guests of the Men's Club of the First Congregational Church, Thursday evening, March 28, at 8 p. m.

Professor Warner is a criminologist of national reputation. He is the author of various books and is a member of the Harvard Crime Commission which is engaged in a comprehensive survey of the entire question of crime, its prevention and the treatment of criminals. His subject for the evening will be, "Making the Punishment Fit the Crime."

Judge Crafts was an Assistant District Attorney for Middlesex County for eight years and was a Prosecuting Attorney in many leading cases. He is probably best known for the convictions he obtained in the insurance fraud cases, the McKnight case and the recent Suffolk County disbarment actions in which he appeared before the Supreme Judicial Court as Prosecuting Attorney for the Boston Bar Association. He also participated in the numerous homicide and other major criminal cases which were prosecuted in Middlesex County during his many years in office. He will relate some of his personal experiences in unravelling the mysteries of various cases and in dealing with criminals of various types, both in and out of court.

Both Professor Warner and Judge Crafts are able speakers and in this era of the popularity of detective and mystery stories it is expected that there will be a large attendance at the meeting.

All men of the church and their guests are invited to attend.

THE HIGHLANDS' FATHER AND SONS' ASSOCIATION TO CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

FUNERAL RITES FOR CAPTAIN E. S. FLAHERTY

The funeral of Capt. Eugene Stephen Flaherty, senior captain of the Winchester Fire Department, took place Monday morning, the cortege forming at his late home, 11 Richard-on street.

Patrolman John J. Murray in a police cruising car headed the procession which included a large detail of uniformed firemen under command of Deputy Chief John J. Gorman and a detachment of firemen from the Woburn Department under Captain Patrick Flaherty. The active pallbearers, all permanent firemen and including John J. Flaherty, Harry E. Brown, Edward D. Fitzgerald, David J. Meskell, James J. Callahan and John J. O'Mcia, marched on either side of the hearse. The police escort, Patrolmen Clarence J. Dunbury, D. Irving Reardon, Joseph J. Derro and James E. Farrell, was under Sergt. Edward W. O'Connell.

The cortege proceeded along Main street through the other along Mt. Vernon street and Washington streets to St. Mary's Church. As it passed the Central Fire Station, Engine 1, Ladder 1 and Engine 3 with full crews were drawn up in front of the house and the bells were tolled.

At the church, high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Conrad J. Quirbach. After the mass the cortege reformed and proceeded along Washington street to Main street where the uniformed men stood at salute while the body passed on its way to Holy Cross Cemetery in Malden where the interment was made.

Captain Flaherty died suddenly last week Friday morning at his home. He was 57 years old, a native of Somerville and had made his home in Winchester for half a century.

He first entered the Fire Department as a call man in 1897, became a permanent man in 1912 and senior captain in 1919. He was for many years treasurer of the Winchester Fireman's Relief Association.

Captain Flaherty was a widower. He leaves three daughters, Mrs. Philip Gange of Winchester, Mrs. Edward Kenneally of Malden, and Mrs. Edmund Leahy of Medford; a son, Joseph Flaherty of Winchester; a sister, Miss Mary Flaherty of Stoneham; and four grandchildren.

INSTALLED NEW MACHINERY

To care for his constantly increasing business, Horace Ford has installed a new combination mixing and freezing machine for manufacturing ice cream at his ice cream and candy shoppe on Thompson street.

The machine is two and one-half or five gallon capacity with 50 gallon hardening cabinet and 10 gallon mix compartment. It produces cream of an especially smooth texture that is particularly agreeable.

Previously the ice cream for the Winchester shoppe had been made at the Ford shoppe in Cambridge, but increased patronage made it necessary to install a machine here. There will be no change in the high quality of the ice cream and the same delicious flavors will be used.

MOVIE REFERENDUM

The Star is informed that the defeat of the Moving Picture motion presented at Monday evening's session of the annual Town Meeting is to be taken to a referendum by those interested in the petition of Mr. Albert Locntelli for a license to operate a moving picture theatre in Winchester. Petitions, it is understood, are now in circulation, asking the Board of Selectmen to grant the referendum.

The motion as put to the members of the limited town meeting was that the voters of the town recommend to the Selectmen that they grant a license to show motion pictures in Winchester on week days only. It was defeated, 48 being recorded in favor and 130 opposed.

FIRST ADJOURNED SESSION OF TOWN MEETING HELD

Little Additional Money Voted—Movies Voted Down

"Shorty" Carr's historic by-phrase, "But Not This Year," became, "But Not Tonight," as 198 of the town's precinct members indefinitely postponed or deferred action upon 13 of the 37 articles which came before the first adjourned session of the annual limited town meeting Monday evening. The session was especially tedious and at the rate the articles were being postponed at the opening of the evening, Mr. Laraway's sarcastic query as to whether the meeting proposed to transact ANY business seemed quite pertinent.

Even the article dealing with motion pictures failed to stir up any fireworks despite the fact that many had evidently come to the meeting solely to hear the debate on this matter. The balconies were well filled, largely with young people of high school ages, few of whom remained after the "movies" were disposed of.

Under this article a motion was introduced that the voters of the town recommend that the Selectmen grant a license to show moving pictures in Winchester one week days only. No one spoke upon the motion, either pro or con, and after a short pause, Mr. Tompkins moved to lay upon the table. Mr. Parsons, prefacing his remarks with the statement that he personally is opposed to motion pictures, felt that the motion should be acted upon so that a real expression of opinion could be obtained. Mr. Tompkins withdrew his motion and on a spoken vote the original motion was overwhelmingly lost, only a very few voices being heard in favor.

Mr. Larned then asked for a counted vote in order that a definite expression of the meeting's pleasure could be secured. Mr. Laraway opposed, saying that few would have the courage to vote on the matter until they got into a polling booth.

Mr. Ives stated that he favors motion pictures and would be glad to vote for them. Mr. Tansey moved for a counted vote, his motion was carried, and the vote taken, 48 being recorded in favor of recommending the license for "movies" with 130 in opposition.

The meeting opened with the filing of the report and discharge of the Waterways Committee, after which, Mr. Rowe, reporting for the committee on names, gave the committee's recommendation that the park at the corner of Lake and Main streets be named Wedge Pond Park and that markers be placed about town to better enable visitors to know specific features of the topography.

Mrs. McDonald objected strongly to the name Wedge Pond Park, stating that she had sponsored an article at a previous meeting providing a name for the park that residents of the North End desired. She asked to have the meeting's action on the matter of naming the Park so worded that in the event of a referendum, a vote could be had.

Mr. Rowe stated that the park is not in Precinct 6 and that provision had been made honoring soldier dead in the erection of the war memorial statute, but Mrs. McDonald demurred stating that the statue was not put up by the town, but by Mr. Parkhurst. The meeting voted to accept the report of the committee on names and the provision for the appointment of a committee to look into the desirability of erecting another school house on the west side of the town to take care of the growing hill section, the committee to select a suitable site for the building and report at a subsequent meeting.

Articles 11, 14 and 15, dealing with the town's unemployment relief campaign were laid on the table until March 25, pending the passing of State Legislation which will vitally affect the town's action in this matter. The matter of installing an oil burner in the Town Hall was indefinitely postponed as was the proposal to appropriate money to correct defects in the heating system at the junior high school and high school addition.

The sum of $900 was appropriated to repair the roof of the Wadleigh School building, make repairs to the fire escape, do certain painting and point the brick work, Mr. Wilkins explaining that it would be poor economy to permit the building to reach a bad state of repair. The meeting authorized the expenditure of $250 from the William P. Winchester Fund for procuring and repairing maps, photographs and other material for the History of the Town. The sum of $50 was appropriated to further indemnify Patrolman James F. Noonan of the police force for expenses incurred as the result of being accidentally shot while on duty at the pistol range.

Action on the report of the committee on a West Side Fire Station was postponed until March 25 and that on lowering the mill pond dam was, upon the motion of Mr. Davidson, indefinitely postponed. It was also voted to indefinitely postpone action on the construction of a new dog pound.

The sum of $1500 was appropriated to enable the town treasurer to foreclose liens upon real estate acquired by the sale thereof to the town for the non-payment of taxes. It was voted to accept the sum of $500 given to the town in trust by the late Charles E. Kendall, the income to be expended annually under the direction of the Cemetery Commissioners on the purchase of flowering plants for the burial lot of himself and his wife. Action on the proposal to enact a by-law regulating and restricting begging and the solicitation of alms was indefinitely postponed.

ELMER LEWIS

Elmer Lewis, for many years a building inspector in the State Department of Public Safety and a resident of Winchester for 20 years, died Friday forenoon, March 15, at his home, 20 Maxwell road, after a long and painful illness, during which he underwent three major operations.

Mr. Lewis was born Nov. 12, 1862, in Whitefield, Me. His parents were Alden, and Emeline (Buzell) Lewis and he came from an old Maine family widely known in and around his birthpace. After completing his education in the Whitefield schools he learned the carpenter's trade and in 1892 went to Brockton, where after working for several years as a carpenter, he became superintendent of public property and inspector of buildings for the city.

For three years he continued in that capacity, spending his spare time in study, and in August 1911, he passed the civil service examination and was appointed to the State Department of Public Safety, being first assigned to the Labor Department.

His interest in, and knowledge of building soon led to his transfer to the Inspector of Buildings' Department and he continued in this department until his death. He was widely known throughout the greater Boston district where many large public buildings were directly under his supervision.

A man of sterling character and great friendliness, he was liked by all with whom he came in contact, and held in especially high esteem by those, who through close contact, came to know his kindly spirit and willingness to serve.

Mr. Lewis was a member and past Chancellor of Damocles Lodge, Knights of Pythias, of Brockton; a member of Massasoit Lodge, I. O. O. F., of that city; of William Parkman Lodge, A. F. & A. M., and of other fraternal and business organizations. He came to Winchester from Somerville in 1915 after a residence of four years in the latter city.

On June 3, 1887, he married Minnie E. Merrill who survives him with a daughter, Mrs. Ervin C. Tracy of Reading, and two grandchildren. There are also surviving two brothers, Leslie Lewis of Whitefield, Me.; and Weston Lewis of Augusta, Me.; and a sister, Mrs. C. F. Donnell of Windsor, Me.

Funeral services were held on Sunday afternoon at the late residence with Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church, officiating. Delegations from the State Department of Public Safety, William Parkman Lodge, Damocles Lodge and Waterfield Lodge of Odd Fellows attended the services with representatives of the Brockton fraternities with which Mr. Lewis had been affiliated. The remains were placed in the vault in Wildwood Cemetery and will be taken later to North Pittston, Me., for burial in the Lewis family lot in the North Pittston Cemetery.

WILLIAM SALISBURY HATCH

William Salisbury Hatch, died suddenly at his home, 45 Forest street, on Friday evening, March 15. He was the son of Ira Gatchell and Harriet (Rice) Hatch, and was born in Winchester April 23, 1863. He was educated in the Winchester schools.

As a young man he went to work in East Boston, making window screens for Mr. F. O. Snow of this town, and when the shop was moved to Winchester about 1891, he came as foreman. In 1892 he married Lillian O. Snow, who survives him. After some years Mr. opened a cabinet shop on Main street in the old Whitney building, and later moved to Thompson street. In 1923 he built, by his residence on Forest street, the present shop, so well known to his many patrons. He was an artist in his work, making a specialty of restoring and reproducing antique furniture.

Besides his wife, he leaves three sons, Ralph W. Hatch of this town, and Ronald K. and Harold C. Hatch of Detroit, Mich.; two daughters, Mrs. Winfield H. Brown of North Waterford, Me. and Miss Marion F. Hatch of Winchester and four grandchildren.

CHARLES J. HARROLD

TRIBUTE TO DRAMATIC COACH

Last Tuesday evening, immediately after the performance of "Stop Thief," by the St. Mary's Players in the Town Hall, the members of the cast and many, many friends of another day paid a deserved tribute to Charles J. Harrold, a gentleman and a trouper.

Mr. Harrold, well known in greater Boston dramatic circles for the past half century, was presented with a purse as an expression of the regard and esteem of everyone.

"Charlie," as he is familiarly called, has been engaged in dramatics since 1886. His first big show was in 1892 with Oliver Emerson Bennett, under the direction of Messrs. James Gilbert and Joseph Todd. This was the beginning of a lifetime of zealous study and marvelous devotion.

In 1906 he became associated with the Brookline Dramatic Club and coached their productions for 25 consecutive years. A short time after this he was engaged by the Winchester Young Men's Social Club, a group that many will remember; the Winchester and Woburn Councils of the Knights of Columbus; the Stoneham High School Dramatic Society, with whom he was associated for 22 years; St. Anne's Parish Players of Somerville, whose presentation of "Peg O' My Heart" was given in many cities under his direction; the Winchester Post of the American Legion; St. Mary's Dramatic Club and the St. Mary's Players. In addition there were other organizations in Arlington Wakefield, Dorchester and Boston.

Constantly endeavoring to improve on perfection, and to broaden his knowledge, he studied "make-up" under C. A. Garey, a widely known Boston expert, scene-setting from Mr. Sullivan of the old Boston Theatre, and voice under Mr. McArthur of Malden.

"Charlie" was make-up man at the Schubert, Hollis and Colonial Theatres at various times in his career and also for the M. I. T., Pi Eta, and Hasty Pudding Club shows.

On this, the 43rd anniversary of his association with dramatics, we extend our heartiest congratulations and best wishes. Mr. Henry J. Maguire, in his address, to "Charlie," expressed our feelings in a way that cannot be improved upon.

"Charlie," who is now retired after 37 years in the Winchester Post office, makes his home at 74 Nelson street, Winchester. As he so aptly phrases it: "At my home the latchstring is always outside to all of you."

PROPOSED LEGISLATION TO PROVIDE UNEMPLOYMENT FUND

Representative William E. Ramsdell and Town Counsel Addison R. Pike, sponsored the bill (House No. 1850), passed Wednesday by the General Court and signed yesterday by Governor Curley, authorizing towns to establish temporary emergency relief funds during the years, 1935 and 1936.

Briefly, these funds are to be established to meet expenditures which must be made for any proper municipal work to be undertaken for the purpose of providing unemployment relief instead of making appropriations for specific subjects of municipal expenditure for this purpose or providing for the relief of unemployment wholly through the local departments of public welfare.

Previously it had been necessary for towns like Winchester to anticipate at the annual town meeting work which might be undertaken throughout the year or unemployment relief and provide therefor with specific appropriations, a practice more or less haphazard which could not provide for an emergency and often necessitated subsequent special town meetings to secure additional relief funds.

Under the new assessing laws such special meetings can not raise money by taxation and as a consequence it is necessary to provision in advance as nearly as possible, adequate means for meeting not only the known expenditures, but also for any unexpected unemployment demand which may arise.

The establishment in Winchester of a temporary emergency unemployment fund, to be administered by the Selectmen or other Board of Administration is expected to take care of the situation nicely and provision is also made in the bill upon a two-thirds vote of the town (which is also necessary to adopt the new act) for the Finance Committee to transfer to the emergency fund, if necessity arises, money from the reserve fund of the town.

MRS. FOSTINA M. BARBER

Mrs. Barber was 83 years old, and a native of Antrim, N. H. She had made her home with her daughter in Winchester for the past three years, and previously had spent nearly all of her married life in Milford, N. H., where both she and her husband were widely known.

Besides Mrs. Brown, there are surviving a sister, Mrs. Charles E. Kendall of Milford, N. H., a granddaughter, Miss Dorothy Brown, and a grandson, Henry B. Brown, both of Winchester.

KAY SNOW'S MARIONETTES

Three High School Pupils Operate Excellently Equipped Theatre

Winchester is rapidly winning a place in the amateur theatrical sunand may soon have cause for equal community pride in Kay Snow's Marionettes an excellently designed and equipped miniature theatre which from a modest beginning in 1931 has progressed to the point where it is rapidly assuming the proportions of a major enterprise and one well known beyond the confines of the town.

Three Winchester High School sophomores, Katherine Snow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman E. Snow of Glen road; Ella Armstrong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Armstrong of Wedgemere avenue; and Dorothy Bruno, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Bruno of Rangeley ridge; are associated in the operation of the marionette theatre, which as the name would imply was conceived by Miss Snow and developed by her and her friends, encouraged and materially assisted by her father who has become intensely interested in the project.

Miss Snow first became interested in marionettes while attending camp during the summer of 1931. She constructed one of the dolls, bringing it home with her, and this first of the 20 little figures now in her show makes an interesting means of tracing and comparing the development of the theatre since that time.

In her desire to construct and operate a theatre, Miss Snow found an interested and able ally in her father. Mr. Snow addresses to an intense interest in all things mechanical and in his home has an especially complete workshop where he turns out all sorts of intriguing things and where he found it easy to give his daughter a big boost up the ladder to success with her show. While he naturally gives the girls a major share of the credit he does admit to constructing and wiring the theatre and doing the turning and much of the mechanical work in connection with the construction of the dolls.

It was while she was struggling with the hair of one of the dolls that Miss Snow found an interested associate in Miss Armstrong and the latter's success at the job in hand brought her permanently into the fold, to be joined soon after by Miss Bruno. Since that time the triumvirate has worked individually and collectively for the success of the theatre, their efforts being easily apparent in the smoothness with which its multitudinous details are handled.

The girls soon found that Miss Snow's original marionette was too large for the small type of house show they were doing, and while it is still used for special parts, such as that of an ogre or giant, the newer dolls are all smaller and much more finished in design.

The marionettes are fascinating at close range. Made of cleverely turned wood with heavy wire and screw-eyes for joints, of which there are 12 in each figure, they have cloth arms, leaded feet and heads made of ordinary darning balls treated with plastic wood to form features. No two of the dolls have the same expression, and it is often found, when finished that the face closely resembles some friend of the young operators who make skillful capital of this fact.

Thin strips of surgeon's tape wrapped on a wire frame make clever hands, and the hands are of great importance. The marionettes are operated by means of from nine to eleven fish lines blackened with India ink, and it is a nice job to get these lines exactly the right length and properly adjusted on the hand controls, by means of which the dolls are made to move about and act in the most natural manner. Both hands are used by the puppeteer, the larger of the two controls, to which most of the wires are attached being operated with the left hand.

And in case you think operating the marionettes is easy, just revise your notion! The Star reporter was urged to try it during a visit to the theatre at the Snow home last Saturday and found it much the same as trying to write with both hands or balancing a plate of salad and a roll while attempting to partake of a cup of after dinner coffee.

Yet the three youthful puppeteers operate them with the greatest ease, making them do all sorts of things, now moving stately and slow, now appearing excitedly animated, and again ridiculously funny. Such dexterity was not achieved over night, but rather bears eloquent testimony to long hours of practice and faithful rehearsing. For the girls rehearse their shows just like any theatrical troupe, the plots of their shows having a continuity with lines and occasional music, both of which are furnished by the puppeteers.

The girls now have four shows, Hansel and Gretel, that favorite old fairy tale, which was their original production, and done impromptu; the now famous Three Little Pigs; Rumpelstilskin, another fairy story; and the Further Adventures of the Three Little Pigs. It is of interest that the girls divide the characters, habitually operating certain dolls, though of course each is able to make all the characters perform. The puppeteers stand on a platform at the rear of the stage and operate the marionettes from above, speaking or singing the individual lines for each character. The dolls are hung on racks at two levels behinds the girls.

We have Mr. Snow's word for the fact that operating the marionettes is a trying task. He admitted that he left the stage bathed in perspiration and badly fagged after substituting for one of the girls who was ill, while his performance, despite his close acquaintance with the theatre and marionettes, did not approach that of the youthful puppeteers.

The theatre is well worth close inspection. It is roughly 5 ft. 6 in. long by 3 ft. deep and on its base about the heighth of an ordinary room. It is very complete, with drops, two wings on either side and an excellent lighting system which includes footlights, wing lights and overheads, controlled by 32 switches and two dimmers. The properties, made by Mr. Snow, are cleverly proportioned and the sets and scenery really excellent. Architect friends of Mr. Snow, interested in amateur theatricals, designed and painted the scenery, of which there are ten changes, each splendidly done and much better than that offered commercially. Other interested friends of the family have designed and made the costumes for the marionettes and written the continuity for the plots of the shows.

The girls gave their first shows at children's parties, but the excellence of their performance soon got them other engagements and they now put on a performance for any one or any organization who will as Miss Snow explained, "pay the price." The popularity of the marionettes is easily shown by the fact that during the past Christmas vacation, the girls were obliged to refuse bookings. They have appeared in Boston and most of its suburbs, have shown at the New England Medical Center, for the poor children of Boston and have recently had requests for performances out of the State. The entire theatre is collapsible and when taken down fits into an automobile.

"It's all loads of fun," Miss Snow told the reporter, but there must have been plenty of good hard work sandwiched in with the pleasure to enable the girls to perform with such a degree of excellence. All of which makes the entire project doubly worth-while and lends interest to the fact that the marionettes are to be shown Saturday afternoon at 2:30 in the high school auditorium under the auspices of the Junior High School Parent-Teacher Association.

MARCH MEETING OF THE HIGHLAND CHAPTER OF MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

The March meeting of this chapter of the Mothers' Association of Winchester was held Tuesday afternoon of this week at the George Washington School with over 40 ladies present. It was voted to omit the April meeting, substituting in its place Dads' Night on April 9th, at which time Mr. Clinton Farnum will speak on "The Privilege of Being a Parent."

A nominating committee was appointed to bring in a list of names at the May meeting for next year's officers.

Following the business, Mrs. Leon Sargent opened the entertainment program with three piano selections, "Fantasie Impromptu" by Chopin, Brahm's Waltz in A flat, and "Concert Etude" by MacDowell. These were played brilliantly and were enthusiastically received by her audience.

The speaker was Mrs. Martha Sprague Mason, ex-president of the National Parent-Teacher Association, and editor-in-chief of the Parent-Teacher Magazine. She gave a very enlightening account of the activities of the P. T. A., taking as her subject "Co-operation Between Home and School." She stressed the two underlying principles of the organization, namely parent education and co-operation between parents and teachers. Strangely enough the P. T. A. was organized by parents, and not by educators as would at first seem probable. The organization was founded in 1897, and may well be called a pioneer in this line. It now has one and a half million members who assemble from all over the United States and Hawaii and Alaska. The 39th annual congress meets in Miami this fall.

The organization takes pains to select wisely its leaders and representatives, and co-operates with such associations as the Recreation Association, Child Hygiene, American Library Association and many others. Through various publications, manuals, year books and magazines the members at large are kept informed of the various activities. So closely are the states bound together that of course every local problem is really a national problem. More and more the idea is being put across that school houses really belong to the people. Parents and teachers must co-operate. The child must not have one standard at home and another at school.

Mrs. Mason gave some excellent suggestions for improvement in the workings of local clubs. She said programs are very important. They must be based on the needs of the community, and not develop into a lecture course, merely. She suggested planning a year's work at the beginning of each new year, making the programs lead to something definite. To arouse more interest and enthusiasm she outlined several working committees that might be organized in connection with mothers' clubs, such as Juvenile Protection, The Exceptional Child, Library Associations, International Relations, Art, Music, Humane Education, School Education, etc., etc. She advised developing local talent in the form of forums and discussions. Every club has such unexploited talent that might well be put to use. She emphasized the advisability of a summer round-up, as she called it, a physical examination and checking up of children especially between the first and fifth grades. This is a most important period which is sometimes overlooked, and little defects that might easily be remedied at first, are often neglected. The discussion of some vital problem might be taken up and something done about it, for instance the radio situation, and the movies. Data about all these problems may be had at all times by writing into headquarters. She spoke of the Culkin Bill, No. 2999 in regard to moving pictures, and gave helpful suggestions as to how to go about to accomplish some definite end. And finally, she said, we must definitely stand together!

At the close of Mrs. Mason's instructive address, the ladies assembled in the kindergarten room where Mrs. Earl Doub, Mrs. Robert Cross and Mrs. Frederick Baker presided as hostesses and served the most delectable little cakes and coffee. Mrs. Herman Saltmarsh and Mrs. Carlton Strong poured.

A TRIP TO THE LAND OF THE AZTECS

Dr. Charles H. Tozier of this town has recently returned from the most interesting trip of the many he has taken in the past 20 years. Traveling under special permits given him by the Mexican Government and under the auspices of the Boston Rotary Club, and with the assistance of Ambassador Daniels, he was able to photograph in natural colors many of the wonderful relics of a past civilization which have never been taken before.

Arriving in Mexico City, he was invited by the Secretary of Education and the Rotary Clubs of that country to give a lecture on color photography and its uses in teaching all the branches of Natural Sciences. The lecture was held in the Auditorium of the Palace of Fine Arts, a building costing about $25,000,000 and one of the finest in the world devoted to this branch of science. Attending this lecture were the officers of the various branches of the Mexican Government, Ambassador Daniels with guests from the United States, prominent officers and members of the Mexican Rotary Clubs and the Secretary of the International Rotary Clubs of the United States. After seeing the pictures the doctor threw on a large glass screen, the audience arose, and the Secretary of Education said it was the finest exhibition of color photography ever given in Mexico City and wished to have the lecture repeated at a general meeting two days later. At the second lecture the wonderful auditorium was filled with prominent guests and their ladies, and they were amazed as the beautiful spots of the United States were shown to them, one by one in all their natural colors.

As a result of these lectures the Doctor was given opportunities to photograph objects in Mexico that have never been photographed by a foreigner. The finest articles in the Museum were placed at his disposal to photograph, and as a special tribute, Mrs. Daniels posed in a ceremonial robe given her by one of the Mexican States. This gown can not be described but must be seen upon the screen. Everything Dr. Tozier wished to photograph was put at his disposal, even the Mt. Albau jewels, the finest relics of an extinct civilization, valued at several million dollars. These, with the Gods, pottery, and other wonderful relics of the ancient capitol of the Montezumas make up a collection the equal of which has never been taken out of Mexico. The finest examples of the modern art of Mexico was also included in the collection of pictures. Dr. Tozier brought home with him to Winchester, a trunk full of souvenirs presented to him.

When these outstanding pictures are finished, they will be shown for the benefit of some good causes in Winchester, and due notice will be given all interested in seeing them. They will also be shown to the Boston and other Rotary Clubs, at special meetings to stimulate a greater interest in the Rotary Convention to be held in Mexico City in June of this year.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Chairman Harold V. Farnsworth and Town Engineer Parker Holbrook went to Russell Brook Tuesday morning to see if something can not be done there to relieve the conditions of which nearby property owners complained at Monday's town meeting without the expenditure of some $26,000. Mr. Holbrook believes a much less costly plan can be worked out if easement rights and property damages can be satisfactorily disposed of.

Miss Brenda Skene of Glengarry returns today from Bradford Junior College for the spring holidays.

Miss Priscilla Chamberlin of Wedgemere avenue is among the Smith girls who are at home for the spring recess.

JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL PARENT-TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION MEETING

Judging from the number of parents who visited the Junior High School between 7:30 and 8, on March 7, the second meeting of its Parent-Teacher Association was a great success. At 8, the high school auditorium was open for the formal meeting.

After a welcome from Mrs. Swanson, the president, an announcement of the annual convention of the National Parent-Teacher Association at Miami, Fla., April 29 to May 3, and the usual business preliminaries, the Girls' Glee Club of 60 members conducted by Miss Tennant sang a group of three songs. They were exceedingly well done and gave great pleasure, also an insight into what our young people can do in a creative way and what our school is doing to emphasize that type of interest.

Mrs. Swanson then introduced Mr. Quinn, Superintendent of Schools. His remarks were an introduction to the general subject of the evening and touched on the possibility of a wider margin of time in the school curriculum for creative thinking. He in turn introduced the other speakers of the evening.

Mrs. Martha Sprague Mason, who spoke on Motion Pictures is an outstanding member of our community. She has been president of the National Parent-Teacher Association, editor of the magazine, Parent-Teacher, its official organ and is now state chairman of the Motion Picture Committee of the same association. Our association felt very grateful that she was willing to speak to us on this subject which has so great a share of her attention at the present time. She presented the pros and cons of this great force. On the bright side, its possibilities in visual education and entertainment; on the dark, the blind buying and block booking which make it impossible for the most desirous exhibitors to give or the most interested parent to choose a program consistently good for children. She spoke of the alternative of other forms of entertainment and the successful experiment now being tried in Worcester where a series of performances are being given in their large civic auditorium at a low price which competes with the movies. The performances are of the highest order, the first being the opera of Hansel and Gretel.

Mr. Fenn of the school of that name in Lexington, used radio as his subject. Mr. Fenn had expected to speak to parents only on the subject as radio. Finding himself confronted unexpectedly with 60 young ladies all of whom testified by an enthusiastic raising of hands that they listened to the radio two hours a day, he changed his formal talk with delightful tact so that they were included. The need of talking over the choice of programs in calm family council was advised, with emphasis on the calm, the code of thoughtfulness which should govern times of listening, volume, and imitation at the dinner table; what it supplied the different children, necessary relaxation to the active creative child, who has been busy all day, while to the more phlegmatic child a too great dependence on objective entertainment. He brought out that the greatest fun was in creating your own entertainment with a wave toward the poster of Kay Snow's Marionettes and the Music Group Orchestra. The best way of exressing disapproval of programs, he said, was to see that the tops of cereal boxes, etc., are not sent into the advertisers, as the programs are governed by cold finance and gaged by the amount of response received.

Mrs. T. Price Wilson, chairman of the Hospitality Committee, has made the social hour which follows these meetings a very enjoyable feature of the evenings. Everyone stayed to meet the speakers and visit with the teachers.

WINCHESTER CURLERS WON MEDAL

Robert F. "Bob" Guild, curling enthusiast and secretary of the Winchester Country Club's Curling Committee, returned to town last weekend from Utica, N. Y., bringing with him a handsome silver medal, symbolic of Winchester's winning the District Medal Match of the Grand National Curling Club of America at the Country Club in Brookline on Feb. 5.

At that time the Winchester Curlers, S. B. Neiley, No. 1; R. F. Guild, No. 2; E. Y. Neill, No. 3; and G. C. Neiley, skip; defeated the Boston Curling Club in an interesting match. The handsome silver medal, of especially heavy design, was awarded to the Winchester Country Club as a team trophy, the individual members of the team being given small silver shields.

The trophies were presented at a dinner given last Saturday evening at the Utica Curling Club, the presentation being made by President John W. Calder of the Grand National Curling Club of America who made humorous reference to Winchester's recent trip to Yarmouth. Mr. Guild, received the trophies and responded to President Calder, holding up his end nicely in the repartee.

ST. MARY'S PLAYERS IN CLEVER COMEDY

"Stop Thief" Pleased Large Audience

St. Mary's Players, for their annual dramatic production, gave the sparkling three-act comedy, "Stop Thief" to a large and appreciative audience Tuesday evening in the Town Hall.

The play was fast moving, full of excitement and abounding in clever lines and humorous situations which were well handled by the happily chosen cast. The plot had to do with the disappearance of some valuable wedding presents on the wedding day of Madge Carr and James Cluney with suspicion first attaching to William Carr, father of the bride-to-be, an exceedingly absent minded old gentleman, suspected of being a kleptomaniac.

As the action progressed, Mr. Jamison, a friend of the Carr family, began to entertain his own suspicions of one Jack Doogan, thought to be a detective, but in reality a crook, and a real detective, "Joe" Thompson, was gotten on the job. He soon showed up Doogan, and with the arrival of the police everything turned out happily, the delayed wedding bells being ready to ring out at the full of the final curtain.

The leading parts of Madge Carr and James Cluney were well played by Florence Fisher and Harry Boyle. Foy McGrath, long a favorite on St. Mary's stage, was outstanding as the absent minded William Carr, and some clever character acting was contributed by Ann Dolan as Mrs. Carr and Thomas Travers, another St. Mary's veteran, as the psuedo-detective. Sue McPartland's Nell, the maid; and Spencer O'Leary's Mr. Jamison were worthy of special mention though Norris Chevalier, Virginia Farrar, Dana Kelley, Thomas Harkins, Francis Cassidy, Francis Nowell, Thomas Hannon, John Lane, Martin Hanley and Joseph Sullivan were all deserving of commendation for their success with the roles entrusted to them. The bulk and efficiency of the members of the company's police force might well have caused any Selectmen present to make notes for future reference.

At the conclusion of the performance, Rev. Fr. Joseph E. McGoldrick appeared upon the stage and was accorded an enthusiastic welcome. He introduced former Chairman of Selectmen, Henry J. Maguire, who presented to the coach of the production, Charles J. Harrold, a substantial check, the gift of a group of his many admirers in resognition of his efforts for St. Mary's Theatricals.

Mr. Maguire paid high tribute to the veteran coach and makeup man, referring to him as a moulder of character in the young people with whom he has been associated. In happy vein he referred to the fact that 19 years previous he himself had played in "Stop Thief" under Mr. Harrold.

In addition to the presentation to Mr. Harrold, the hope chest, radio and lamp, given in connection with the recent reunion were awarded, the chest and lamp, being won by out-of-town patrons and the radio, by Miss Mary Quigley of Lebanon street.

"Bob" Sevenes' Orchestra furnished music for the show. The head usher was Ralph Ambrose, who was assisted by the following corps: Louise Callahan, Loretta Donnelly, Helen Halligan, Catherine Hannon, Mary Longfield, Mary Mahoney, Mary McCormack, Bertha McCarron, Margaret Roache and Catherine Roache.

Following is the cast and synopsis of the play:

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

"Jim" Fitch pulled a funny and a "fast" one at the Connecticut Sportsman's Show at Hartford. In the hand paddle event, the canoe is propelled by hand the length of the tank, then the contestant turns himself about in the canoe and paddles back to the start.

When "Jim's" turn came in this event, he did not "turn" but guiding the boat by a certain object at the end of the pool he saved enough time in not turning to nose out his opponent and win the race. Clevah, eh wot?

TELEPHONE NUMBER 0029

Winchester may spend $700 for the benefit of someone who desires to take a flier in movies, yet our own native Tax Collector, who has the hardest, meanest and busiest job in town, and does it well, is turned down on a little $400 appropriation! Let economy be the watch-word.

Movies in Winchester, solicited and advocated by a prominent movie promoter, received their fourth defeat at town meeting Monday night. Persistent presentation of his scheme over a period of a dozen or more years, with two referendums and their entailing expense, has failed to alter a consistant "no" vote by the Town. Now, with a negative vote of three to one, agitation is rife for another referendum. Such a referendum, calling for a ballot vote by the registered voters, and entailing an expense to Winchester of approximately $700, is his next step to force the Town to accept his dictum that "Winchester shall have movies." Movie proponents, largely those anticipating financial advantages, are reported as opining that our Town Meetings do not represent the Town. In other words, the action of the Town Meeting Members is null and void in-so-far as the wishes of the voters at large are concerned. Our form of government, therefore, is not representative and does not represent. To prove this individual opinion we are to hold a ballot vote at an expense of $700 of the taxpayers' money! An interesting feature of the proposed referendum is the reported opinion from the office of the Director of Accounts that such an act and its entailing cost is a needless expense, and from the Secretary of State that the ballot is unnecessary. The interesting meat in this factor is that the power to grant movie licenses in Winchester lays wholly with the Selectmen. They may grant or refuse a license. That they, in their desire to ascertain a true and complete expression of opinion in the Town, ask for such expression in town meeting, does not alter the status of the grant. Such expression has now been made, movies being defeated three to one. Since the voters, either by a referendum or by their town meeting decision, have no actual power to force the Selectmen to grant or withhold a license, such ballot referendum is a needless expense! And yet the Town is, apparently, to be forced to expend this money! In other words, our town meeting procedure does not satisfy the movie promoter, who hews strictly to the line—"movies in Winchester, like it or not." This is the first time the claim has been set forth that our form of town government is unsatisfactory! Possibly it is to surrounding places. It was, however, enacted for the Town of Winchester and so voted by the Town of Winchester—and by a ballot vote at that. If the action of our representative members at town meeting is not representative of the whole town, we have certainly accomplished a lot of business up to the time that a stranger calls it to our attention. The Selectmen have had a decisive expression of opinion, and if a three to one vote cannot aid them in their decision it seems absurd to add still another $700 expense upon the taxpayers.

Apropos the proposed effort to force a referendum upon the Town in the "approval" vote on movies, there seems to be a growing feeling of resentment among some of the Town's taxpayers. Aside from the possibility of increasing maintenance costs, such as extra police, etc., they feel that an unnecessary referendum, which actually decides nothing in particular, is an expense which should be eliminated. Many taxpayers are having enough troubles paying necessary assessments, without gaily adding to the amount. Already the question has been asked if it is not possible to stop this proposed referendum. The answer seems to be in the affirmative. If someone wants to spend the money without just cause, others, so it is said, have an equal right to protest this cost. What action these disgruntled taxpayers may take is not stated, but their contentions certainly seem reasonable.

It is hard to understand why interested parties take the trouble to have an article inserted in the warrant for town meeting and then fail to insert a motion under the article so that it can be acted upon. Seldom have so many articles been indefinitely postponed, without a dissenting murmur, as this year, and among those so dismissed on Monday evening was the article seeking to limit hegging and the solicitation of alms in Winchester. This would seem to be a matter upon which the town might well take definite action. There are many undesirable characters going about in the guise of solicitors for charitable enterprises, and as things now stand the police have little authority to limit or stop their activities. The Star was surprised that no motion was introduced under this article when it came up for consideration after lying on the table for a year.

SUBJECT TO WHIMS OF THE MINORITY

March 20, 1935

Editor of the Star:

I atterded the Town Hall Meeting, March 18, 1935, where the town's representatives voted against Article 26—"Licensing Moving Pictures." I have also read with interest the letters published in your paper on March 15, 1935—"What prominent people have to say about a movie theatre in Winchester."

The number of requests sent out in comparison to a town population of 12,719 does not, in my opinion, portray a correct picture of the proposed movie theatre in Winchester. Why not send a general questionnaire to all the voters and get a real Rembrandt?

The main objections expressed in the letters you received, as I read them, are as follows:

First—"That a large percentage of crimes are caused by the influence of movies on the younger generation."

"That motion picture theatres have shown themselves to be a harmful influence on children."

"That the movies undermine the standard of teaching our children parish decency, honesty, respect for the law and order, and clean mindedness."

My Answer to the Above Statements

(a) These statements are rather broad and if true, we should be proud of our town, for it would prove that towns such as Lexington, Concord, Newton, Wellesley, Dedham, Arlington, Framingham and many others enjoy the movies but are overrun by crime, lower standard of living and the younger generation "going to the dogs." I believe if you would communicate with the chiefs of police in the towns mentioned that they would hardly admit that the sandards of their children are below the standards of our children in Winchester, who do not enjoy a picture theatre.

(b) I would like to know how many of our people and their children, who are opposed to movies, frequent the theatres outside.

Second—"The limited parking facilities around the center of the town would prove a very important obstacle especially in the event of fire."

"The proposed site is in a congested area and not suitable for parking and unsafe for pedestrians."

My Answer to the Above Statemeats

I cannot see why parking space is limited where proposed site has been selected. You have the entire center to park cars, just as it is being done today without a movie house and if there seems to be an objection to that, why not restrict the space to be used for parking—Thompson street (one side), Church street (near Common) and near B. & M. Station; opposite High School on Parkway facing Winchester Laundry and if necessary, you can use Manchester Field. Surely, the cars will not be in the way there and no danger in case of fire.

Third—"It would encourage persons of questionable character and reputation to invade our town."

My Answer to This Statement

This has not been the case in towns that operate motion pictures. Ask the chiefs of police of these towns; they will disprove this statement.

Fourth—"That the right kind of pictures would not be exhibited."

My Answer to This Statement

A committee be appointed to censure all pictures before being screened; if not proper to be seen, then have them banned."

Fifth—"Sole motive of the Motion Picture industry is to make money."

My Answer to This Statement

Motion picture business and all business enterprises are established to make money. The movies are no different than any other business. Without a profit, how long would business survive?

Sixth—"Persons entering Winchester would be greeted by a Storage Warehouse building detrimental to the present beauty of the locality."

My Answer to This Statement

I have been a resident of Winchester for 20 years, and as one enters the business section after leaving the boulevard or the main street, what greets them? The answer is a four-story laundry building, a garage, and a set of undesirable store buildings on the right, and on the left, a poor set of buildings with some old houses in the rear. I am sure that you cannot say that is a "Rembrandt." If a modern building, as proposed, is erected on the left, it will at least be a start toward beautifying our center.

Seventh—"Liable to lead to Sunday Pictures."

My Answer to This Statement

This is only an argument to kill motion pictures. While I am in favor of motion pictures, I would be opposed to Sunday showings and this is the same opinion of the majority of those who are in favor of weekday pictures.

Eighth—"Sex, crime or violence of some sort have been and still are pictured way out of proportion to normal living."

My Answer to This Statement

Radio programs consist of Dick Tracy, Crime Clubs and many other features. Every home has a radio; every child listens to the stories on the radio and in my opinion some are worse than the movies. So if our children have survived the radio programs, I believe they will not be badly influenced by the pictures.

I feel that a motion picture theatre will benefit our town in many ways and I cannot conceive how it will have any bad influence on the welfare of our children:

1. The town would receive more taxes.
2. The building of a theatre would give employment to many local men.
3. It should offer employment to our local men when theatre is completed.
4. It will beautify the entrance to our center.
5. It should help our local trade and people will spend money in the town instead of the money going outside the town.

In closing, I am sorry to say that the people as a whole are subject to the whims of the minority, who, for sentimental reasons are not in favor of the movies, but it is the same old army game. Those who represent the people vote in many instances, their views, and not the views of the ones they represnt. Why not try the movie? Get a revenue; also beautify our center; it can stand improving. If the theatre does not pay, we might buy it cheap and turn it into a community house, as somebody suggested. The town cannot lose. Why not be fair and send to every voter in Winchester a questionnaire and see what the voters have to say about movies; not publish a small list of those who naturally will be unfavorable? We all might be surprised at the results, but any way, let us be fair and open-minded.

Very truly yours,
E. R. Sherburne

SOME CONGESTION

To the Editor of the Star:

I desire to point out through the columns of the Star some facts to some folks who have declared that it is impossible to have a congestion adjacen; to the contemplated site of a moving picture theatre at the corner of Main and Thompson streets. Now then, assuming that there was a conflagration on the west side of the town and a large freight train was stalled on our crossing. In order for the apparatus to arrive at the conflagration it would be necessary to detour on South Main street, tre Parkway and Bacon street in order to arrive at the conflagration.

Please visualize the time that is lost with the gates down; the tremendous congestion that is manifested at the entrance to the theatre on South Main street.

I believe that the firemen are handicapped tremendously. Prior to reaching their destination, the cause of the congestion is as follows: the gates are down, traffic proceeds from Medford and points south and terminates at the entrance to the theatre. Oh yes! Now consider the two one way streets, namely Thompson street and Converse place. Traffic proceeds on Thompson street in the direction of Manchester Field and Waterfield road and joins the traffic on South Main street that terminates at the entrance of the theatre. Traffic that proceeds from Mt. Vernon street to South Main street on Converse place terminates at the terminal so to speak, namely, the entrance to the theatre.

I believe that the delayed traffic constitutes a congestion hazard.

I trust that I have pointed out to folks who are not familiar with conditions that exist in the business center of the town that if a theatre is erected, the congestion will be multiplied.

In conclusion, Winchester was incorporated a town in the year 1850. That suggests that the town is 85 years of age. Fifteen years hence the inhabitants will undoubtedly celebrate the 100th anniversary of its incorporation as a town. In 1950, if it comes to pass that no theatre is erected, what a marvelous achievement it will be to the folks of that period to point out to the inhabitants of other municipalities that the folks of this town have never witnessed on a screen in Winchester the "Merry Widow," or "Other Men's Wives," "Big Boy Come Up and See Me Some Time," "Tanned Legs" "Scrambled Eggs" and "Crapshooters."

Very truly yours,

"HOLMES AND HIS WILL"

To the Editor of The Herald:

The last sentence of your interesting and most thoughtful editorial in this morning's Herald on "Holmes and His Will" reads:

"The old soldier gave his countrymen a signal to carry on with confidence."

"To carry on with confidence" should be the watchword for us all from now on. We have undeveloped resources, accumulated wealth, men of ability and experience, second to no nation on the face of the earth, but for the last few years we have lacked confidence in our government.

Let us all retain our confidence just as Holmes did, in the common sense of the great middle class who will, in due time, demand and secure from the government a sane, sensible and economic administration of our affairs.

Confidence will then return! Confidence begets courage! Ability and courage wins! Without either, we fail.

WHAT—NO NICKLES?

To the Editor of the Star:

At the second session of the annual town meeting held last Monday night, it certainly was refreshing to hear the ex-Moderator's voice. He apparently has not lost his touch in regard to parliamentary procedure. Why? Because the present Moderator concurred with his utterance. But Moderators as a rule are great bedfellows. They always "lie" together.

The prodigal son of Precinct 3 apparently knows his stuff, because he is not in favor of presenting the Tax Collector with more nickles.

Very truly yours,
Patrick H. Craughwell

THANKS FRIENDS

To the Editor of the Star:

May I ask for space in the next issue of the Star to express to my many friends my sincere appreciation and gratitude for the wonderful tribute they paid me last Tuesday evening at the Town Hall.

I would like to write to each, individually, but owing to a persistent attack of arthritis in my right hand, that would be impossible.

So I am taking advantage of your generosity to impart to all through your columns my sincere thanks.

DR. AND MRS. TORR WAGNER HARMER ENTERTAIN THE BETTER HOMES' GARDEN CLUB

On Wednesday, the first evening meeting of the Better Homes' Garden Club was held in the spacious home of Dr. and Mrs. Harmer, on Everett avenue. It was a most enjoyable affair and delighted the members and their gentlemen guests.

Prof. Arnold M. Davis gave a most interesting talk on the "Outdoor Living Room," in which he traced the history and development of formal and informal gardens. He showed the influence of the French and English gardens and plants upon the American garden giving considerable information to the introduction of the different flowers now used in our present day gardens. This lecture, the first of the series of three, which Professor Davis will give, was followed by an interesting question hour in which the problems of lawns, trees and gardens were answered.

Mrs. Woodside, chairman, introduced the speaker. During the social hour, the water colors of Bowen Tufts were displayed in the sun room The Downs, Chase, Godwin, Nowell, Marchant, Marsh and McFee garden pictures were among the group exhibited. Surely it is a real pleasure to see the charm of garden coloring and design so faithfully reproduced by Mr. Tufts, who has only recently taken up the art of painting and drawing. His photographs in color, were also most interesting to the guests and members.

Mrs. Chauncey Mitchell and her committee were in charge of refreshments, which were served after the meeting. The dates of the remaining two lectures by Professor Davis, will be announced later. Many new members—men and women interested in gardening, joined the group. The gracious hospitality of Dr. and Mrs. Harmer made the evening a most enjoyable one.

Few remaining articles furniture: 2 chests drawers, small tables, pictures, paintings, 2 small ice chests, combination Glenwood range, etc., (formerly of Carr estate) must be sold at once. Call at 192 Highland avenue or phone Win. 1756.

KEEP IN TOUCH

"I would feel much easier if I knew I could get in touch with you if ever I needed to," Edith M told her husband.

"I don't like to feel so far away from you either," he answered. "When I'm to be late, or if you are not well, it would save us both worry if we had a telephone of our own. Besides, the boss would like to reach me sometimes at night."

The outcome was that Edith called the business office to order their telephone installed.

"Keeping in touch" is today one big reason why families get and keep their telephones. Of course they also benefit from its help-getting, errand-running, time-saving, friendship-holding services.

Wouldn't you also enjoy some one of these benefits? New England Telephone and Telegraph Company.

"Matter" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 24.

The Golden Text is: "Woe unto him that saith to the wood, Awake; to the dumb stone, Arise, it shall teach! Behold, it is laid over with gold and silver, and there is no breath at all in the midst of it" (Habakkuk 2:19).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "When he was come down from the mountain, great multitudes followed him. And, behold, there came a leper and worshipped him, saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean. And Jesus put forth his hand, and touched him, saying, I will; be thou clean. And immediately his leprosy was cleansed" (Matthew 8:1-3).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The theology of Christian Science includes healing the sick. Our Master's first article of faith recommended to his students was healing, and he proved his faith by his works. The ancient Christians were healers. Why has this element of Christianity been lost? Because our systems of religion are governed more or less by our systems of medicine. The first idolatry was faith in matter. The schools have rendered faith in drugs the fashion, rather than faith in Deity. By trusting matter to destroy its own discord, health and harmony have been sacrificed" (p. 145).

DO YOU LIKE TO GUESS

when the health and comfort of you and your family is at stake? Spring is the season when you must guess about the weather unless you have a reliable means of automatic heating.

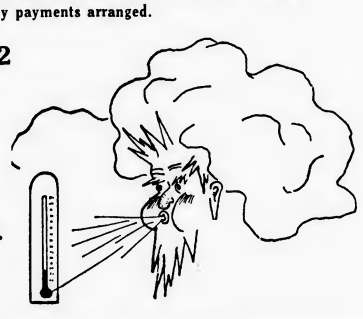

Gas heating eliminates guessing about the weather. After setting the little thermostat on the wall to suit your desires, it knows how much heat is required and gives you that and no more. This means economical operation no matter what the weather.

Gas heating eliminates guessing about whether or not your fuel supply will carry you through. You store none in the house, but there's always an abundant supply when the thermostat calls for it. And remember, you pay for only what you used and then after you use it.

Take advantage of our Spring Trial Plan. Pay $25.00 as down payment and enjoy perfect heating for the rest of the season. Make no more payments on the equipment until September when the balance can be paid in cash or convenient monthly payments arranged.

WINCHESTER DISTRICT VISITING NURSE ASSOCIATION

There is an interesting story told about the first car that the then Visiting Nurse Association ever had.

In September, 1918, Deaconess Lane started a fund to buy the Winchester Visiting Nurse Association an auto. An entertainment was given and the money cleared from this, and from a number of other projects was set aside to buy a car.

Before the full amount had been collected, Mrs. William Palmer gave the Visiting Nurse Association a car. The fund started by Deaconess Lane was then given to the Association for repairs on this car.

In the years before the Christmas of 1918 our District Nurses had to walk, carrying their bags on all calls.

It happened that just before Christmas of this year one of the nurses was making daily calls on Mrs. William Palmer.

One morning the nurse woke to find that during the night there had been a severe snow storm. No nurse can stay at home because of the weather, so she sallied forth, bag in hand. It took a very long time for her to get to Mrs. Palmer's home. The nurse was soaked to the waist, and before starting treatments had to dry her clothes. After that call, Mrs. Palmer always sent her chauffeur for the nurse.

A few days later when she was attending Mrs. Palmer, the patient said, "My husband has gone to Boston to buy you a Christmas present." The nurse was very much surprised. Thus, she said nothing. A minute or so later Mrs. Palmer said "Well! don't you want to know what it is?" "Mr. Palmer is in town buying a car for the Visiting Nurse Association."

On Christmas Eve with quite a ceremony, the car was presented. This took place at the nurses home. The name of the Association and that of the Palmer's was engraved on a panel in the car.

This car was a model T Ford with no self starter and it cost $975.

To tell you the history of this car would take pages. It is sufficient to say that at times it was regarded as a "white elephant."

The first tires were all worn out by March 1919.

The nurses in their white uniforms had to change the tires and crank the car.

Finally, when the power chain broke, causing a terrific noise in front of Mrs. Russell's home, a self starter was installed at a cost of $50.

This car was driven by the nurses on their calls for many years. Finally it was turned in for a new one.

BETHANY NEWS

The March luncheon is a thing of the past, and here it is time to announce the date of the April one, coming on Tuesday, April 2. The hostesses are Mrs. Saunders, Mrs. Abrahamson, Mrs. Eddy, Mrs. Nutting, Miss Potter and Mrs. Twombly. You'll be sorry if you don't come. You know that those Bethany gals can cook!

At the last business meeting one motion was passed which is much appreciated by the Bethany members, namely the guest privilege, which entitles any member to bring a guest to luncheon at half price. We look for several guests in April.

The Entertainment Committee announced the selection of two plays, and the date has been tentatively arranged for April 26, which will stand, unless some conflict arises. This entertainment will take the place of the annual spring bazaar. Your patronage will determine whether or not you like the change. The first play selected is entitled "It's a Woman's Privilege," and it deals with two types of woman, the modern one, who loves her home, but also keeps up with outside activities and the interests of her children, and the other type which loves her home only, and becomes—well, wait until you see Cousin Mary and Josephine, who are no prizes! The second play is called "Mother's Cooking." "It's a wise bride who knows her can openers. Lorette's life is just a bed of roses until she is faced with an unpicked chicken and an imminent visit from her husband's mother, whom she has never seen. Her husband has told her what a marvelous cook his mother is, but wait until you find out what mother's recipe for a good meal is!" We think you will enjoy the delicate flavor of the dialogue and the liberal seasoning of laughter in both of these plays. Watch for further particulars, and keep open the

At the regular meeting of the Auxiliary, held on Thursday afternoon, March 14, the members listened to an inspiring address by Mr. Guy Richardson, secretary of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and editor of the magazine, "Our Dumb Animals." As in other years, Winchester will observe the week. The boys and girls in the elementary schools have long been at work on their posters and are preparing special programs. It is also hoped that in the churches recognition will be made of Humane Sunday.

UNITARIAN PLAYERS GIVE FINISHED DRAMATIC PERFORMANCES

Seldom have Winchester audiences responded so completely to a play as they did to "The Bellamy Trial" presented last Friday and Saturday evenings by the Winchester Unitarian Players. The dramatic trial of Stephen Bellamy and Susan Ives for the murder of Stephen's wife, Margot, brought into the court room a group of witnesses sharply contrasted in character and behavior. Their reactions under the direct and cross examination of two able attorneys kept audiences, who served as the jury, keenly interested in every moment of the proceedings.

It is a rather unique form of drama that presents various high points in a murder trial without dashing back to scenes showing the different steps which led up to the crime. Frances Noyes Hart in this play, "The Bellamy Trial," taken from a novel of the same name, has created a dramatically moving drama. It depends for its action and power upon the rapid-fire questions of the attorneys, the quick responses of the witnesses and a clever tying together of the various brief scenes through the procedure of the judge, the court attendants and the introduction of witnesses.

In "The Bellamy Trial" all these elements were nicely achieved in the hands of the competent director, Doris Bramson Whitehouse, who was well aware of the pitfalls of such a play except when presented with rapidity and spontaneity. Mrs. Whitehouse brought out in the players just the right degree of fire and understanding.

Those members of the Unitarian Players chosen to portray the sharply contrasted characters in "The Bellamy Trial" deserve great credit for their interpretations.

John Burchard as the prosecuting attorney, Mr. Farr, was temperamentally well suited to the role. He was alert of mind, quick to see a point gained, cynical at one moment and sympathetic at another, effective in the nice bits of by-play he introduced, and dramatic in his "grandstand" speeches of the typical prosecuting attorney.

In nice contrast to Mr. Burchard, was Kenneth Clark as the defense attorney, Mr. Lambert. His deliberate manner, his even, steady voice in questioning his own witnesses, and his searching penetration into the motives of the state's witnesses all contributed to make the role an admirable one for Mr. Clark.

Lucille Townley-Tilson played the part of the accused Susan Ives. Her quiet, self-contained manner, her gentle and sympathetic voice as she testified surely convinced every member of the "jury" of her innocence. Mrs. Townley-Tilson by her very calm and composure showed how completely she felt the importance of so testifying that every one would believe her and Stephen Bellamy innocent.

In decided contrast to the above part might be placed that of Elizabeth Jacobs as the French governess, Melanie Cordier. How she played upon the feelings of the audience! Her pertness and "Gallic" animation, her charming little gestures, and her convincing words almost made one forget her jealousy of Susan Ives in whose household she served.

To the difficult role of Stephen Bellamy, Wayne Davis gave a serious, vital interpretation. His troubled countenance, his deeply moving words showed how much he was feeling and living the part of a man on trial for murder.

Decidedly different was the part played by Theodore R. Godwin. He was Patrick Ives, husband of the accused Susan Ives. His annoyingly calm and quite insolent interpretation of the character of the man pressed by the defense attorney for a complete story of his dealings with the murdered woman was a well-conceived piece of acting.

Real humor came into but one scene of "The Bellamy Trial" and Gerald Hills provided it in his part as the Italian gardener, Luigi Orsini. The apparent obtuseness of the little man about his ever having been in jail was very nicely offset in Mr. Hills' clever handling of the absurd details of measurements from gate to road or from fence to steps about which he thought any able attorney might inquire. To this character role Mr. Hills gave a make-up quite amusing and effective.

The "surprise" witness of the play, Mrs. Daniel Ives, was beautifully acted by Sylvia Parker. She testified only briefly in the first act, but later appeared to solve the murder mystery. In the scene when she occupied a place under a spotlight and with the rest of the stage in darkness Miss Parker was most convincing. Her voice and manner perfectly revealed the anxious and greatly troubled mother of Patrick Ives, who would do anything to save her son and his family from disgrace.

Among other witnesses was Dr. Paul S. Sibley played by Francis E. Felt. His manner was direct and honest and his voice lent real weight to his testimony. Bouldin Burbank as Susan Ives' brother was sincerity itself and he made of the man a character to believe and respect. The manner in which he bore the prosecuting attorney's heckling was a pleasure to observe.

The role of Elliott Farwell, a family friend of the Bellamy's was in the hands of Raymond Bartlett. He did admirably the part of a surly, defiant witness who hated to reveal what he knew of the various persons involved in the plot. When pressed, Mr. Bartlett showed in voice and manner a most truthful attitude.

As Dr. Gabriel Barretti, Lyndon Burnham had a grateful role. His slightly foreign accent, his fine make-up as a distinguished finger-print expert and his ability to keep in character every second made for real success.

Kenneth Hall was one of the last witnesses at the trial. He portrayed well a man who knew his public career would be ruined after his testimony had been completed.

Finally Annette L. Burnham came to the stand, playing the role of a high school student. Mrs. Burnham gave a charming interpretation, her innocence and youthful directness winning every heart.

As the judge presiding over the court, George W. Hayden gave a dignified and serious presentation. In his brief, but important appearances, George B. Cummings, as court clerk, made much of the part. His natural method of swearing in the witnesses caused much amusement. Norman Codding acted as court attendant, while Ralph Hale was the stentorian voiced foreman of the jury.

Great appreciation is due Mrs. R. A. Reynolds, whose skillful management of the play made for a most finished production. Harry Goodwin was the efficient stage manager and had as his assistants Frederick Cole, Robert Jaffson and George W. Hayden, Jr., who designed the realistic court room setting. Mrs. A. Kirby Snell was in charge of make-up, while Mrs. H. F. Meyer and Mrs. G. B. Howe were chairmen of refreshments.

Such a performance as that of "The Bellamy Trial" reflects great glory upon the Winchester Unitarian Players.

LADIES' FRIENDLY NOTES

The annual Ladies' Friendly supper will be held in the Unitarian Church, Metcalf Hall, on the evening of Tuesday, March 26 at 6:45. After the supper there will be a group of violin solos by Mrs. Lawrence Sibley accompanied by Mrs. Mary Witham. A short meeting and informal reception will follow.

On the morning of March 29 at 10:30 o'clock, there will be an open public meeting of the General Alliance Social Service Committee at 25 Beacon street in Elliott Hall. This meeting will be an especially worth while one and one most interesting to those of our Friendly Society because Mr. John S. Lobingier, a fellow townsman will present the main address. Mr. Lobingier is secretary of the World Fellowship Congregational Education Department and his address is on, "Are There Any Encouraging Signs in the Peace Movement?"

There will be a shorter address by Miss Bernice Billings, who is in charge at the Prendegast Preventorium, upon what the General Alliance Social Service group can do to help establish a camp for diabetic boys at the Preventorium. Miss Billings was at one time a public health nurse here in Winchester and so is known to many members of our Society. There will also be read a short notice on the new bill about Block Booking and Blind Buying. It should be a very stimulating morning and it is hoped many of our Society will attend. Anyone wishing transportation can doubtless be afforded it if they will get in touch with Mrs. Bernnard.

There is to be a New England Regional Conference on, "The Cause and Cure of War," at Worcester during March 26 and 27. It will be held at the Worcester Woman's Club at the corner of Salisbury and Tuckerman streets. There are many arresting titles for the addresses to be given, among them are:

"The Role of the United States in Foreign Affairs" by William D. Edwards, chairman of the Rhode Island Committee on the World Court.

"What Might the United States do to Lessen the Danger of War."

"What Is the Matter with the Peace Movement in the United States?"

"The Prospects and Prevention of War."

Registration fee, admitting to all sessions is $1.

A number of our Ladies' Friendly group are planning to attend some of these engrossing sessions of the Conference and should anyone wish additional information it may be had from either Mrs. Stella Robbins or Mrs. Bertram Bernnard.

Registration tickets are on sale also from the Conference business manager, Mrs. R. A. Gibson, 115 North Whitney street, Hartford, Conn.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR

"Song Lure of Many Lands"

On Friday morning, March 15, the third interesting lecture of the series given by the Winchester Chapter of the Guild of the Infant Saviour, was held at the home of Mrs. Thomas Hennessy, 12 Salisbury road. This morning lecture was most fittingly a musical one, as Mrs. Hennessy serves as musical chairman for the Guild. The artist, Miss Ellen Reilly of Brockton, is most brilliant and talented and her subject, "Song Lure of Many Lands," covered a very interesting field. As it was impossible to cover the 60 different nationalities, Miss Reilly chose the ones that would be of most interest to this particular audience. A few minutes were devoted to explaining just what a folk song is. These lovely tunes, origin unknown, were handed down from one family to another for generations. Very often the author of various sets ow words becomes known, but the tunes are just inherited, so that each folk song is letter perfect Miss Reilly spends much time in the homes of the foreign born. The parents or older members of the family sing these tunes for her and the children translate them into English. Much time and patience is required, until the song is mastered, as Miss Reilly sings each song in its own language as they very often lose their beauty in translation.

In the Swedish group the song, "When I Was Seventeen," was taught by a mother who often took part in the dances on the National holiday, June 24 in Sweden. On this day the sun does not set and the people dance and make merry all day and night. "Mother, Little Mother" is quite a favorite with the Swedish people. In 29 different homes it was the first to be sung.

In Italy, the folk song festival comes in May. The people in gay costumes sing and dance through the streets, having the mandolin and guitar as their accompaniment. Mussolini has commissioned people to go through the different villages of Italy collecting material and finding out all the folk songs of their country. When we know there are 600 different dialects spoken in Italy, we realize the enormity of this task. "Santa Lucia," the patron saint of fishermen around Nanles is called upon for help in the folk song hearing that name. "O, Come to Me," is another heard frequently.

The Maypole dancing in England is the most common pastime. They sing as they dance to the tunes of a fiddler and often blame him for mistakes and then start dancing all over again. "Come Lassus x Lads" is over 300 years old. Our familiar, "Round the Mulberry Bush," "London Bridge Is Falling Down," are all English folk songs. Percy Grainger has gathered 400 English tunes and set them to music. "The Handkerchief Dance" he transposed to F flat and we have our very popular "Country Gardens."

The one nation who has contributed much to music in the world is Poland. She has given us Paderewski and Chopin from her list of famous sons. When we consider there are 200,000 Polish people in New York and 400,000 in Chicago, it is only natural that their musical influence will be felt in this country. "The Tiny Tot" "Mother, O Mother," are two of the favorite folk songs.

The Armenians who are marvelous students are also very musical. Their music has the Oriental strain and "Let the Wind Blow Cold" is an example of their plaintive music.

Only five notes are used in Chinese music, c, d, e, g, a, although the chromatic scale is just as ours. This was ably illustrated with "The Jasmine Flower," sung in Chinese.

The natural gift of music has unquestionably been bestowed on the Irish. John Stevenson and Thos. Moore have endeared "The Last Rose of Summer," "Believe Me if All Those Endearing Charms" and many others to us all. Even Victor Herbert owes his ability to write music to his Irish mother.

The Syrians read their music from the center out and much is written in old Arabic. "Three Maidens," "Lullaby," written in minor strain illustrate their music.

At the very early ages of 13 and 14 years, the Scottish youths are taught solo parts in, "The Messiah" and 'The Crucifixion." They are known throughout the world for their choral sacrety. "Coming Through the Rye" is always associated with Scotland. In this song, "rye" does not mean grain but the girls crossed the river "Rye" on stepping stones and were often met and kissed by the boys, while "Coming Through the Rye."

The three American folk-songs are the Indian songs. This period is very often skipped and we look upon the work of Stephan Foster as American folk-lure. His work is known in every corner of the world. "Old Black Joe" "Old Folks at Home" and "My Old Kentucky Home" being the most popular.

Miss Reilly gave French, German and Russian songs as her encore. Many different songs were requested at the close and Miss Reilly was most generous in her response.

Mrs. T. C. Burke and Mrs. James F. Day were in charge of the coffee table, assisted by Mrs. E. W. Drohan and Mrs. Earl Wood. Mrs. C. G. Shaw and Mrs. Frank Barrett were the ushers.

The next lecture will be held at the home of Mrs. T. F. Riley, 51 Eaton avenue, Woburn. Mrs. Claire M. Dawes of Winchester will be the speaker. Her subject will be, "Mexico."

Regular Meeting

The next regular meeting will be held on March 26. This will be a sewing afternoon. Tea will be served.

Glee Club

The Guild of the Infant Saviour Glee Club took a very important part in the annual St. Patrick's concert given Sunday evening at the Linscott School Hall in Woburn. Mrs. Thos. M. Hennessy, chairman of music arranged the program and was accompanist. The Glee Club under the direction of Miss Edna L. McNamara of Cambridge, gave the following program: "Hail Glorious Apostle," "When Irish Eyes are Smiling," "Sympathy," "Southern Memories," "Ave Verum," "Bells of St. Mary's" and "Barcarolle" from "Tales of Hoffman."

Mr. James Fitzpatrick of Stoneham and a member of the Glee Club, delighted his audience with a number of tenor solos. Miss Edna McNamara, director, sang as a final number on the program, a group of soprtion solos. Miss McNamara as usual displayed her charming personality and beautiful voice. Miss McNamara's final number was the beautiful Irish ballad, "Mother Machree," which was most beautifully sung and graciously received by a very appreciative audience.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION QUALIFIES SEVEN

Announcement was made Tuesday by the Civil Service Commission in Boston of the list of those eligible for promotion to Sergeant in the local Police Department. Of the 13 who took the examination on Feb. 5 seven have been found eligible, in this order: Charles J. Harrold, Joseph J. Derro, D. Irving Reardon, John J. Dolan, James F. Noonan, Archie T. O'Connell and Clarence E. Dunbury. Less than 10 per cent separated the entire list and only 4 per cent, the first three.

FIRST ADJOURNED SESSION OF TOWN MEETING HELD

One of the few controversies of the meeting came after it had been voted that the Collector of Taxes shall collect all accounts due the town. It was then moved and seconded to reconsider that part of article 7 applying to the collector of taxes' department. Mr. Foley championed the motion, stating that the increase in pay denied the collector at the previous session should be voted, especially in view of the increased work being handled by his department. Mr. Laraway opposed taking up the matter again unless the town wanted to give every one a raise. Mr. Winn championed Mr. Nichols and especially deplored the fact that his very attention to duty and ability as a collector was causng him to be discriminated against by those who for one reason or another bore him a grudge.

Mrs. McDonald wanted to take up the whole of article 7 again so that the matter of the teachers' raise could be considered and Mr. Laraway felt that the collector's department should be stricken from the original motion. His contention was not supported and the original motion was put and lost, 74 being in favor and 90, opposed.

Under Article 30, it was provided that the Board of Appeal established by the Building Laws shall be the Board of Appeal for the purposes of the Zoning By-Law relating to appeals. Under Article 31, it was voted to clarify the existing Zoning By-Law relating to the size of lots, permitting the Board of Appeals to grant permits for the erection or placing of dwellings on lots of land containing less area than prescribed by the law.

Mr. Cullen introduced a motion under Article 32 asking the appropriation of $5750 to purchase the Kendall property adjacent to the high school for school purposes. He made a strong plea for the acquisition of the land and was seconded by Mr. Stone who felt the purchase is especially desirable if the voters care to spend the money. Mr. Wilkins stated that the amount involved would add approximately 18 cents to the tax rate and added that it was the Finance Committee's opinion that the property should not be purchased this year.

Mr. Stevenson moved indefinite postponement, but Mr. Laraway demurred, stating that the town should clean up the property adjacent to the high school and take it while it can be gotten cheap. He offered the motion that the matter be postponed until March 25, at which time a definite motion to take all the property can be made. This motion was carried, 98—55.

The care and management of the Asa Fletcher Fund was committed to the Commissioners of Trust Funds, and the three articles inserted by the Building Commissioner were unanimously accepted. Briefly, these (first) removed from the buibling laws the sections having to do with lot areas placing them in the Zoning Laws; (second) provided for the insertion of a safety shut-off valve in pipes used to conduct water for drinking and culinary purposes; and (third) required that sinks and traps shall have separate pipes and drains and shall not be placed below the first floor of a dwelling without the consent of the building commissioner.

Under Article 37 the town authorized the Selectmen to enter into an agreement with the Edison Light Company for the use of the company's poles by the town for wires, signs, etc. The article relating to Sunday sports was indefinitely postponed.

In connection with the improvement of Russell Brook it was moved to indefinitely postpone when Mr. Farnsworth stated that the town engineer estimated the cost of putting the brook underground at about $26,000. Mr. Noyes, however, asked that the residents in the district affected, whose homes are inundated in the spring, be given some consideration, and Mr. Laraway felt that these householders can be given relief for considerably less than $26,000. He moved that consideration of the article be put over until next Monday and this was voted.

The meeting authorized the acquisition of easements in land adjoining the northerly side of Cross street west from Verplast avenue.

Consideration of the proposed alteration of Main street at Symmes Corner was postponed until March 25, upon the earnest request of Mr. Laraway. The proposed alteration of Prospect street at Highland avenue was indefinitely postponed.

The Selectmen's proposed alteration of Sheffield road at Church street was accepted and the sum of $150 appropriated. The sum of $3200 was appropriated to put through the Selectmen's proposed layout of the continuation of Spruce street from Oak street through private land to Swanton street. With the acceptance of the Selectmen's layout of Summit avenue and Wildwood street the meeting adjourned at 10:35 until Monday, March 25.

Art Meeting March 19

On Tuesday morning March 19, the Art Committee sponsored a very interesting illustrated lecture on, "Making a Statue," under the direction of the clever chairman, Mrs. Lillian Whitman.

As the audience was assembling coffee and tiny delicious, sugared doughnuts were served.

The following art notices were given: Lectures at the Museum of Fine Arts at 10:30. March 27—English and American Paintings." April 10—American Colonial Interiors. April 24—Egyptian Art.

During Art Week April 8-13 the studios of Reynolds, Francis and Robinstock will be open to art lovers from 1 p. m. to 4 at 1 Washington street near Haymarket Square, where will be showing of designs of stained glass windows of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York.

Mrs. Osborne will open her house at 81 St. Stephens street, Boston, from 1 to 4 to club women on April 13.

Mrs. Whitman then asked the questions from a list sent by the Federation Art Committee and we were all surprised to see how little we knew.

She then read the instructive and interesting lecture prepared by the famous sculptor, Leonard Craske, whose bronze of the "Gloucester Fisherman" is so well known to us all. This paper was illustrated by lantern slides made in Mr. Craske's studio, showing the various steps in making a statue, as well as the finished bronzes and stone pieces. We were pleased to see a splendid little statue of Maribel Vinson in a skating pose. A very charming and attractive little figure called "Joy" was designed and placed in a beautiful garden. We also admired a granite statue of DeLong, the explorer, several reliefs, and a fine War Memorial at Amesbury.

It takes a great amount of training and skill, as well as patience, for many preliminary models must be made. Human models are used especially as muscle charts, and must be fine specimens, and able to hold a pose for 25 minutes at a time.

He showed that six or seven tiny clay models are made first, and then the design is selected from these. That is made into an 18 inch statue and submitted and later a plaster is made one-half the size of the finished statue. This can be easily enlarged by charting with rulers and points.

Various tools are used in the work, but the hands and fingers are used most. First an armature of wood or metal is used as the foundation, with wires and metal tubing for the arms, legs and neck, so that they can be moved during the work. They are then covered with a thin layer of a fine potter's clay for stone pieces and a special kind of expensive wax for bronzes.

They are made in the nude first, that they will be real people under the drapery. A narrow gauze bandaging is wound around wherever the clothing is to be. This is covered with two coats of shellac, then given a coat of blue plaster, and tiny pieces of brass are set into the sides full length to show where the seam will be. This is finally cut and hollowed out, washed and filled with plaster. When it has been pointed off and perfected, it is ready at last to be sent away to be cast. It is separated into convenient pieces, and then castings are made in the bronze and then welded together into the finished statue.

A HUSBAND SPEAKS

Wife—I've been cleaning house today and just look at those old things I'd forgotten we had and will never use. What shall I do with them?

Husband—Send them to the Thrift Shop.

Wife—That's a good idea. I'll call Mrs. Burnham at once. Let's see, her phone number is 0920 Win. Everything will be out of the house tomorrow. Isn't it great to have a Thrift Shop here in Winchester that will take anything and everything that we no longer want.

Husband—When they call tomorrow don't forget to give them that old suit of mine hanging in the back closet. It will make a good work suit for someone.

Town Treasurer Harrie Y. Natter received Tuesday of this week a check for $23,620.25 which is the first installment of the town's share of the State Income Tax.

WINCHESTER MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

The Winchester Mothers' Association is again beginning their annual effort to raise a scholar-ship to help some member of the Senior Class in High School go on to higher education next year. Mrs. Frances T. Coulon, president of the Association, presented the opportunity to the school at the assembly Wednesday morning. Two years ago the first scholarship of $100 was given and last year two $125 scholarships were awarded. All three students are making splendid records and reflecting credit on the Winchester educational system. To be eligible a student must have spent at least three years in the elementary schools, have good scholastic standing, good citizenship and financial need.

The Scholarship Committee of the Mothers' Association, Mrs. William E. Spaulding, chairman, consult with the school authorities and make every effort possible to help them decide fairly. Mrs. Coulon urged students to apply before May 1.

WINCHESTER MAN DEAN OF HOCKEY WRITERS

Victor O. Jones, sports editor of the Boston Globe, in an article, written for the Boston Garden program, discussing the various writers who cover the Bruins home hockey games, has the following to say about Frank Frott, whose Winchester home is at 18 Mystic avenue and whose favorite rendezvous during the ice boating and canoeing seasons is Mystic Lake:

"The dean of Boston's hockey writers, in case you didn't know is Frank G. (for Goshen) Frott, who draws his weekly insult from the Boston Globe. Frank doesn't cover all the games regularly any more, but he does just enough Bruins games to retain his good standing as a bona fide ice expert. His real racket now is covering harness horses, both the wigglers and the side-wheelers. His active days as a hockey writer date back to the time when the game was invented, before the old Arena was built and before there was anything like professional hockey."

MRS. HARRIET FLINT BARNES

Mrs. Harriet Flint Barnes, mother of Franklin E. Barnes and Mrs. Gertrude B. Jones of this town, died at her son's home, 2 Fenwick road, on Friday, March 22, in her 95th year.

Mrs. Barnes was born in 1840 in North Lawrence, N. Y., where she lived until her marriage to Charles C. Barnes. Mr. Barnes was born in Chelsea, Vt., in 1834, the son of John and Eunice Barnes. At the age of 19, he went to Lowell, where for a number of years he owned and operated two fur stores on Merrimac street. Here for 17 or 18 years, Mrs. Barnes assisted him in business. Selling his business in 1881, he moved with his wife and two children to Williamstown, Vt., where he lived for 10 years. During this time, and for many years afterwards, Mr. Barnes traveled for the Rand McNally Company, N. Y., in the capacity of salesman; moving in 1893 to Barre, Vt., where he purchased several lots and built four houses. Here the family lived for 15 years, up to the time of his death in 1907.

Soon after, his widow sold the property and moved to Winchester, where, up to the time of her death, she had made her home with her son. Also living in Winchester are a granddaughter, two grandsons, two great grandsons, and a great granddaughter.

Funeral services were held on Sunday afternoon at the late residence with Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church, officiating. Interment was in Edson Cemetery, Lowell.

MISS ELEANORA LEWIS

Miss Elcanora Lewis, a resident of Winchester for the past 30 years, died Sunday morning, March 24, in Roxbury, after a six weeks' illness which followed a major operation performed at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Miss Lewis was 60 years old and a native of Virginia. For several years after coming to Winchester she was employed as a cook at Dodson's Restaurant, then situated on the site now occupied by Hutchinson's Market in the center. More recently she had been employed as cook and housekeeper in a private family.

Miss Lewis was actively identified with the New Hope Baptist Church, serving a chorister and as musical director of the choir. She leaves a brother, Charles Lewis, living in Virginia.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon in the New Hope Baptist Church with the pastor, Rev. William H. Smith, officiating. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

MISS ARDELIA RANDALL BATES

Miss Ardelia Randall Bates, a resident of Winchester for the past half century, died Friday night, March 22, at the Home for Aged People on Mt. Vernon street, after an illness of more than three years.

Miss Bates was born Nov. 27, 1849, in Woburn, daughter of Harrison and May (Robinson) Bates. As a young woman she came with her parents to Winchester and for many years made her home on Hemingway street. She was widely known among older residents of the town and during her active years was a popular seamstress employed by many of the prominent families of the community.

Miss Bates had been a member of the family at the Home for the past ten years. She was held in high esteem by all with whom she came in contact and especially beloved by disposition and cheerful spirit of those who knew best her wonderful service.

Surviving are a niece, Mrs. Andrew Gilchrist of Framingham, and a nephew, Lawrence Hall of Somerville.

Funeral services were held on Monday afternoon at Ripley Chapel of the First Congregational Church with the pastor, Rev. Howard J. Chidley, officiating. Interment was in Woodbrook Cemetery, Woburn.

M. C. W. G NOTES

A most successful whist was conducted last evening in aid of the Little Sisters of the Poor under the able direction of Sentinel E. Young and a committee.

On next Thursday evening a joint installation with Arlington and Cambridge branches will be held at St. James Hall, Arlington Heights. Any member planning on attending should communicate with the Regent or Vice Regent at once.

MRS. AMELIA RIPLEY POND

Mrs. Amelia Ripley (Herrick) Pond widow of the late Handel Pond, died March 25 at her residence, Cambridge and High streets, Winchester.

She was born Sept. 2, 1852, in Nashua, N. H., the daughter of Moses Augustus Herrick and Jane Ripley (Hubbard) Herrick, her father being then factor of the old Indian Head Manufacturing Company of that city. While she was a child, the family moved to Chelsea, where she lived for nearly 20 years. In the early 70's her parents removed to Winchester, acquiring the estate at the head of what is now Herrick street. Her father's prominence in town affairs and his service as a member of the Water Board which evolved Winchester's present reservoir system will be recalled by older inhabitants of the town. From that time, Mrs. Pond's residence in Winchester was continuous. Here in 1877 she married the late Handel Pond, well remembered in Boston business circles as the founder of the Ivers & Pond Piano Company, and until his death in 1908 a prominent citizen of Winchester. Here her three children were born.

Mrs. Pond's great interest lay in her beautiful home where she personally planned and directed the gardens and flowers. To the end she continued her interest in European life and affairs, born from extensive travel there in her middle life. Indeed the outbreak of the World War found her in France, with her son Dana, and their return to this country brought strenuous experiences. Mrs. Pond devoted much time and effort to the welfare of the First Congregational Church, of which she had been a member for some 60 years.

Mrs. Pond is survived by her three sons, Clarence, Dana and Shepard, of Winchester and by a brother, Charles Hubbard Herrick of Boston.

Simple private services were held at her late residence in Winchester in the afternoon of Wednesday, March 27, with Rev. Dr. Howard J. Chidley, officiating. Interment was in the family lot in Wildwood Cemetery.

An Appreciation

In the passing of Amelia Herrick Pond, who has lived among us for many years as a loyal, loving friend, and ideal neighbor, her family and friends have suffered a great loss.

A resident of our town over 60 years, Mrs. Pond has maintained a constant interest in her church and other good works.

In recent years especially she gave a great deal of loving thought and care to her flower garden, which was a delight to her and to her friends.

She was a valued friend, greatly beloved, doing many kind deeds in her own quiet way.

She will always be held in loving remembrance.

REFERENDUM PETITION FILED

The petition asking a referendum of the recent adverse vote of the limited town meeting on motion pictures was filed with the Board of Selectmen Wednesday and is now being checked by the Registrars of Voters.

Four hundred and eighty names are appended to the petition which to be valid must be signed by at least 230 registered voters.

Under Winchester's limited town meeting act, in the event of a referendum, the Selectmen within ten days of the filing of the petition shall call a special meeting which shall be held within 14 days after the issue of the call.

The motion which was defeated at the second session of the limited town meeting by a vote of 48 to 130 was that the voters of the town recommend that the Selectmen grant a license to show motion pictures in Winchester on week days only.

TOWN MEETING ENDED

Unemployment Appropriations Total $37,500

With only 178 of the 230 precinct members present the current annual town meeting was dissolved Monday evening after one of the shortest sessions on record, lasting for only a little over three-quarters of an hour. There were few in the hall aside from the delegates, the settling of most of the controversial articles at previous meetings having removed much of the general interest from the closing session.

The meeting first considered Article 11, the first of the three dealing with unemployment relief and having to do specifically with the work being done in connection with the so-called Aberjona River campaign. Under this article it was moved and seconded to appropriate $22,000 to be spent under the direction of the Park Commissioners to continue this work. Mr. Larned felt that the money might better be spent under the direction of the Selectmen, and offered an amendment to the original motion providing that Article 11 be considered with articles 14 and 15 and that the money appropriated under the three be expended by the Selectmen.

Mr. Davidson opposed, stating that specific provision should be made to finish the work thus far done on the Aberjona, and Mr. Larned's amendment was lost, the original motion being voted without a show of hands.

Articles 14 and 15 were considered together, both being affected by the recently enacted legislation permiting towns to establish temporary emergency unemployment relief funds. Under these articles it was unanimously voted, virtually without debate, to appropriate the sum of $15,000, in addition to amounts already appropriated for departmental expenses, to be set apart and administered as a general unemployment relief fund pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 90 of the Acts of 1935, for expenditure as hereinafter provided for the construction, improvement, or repair of public ways, public parks, the sewerage and water supply systems, and any municipal buildings; for other municipal works or undertakings; or for the purchase or hire of materials, supplies, and equipment and the employment of labor for the furtherance of, or as the contribution of the town to, any federal unemployment relief project undertaken or to be undertaken within the town.

It was further provided that any of the work hereby authorized shall be undertaken by or under the direction of the board or officer in control of the department to which it relates but only to such extent as the Selectmen, acting ex officiis as a Board of Administration, shall approve as being for the benefit or convenience of the town or its inhabitants and expedient for the purpose of providing employment for citizen war veterans certified by the Selectmen after investigation, and other citizens having legal settlement in the town certified by the Department of Public Welfare after investigation, as being in need of the maintenance and support which the employment will afford them and their dependents, if any, who shall be paid amounts not exceeding those recommended by the board by which they are certified.

Under article 21 Mr. Clarke, reporting for the committee on West Side Fire Station Site, stated that the group he represented feels that some provision should be made for a fire station to care for the section of the town west of Canbridge street which is expected to develop extensively in the future. It is not fair, in the opinion of the committee, to expect Arlington to care for that section which represents roughly one-third of the area of the town.

He further reported that the committee while substantially agreed upon the location of such a station was not agreed upon the actual lot and asked that the committee be continued so that it can reach a definite decision and report at a subsequent meeting of the town.

This was voted, and the meeting then moved to the consideration of article 32. Under this article it was moved and seconded that the town acquire for school purposes the Charles E. Kendall property, appropriating $5500 to this end. Mr. Wilkins stated that this appropriation would raise the tax rate above $28, a figure which in the opinion of the Finance Committee should not be exceeded this year. Mr. Stone, speaking for Mr. Cullen, unable to appear in support of the motion, felt that it would be especially desirable to secure the land and believed the town will pay substantially more for the property when it becomes actually necessary to take it. The motion, however, was lost, 43 in favor, to 112, opposed.

Under Article 39, dealing with the proposed improvement of Russell Brook, Mr. Farnsworth moved indefinite postponement. He stated that the Selectmen and town engineer had visited the brook and had agreed that to properly care for conditions there the brook should be deepened, the bed paved and the sides walled up. This would cost in the neighborhood of $7000 and, in the opinion of the Selectmen, could better be done as an E. R. A. project at a cost to the town only of the materials and trucking.

Before this can be done the town must get easements on all property involved and as soon as this is accomplished, the Selectmen will file application to have the brook improved as an E. R. A. project this sunimer. The indefinite postponement would permit of this being done.

HARROLD NEW SERGEANT

Unanimous Choice Son of Lieutenant Harrold

Patrolman Charles J. Harrold was on Monday evening appointed by the Board of Selectmen to the rank of Sergeant in the Police Department to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Sergt. John H. Noonan. The appointment, dated March 25 to take effect April 1, was unanimous and was made after the Board had received the recommendations of its Police Committee, Messrs. Harold V. Farnsworth and William N. Beggs, and Police Chief William H. Rogers.

The new Sergeant was the high man on the list certified for promotion by the Civil Service Commission after an examination held on Feb. 5. He was third on the list at the time Sergt. Edward W. O'Connell and Sergeant Noonan were promoted and subsequently led the list of those eligible for a Sergeancy for two years.

Sergeant Harrold is the son of Police Lieutenant John A. and Anne B. (Beston) Harrold. He was born in Winchester April 10, 1900 and was a member of the class of 1917 at Winchester High School, leaving school to enter the United States Navy in 1915.

Between the Navy and the Merchant Marine, Sergeant Harrold spent his time afloat until 1923, serving throughout the war on the U. S. S. Salem on scout duty in foreign waters.

In 1923 he entered the employ of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company as a lineman and on April 15, 1924, was appointed a provisional patrolman in the Police Department, his appointment being confirmed on Oct. 15. He has twice been commended during his service as a patrolman.

Sergeant Harrold is a member of Winchester Post, 97, American Legion; of Winchester Lodge, 1445, B. P. O. E.; Police Association; and is past president of the Winchester Police Relief Association. He is married, has one daughter and makes his home at 75 Brookside avenue.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR

The regular meeting of the Guild of the Infant Saviour was held on Tuesday afternoon in Lyceum Hall. Mrs. Daniel J. Kelley was hostess for the meeting and the chairmen were Mrs. Lester Billings, Mrs. T. F. McCauley, Mrs. T. F. Feeney and Mrs. E. J. McDevitt.

After the sewing, bridge and a social hour were enjoyed. The next meeting of the Guild will be on April 9. This will be a sewing meeting and tea will be served.

Mr. Laraway objected to the indefinite part of the motion, believing that under such action the entire project might be buried. Mr. Noyes felt that indefinite postponement was not sufficient guarantee that something will be done and felt that some steps must be taken to afford householders of the district relief.

Mr. Farnsworth assured the meeting that the Selectmen will do everything possible to have the work done as an E. R. A. project and the meeting voted indefinite postponement without a poll vote.

A motion was introduced under Article 41 asking the appropriation of $500 to carry out the proposed alteration of Main street by widening the easterly side at Everell road. With practically no debate the motion was lost 77—81, and upon the motion of Mr. Rowe, the meeting was dissolved at 8:35.

J. ALBERT WILSON TO DIRECT MUSIC AT STONEHAM CHURCH

Mr. J. Albert Wilson, organist and choirmaster at the First Congregational Church, has been appointed director of music at the First Congregational Church in Stoneham, an active parish having weekly congregations of about 500. Mr. Wilson will exercise a general supervision over the church music and will rehearse the choir, the organist for the church services being one of his more advanced organ pupils.

Mr. Wilson will continue in his present position at the local Congregational Church, having often in the past successfully combined the direction of music in two parishes. He has had a wide experience in the church music field as well as in teaching voice and organ. He has been at the First Congregational Church since 1929 and previously was for 22 years at the Church of the Epiphany where his boy choir was acclaimed throughout New England.

On Sunday afternoon, March 31, Mr. Wilson will give an organ recital at the Stoneham Congregational Church at 4 o'clock. He will be assisted by a small group from the Winchester Choral Society, of which he is director.

TO REPEAT PINAFORE FOR MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

The Dramatic Society of the Winchester High School is to repeat its performance of that long time Gilbert and Sullivan favorite, H. M. S. Pinafore, in the high school auditorium Saturday evening, April 6 at 7:45, under the auspices of the Winchester Mothers' Association for the benefit of the Scholarship Fund.

The high school pupils gave their first performance of this tuneful nautical operetta Wednesday morning at a regular assembly for the school, and so excellent was the work of the cast and chorus that it was felt that many adults and youngsters not in high school would be glad of an opporunity to see and hear it.

The performance is necessarily abridged, but the popular features have been skillfully retained, and in its shortened form the show will not last also long for the more youthful members of the audience.

Those who saw Wednesday's performance were enthusiastic, and it is expected that seats will be at a premium next Saturday. If one is to take a leaf from the high school vaudeville show, it will be wise to get your tickets in advance or arrive at the hall early.

POLL TAX BILLS IN MAIL

This week the Poll Tax Bills will be in the mail. They are due and payable 30 days from the time they are mailed, although the bills will be dated April 1 according to State Law.

Twelve hundred Motor Excise taxes still remain unpaid. If they are not paid on or before April 8, demands will be issued according to law, for which there is a charge of thirty-five cents.

The hall was well arranged with attractive tables adorned with cut flowers, sweet peas, yellow marguerites, green and lighted candles making a pleasing setting. The dining room was in charge of Mrs. Clark W. Collins.

Seated at the head table were the officers of the society, Rev. and Mrs. George Hale Reed and the guest of honor, Mrs. Thomas G. Rees, president of the General Alliance of Unitarian Women. Mrs. Rees, at the conclusion of the supper and following the meeting, gave a most interesting talk, using present-day conditions and trends throughout the world as her foundation.

Mrs. Bertram Bernard, president of the Ladies' Friendly, presided and opened the meeting and introduced the speaker. A musical program was given by Mrs. Helen Studzinska Sibley, violinist, accompanied by Mrs. Mary Ranton Witham, which was a feature of the evening.

The supper was in charge of Mrs. Reginald Brndlee, assisted by the members of her committee, Mrs. Jmnes R. Livingstone and Mrs. G. Russell Mann. Others on the general committee who assisted were Mrs. Frederic C. Alexander, Mrs. George W. Apsey, Mrs. Herbert Arrowsmith, Mrs. J. L. S. Barton, Mrs. R. Stetson Baylies, Mrs. T. W. Bowes, Mrs. George E. Byford, Mrs. E. H. Chamberlain and Mrs. Oscar W. Codding.

Mrs. Thomas R. Aldrich had charge of the tickets and was assisted at the door by Mr. and Mrs. A. Allen Kimball.

JUNIOR HIGH PARENT-TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION

On Saturday afternoon in the high school auditorium an excellent program was presented for the children and grown ups, by the Music Group Orchestra and Kay Snow's Marionettes. The orchestra selections and the Marionette show were pleasing and greatly appreciated by the large and enthusiastic audience.

This program sponsored by the Junior High School Parent-Teachers' Association through the supervision of the Ways and Means Committee, proved so successful that many are looking forward to a repetition of this high type of entertainment.

The musical program was as follows: Sailor Song by Grieg; Cradle Hymn by Rousseau; Minuet by Haydn; Invitation to the Dance by Weber.

The Music Group Orchestra under the direction of Mrs. Charles Livingstone are: David Livingstone, George Budd, James Weaver, Laura Sibley, Rex Crandall, Nancy Carr, Barbara Hughes, Mary Haskell, Jean Drake, Henry Wightman, Nancy Nickerson and Charles Livingstone.

Kay Snow's Marionettes need no introduction to Winchester audiences. Three Winchester High School sophomores, Katherine Snow, Ella Armstrong and Dorothy Bruno, associated in the operation of the Marionette theatre have gained fame as Marionette creators. The girls are to be congratulated upon their splendid production Saturday of the "Further Adventures of the Three Little Pigs" by Rumpelstiltskin. They held their audience spell bound.

The girls selling candy were Barbara Hayden, F. Francis, Jane Hayden, Alcyone Rogers and Betty Ann Budd.

The hospitality committee under the President, Mrs. C. Harry Swanson, included Mrs. Lester Gustin, Mrs. Leon Hughes, Mrs. James Riley, Mrs. Floyd Clement, Mrs. Thomas Conlon and Mrs. Charles Livingstone.

The Ways and Means Committee in charge were Mrs. Earle E. Andrews, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Kingman Cass, Mrs. George Budd, Mrs. Robert Graham, Mr. Earle E. Andrews, Mr. Floyd Clement and Mr. Lester Gustin.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The Literature Group will hold its last meeting for the season on Monday, April 1. It will be the last discussion of "Conversation as a Literary Form." The prize winner in the contest for the best original conversation will be announced, and the winning paper read. It should be a meeting of unusual interest.

Antiques

The pilgrimage to Cambridge, originally announced for April 5, has been postponed until April 26. Further details later.

Club Luncheon

The annual meeting of the Fornightly will be held on Monday, April 8. The usual club luncheon has been planned for that date, to precede the meeting, and it is hoped that members planning to attend the luncheon will make their reservations just as early as possible, thereby greatly lightening the work of a very busy committee. Mrs. Kingman Cass, Win. 0228, is in charge.

Regular Meeting March 25

At the regular meeting last Monday, several important committee announcements were made.

Art

There are a number of outstanding programs and exhibitions available in Boston this month. April 8 to 13 is Art Week, and an exhibition at 1 Washington street where the designing and executing of the stained glass windows for the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York was done. Also at 81 Stevens street there will be on exhibition a collection of note books on art which are exceptionally interesting. These and other similar announcements are in the Boston papers, or further details may be had from Mrs. Warren Whitman, Win. 1928. Mrs. Whitman and members of her committee are planning to attend many of these places, and will be glad to have other club members ride in with them.

Junior Club

The president of the new "Junior Fortnightly of Winchester," Miss Harriet Keepers, was introduced to the club, and expressed the thanks and appreciation of the Juniors for all that the senior club is doing for them. Mrs. Wilson then presented the junior president with a gavel, a lovely present which the new club will doubtless treasure.

The Program

Miss Alice Lindbergh proved a very satisfactory substitute for the program originally planned for the day. She is charming in appearance and manner, and a finished artist. She gave first "The Spanish Festival," in which her clever acting, pretty Spanish accent and lovely costumes all contributed to the very sincere enjoyment of the audience. Then she gave several very brilliant and interesting monologues. "A Pleasant Evening at Home," a clever take-off on an evening of bridge with the neighbors; "Sadie at the Movies," a very funny act without a word spoken and chiefly featuring the best methods of chewing gum; and "Sailing for Europe," in which the agonizing moments of waving and waving to friends on the pier while waiting for the ship to cast off, were very amusingly shown.

Of equal interest with the spoken program was the program of piano music by Mary Ranton Witham which went with it. Her perfect execution one has learned to take for granted. But her beautiful shadings of meaning, the appealing sweetness of her tender passages, the depth and understanding of more solemn themes, the dainty gaiety of her merry little dances always come as a new delight. The audience was enthusiastic, and insisted upon an encore which she graciously gave.

Morning Musicale

On Friday morning, March 22, the last morning musicale of the year was held at the home of Mrs. Reginald Bradlee on Ledgewood road. Morning coffee was served, and an extremely fine program given.

The subject was "Modern Music," and the first part of the program was devoted to Russian music. Mrs. Hildegarde Livingstone, who had charge of this part of the program, spent a year in Russia, and gave a most interesting account of her experiences there, with a rather keen analysis of the influence which Russian climate and history have had upon their music. She spoke of Rubinstein, Tchaikowsky, Cui, Rimsky Korsakov.

Illustrating Russian music, Mrs. Winship sang "None but the Lonely Heart" accompanied by Mary Ranton Witham, with obligato by Mrs. Livingstone. Then Mrs. Livingstone played the following violin solos accompanied by Mrs. Mary Sargent: "Hymn to the Sun" from Le Cog d'or, Rimsky Korsakov; "Orientale," Cui; "Humoresque," Tchaikowsky.

The second part of the program was devoted to French music.

Mary Ranton Witham made a survey of modern French music from the period following the Franco-Prussian war. Speaking of the growth of instrumental music beginning with St. Saens, Talo, Cesai Franck and the latter's followers Chausson, Du Pare, Coquard, etc. Faure and Chaubrier the first modernists were briefly discussed als othe Wagnerian and Neo Russian influence.

Mrs. Witham spoke of the interaction between the arts, and its influence on the music of Bruneau and Charpentier in opera culminating in the works of Debussy, probably the greatest genius of modern French music; Ravel, Dukas Schmitt, Maynard were briefly mentioned. The very moderns "The Group of Six" and Erik Satie forsaking French traditions are now evolving a new style deriving from Schoenburg and Stravinsky which is most revolutionary in character. It is a safe prophecy that when these moderns have absorbed all that they can of foreign influence they will again return to a more exclusive dependence on French traditions.

The program:

Apres un Reve	Faure
Hai-Lin	Coquard
L'Invitation au voyage	Duparc
Mrs. Winship
Clair de Lune	Debussy
Golliwog's Cakewalk	Debussy
Mary Sargent
Corteve	Boutanger
Pavane	Ravel
Helen Sibley

Mary Witham, accompanist

It was most regrettable that time did not permit the inclusion of the Spanish modern music which was in charge of Helen Sibley.

The first musicale of next year will be devoted entirely to this subject under Mrs. Sibley's capable direction. Her playing was a real joy to her audience as it invariably is. The Fortnightly and all of Winchester sincerely love her work.

Dramatic Afternoon

Friday afternoon, March 22, the Dramatic Committee presented the final performances of the season. The plays presented were decided contrasts.

The first play, "A Little French Dressing" was written by Grace Waters of Stoneham, and was much in keeping with the season, as it had to do with Madame's chapeau, Mrs. Dorothy Wills as Fifi, keeper of a fashionable "French" hat shop sold her creations by convincing the ladies they took "years off" and would make the "young man turn around, and old men spin around." Under her magic touch Madame Desmond, (Mrs. Ruth Ferguson) with her new bonnet won back the husband who was looking "at one more vivacious and young." Mrs. Winterbottom, (Adele Emery) with four boys in college although claiming to be only 29, found just the one to her liking, "one young, gay and saucy" and also just the proper hat for romping about for her six foot child, Theresa Mann. Mrs. Blaisdell (Christine Clark) and Mrs. Abercrombie (Muriel Barnes) almost came to blows over one hat when they discover they are old school friends, and after causing Madame Fifi all kinds of inconvenience walk out together, neither having purchased anything. Mrs. Van Courtland (Marjory Burr) drops in for a very special hat for a tea dansant where she is to meet her "dancing boy" who "adores her," in spite of the fact she has a husband who is leaving for Europe the next day without her. Dashing in madly comes Miss Babe Ryan and orders many colors and shapes in a very few minutes charging them up double, "according to former arrangements" and having them sent to the S.S. Argentina and to Mr. George Cushing Van Cortland, with whom she is sailing. His wife "just doesn't understand him." Babe is off before Mrs. Van Cortland recovers her breath and she in her rage decides to be the one sailing with her husband, and also to wear the hats that Babe has ordered, and storms out to "put that one over on her husband."

Madame Fifi is exhausted and a telephone call reveals to her that her twins have the measles, her mother has a good old fashioned boiled dinner waiting for her and our French milliner turns out to be an Irish shop girl in spite of her French accent. The cast was well chosen and coached by Thelma Pitman. All parts were played with ease and naturalness.

The second play "Poor Madelena" written by Louise Saunders, was in three scenes, The Land of Fantasy, The House of Madelena and again The Land of Fantasy. Pierrette (Mrs. Betty Blaisdell) and Pierrot (Dorothy Elliott) are engaged in going through their eternal pantomime, he telling her of his love and she with her pretty gestures scorning his love. Pierrette is tired of his love making, and doubts whether they really love each other. Pierrot swears by the moon, but Pierrette has heard that the world of men see the moon in many different shapes. Bumbu, spirit of the grotesque, (Mrs. Madeline Zimmerman, enters and finds the two waiting to beg him for the key to unlock the door that they may go down to earth and experience real love. In spite of Bumbu's advice that they are better in the land of fantasy where "there is no sorrow, no joy, where the lights are dimmed and the shadows have lost their terror" they go down to earth and experience "the flying stones of misfortune" leaving their "painted land of fantasy and pasteboard moon." Their experience upon the earth as Paolo and Madelena is full of deep feeling and bitter tragedy. The convincing power of Mrs. Blaisdell's acting in this scene was one of the finest things the Fortnightly has seen this year. At last they return to the Land of Fantasy where "roses have no thorns."

Too much cannot be said for the splendid interpretations of the individuals taking these parts of Pierrette, Pierrot and Bumbu. Mrs. Winifred Nicholas who coached this Fantasy, brought out technique and finish in her cast that only one of experience and study could do.

Before the performance and between the plays Mrs. Sophia Gardner sang accompanied by Mary Ranton Witham, appropriate songs. Before the play taking place in the millinery shop she gave "Old Gray Bonnet," by Percy Wenrich, and "Easter Parade" by Irving Berlin. A group of fairy songs by Maurice Besley preceded the Fantasy, and as a special favor "Danny Boy" was given. Mrs. Gardner's voice is always pleasing.

The club members will look forward to another year under the dramatic direction of Mrs. Beatrice Budd.

SAVILLE & KIMBALL PURCHASE WINCHESTER PROPERTY

Saville & Kimball, Inc., Funeral Directors, who for many years have operated a funeral home in Arlington Center, have purchased from the Warren Institution for Savings the property at 39 Church street Winchester, and as soon as the building is thoroughly renovated and redecorated it will be used as this progressive firm's Winchester headquarters.

The front room is quite spacious with a large fireplace which adds greatly to the home-like atmosphere. There is a smaller room at the rear which is to be used as a family room, with a separate entrance at the side so that the immediate relatives may have the strictest privacy.

FORD V-8

In A Class By Itself

THERE is no way to compare the Ford V-8 with any other car because there is no other car like it.

The Ford enables you to step up into the fine-car class in performance, beauty, comfort and safety. But there is no stepping up in price. That is kept down by Ford low-profit policies and unique manufacturing methods. These are as different as the car itself.

It takes eight cylinders to give the modern performance you need these days. The Ford is powered by a V-8 — the finest type of eight-cylinder engine. You have to pay more than $2000 for that in any other car.

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL MEN OUT

Coach Wendell Mansfield had his Winchester High School baseball candidates out for the first time this season last Saturday morning for an easy workout on battle scarred Manchester Field. Only limbering up, with a bit of "pep" practice and easy hitting was indulged in, though the outfielders did dodge around the piles of debris to catch a few flies. Park Department men have been busy cleaning up this week and conditions will be much better when serious work commences.

A squad of 74 is trying out for places on this year's team, and except for the fact that "Buz" Kendrick is sure to be one of the regular pitchers nothing is as yet settled.

Veterans include Capt. "Tom" Donnghey, shortstop; "Joe" Dinneen and "Slicker" Coss, infielders; "Albie" MacDonnell, outfielder; and "Ref" Provinzano, catcher. Whether these boys will play the positions they filled last year is problematical. MacDonnell will probably remain in the gardens, but Coss may shift away from first base as he is versatile and may have to fill one of the other infield gaps. Just at present Provinzano looks like one of the stronger pitching candidates along with Captain Donaghey, who has had considerable pitching experience. Provinzano has a nice fast one and should go well with the moderate ball thrown up by Kendrick.

Red headed "Brother" Donaghey looks very promising as a catcher and if he develops as expected may take over the backstopping duties anyhow, leaving Provinzano free to fill an infield berth. "Pollock" McCormack and "Lefty Bill" Smith are promising first base candidates and other good looking infielders are "Sandy" MacKenzie, Farley and "Bill" Grey, the latter second team third sucker a year ago. "Checka" Chamberland will make a strong bid for an outfield job and Ficociello is making a fight for a catching post. Lebonic Gaudioso, a left hander, and tall Walter Josephson, are among the pitching candidates.

"Johnnie" Murphy, former Winchester High all around athlete who later captained the Exeter nine, has been assisting Coach Mansfield with the big squad, paying special attention to the infielders. A flossy fielder himself, "Johnnie" ought to be able to help plenty.

Manager Robert Thornton is trying to arrange a game with Wakefield to be played away from home on April 12 to start the season. Following is the complete list of candidates.

Pitchers Thomas Murphy, Thomas Kenton, Lebonio Gaudioso, Louis Errico, Walter Josephson, Charles Kendrick, Harry McGrath, Frank Gilchrist, George Dotton, Jason Baker, Robert McTague, Everett Horie, John Bosnian, Lucius Smith, John Callahan, Edward Stone, John DeMinico, James McLeod, John Ruttledge, John Hopkins.

Catchers Ralph Murphy, Archie Premont, Robert Donaghey, Frank Provinzano, Dexter Derby, Donald Linnell, Gerald Ficociello, Dudley Brandon, Jack Finare, Charles Joyce.

Second Base Edmund Lassen, Joseph Dineen, Henry O'Neil, Robert Cushman, Henry Hill, Charles Joyce, John Lobkaczer, Alfred Blanchard.

Shortstop Thomas Donnghey, John Farley, Parker Blanchard, Daniel Mahoney.

The games resulted as follows:

H. Wood and G. Wallace of Winchester won from Storer and Raymond of Cambridge, 15 3, 15 5.

H. Wood and L. Palmer of Winchester won from Gilbert and Murphy of Cambridge, 15 3, 16 18, 15 8.

L. Palmer and G. Wallace of Winchester won from Day and Stuart of Cambridge, 15 11, 16 18, 15 8.

On Wednesday evening, March 20, an informal tournament was held in which 32 members of the club participated. All games were confined to doubles matches. The name of each participant was written on a slip of paper which was then dropped into a bag. The slips were then shuffled and the names of two members were drawn out successively, these members laying as partners for the tournament. As anticipated, there were many unexpected combinations which added greatly to the success of the evening.

There will be no Badminton on Tuesday evening, April 2, but otherwise the club will continue to have its usual sessions Tuesday and Wednesday evenings and Saturday afternoons until further notice.

COMMUNITY BOWLING

On Wednesday evening, March 20, in the Community Bowling League, in the matches rolled on the Winchester Alleys the Town Team won four points from St. Mary's; the Fells Plumbing won four points from the Sons of Italy; the Legion won three points from the K. of C.; the Atlantic Gelatine won three points from the Elks.

DISCUSSION BY COMMISSIONER LONG

Notwithstanding the competition of town meeting, a large gathering of interested people came to hear Commissioner Henry F. Long, president of the National Tax Association at the Wyman School on Monday evening. Commissioner Long told the story of tax as from the beginning, the whys and wherefores and what our problem is today. He told us that in order not to curtail the functions of the cities and towns of Massachusetts that the tax money must be raised. He suggests the sales tax and in fact, has such a bill before the Massachusetts Legislature. Though admittedly it has many difficulties it is the one tax by which every one is touched and no one badly hurt.

An audience of nearly 200 came and many questions were asked. Mr. Long's discussion was under the auspices of the Winchester League of Women Voters. Mrs. Bowen Tufts presided and introduced Mr. Long.

SPRING FIRE SEASON OPENS

The open season for spring brush fires arrived with a vengeance last week-end, the first of several calls coming in at 9:44 last Friday morning when the department was called to put out a grass fire in the rear of the residence of Mr. Wallace E. Brimer at 6 Rangely ridge. At 10 o'clock Chief David H. DeCourcy ordered Hose 4 to put out a burning tree beside the railroad tracks in the rear of Rangely ridge.

At 4:24 Friday afternoon Box 51 came in for a brush fire in the rear of the residence of Mr. Clarence H. Gustin, 375 Cambridge street, the men having nearly an hour's battle with the flames. Woburn Engine 3 went on duty at the fire at 4:27. At 6:55 the Police Department notified the Central Station of a grass fire on railroad property below Bacon's Mill, and at 8:50 Sergt. Edward W. Arlington's Engine 4 "covered in" at the Central Station during this fire. At 4:01 p. m. Tuesday there was a grass fire in the rear of the residence of Mr. M. J. Foley at 780 Main street, and at 6:55 p. m. that evening, a fire at the town dump.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

Canned vegetables are suggested in preference to fresh this week since most fresh vegetables are scarce and quite high. Most fruits too are a little higher, but apples, oranges and grapefruit still offer good values. Bananas are cheaper.

Seafood is again plentiful and moderate in price. Lamb and chuces of beef continue to be the best meat buys. Eggs and butter maintain their lows of last week. Get out some of your favorite recipes that call for eggs and enjoy them while eggs are at their cheapest and best.

This week finds spinach, celery and radishes the best values in succulent vegetables. Potatoes and yellow turnips are still cheap and bulk carrots and parsnips inexpensive.

Here are three menus made up of seasonable foods adapted to different budget levels:

Low Cost Dinner
Baked Stuffed Breast of Lamb
Mashed Potatoes Canned Peas
Bread and Butter
Bananas in Lemon Gelatin
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner
Rolled Shoulder of Lamb
Boiled Rice New Spinach
Bread and Butter
Fruit Cup Cookies
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner
Fruit Cup
Roast Leg of Lamb
Browned Potatoes Wax Beans
Tomato and Lettuce Salad
Rolls and Butter
Caramel Baked Custard
Coffee Milk

THE SEWER SITUATION

The following letter received by Mr. Edmund C. Sanderson, chairman of the local Water & Sewer Board, is self explanatory:

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts
Metropolitan District Commission
20 Somerset Street,
Boston, Mass.,
March 27, 1935

E. C. Sanderson, Chairman
Water & Sewer Board,
Winchester, Mass.

Dear Sir:

Replying to your letter of March 21, 1935, in regard to the condition existing in the northern part of Winchester near Brookside road, this office recognizes the fact that the capacity of our sewer is hardly adequate at this time, however, we have submitted in the Public Works program projects totaling many millions of dollars. If we are fortunate enough to obtain the whole or even the greater part of this money, our first concern will be to relieve the North Metropolitan System of existing conditions. Upon receipt of the money, the work would be started as soon as possible, however, should the Public Works money not be forthcoming, the whole proposition of relief would be thrown over for a few years until proper legislation could be secured.

Trusting that this will give you the necessary information to relieve the nervous tension of the neighborhood and being only too ready and willing to give you any detailed information if you are able to call at this office, I am,

Very truly yours,
Joseph P. Dever,
Director and Chief Engineer of Sewerage Division

ROTARY CLUB

Five members were absent from the meeting of March 28, one of whom has already made up attendance.

The attendance records for February 1935 show that our district, the 31st, increased its percentage over that of February 1934, by 5.08 per cent. But one other district in the USCNB area (the 33rd) exceeded this increase and one district (the 29th) had exactly the same percentage of increase. Fifty-two districts in the USCNB area reported for the February 1935, attendance contest. Only two of these districts, the 2nd and the 50th comprise a larger number of clubs than our district and one district (the 21st) has the same number of clubs (69). Four districts, (1st, 2nd, 27th, 28th) have a larger membership of individual Rotarians.

We missed President Harry Winn today. Harry is on an extended business trip to the middle west and participates a visit to the Chicago Club, No. 1 during his absence from home. Vice-President "Billy" Beggs presided at the current meeting.

The Rotarian magazine for April presents articles discussing the gold standard by three contributors, recognized authorities on this subject. In general, savants believe that the recognition of this metal as the standard of values is essential to the return of world prosperity. Here is an opportunity for Rotarians and others to acquire genuine enlightenment from men who are competent to give it.

Past President George Davidson, representing the Community Service Committee was the speaker at the current meeting. George made a stirring plea for a more active interest on the part of club members in local affairs. As Chairman of the Park Commission of the Town of Winchester, he was able to present specific instances wherein Rotarians could do much to make Winchester a better town, even though its standards are already high. A brief discussion at the close of George's address disclosed that club members were keen to act on his recommendations and steps were actually taken to carry out a certain project in the near future. We shall refrain from further comment on this matter until after its accomplishment. Once it has undertaken a work, it has not been the habit of this club to leave it undone or half done. Shall we be able to announce, say within three weeks, that the club has again made good? And this means each and every member of the club.

THE MARCH MEETING

March 27, 1935

For more than a century the annual town meeting, usually held in March, has been the most important single annual event in the history of every town in the New England States, and for more than 50 years I can testify that this has been true in Winchester, and is true today.

Here have been determined the policies, and here have been passed the votes that have developed a small country village into one of the most charming residential suburbs of Boston.

We have just finished this meeting for 1935 in an orderly and businesslike manner, creditable to all concerned. With a very lucid and carefully prepared report of the Finance Committee as a guide, the limited town meeting has settled the various questions that came before it in a manner which I believe will meet the approval of the great majority of our citizens and be a source of satisfaction to those who are serving the town as its members.

As one reads through the annual town report, he must be impressed with the large number of our leading citizens who are giving freely of their ability, time, and physical strength to the various departments of our town government, without any compensation whatever, except that satisfaction that comes to everyone who feels that he is contributing his mite for the good of all.

The Selectmen, the Finance Committee, the School Committee, the Park Commissioners, the Board of Health, the Planning Board, the Cemetery Commissioners, the Trustees of the Town Library, the Water and Sewer Board, as well as the many special committees that are appointed from time to time, render such service to this town that every citizen ought to do everything in his power to hold up their hands in the performance of their duty and thank God that we live in such a community.

The recommendations of the Selectmen for the last two years, that no further bonded indebtedness be incurred for at least five years was wisely followed.

Under Article 7, the appropriations for the current financial year were conservative and assured the town for this year a reasonable tax rate when compared with many of the towns in the State. This policy will assure for another year a continuance of a very high financial reputation which the town enjoys among bankers and financiers.

The construction of a new bridge over the outlet of Horn Pond Brook on Main street completes the list of new bridges which some years ago were agreed to be built as rapidly as the finances of the town would permit.

To name the improvements on the shore of Wedge Pond, bordering on Main street, Wedge Pond Park seems very appropriate. It was also good judgment to appoint a committee to select a lot for a new school house on the Hillside district of the West Side. By all means secure a good and generous sized lot before it is too late to secure it at a reasonable price, but I hope that a building will not be erected on it for at least five years—until every available schoolroom in the town is occupied.

We are accused by some of our neighbors of being rather extravagant in our school building and church programs with some reason, perhaps—but if we must be extravagant in anything, let it be in school houses and churches.

I was glad to note that the Park Commissioners did not press to a vote the question of lowering the mill dam which controls the level of the water in Wedge Pond and the newly constructed ponds which have been completed out of the Aberjona swamps.

I, personally, was perhaps more interested in Article 32 than in any other.

"To see if the town will acquire the land adjacent to the High School building, between Washington and Main Streets for the enlargement thereof."

A good many years ago a small group of citizens, under the leadership of Mr. Preston Pond (whose vision and constant public spirit was, for many years, no small factor in the development of our town) agreed that they would do everything in their power to secure for town purposes the large triangular lot between Main, Washington streets and the mill pond.

The Mystic Valley Parkway took the houses and most of the land on the south side of Walnut street, which then extended from the railroad station to its present location, near Lloyd avenue and on the level with the sidewalk which now extends beside the mill pond; also the two story tenement house with the meat market and cobbler shop underneath, which stood on the corner where the Memorial monument is now so well located.

Mrs. Howe had already given the old Zachariah Symmes lot extending from Main street to Washington street behind this row of houses, looking out over the mill pond, to be used for public purposes. When the High School was built in 1903, her large white house standing high up above Main street was demolished.

The Metropolitan Park people offered to give the land they didn't need to build the Mystic Valley Parkway to the town if would complete the grading of the banks along the south edge of what had been the Walnut street lots, along he Parkway from Main to Washington streets. This the committee building the High School recommended, as it would give us a frontage on the Parkway with the mill pond beyond, and the town supported the recommendation.

There were left several houses on this tract of land, and we agreed that as fast as any of them were on the market, we would find someone, if possible, to purchase and hold them until the town might need them, which we felt sure they would sometime. One such house was purchased and held a few years until the additions to the High School removed that, and also one other house on Washington street. That left only three rather small houses on the entire tract not owned by the town, refered to in Article 32.

Now here was a possibility that the vision of Mr. Pond and his associates might be realized, but the town followed the recommendation of the Finance Committee and did not vote to acquire them at this time, I think wisely.

However much I, as one of Mr. Pond's associates, have desired to complete this purchase started so many years ago, I feel that this little group of houses is serving a most useful purpose at present by screening from view, as one approaches this town from the south, the additions which have recently been made to the High School building.

How any architect could fail to see the opportunity to add to the old High School building which has been quite generally approved for the last 30 years by all who have passed along the Parkway in such a way that those coming from the south could be equally pleased, and the town have here, in the most conspicuous location of any public building in all the town, a notable edifice is to me most incomprehensible and that any committee which built so handsome and well proportioned a building as the new Junior High School could permit such an unattractive structure to be attached to the High School building is most deplorable.

All our school houses and our churches, the Town Hall, Police and Fire Stations, and hospital are every one of them attractive and well suited to the vicinity and an asset to the community in which they are located. What a pity that there should be a single exception, and in so conspicuous a place!

So, I say let these three houses remain where they are, serving a useful purpose until such time as it shall become necessary to again enlarge the High School, when I hope some architect will be found equal to the task of giving us if possible, on this most conspicuous location the most attractive public building in our town. Then I am sure that if the town is not ready to purchase these houses, for financial reasons, some public spirited citizens will be found who will purchase them and hold them until the town can remove them and give us the benefit of this magnificent location for a public building.

So again I say, this town meeting so recently held was one of the most satisfactory in all its conclusions that I can now recall.

GLEN BROWNING COMES OUT WITH NEW RADIO

In the field of radio, many ideas are conceived, experimented with, and the refined product developed long hfeore the layman is aware of its existence. About a year ago the design of a 7-tube all-wave kit superhetrodyne was started. This entailed a tremendous amount of thought and work, but as a result, within the last two months the Browning 35 has made its public appearance and again the experimenters and amateurs have a product of the designer of the famous Browning-Drake set with which to spend many a profitable hour in assembling and then receiving broadcast signals from all over the world.

A tuning catacomb covering a frequency range from 22.6 to .54 megacycles has been incorporated. This consists of four sets of three coils each, a coil-switch arrangement, and a three-gang tuning condenser, as well as all the trimming and padding condensers. The coil-switching arrangement has been adopted in place of plug-in coils, provision having been made for shorting out all coils in the catacomb which are not in the circuit being employed.

The tuner is completely wired and tracked at the factory. There are only seven connections which need be made by the set-builder to this tuning assembly and only three of these are high-frequency connections. Band-pass intermediate frequency transtormers consisting of three individually tuned circuits have been incorporated. These band-pass transformers give a flat-nose tuning curve which results in high-fidelity reception.

The tuning dial is controlled by a micro-vernier adjustment. It is very essential to turn this micro-vernier adjustment slowly, otherwise stations will be passed by. Do not expect to get short-wave stations at frequencies higher than about 10 megacycles at night. Usually reception on these very high frequencies is poor after dark. Stations operating on these frequencies, however, come in very well in the daytime. The best bands at night are those from about 8 megacycles and below.

It is interesting to note that a short time ago 14 stations were received beween the hours of 6 and 7 o'clock in the evening, among which were stations from Spain, Germany, Colombia and Venezuela, operating between six and ten megacycles. At 5 o'clock the following morning various stations were received: Melbourne, Australia, Nazaki, Japan and Bandoeng, Java, operating between six and ten megacycles. At 7 o'clock, these last-mentioned stations had completely faded out and Paris, France and Zoesun, Germany, operating at about 15 megacycles came in. Thus, frequencies at about 10 megacycles and below seem to prefer a night-time path, and frequencies above 10 megacycles seem to prefer a day-light path.

This receiver can be assembled in from four to six hours by the experimenter.

A CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

Those who follow closely developments in Massachusetts, noted with express favor that District Attorney Warren L. Bishop of Middlesex County declared his candidacy for Governor in 1936. Mr. Bishop has been looked upon for some time as a likely possibility for the responsible post and his decision at this time will offer the Massachusetts electorate an opportunity to place in office a man who is qualified in every way to render valuable service.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

GOOD BUSINESS

When Mrs. S, who keeps roomers, went to insert a newspaper ad to fill two vacant rooms, a helpful clerk suggested—

"List your telephone number. Some people like to ask questions before they go looking. Besides, most men want to be sure of a telephone address."

That's why Mrs. S ordered her telephone at once.

"Even if it only helps hold the roomers I have now, it sounds like good business. It doesn't cost much more and I can use it myself to do errands and to talk to my friends once in a while."

How about you?

Even in a one-room apartment, the telephone can serve you well and faithfully. See your local telephone business office for details. New England Telephone and Telegraph Company.

"Reality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 31. The Golden Text is: "Thou, O Lord, shalt endure for ever; and thy remembrance unto all generations." (Psalms 102:12).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God: and if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ." (Romans 8:16, 17).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Let us rid ourselves of the belief that man is separated from God, and obey only the divine Principle, Life and Love. Here is the great point of departure for all true spiritual growth. The understanding of his spiritual individuality makes man more real, more formidable in truth, and enables him to conquer sin, disease, and death" (pp. 91, 317).

GLANADA THEATRE, MALDEN

"Sweet Music," the latest and most pretentious of the mammoth musicals, with Rudy Vallee and Ann Dvorak heading a fine cast, will open a seven day run at the Granada Theatre in Malden on Saturday. Rudy Vallee will be heard in a number of catchy tunes written especially for "Sweet Music." Ann Dvorak also sings and dances for the first time on the screen. The picture carries a definite plot and is filled with romance, drama and hilarious comedy. It is the story of a young college boy who organizes a band and makes good as a crooner and orchestra leader in the big night clubs and over the radio. He falls in love with a beautiful dancing girl and helps her up the ladder to success although she thinks he is jealous of her and is tryin to ruin her career. There is a large and talented cast supporting Mr. Vallee and Ann Dvorak. Helen Morgan plays herself, a blues singer, while others include Ned Sparks, Robert Armstrong, Allan Jenkins, Alice White, Joseph Cawthorn, Phillip Reed and Addison Richards. Rudy Vallee's famous Connecticut Yankees appear in the picture as does the Frank and Milt Britton Band. Scores of beautiful girls appear in the dances and ensemble numbers which for novelty and spectacle have never been surpassed. "Sweet Music" establishes Rudy Vallee as a screen favorite and with the help of a talented supporting company has turned out an excellent entertainment.

"The White Cockatoo" with Jean Muir and Ricardo Cortez as the stars, will be the second attraction on the bill opening Saturday. The picture is based on the thrilling novel by Milton G. Eberhart and is said to be filled with hair-raising situations that hold the suspense to an unusual climax. There are a number of murders, the kidnapping of an American heiress and other attempted crimes, all committeed in a spooky hotel on the wind swept coast of France. Mysterious persons creeping about the creaky old hotel at night and suddenly vanishing as into thin air, a hidden chamber without doors, a girl appearing in two places at the same time and other strange phenomena add to the eerie atmosphere. Others in the cast are Ruth Donnolly, John Eldredge, Gordon Westcott and Pauline Garon.

STRAND THEATRE, MALDEN

"The Best Man Wins," with Edmund Lowe, Jack Holt, Florence Rice and Bela Lugosi as the stars, will head the double bill opening at the Strand Theatre in Malden on Saturday. "The Best Man Wins" has a gripping and intense plot showing the adventures and perils of deep-sea divers. Early in the film, Edmund Lowe is injured trying to save his pal, Jack Holt, who is pinioned against a sunken hulk. As a result of the accident Lowe's arm is amputated and he is forced to leave the profession. Holt leaves too, and becomes a member of the harbor police patrol. Later, Lowe goes to work for a smuggler, portrayed by the sinister Bela Lugosi, who operates by having confederates drop watertight packets of gems from incoming steamers at designated places and then later having Lowe in his diving outfit descend to reclaim them. What happens when Holt is assigned to run down the smugglers and discovers his friend, Lowe, involved in the nefarious scheme makes for one of the most thrilling and dramatic climaxes shown on the screen. Running through the film is an exciting romantic rivalry between the two divers for the the affections of lovely Florence Rice, the daughter of the famous sports writer, Grantland Rice.

"Women Must Dress," with Minna Gombell, Hardie Albright and Gavin Gordon, plus the six beauty contest winners who were selected from 250,000 girl entrants, will be the second feature on the hill starting Saturday. Minna Gombell is cast as a woman married to Gavin Gordon. They have a grown up daughter but the mother is much occupied with her home and family she neglects her appearance. The husband falls in love with a younger woman. He tells her he intends to divorce her and then goes on a business trip to South America. This the wife realizes she is to a certain extent at fault in the whole matter and she becomes a smartly groomed woman of the world. Then the daughter's romance breaks up and the father returns from his trip to this unhappy state of affairs. He also sees the vast improvement in his wife's appearance and changes his mind about the divorce. The beauty contest winners appear in the fashion sequences which will delight the ladies.

"SWEET MUSIC" AT THE UNIVERSITY

Rudy Vallee, world famous radio crooner, comes to the University for three days starting Sunday, in the latest and most pretentious of musicals, "Sweet Music." Vallee will be heard in a half dozen catchy songs written especially for the production. Ann Dvorak also sings and dances in spectacular numbers. Rudy Vallee's Connecticut Yankees appear in the picture as does the Frank and Milt Britton Band. The picture, which carries a definite plot, is filled with romance, drama and hilarious comedy.

"The White Cockatoo," the companion picture with Jean Muir and Ricardo Cortez in the featured roles, is based on the novel of Mignon G. Eberhart and is said to be filled with hair raising situations that hold the suspense to an unusual climax.

On Wednesday, April 3, we announce the inauguration of Review Day, to continue each Wednesday, subject to the approval of patrons. The first Review Day program includes Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert in "It Happened One Night" and Katherine Hepburn in "Christopher Strong."

"The Good Fairy," one of the most brilliant comedies of the year, starts Thursday. Margaret Sullavan and Herbert Marshall are presented as co-stars in this motion picture adaptation of the rollicking stage success by Ference Molnar.

Cary Grant and Myrna Loy are co-starred in "Wings in the Dark," the companion feature, which presents Miss Loy as a thrill-hunting aviatrix who risks her life in the clouds to help the man she loves.

PILATE'S DAUGHTER HAS TALENTED CAST

America's oldest Passion Play, Pilate's Daughter, has played to full houses since Lent began. Never in its long run of 32 years has the play been more popular. Thousands have been turned away unaccommodated from this famous Lenten drama. This year a talented cast has attracted the admiration of theatre goers of all creeds.

A little over three decades ago a Catholic priest, Rev. Francis L. Kenzel, C.SS.R., wove into the scriptural account of the Passion of Christ a very human story. It was the story of the rose which Pilate's Daughter cast from the balcony of her home as the Saviour went forth to die.

The list of Boston women who during the 32 years of the play's run have had a part in it would fill a book of many pages. Many of them now married return every year to see the play and to show their children the drama in which "mother" once had a part. Unique in the annals of stage productions, Pilate's Daughter never needs a prompter. The script of the play is known to every member of the cast and understudies are never necessary.

Pilate's Daughter is now being staged every Wednesday and Thursday evening and every Sunday afternoon at St. Alphonsus Hall connected with the Mission Church in Roxbury. There will be a special matinee for children on Saturday, March 30 at 2:30.

ST. MARY'S HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

There will be a Parent-Teachers' meeting held in the school next Tuesday evening. After the meeting there will be a social and refreshments will be served. Mrs. Michael Grant, the president, will preside. Other officers are Mrs. M. J. Moffett, Mrs. T. F. Cassidy and Mrs. Clarence Dunbury.

St. Mary's High School has started preparations for its annual operetta. It is being coached by Miss Anna Gurney of Roxbury. The operetta is entitled "May, the Maiden," and will be given early in May.

The annual field day exhibition preparations are underway, also. The Seniors and Juniors have sword-drill; a difficult exhibition; and the freshman and sophomores have an Indian Club drill. Each of the lower grades have separate acts, and the result should be very good. The physical education teacher is Miss Sally Burk of Lowell.

A BENEFIT MOVIE

The Massachusetts Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children is being aided by a movie for children at the University Theatre, Cambridge, at 10 a. m. Saturday, March 30. Charlie Chaplin in "The Fireman," "Peculiar Penguins," Silly Symphony, Mickey Mouse in "Camping Out," "Alice in Wonderland."

Prizes will be given to holders of lucky seats. A large committee is making arrangements. Mrs. F. Manley Ives and Mrs. John H. Joy are representing Winchester.

"WITHIN THE GATES" TO BE READ APRIL 9

Harry Longfellow Dana, whose familiarity with the theatre and historical literary background make him a most capable and stimulating person to hear, will give the second of a series of evenings on the theatre in Winchester.

Mr. Dana will give a dramatic reading of Sean O'Casey's play, "Within the Gates" on Tuesday, April 9, at 8 o'clock in the studio at "Carrig-Rohane," 314 Highland avenue, with entrance on Mason street extension.

The play was produced in London, Paris and New York, and was received and considered as a powerful human document and an artistic production. But when it was to open in Boston, unfortunately the production was postponed indefinitely and persons wishing to see it might purchase special tickets to the play including train transportation and hotel accommodations in New York. Since that time, Mr. Dana, in an effort of protest against unjust censorship has given several private readings of the play in Boston and Cambridge.

Many people will remember the heated discussions and censorship of "The Play Boy of the Western World," which the Abbey Theatre brought the first time to Boston in 1912. At that time the Irish players were welcomed in Winchester by Governor and Mrs. McCall and Caroline Bowles Murphy, Mrs. Samoiloff's mother at Carrig-Rohane." Three years ago the Abbey Theatre returned to Boston. "The Play Boy" was one of their most popular plays, and there was no thought of censorship. Some of the same actors were still in the company and recalled the evenings in the studio and the picnics in Winchester's beautiful Fells!

Mr. Dana's lecture on the various forms of stage presentations last month was most interesting, and those who heard him will look forward to this next evening as one of gala importance.

The active members of the Winchester Group Theatre and others especially interested in attending the reading should make reservations with Mrs. Samoiloff by mail or by phone Winchester 2033-M.

OBSERVATIONS

By the Observer

Chief of Police William H. Rogers, in his stand on a motion picture theatre in Winchester, speaks plainly and many persons will agree with him that "a large percentage of our crimes are caused by the influence of the movies on the younger generation." This is just the reason why there is so much opposition to the proposition for a theatre in fair Winchester.

A buzzard flying high over Winchester leads us to remark that to fly as high is that the buzzard sure has low tastes.

Not long ago we heard a Winchester father bawling out his son for not performing a certain task. "The only way to get anything done is to do it yourself," declared papa. True, unless of course it is a haircut when one has to go to one of our Winchester tonsorial artists.

Anna M. Swanson, president of the Junior High School Parent-Teacher Association, said much when she declared: "Winchester has always been a town whose people have had high ideals and high aspirations, especially, for the young folks. Let's dare to be different. Let's keep out the movies." Well spoken, Mrs. Swanson!

Yes, believe it or not, it is even dangerous to walk down life's highway these days.

One Winchester housewife declares that next time she selects a table cloth she will get one the color of coffee and gravy.

We were looking at several pictures of Winchester men of a bygone period and each showed a separate whisker trim.

We have just read in an exchange reaching the Star desk that the editor in that town wonders where one can find a lot of pretty maids. Come to Winchester, sir, we have the prettiest maidens in all the land.

A lot of our conservative townsmen look with regret upon some of their boyhood pranks. Yes, pulling the cat's tail, for instance.

Our Winchester grandmas baked mighty fine hoecake in their day, but it must be remembered that folks were not so particular about their eating at that time.

ADMITTED WOBURN BREAKS

Boys Picked Up By Officer Reardon Had Broken into Gift Shop

Monday morning at 5:30, Patrolman D. Irving Reardon picked up two boys on the State road near Pond street and took them to Headquarters. The boys aged 17 and 12 years were found to be State wards living at an Oak street address in Woburn.

Upon being questioned they stated that they hal run away from their home Saturday night. They had in their possession two billfolds, a pocketbook, a cigarette case and two and three cent stamps amounting to $1.20.

According to the police they admitted having stolen these articles from the Fireside Gift Shop in Woburn, having entered the shop Sunday morning. They were also said to have admitted several other breaks which the Woburn Police have been investigating. The boys, who gave their names as Charles F. Miskiwiecz and Francis Sullivan, were given into custody of the Woburn authorities.

Mrs. Sherman W. Saltmarsh of 192 Highland avenue is recovering from a tonsil operation performed March 22.

TO ENTERTAIN BEFORE JUNIOR DANCE

Her guests are to include: Joan Gleason, Gene MacDonald, Betty Whorf, Rosemary Smith, Mary Little Fuller, Elizabeth Chamberlin, Ruth Aseltine, Priscilla Shiverick, Annette Randlett, Priscilla Parsons, Lester Gustin, Ewart Bairstow, Carl Ellis, "Bob" Cotton, Henry LeRoyer, George Billman, "Tom" Aldrich, "Bob" Howe, "Bob" Thornton, Edward Sherburne, "Dick" Leghorn, "Bob" Lenk, Charles Butler, Graham Peterson.

Miss Helen Donlon of Elmwood avenue was pleasantly surprised Tuesday evening when a group of her friends gave her a party at the home of Joseph Delorey on Chapin court in honor of her 16th birthday. Miss Donlon received many gifts, for which she expressed her thanks in a gracious manner. General dancing and an impromptu entertainment were enjoyed, Mr. Delorey featuring with an exhibition dance in which he was assisted by his wife at the piano. Dainty refreshments were served. Among those present were: Helen Donlon, Jane Daley, Mary Murphy, Catherine Kennedy, Mary Kennedy, Mary Joyce, Agnes Delorey, Pauline Haggerty.

Millions of women agree with you, Mr. Moffett!

"A man is out of the house all day. When he returns at night, he does not realize the long hours of effort that have been expended to produce the atmosphere of comfort and cheer that greets him."*

Nor does he realize how a woman is hindered by an old-fashioned obsolete range. Modernize your kitchen. Replace that obsolete range by a modern automatic gas range—precise, accurate, unbelievably convenient, time-saving. Beautiful, too—as you will agree if you drop into our salesroom and see them. And easy to own on our easy terms.

HEATING HINTS .. by John Barclay

"KEEP the turn damper on your furnace as nearly closed as possible at all times," is a heating rule which I frequently emphasize. But there are exceptions to every rule and the exception to this one is in the case of the Hot Air Furnace. This type of furnace is of slightly different construction than the Steam or Hot Water Boiler and therefore requires different treatment.

With a Hot Air Furnace you will find it advantageous to open the turn damper wide when you are shaking the grates or putting on fresh coal. Opening the turn damper during these operations permits any dust or gas to immediately pass up the chimney. It is most important, however, that the turn damper be put back in its nearly closed position as soon as the shaking and refueling is completed.

In this connection you will find it helpful to mark the normal position of the turn damper on the smoke pipe. It will then be an easy matter to close the turn damper to exactly the same position that it was in before shaking and firing. (17)

HEART TO HEART TALKS

By Eugene Bertram Willard

If a man is a man in head and heart, and has shown by his daily behavior and attitude toward his fellows that he is, then he has an interest in all humanity and naturally a something of right in them. What Beaumont and Fletcher make a man say in one of their plays, many mortals themselves feel, and

The bacteria count in this chart gives the number of bacteria found in one c. c. taken from the center of the sample after it had been well shaken. It should be remembered that another c. c. taken from the same sample might give a somewhat different count, but the difference would rarely, if ever, exceed 10 per cent.

Is is but little many of us have been, or even have had an opportunity of being. When we think of good and great men often there comes over one's mind a strange feeling of fellowship in glory with them. In us, and in them, there is one soul, and we should so formulate our daily conduct that we shall not live altogether unworthily of it; that in them we shall recognize our own nature as it is, or else as it is possible to make it by prayer and the help of the Almighty. The end of Leonidas, and Stephen's martyrdom, are mirrors in which the soul of the thoughtful man sees her own devotedness. If we think it is possible for us to conceive and partly to live, the pains and perserverance in which the pyramids of Egypt were built. And so, in a figurative sense, they are monuments of the laboriousness of our human nature. It is possible for us in our own way of thinking and feeling to embody what is the better parts of the writings of Fenelon, George Fox and Henry Ward Beecher and all the others; and so from what they have written is reflected the character of one's mind. The zeal of St. Paul—Milton's patriotism, Galileo's sight unto the stars, the exactness of Cuvier's account of creatures that perished from this earth myriads of years ago, what King Alfred was, what the mind of the Pilgrim Fathers was, what Washington was, what Lincoln was—what a cloud of witnesses these are! And how all these testify the greatness of the human soul. With thoughts like these, the more our soul should warm, the more immortal our soul should feel, and rightly. In a way one is everything that one loves.

For one famous man there are a thousand, yes, ten thousand deservers. Human excellence is far more common than is the thought of it, than the essence of it is, only it fails to find proper expression—frequently because of innate modesty, frequently for want of opportunity, but more often for want of some little knack. Often for one hero there are a hundred heroic spirits, only they do not get into action. Because a hero needs 500 square miles for a stage, while that space of land is not meant to be only the theatre for one man to act in, but the native country of 10,000,000 souls. And so out of a hundred persons who are heroic by nature, one is allowed to be so in action. And the rest, through sympathy with him, feel themselves, and know themselves, and grow stronger. If a man does earnestly what duty he has to do, then he is any and every character that he truly admires—he is Howard the philanthropist, Sidney the patriot, and John, the Apostle.

THE WINCHESTER PUBLIC LIBRARY

An Appreciation

The Fortnightly, one of the leading social, educational and civic organizations of Winchester is keenly alive to the cultural advantages of its own town. Through the medium of this little paper it wishes to express its appreciation of one of these, the Winchester Public Library.

The new building is a joy to all. Those of us who waited for years to see it materialize, experience a sense of grateful achievement, each time we pass it—a dream has come true. When we step inside we are thrilled. It is ours.

Architecturally, it is a beautiful addition to our town, and the modern note in the interior decoration is cheerful as well as artistic. How the early settlers pictured over the fireplace would have looked at the clock! And what would the Red Men in the murals have said about the sunset window?

The numerous alcoves, the fireplace nook, the comfortable chairs, the sturdy tables and the perfect lighting are all one can ask for comfort and beauty.

Artistically, we have already gained much since its completion. The murals are a source of pride and joy; they lend us the warmest of art as soon as we enter the library. Several large portraits and two lovely paintings have recently been hung in the unassigned room downstairs where special groups and classes meet. In the auditorium under the direction of the Winchester Art Association, there have been almost continuous exhibits of sketches, drawings or paintings. How much beauty there is in the hearts of Winchester people to express themselves in this way!

Bookishly, our library is not merely a house for books or a place in which to read. One feels an atmosphere of deliberate attempt of catering to the particular tastes and desires of the townspeople. The timely displays of books, both adult and juvenile, to correspond with the happenings of the year, public events and special projects are stimulating and interesting. For instance, the special garden table and the travel table in the summer, were both attractive and helpful. In their annual report, the trustees express the wish, "that the Library building would be more than merely a place in which to keep and circulate books. In the days of our forefathers, nearly every New England town had a Lyceum Hall, the primary use of which was to promote education and culture, and we hope that the Library will help realize the benefits our forefathers visioned, and will round out and extend the work of our schools and colleges." We are fortunate to have trustees with such visions—the effect is a definite addition to the cultural life of Winchester.

How happy for our children to have such delightful quarters in which to find the books they love and to borrow others which become new friends.

There are many treasures too, in our library. The Historical Society has many interesting memontos of early Winchester; there are hundreds of bound volumes of precious old magazines, many valuable photographs and sketches. In the magazine racks are 116 different magazines. The reference books, encyclopedias, bibliographies, and special pamphlets are invaluable to the students of our town.

But perhaps most of us love best the open shelves of books, both old and new, which we may handle and muse upon to our hearts content. We are happy that emphasis is placed upon standard books, rather than the newest, although we find a surprising number of those, too. We are thankful that our library appropriations have been so generous during these times where folks have had more time to read than ever.

The Fortnightly is grateful for all the privileges it has enjoyed. Special requests by the Literature Committee have always been cheerfully granted. This year seven new books for this group alone have been added. The special shelf and easy access to all the other books is much appreciated. The Committees on Antiques, Art, American Home and Legislature are equally indebted.

Finally, we wish to acknowledge the faithfulness of our librarian, Miss Quimby, herself a member of this club. Her love and knowledge of books, her understanding of her position and her loyalty to her fellow townsmen are praiseworthy. May we all continue to co-operate to keep our library a true source of inspiration, refinement and culture in our beloved Winchester.

BOWEN TUFTS GIVES FIRST ART EXHIBITION

Bowen Tufts, of Winchester, vice-president of C. D. Parker & Co., investment bankers, whose first exhibition closed at Ballou Hall, Tufts College, Saturday night, probably would not admit he is shirking his golf game. He might not even admit he is an artist. He would probably say that he is a struggling art student who happened to pick up one of his daughter's brushes in August, 1933, and has been painting ever since.

His work shows what can be accomplished in leisure hours, when a mature person who has devoted 30 of his 48 years to bankers' problems suddenly decides to train his intelligence enthusiastically on the problems of expressing beauty in enduring forms.

He began by painting in his garden at Point Allerton, Hull. Having discovered that one's own creation is infinitely more satisfying than the mere possession of old masters, he went to work, painting marine views which tried to include everything in sight at once, and which his friends described as infinitely bad.

From that point, he began a serious study of technique, devoting hours to hard work and remembering everything his teachers told him. Today he is turning out work which may be compared favorably with that of many earnest painters who have been adorning the wharves and hillsides of the world for a much longer period than two years.

Mr. Tufts's modest account of his original venture in the fine arts is revealing of the man who left high school in his fresman year, went to work as a messenger boy in the little banking firm of Jose Parker & Co., and worked his way up to manager and vice-president.

From the time he was 15 years old until he had arrived, his occupation was business, his avocation was business, and he took his business home at night. Such matter as the history of the town of Hull, on which he is something of an authority, and ships, and paintings, had to go in a cubbyhole of his desk and brain marked "unfinished business."

"I suppose I owe my interest in painting to a trip which my wife took to Chicago in the summer of 1933," he said. "I wanted to paint our garden as a kind of record of the flowers which were in bloom. A box of my daughter's water colors was lying around, and I began to experiment. I understand that there are 3000 flowers properly recorded. Such detail, I suppose, belongs in the Persian School of Art."

Once stimulated by his "catalogue of flowers" painted for his absent wife, Mr. Tufts began to take lessons from Stuart Bruce of the Cambridge School of Art. Mr. Bruce is sure that Mr. Tufts has remembered everything he has ever said.

His game room at his home in Winchester became a studio and gallery. He got almost as much of a "kick" out of presenting the town of Hull with a painting of the late Dr. Walter E. Sturgis riding through a northeast storm to deliver a baby at Boston light as he has got out of the praise which has been showered on his "Quarry in Sunlight and Shadow," which his teacher says is his best work.

Mrs. Tufts prefers "Three Patriarchs Homestead with Pines and Elms" a carefully thought-out drawing of an old house in Winchester.

Mrs. Tuft's daughter, Jean, 14, although she has been painting in water colors longer than her father, admits that he has by hard work and great concentration outstripped her. She says the "Three Patriarchs" is "too pecky."

"He pecks too much in his drawing," she said critically, intimating that when he overcomes his defect of "pecking" her dad will be a great artist.

To Mr. Tufts, the idea of any exhibition was rather appalling. He went into it with great diffidence, after having previously refused to enter a "three-man" show at the Quincy Art Centre with his sister and brother, Mrs. Marion Perry and Miss Marion Perry of East Weymouth.

Cyrus Dallin, the sculptor, attended the exhibition at Tufts College and admired a more modern composition entitled "Reflection." In this painting a white cat of a peculiar shape gazes into an oval bowl of gold fish in close proximity to a blue bowl and a necklace. Mr. Tufts seemed surprised that the famous sculptor should choose it.

So far as the public goes, the one still life in the show has made the biggest hit, and one evening was so voted. Mr. Bruce reported an offer to buy one painting from an admirer, but Mr. Tufts rejected it. "I will lend them, but I will not sell them." he said finally and definitely.—[Edward Allen in the Boston Herald.

"DUTCH" IS A BANNED ADJECTIVE IN THE NETHERLANDS

Netherlands has officially banned "Dutch" as an adjective. Thus Dutch East Indies, Dutch Guiana, and similar expressions are misnomers. The former is properly "Netherland India;" the latter has been known for some time as "Surinam."

Although the Kingdom of Netherlands is not as extensive as the French and British domains upon which the "sun never sets," it includes colonial possessions in both hemispheres that are nearly 60 times the area of the homelnnd, which is approximately the same size as the State of Maryland, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Colonies Are Mostly Islands

Only one segment of colonial Netherlands is on a continental mainland—Surinam (formerly Dutch Guiana), one of the European triplets that occupies the northern coast of South America. The remainder consists of islands, most of them off the southeastern coast of Asia, between the Malay Peninsula and Australia.

Netherlands' holdings on the Island of Borneo are five times the size of the State of New York; one-half of New Guinea is governed by Queen Wilhelmina; Sumatra, another Netherland possession, contains more square miles than the State of California; Java and its neighbor, Madoera, are nearly equal in area to the State of Alabama; the Celebes Islands are nearly the same size as the State of Louisiana; and thousands of other East Indian islands, large and small if drawn together, would nearly equal the broad expanse of Texas.

Surinam, which is slightly larger than the State of Pennsylvania, is largely undeveloped. The colony of Curacao, the only other important possession of the Netherlands in the New World, consists of a group of islnnds of the West Indies lying off the coast of Venezuela. They include the Island of Curacao.

Java Is World's Most Thickly Populated Area

Continental Netherlands is the home of but a small portion of the people under the Netherlands flag; for a recent census revealed that there were only 8,061,571 Netherlanders in the homeland, while the population of the colonial possessions was nearly eight times larger. Java, with 41,719,524 inhabitants, is the world's most thickly populated land area—an average of 821 people to the square mile. And still there is room on Java for many active and extinct volcanoes, 3368 miles of railroads, about 30,000 miles of highways, and nearly 2,000,000 acres of teak forests.

Nearly all the islands of Netherland India lie near the Equator nnd are blanketed with luxuriant tropical vegetation and fertile soil. Most of the natives are Moslems. They are accustomed to hard work, and produce sufficient food for themselves.

In Java, despite the thick population, the teeming millions support themselves and produce enough sugar to make the island the second largest of the world's sugar exporters. In 1931, the island sent nearly 3,000,000 tons of sugar into commercial channels. It also produces about 40,000,000 barrels of oil annually, and has an annual exportable surplus of rice, coffee, tea, cocoa, indigo, spices, tobacco, rubber, copra and tin. Many American colds and cases of malarin have been treated with quinine extracted from the bark of the chinchona trees of Java, which gives up about 99 per cent of the world's supply of the bitter medicine.

Surinam, like Java is a producer of sugar, cocoa, coffee and rubber, while bananas and bauxite also are important products. It is a forest-covered region, the coastal zone of which is the only portion settled extensively by white men.

The chief industry of the Curacao colony is oil refining, although the six inlands. Boniface, Aruba, St. Eustatias, Saba and a portion of St. Martins, are producers of maize, dulse, cattle, salt and phosphates. In 1930 these 400 square miles of islands exported $53,400,000 worth of commodities to the United States alone, while Uncle Sam sold to them goods worth $13,600 000.

The present colonial empire of the Netherlands dates back only to 1602 when the government created the East India Company. The company acquired new territory in the East from time to time and governed it until 1798 when it was turned over to the mother country.

Surinam was acquired by the Peace of Breda in 1667 when England traded the region for the colony of New Netherlands in North America. Since that treaty, England has retaken possession twice—1799 to 1802 and 1804 to 1816.

HEATING HINTS

HERE'S the heating thought I want to leave with you today: Never shake a fire that is low. You can't expect to revive a half-dead fire by shaking the life out of it. Simply put on a sprinkling of fresh coal and give it time to ignite. Then when it has ignited completely, shake the grates very gently until the first red glow appears in the ash-pit.

Now your fire is ready for refueling. And when refueling remember to fill the fire box up to the level of the bottom of the fire door. A deep fire is much more economical than a shallow one. It burns less coal — lasts longer — and requires less attention. (16)

29th ANNUAL ROLL CALL AT SECOND CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

On Friday evening, March 15, came the 29th annual roll call of the little church on Kenwin road. In the spirit-low candles and lovely spring flowers made a very festive appearance. Much credit is due the Bethany ladies for their part in providing such a sumptuous supper.

Following the supper, the guests assembled in the church auditorium, and the roll was called by the clerk, Mr. F. J. Baker. Responses were given by both present and absent members, three of the latter coming way across the continent in time to be read at the roll call.

The first speaker of the evening was Dr. Merrill, who is connected with the Congregational House in Boston. He was well worth listening to and heeding. Among the terse remarks and suggestions he gave, the following seemed outstanding:

"The church is a character-building institution. Let's support it. To accomplish this, three simple rules are submitted. First, pray for your minister. If more people prayed for their minister at the breakfast table, there would be less criticism of him at the dinner table. Second, come to church. It is sheer nonsense to argue that religion exists just as well with empty church pews as with full ones. As logically state that a college alumni meeting is just as successful when 50 come, in contrast to the usual 500, the ulibi being 'the spirit is there just the same.'" (And this little thought was thrown in for our consideration—when driving through the different suburban towns of Boston at church time, notice where you find the streets lined with parked cars! Discount the evidence as you may, it is a silent, powerful testimonial that the people of that faith believe in their church, and support it.)

Third, apply this test to yourself: "If every church member were a member like me, What kind of church would this church be?"

After letting that sink in for a while, Dr. Merrill concluded with an admonition to each one as, in the form of another quotation: "You thunder so loud what you are, that I cannot hear what you say."

Dr. Francis M. Jones was the second speaker, and he read a masterful thesis on the three approaches to God, through the senses, the spirit and the intellect. Dr. Jones is decidedly a mystic, and his new trend of ideas jerked us up mentally and opened quite different channels of thought. The experience was most beneficial to all who listened.

A story entitled "The Easter Guest" was most beautifully read by Miss Olive Robinson, and the accompanying music was given by a mixed quartet which sang with delightful melody. The voices were those of Mrs. Arlene Fields, soprano; Miss Appleton of Medford, alto; Mr. Wakefield of Boston, bass, and Mr. Alan Monroe, tenor. To these friends of our church we are most grateful.

A letter from the Standing Committee of the church was read by Mr. Baker at this time, summing up the year's achievements, and acknowledging the help and support we have received from friends and members. It was most gratifying to learn that the mortgage and the interest on our church loan are paid up to March, 1936. Two more payments and we can burn the mortgage! We feel like "giving our elves a pat on the back," and pressing on with renewed faith and courage.

PING PONG WINNERS

Richard Leghorn won from Dr. Francis Priest in the elimination rounds of the annual over-rong tournament at the high school last week Saturday evening. Mrs. Barbara Marchant refereed all the games from the head of the long service. Doctor Cox and Edward Sweetser Long, the Buccaneer and Lawrence Miller in the men's doubles, and Jane and Paul Paton and Gene MacDonald and Richard Leghorn in mixed doubles.

ROTARY CLUB

Two members were left out from the meeting on March 14. Let us "make it unanimous."

Another club is about to join the rank in the 31st district. We refer to the Rotary Club of Cranston, R. I., which will hold its charter night on the evening of May 2. We have long felt that Rotary was due for even its present extension in Rhode Island. A State which has enjoyed two Rotary Governors in five years, certainly must possess an abundance of material for a new and virile organization. And at the current meeting of our own club, Governor "Dan" Adkich brought pleasant evidence of his ability to extend the sphere of Rotary. As far as our personal knowledge goes, the outlook has never been brighter in the Rotary outlook.

Notice is given of a change in the date of the Spring Conference of the district. The Conference will assemble in Quincy, on Wednesday, May 15. Further announcements in connection with the event will follow in due course.

This club had the honor, last Thursday, of entertaining a distinguished Rotarian in the person of Edward R. Johnson of the Rotary Club of Roanoke, Va. Last year "Ed" was director and first vice-president of Rotary International. This year he is chairman of the International Convention Committee and a prominent candidate for President of Rotary International. "Ed" favored us with a short address, giving interesting information as to the many pleasant experiences in store for those who shall visit Mexico City next June.

Always it is the grand occasion when our District Governor pays us his annual visit. Emphatically it was so at the current meeting. After his business conference with the Club Directors and Committee Chairmen, Governor Daniel Aldrich appeared before the club and delivered one of those inspirational addresses for which he has become famous. Few indeed of his listeners left the room without clarified ideas as to the origin, ideals and development of the modern service club. Few came away without inwardly resolving to exemplify that service to the best of his ability in his own person. This is constructive leadership at its best. May Governor "Dan" long be spared to us to continue and to enlarge the great work which he has undertaken.

Thought for Today—

The real loser is the Rotarian who misses Rotary meetings. Percentage of attendance March 14—93.10.

COLLEGE CLUB NEWS

The morning study group had as its speaker at the bi-monthly meeting on March 14, Miss Trinidad de Mora. A native of the Province of Valencia and a graduate of the "International Carmen, as the real type of Spanish woman, you think of her as a frivolous woman, always dancing, playing castanets, half dressed and exotic. What would you say if I pointed out the woman of Hollywood, the movie star, as typical of American womanhood. The real American home and family certainly is not the one you see in the movies. Well there is the same difference between the real Spanish woman and the one you see dancing the tango, carioca or rumba, which by the way are not Spanish dances at all, but are Indian in origin and are only danced in the watertront restaurants in Cuba or South America." I have quoted from Miss de Mora.

There is no country about which people are so fond of genalizing as Spain. They fail to realize that between the people of the different provinces in Spain there is as wide a dissimilarity as between the Yankee and the Creole.

In the northwestern part of Spain there are the Asturians and Gallicians, celtic in origin, big, muscular, hard working people. With their fine physique and energy is found a poetical nature and from Asturia has come some of the best Spanish poetry. In the north are found also the Basques, tall, well proportioned and blond.

In North Central Spain are the Arazonees and Catalonians, a serious minded, daring and obstinate people.

In the Southeast we find the Valencians, a blond, white skinned race, artistic in temperament. The women there wear the typical picturesque native costume composed of full skirt, lace apron and lace kerchief that reaches down to the shoulders.

The Andalusian, of Moorish descent is the type we think of when we picture the Spanish woman. She has soft, dark eyes, olive skin and black hair. She is kind hearted and sympathetic, indolent and pleasure loving, spontaneous and vivacious.

Nevertheless, there are certain national characteristics that bind together these different types. The Spanish woman is first of all a good wife and devoted mother and capable home-maker. All of them are very religious, good Roman Catholics, as this form of religion suits the temperament of the Latin race.

There are, and always have been many well educated women who have an abiding interest in good works and carry them on not only with zest but with ability. However, with the establishing of the Republic and with the granting of suffrage to women, many opportunities have been open to her which she has never had before. Now that the state and church have been separated the women have found it necessary to raise money for the churches. This has necessitated their getting out and working together in groups. Their interest has spread from church to school and hospitals. She visits the hospitals, jails and charitable institutions to see that everything is well taken care of. She goes to the schools to make sure the children are getting the best system of education and the latest in up-to-date buildings.

On Thursday, Miss Nina Strandberg, the good-will representative of her country to America spoke about Finland.

HEART TO HEART TALKS

By Eugene Bertram Willard

Going to church on Sunday, when the weather is fine, will be of little value unless one profits by the sermon and the singing to the extent of making the better things of life their ideal for the days to come. With 4000 ministers on the retail rolls of the nation because of their inability to find pulpits, those who are fortunate enough to have jobs naturally like to hear the silver drop on the collection plate but at the same time they like to know that the people "out front" are making the best of their opportunities as professing Christians.

Going to church each Sunday when the weather is fine, does not mean much unless it is marked by a seven day stewardship for Christ, unless it is marked by a seven-day stewardship that manifests itself in a sincere obedience to the divine will. Obedience to the better things of life is a virtue that is not in high favor at the present time, and yet it is essential, not merely to the well being, but to the safety of society—indeed to the safety of the individual soul.

A lot of folk who attend church on Sunday, when the weather is fine, are not really sincere in their professions. They go to church more as a matter of routine than anything else. But Christ bade His followers to be "swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath," and to show their religion in their every day life and not on one day of the week—to show their sincerity by "visiting the fatherless and widows in their affliction" and keeping themselves "unspotted from the world." For He continues: "Be ye doers of the Word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves." For if any man be a hearer of the Word, and not a doer, he is like unto a man beholding his natural face in a glass; for he beholdeth himself, and goeth his way, and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was. But whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein, he, being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the work, this man shall be blessed in his deed. If any man among you seem to be religious, and bridleth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain."

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

Both butter and eggs are a little cheaper and according to market authorities they have probably reached their low for this season. Bulk American cheese has not advanced in price though packaged cheeses are considerably higher.

Lamb prices are much lower than they were but the drop is regarded as merely temporary. Beef forequarters too are somewhat cheaper, but other meat prices remain steady.

Apples, oranges and grapefruit are unusually attractive in quality and price. Most vegetables are fairly high; but green beans, carrots, parsnips, turnips and potatoes are all reasonable.

Weather has been favorable for salt water fishing, but very had for fresh water fishing. Consequently seafood is plentiful and moderate in price and fresh water fish scarce and high.

Here are three menus made up of seasonable foods adapted to different budget levels:

Low Cost Dinner
Braised Shanks of Lamb
Baked Potatoes Creamed Carrots
Bread and Butter
Apple Tapioca
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner
Roast Fresh Shoulder of Pork
Apple Sauce
Browned Potatoes Celery
Bread and Butter
Lemon Snow Soft Custard
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner
Stuffed Celery
Roast Beef New Parsley Potatoes
Frenched Green Beans
Orange and Onion Salad
Rolls and Butter Charlotte Russe
Coffee Milk

OBSERVATIONS

By the Observer

The tied pun is the one that does the loudest howling.

We hate to crack this one, but in our own candid opinion a joke like this isn't cracked every day, at least not in Winchester: Some women's forms look 16 while their faces look 60.

A will drawn up in Winchester not long ago reminded some of the relatives of pills. It left a bad taste in the mouth.

One thing our Winchester doctors do not have to worry about in March is the green apple season.

What has become of Winchester's old-fashioned politician who used to shout: "Good people, lend me your ears!"

A Star reader sendh in this one: "Feminine intuition is nothing in the world but female suspicion with its face powdered." A dirty dig, dear Star reader, but we might add that the ladies of Winchester never have any trouble in scenting something suspicious with or without their noses powdered.

A process has been developed to extend the life of rubber 50 years. That's stretching it pretty far. How many of our Winchester car owners would tire of a tire in less time than that?

Traffic in the good old days when our citizens got their water from the pump revealed more evidence of horse sense, but perhaps it was in the horse.

The thing that makes a middle-aged man think the typical smart Aleck of 17 the most asinine idiot the world ever saw is a poor memory.

In motoring the wise Winchester motorist will not try to count the telephone poles by the side of the highway unless he wants to hit one of them.

An old expression used to go "keep both feet on the ground." Now it is safe to keep one foot on the clutch and the other on the brake.

It is reported on pretty good authority that one woman here in Winchester will seek a divorce from her husband on the ground that he can't play bridge.

No doubt the reason whiskers are unpopular in the Winchester of 1935 is that they might get tangled in the gears of an auto when the driver bends over to see what has happened to the old bus.

Winchester fellow sent a dollar to a Chicago firm for a recipe to keep rats out of the kitchen. The reply said "Stop up the holes where they come in."

MEETING OF COLLEGE CLUB

The annual meeting of the Winchester College Club was held at the home of Mrs. Joseph W. Worthen, Wedgemere avenue, March 22. Mrs. Judson L. Cross, president, welcomed about 100 members and guests. Reports were given by Mrs. Clinton E. Farnham, secretary; Miss Alice Main, treasurer; Mrs. George Reed, chairman of the program committee; Mrs. Waldo Bond, the membership committee and Mrs. Robert Stone, the hospitality committee.

Two study groups are being held this winter and proving to be very popular. These groups are open to members and others interested. A small fee to cover expenses is charged. Mrs. William Spaulding, reported for the Evening Group which has an attendance of about 50 men and women and is studying the Scandinavian countries. Mrs. Frank Gunby reported for the Morning Group, with an attendance of 45, meeting at the Library and studying the States of women in foreign countries. Through the assistance of the International Institute we are fortunate in having a native speaker from the Philippines, Bulgaria, Belgium, Turkey, Spain, Finland, China and Italy.

It was voted to give scholarship aid to one of the Winchester High School students who is now at college and doing excellent work.

The club is very fortunate in having an extra meeting this spring. On May 8, at the home of Miss Alice Main, Mrs. W. A. Stockwell, sister of President MacCracken of Vassar will speak on the Institute of Euthenics. This will be of special interest to mothers of small children.

It is the custom of the club once in four years to have students who are home on their spring vacations represent the various women's colleges. This year Miss Anita Wilson spoke on her special interest in Art and Music at Wellesley. Miss Virginia Bosse gave a splendid brief for co-education at Jackson.

Miss Mabel Tompkins anticipated the Centennial Anniversary which is to be held at Wheaton this June and spoke of the work being done in the Nursery School and the Little Theatre.

Miss Helen Miley presented the social and athletic attractions of Boston University, a school with no campus and yet with unlimited facilities.

Miss Elizabeth Dutch of Connecticut College told of her year in France with the Delaware Group studying at the Sorbonne from November until July and living with a French family. Miss Katherine Boyden of Vassar told of her year at Yenching University in China, studying Chinese phylosophy and her contact with the Chinese girls. She wore an attractive informal afternoon Chinese gown.

Mrs. Robert Stone, chairman of hospitality was assisted at tea by Mrs. John Lobinger, Mrs. Robert Holmes, Mrs. Lorimer Slocum, Mrs. H. Newell Squires, Mrs. Frank Eaman and Mrs. Wayne Davis. Mrs. Ralph Vinal and Mrs. Holbrook Lowell poured and assisting at the tea table were Mrs. John P. Carr, Mrs. Alexander MacDonald, Mrs. Richard Wyman, Mrs. Leo Blaisdell, Mrs. Fred Currier, Mrs. Curtis Nash, Mrs. Thomas Nevins, Miss Gladys Folts, Mrs. Ben R. Schneider, Mrs. Jameson Slocum and Mrs. Lowell Smith.

GENERAL ELECTRIC DISHWASHER

Dishwashing Time Cut to Less Than 5 Minutes. Chipping and Breakage Eliminated. Dishes Hygienically Cleaned by General Electric's Newest Contribution to Modern Living

General Electric has perfected the electric dishwasher. The new G-E washes all the dishes—china, glassware, silverware, and the pots and pans, too—in less than 5 minutes. It also washes and dries itself. Human hands do not even touch dishwater.

Soiled dishes are placed in soft, resilient rubber trays—as quickly and easily as stacking on a table—the cover is closed, a magic control is turned, and in 3 to 5 minutes the job is done. Dishes remain stationary and the breakage and chipping of hand washing and drying is eliminated.

Dishes—Dishes—Dishes!

In the average lifetime a woman washes and dries tons and tons of dishes—72 stacks, each pile as high as the Empire State Building. Many a golden hour has been drowned in the murky depths of a dishpan. The charm of lovely hands, the buoyant energy of youth have been sacrificed too long to this thankless task.

Now the General Electric Dishwasher frees your kitchen forever from this distasteful, monotonous drudgery. No more cluttering confusion of stacks of dirty dishes. As fast as the soiled dishes accumulate they are tucked away in the G-E Dishwasher.

Your kitchen is neat, clean and orderly at all times with never a dirty dish in sight. An hour or more time is saved each day for other things—an hour that is valuable and precious to you or to your maid.

There is a size and model General Electric Dishwasher for every kitchen. Terms as low as
$10 PER MONTH

On Display at
WINCHESTER THE EDISON SHOP, PARK RADIO COMPANY, J. A. LARAWAY CO.
W. L. THOMPSON, INC. 6 Common Street Winchester, Mass.

Your dishes are cleaner, too—hygienically clean!

Dishes are a major carrier of disease germs. In the G-E Dishwasher a spray of scalding water, hotter than human hands can touch is forced over every dish. Dishes are hygienically cleaned, protecting the health of your family from the dangers of careless or hurried hand dishwashing.

Modernize your kitchen with this new contribution to the freedom of American womanhood. Savings in time, the elimination of breakage, the economies in soap, laundry and water heating actually pay for this newest electric home servant.

HEATING HINTS .. by John Barclay

OFTENTIMES during the winter when the heat is on, the air in your rooms becomes dry. And, as you know, many winter colds are caused by hot, dry air. It also causes furniture to dry out and crack.

This condition can easily be remedied by keeping a "pan humidifier", or hot water pan, in each room. These pans are designed to hang unseen between the radiator and the wall. The heat from the radiator causes the water in the pan to evaporate and thus provide moisture for the air in the room, preventing it from becoming too dry.

Warm Air Heating Plants have a humidifier pan connected to them. In this case, it is only necessary to keep a constant supply of water in the humidifier pan. (15)

SURINAM TOADS, REARED PICK-A-BACK

A new shipment of the rare Surinam toads, the strangest toads known to American collections, recently reached the National Zoological Park in Washington, D. C. These queer creatures from South America were practically unknown in the United States until a year ago.

Individual Pouch Is Nursery

The offspring of the Surinam toad has no "childhood" like other little toads, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Like most other frogs and toads the Surinam toad comes from an egg via the tadpole stage. But unlike the other members of this big family of tailless amphibia it has no free-swimming tadpole period, even though all of its life, from the egg through the tadpole to the full-grown toad, is spent in the water.

At the time the eggs are laid the male Surinam toad distributes them evenly over the back of the female, leaving to her the entire responsibility of raising a large family. Each egg finally settles in a deep pouch in the skin of the mother toad. The pouches are closed by a peculiar lid, which is probably the remnant of the membrane originally surrounding the egg.

Within this cavity the egg develops through the tadpole stage. The young Surinam toad thus spends a pampered and protected early youth, while tadpoles of other kinds of toads and frogs are out learning the hard facts of life.

Finally, when it has fully developed, it leaves the nursery on its mother's back and swims away. But it inherits, apparently, a delicate constitution, and is extremely sensitive to atmospheric changes, which explains why it is one of the rarest and most highly prized of zoo denizens. A specially-heated stateroom, kept at tropic heat, had to be arranged on the steamer which brought the new collection to this country.

Tongueless and Toothless

The adult Surinam toad is one of the ugliest members of a family notorious for lack of pulchritude. It is mud-colored, tongueless and toothless. Its webbed hind feet, and long, flat body (which looks as if it had been run through a clothes-wringer), enable it to move through the water with surprising rapidity. It is found only in the pools and swampy areas of the northeastern part of South America.

While the Surinam toad is a remarkable creature in its own right, many of the superstitions about our northern toads are, although unfounded, equally strange. During the Middle Ages, the toad was supposed to be an intimate of the alchemist and the sorcerer, and endowed with supernatural powers. Credulous sick people were dosed with ghastly concoctions brewed from various inedible substances, often including a toad or frog, over which the wizard healer had said weird incantations to make the evil spirit depart from the body of the sick.

The beautiful gleaming eye of the toad was supposed to be an outward sign of the inward luster of the jewel concealed in his head. The toadstone was carried as a charm, set in a ring, or worn as an amulet, or deposited on the shrine of a saint as an offering of great piety.

Almost as naive is the belief, common in many parts of the United States today, that the handling of toads will cause warts. This has been scientifically disproved. After handling toads, however, scientists say that care should be taken not to get any of the mucous secretions from the skin glands into the eyes or mouth, or serious trouble may ensue.

The use of toadskins as medicine in China may be more reasonable than it appears. Recent studies of the secretion of glands of the toad reveal chemical changes taking place within the matured secretion producing adrenaline, a drug used as a stimulant.

Silvery Cadiz

Cadiz, Spain, is locally called "The Silver Dish," because of the cascade of sloping, tumbling roofs all brilliantly white against the sea and sky.

An Early Ohio Village

For some time early in the history of Newark, Ohio, only two frame structures stood on the town site—one of which was the office of a lawyer, the other the home of the only other lawyer in the village.

High School "Highlights" Column

English Class Completes Project

The junior English class which meets the third period with Mr. Keeney has recently finished a newspaper which was made by the students along the lines of a city daily. They call it the World Sun, and it is comprised of six pages, two news pages, an editorial page, society page, sport page and home page.

Ever Olson was editor-in-chief and with the class as his co-workers the project was finished with much interesting content. All this was done in connection with the study of the newspaper.

Pinafore Presented — Splendid Performance Enthusiastically Received

Very rarely do the students of any school have given to them such a fascinating and interesting assembly program as the Dramatic Society presented at the High School on Wednesday last. This was an adaptation of "H. M. S. Pinafore," by Gilbert and Sullivan, was very successfully produced by a cast of 50 students.

This nautical operetta has been in rehearsal since soon after Christmas. Although the many other activities and difficulties slowed down the advancement of the program, it was presented with the ease and grace which marks all excellent and successful undertakings. The entire expenses of the performance were met by the Dramatic Society.

The purpose of the performance was to give ample opportunity to all student members to partake in the field of dramatic work in which they were most interested.

The sixteen members of the stage crew are to be complimented upon their work of constructing and painting the scenery. Without this exceedingly attractive and sea-like atmosphere, the play itself could not have been so effective. The pretty and charming costumes of the girls brought out the festiveness of the occasion, while the trim white and blue suits of the sailors lent aid to the ship-shapedness.

Each of the main characters in the performance made the most of his part. It is difficult to single out even one or two who were outstanding, therefore we present to you the program of all who took part in this successful enterprise.

High School Again Offered Mothers' Association Scholarship

Wednesday morning a representative of the Winchester Mothers' Association spoke briefly to the assembled high school about the scholarships which have been given for the past two years to worthy members of the graduating class. In its initial year, Richard Barstow was the recipient of $100, and by its help entered Bowdoin where he has been doing excellent work since.

Last year there were two scholarships of $100 and $50 each, which went to Margaret Eken and Esther Loftus. Margaret is at Smith and Esther at Radcliffe. Both are proving their abilities.

The scholarship will be repeated again this year and applicants are urged to start action at once by writing the necessary information to Mrs. Spaulding of the Mothers' Association. The opportunity closes on May 1.

Besides the necessity of attending an elementary school in Winchester, the winner is judged by 1, Scholarship; 2, Citizenship; and 3, Financial Need.

Take advantage of this generous step on the part of the Mothers' Association and write your application today. Of course, this offer is open to seniors only, but one need not be preparing for college to receive its benefits. Any kind of higher education, commercial, music, or art, is included as eligible for the scholarship.

All-Star Class Team and High Scorers Picked—T. Donaghey Heads in Points Scored

With the closing of the class games, an all-star team and the high scorers for the season have been picked and tabulated. Neither job was easy, and most of the credit for the idea and its carrying out should go to Coach Mansfield.

The choosing of an all-Star team was especially hard. Coach Mansfield, "Bob" Priery, and the coaches of the four class teams did the voting. Thirty votes were scattered among 11 players, and only Albie MacDonnell and Chief Heap Big Sponge Belly Donaghey received the maximum number of votes. "Dick" Leghorn and "Buddy" MacDonald were voted the highest among the forwards with Chief Little Sponge Belly Hakanson a close third. Emens was the other guard with "Al" Gaum third. "Joe" Phelan at center, Hill at forward, and Bancroft and Millyan at guards should receive honorable mention.

Following is the all-star team:

Besides tying with Albie MacDonnell for first place on the all-star team, Chief H. B. S. B. Donaghey was the high scorer in the class games. He led diminutive Bud McDonald by two points, with Albie MacDonald, sterling junior guard, third. There was not much high scoring on the part of anyone the points being pretty evenly divided. Following is the list of the first seven high scorers, those who garnered 20 points or better:

	Points
T. Donaghey, Senior	30
W. McDonald, Sophomore	28
A. MacDonald, Junior	24
J. Donaghey, Freshman	22
R. Hakanson, Freshman	21
L. Leghorn, Freshman	20
J. Cassidy, Senior	20

Boys' Tennis Being Organized

Under the managership of John Scully, this year's tennis program is being mapped out. As you know, Winchester, for lack of competition is branching out of their last year's league and entering into big-time playing. They're trying to get matches with such schools as Andover, Exeter, Belmont Hill and Milton Academy. Whether or not these schools will be scheduled is still a question.

This year the tennis team will have only two returning veterans, John Scully and Dean Catherin, Capt. "Bill" Woodford, Lorimer Walker, and "Bill" McGaragle, three of last year's regulars have graduated. "Tom" Aldrich has left school. Capt.-elect "Little Jo" Josephson, last year's big surprise, is furnishing another surprise this year by showing tennis and going out for baseball. This means that there are five positions open to newcomers. Who will fill them is still an unknown matter and will not be decided until the latter half of the next month.

Sophomores Win Class Championship —Lead Juniors and Seniors by One Game

Clinching the championship by a two-point win over the seniors last week, the sophomores became the winners of the annual Boys' Interclass Basketball Series. The seniors and juniors tied for second, only one game behind the winners. The final standing is as follows:

	Won	Lost	Pts.
Sophomores	4	2	8
Seniors	3	3	6
Juniors	3	3	6
Freshmen	2	4	4

As you can see the final standing was very close and clearly shows the brand of competition which was seen in the games. The outcome of the series was in doubt up until the next to the last game. The lead changed hands several times. The freshmen and juniors were in a first place tie at first. Then the juniors had undisputed possession of it, only to be forced to share it with, and later, relinquish it to the sophomores. The seniors threatened near the end of the season but failed to dislodge the sophomores.

The victorious sophomore team consisted of Capt. Buddy" McDonald, "Dave" Emmons, "Bud" Bancroft, "Joe" Phelan "Joe" Cimina and "Billy" Smith. Capt. McDonald was the chief scorer, though the team was well balanced. Bancroft and Emmons were stars at the two guard positions. "Joe" Cimina was the firebox of the team, while "Joe" Phelan showed plenty of scrap and good playing. "Bill" Smith proved an excellent utility man.

The seniors were captained by Chief Sponge Belly Donaghey. "Dick" Leghorn, star forward; Larry Bairstow, "Joe" Cassidy, "Ernie" Thompson, "Porky" Millyan, "Sonny" Vespucci and "Al" Gaum were other members of the team.

The juniors had scrappy Albie MacDonnell for their captain. Henry Hill, "Sandy" McKenzie, Polack MacCormack. "Checker" Chamberlain, "Joe" Dineen and "Rugged" Muraco stood out for them.

The freshmen had a potentially powerful outfit which struck a lot of hard luck. Arthur Johnson, sparkling guard, was captain. "Richie" Hakanson and "Jimmy" Donaghey were two good forwards, Gardner and Feeney alternated at center, while Errico and Luongo were other guards.

The class teams were coached by varsity and ex-varsity players. "Dave" Grosvenor, calculating and cool headed, coached the sophomores and showed good judgment nearly all the time. Steamer Hanlon was the senior's coach and did well with the few players available. "Ref" Provinzano coached the Juniors and "Lefty" Stewart, the freshmen. Both deserve much credit for their work.

It is agreed that this year's tournament has had no equal for thrills and good playing. All the teams showed the greatest courage and good sportsmanship. The schedule was run off well and left little to be desired. The numerals will be awarded to the winning sophomores next Wednesday.
